BAD EYES MAKE BAD MEN, STATES OPTOMETRIC HEAD

Traces 50 Per Cent. of Crime and Insanity to Poor Eyesight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 17. — "Bay eyes make bad men."

"Fifty per cent. of the criminality and insanity of the United States could be done away with by proper eye treatment in youth."

"Every advance of civilization increases the proportion of criminals and weaklings—all directly traceable to improper care of the eyes."

"Ninety per cent. of the industrial accidents, as well as motor car and train wrecks are due to poor eyes."

"One of the crimes of our civilization is the attempt to make right-handed children of those who are naturally left handed. People do not know that this is an eye condition."

"Eighty per cent. of the educated people of the United States have curvature of the spine, with its accompanying ills, due to improper care during the physical formative periods."

Startling facts, but true, according to Dr. Reginald C. Augustine, president of the American Optometric Association, on a lecture tour in the interests of "Eye Conservation in America."

Health Impaired.

"Neglect of a boy's eyes when he is in the earlier grades of school affects his entire health, and he finds difficulty in mastering his studies," he said. "He leaves school, nutrained, uneducated, and becomes a hanger-on on the fringe of society. He knows no trade and is open to temptation for any kind of easy money. Neglect of the eyes in youth is responsible for more than half the inmates of our penal institutions.

"A large percentage of those now in asylums would never have been there had their eyes been properly cared for in youth.

"Eye strain brings on poor health, nervousness, insomnia and other conditions which result in insanity

"With our increasingly higher specialization in occupations, our high illumination in cities and our mechanical devices we are rapidly building up a condition of strain which can only result in more criminals and insane, unless we adopt some sane method of overcoming this tremendous strain which the eyes were never fitted to stand."

Defective School Desks.

One of the interesting facts brought out by Dr. Augustine in his work is that school children are being placed in serious danger of permanent disability through the use of school desks now in vogue. Children are forced to bend far over to get their eyes in focus, with a resulting curvature of the spine. Dr. Augustine is urging the adoption of desks which will place books at right angles to a child's eyes while studying.

Out of a list of 144 occupations from trapper to diamond polisher in the order of their strain on the eyes, school children are placed eighty-fifth.

To these declarations Dr. Augustine adds some interesting data on "city blindness," a condition from which most city dwellers are believed to suffer.

"The question is frequently raised," he points out, "as to why our grandfathers had much better eyes than we; how they could see for great distances and for so many years. It's simple. They lived in the open country with nothing to block their vision. Their eyes became tuned to distances. We of the cities have our view cut off by huge buildings wherever we turn, and our vision is thus hindered."

FOREIGN ACTION TO CHECK CHINA MUTINIES URGED.

Brigandage Assumes Serious Proportions Under Military Guise.

By CHARLES ED HOGUE.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—Brigandage, under the guise of military government in the various Provinces, must be checked by international action, if the country is to be saved from a hopeless condition, according to Mr. J. Harold Dollar, Vice-President and General Manager of the Robert Dollar Company.

Mr. Dollar has just returned from a trip up the Yangtsze River and has first-hand information as to conditions that led to the slaughter of 1,500 so-called mutinous soldiers, who were really martyrs to a treacherous leader, and the looting of the cities of Ichang and Wauchang.

"Foreign authorities should not take into consideration the niceties of international law when they are dealing with the so-called soldiery here," declared Dollar. "They are dealing with uniformed bandits who do not deserve any consideration other than that of outlaws."

That the reported mutiny was really instigated by the military chief at Ichang, Mr. Dollar has no doubt. His version, after a careful investigation, is that the soldiers—really organized bandits in uniform—had received no pay for some time and were growing restless. Hence the leader intimated that Ichang offered a fertile field for loot and let the men go to it.

The result was that many of the Chinese residents of the city found themselves homeless and minus their savings and stock in trade and many foreign firms were temporarily put out of business by mobs of loot-hungry uniformed robbers.

An international settlement at Ichang is the only proper solution of the commercial problem on the Upper Yangtsze, according to Mr. Dollar. Unless the foreign governments step in business there will be badly disrupted permanently. He asserts that this is the view of the Chinese merchants, who suffer more heavily from the bogus soldiery than do the foreigners.

Mr. Dollar gave a vivid description of the slaughter of the men who looted Ichang. From the accounts gathered by the steamship man it appears that after the commander of the troops at Ichang had allowed them to loot the city he placed them aboard a ship for transpor to Wuchang. Upon their arrival at Wuchow the soldiers were disarmed and promised safe conduct to their hobes up country. They agreed to this when immunity for prosecution for mutiny and looting were made.

The train went to a siding about 60 miles out of Wuchow and the cars were shunted onto the traed there. The locomotive was sent up the main line a considerable distance and then two machine gun nests were unmasked and opened fire on the cars containing the soldiers. The machine gunners did their work thoroughly, and the entire contingent was wiped out.

Yetitions have already been prepared by the Chinese merchants at Ichang asking for an international settlement, and will be forwarded to the proper authorities in the Legations at Peking as well as to the Chinese authorities. These ask for the organization of a settlement similar to that of Shanghai.

There are now three American, two British and two Japanese gunboats stationed at Ichang.

GOVERNMENT LOST EDUCATIONIST.

OTTAWA, Aug. 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Giving as his reasons that the remuneration is not commensurate with the duties and responsibilities of the position and that considerable differences of opinion had arisen between the government and himself with respect to policies to be followed in promoting technical education in Canada, Prof. L. W. Gill, director of technical education, attached to the Department of Labor, announced last evening that he had resigned from his position to accept that of directing head of the departments of electrical and mechanical engineering in the University of British Columbia.

In his new office Dr. Gill will have the privilege of carrying on a private practice in engineering and for the latter purpose he will open an office in Vancouver. Dr. Gill leaves Ottawa at the end of this month.

HARVEST TIME.

The scenes which now my mind recalls,
Have long since passed away,
When harvesting used to be done,
In the good old fashioned way.

I hear the swish of my father's scythe,
The rustle of the grain,
The little scarlet pimpernel
Peeps up in my face again.

I see the waving fields of gold,
Soft stirring sounds I hear,
Oh, what was there about those days
That made them seem so dear!

The flies skimmed on the water
Of the ponds with shrubs around,
And through the hazy atmosphere
Came gentle murmuring sounds.

Ah, do I wish that once again,
That I a child could be;
I might as well cry for the moon
To come to earth for me.

But yet I know that I can have
The child-like trusting heart;
And love the beauteous things of life,
And of them be a part.

And this is my desire, Oh, God,
And this my earnest plea:
That as my days mount into years
I more a child may be.

M'CRACKEN'S LANDING REGATTA THE CONCLUDING EVENT OF THE SEASON

SPORTS WERE WELL CONTESTED —FINE WEATHER CONTRIBUTED TO SUCCESS OF THE EVENT.

McCRACKEN'S LANDING, Aug. 17.—Ideal weather conditions and a competent committee made the regatta at McCracken's Landing a great success. It is the last of the series held on Stoney Lake this season and the events were well contested throughout. The number of entries was second to none and the enthusiasm kept up to the end. Cottagers from all over the lake were present, coming in all manners of craft, canoes, skiffs, dinghies, motor boats and punts. Crowe's Landing and Kawartha Park each had a goodly contingent present, showing their interest in the sports day of their sister community. The neighboring farmers took an afternoon off and enjoyed the races to the full, and everywhere there was the spirit of a good time.

The committee was well organized and had every detail carefully worked out.

Mr. H. E. Ringel was Chairman and Mr. A. F. Choate Secretary and Mr. Hall was Clerk of the Course. Col. S. F. Smith acted as the official starter and the remaining members of the committee were Messrs. T. M. Wilson, T. H. Jones, R. O. Bailey J. O. McCarthy, W. R. Morson and Major Smith.

After the races, Mrs. H. E. Ringel presented the prizes to the winners. The prizes possessed the merit of being both useful and ornamental, and were much appreciated.

Mr. A. F. Choate expects next year to have a dancing pavilion erected on his property, and then this enterprising community can have a regatta dance. This will be a great addition to McCracken's Landing and a source of great enjoyment to the summer colony, which is increasing every year.

This is the last of the regattas, and a sad reminder that the summer holidays are almost over, and the birds of passage will soon sing "Good-bye, Summer," and leave the Northland for a warmer clime.

HOBOES STEAL 400-MILE RIDE ON GOLD CAR WHILE 12 ARMED MEN GUARD ITS $1,250,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. — Frank Farrell, of Waco, Tex., and C. F. Newman, of Utica, N.Y., added a brilliant page to the history of the hobo fraternity when they rode 400 miles from Buffalo to Harmon, N.Y., on the blind end of an express car carrying $1,250,000 in gold bullion and a dozen armed guards. At Harmon they changed cars—by compulsion—and rode into New York City "on the cushions."

The heavily guarded treasure train left Buffalo at 11 p.m. Speeding through the night, it stopped at Rochester, and the guards looked about for bandits. It stopped at Syracuse and again the guards made inspection. It stopped at Utica—it stopped at Albany and Poughkeepsie. Guards and train crew found it all safe.

At each stop the hoboes slipped from their perch on the "bumper"—a beam across the front of the car just over the coupling—and crawled between the front wheels of the car to crouch in concealment on the brake beams. Then when the train again started they climbed back to their original perch.

But at Harmon, where the train arrived at 7 a.m., the engines were changed. The steam locomotive was uncoupled to make way for one of the electric engines that enter Manhattan. And just then Detective John L. Brown, of the New York Central Police Force, took a look around. Then he notified the armed guards in the express car. Four guards answered his summons.

Suddenly Farrell and Newman found themselves looking into the muzzle of five rifles and revolvers. They were ordered from their place of concealment and they were searched. Not a weapon was found on either, but their ride was discontinued.

They told Judge Charles Anderson in the Police Court at Croton that they had lost all further desire to steal a ride. They would gladly pay their fare to New York. The Judge gave them the privilege.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.— (Canadian Press.)— Selling of oil shares was resumed at the opening of today's stock market. Traders evidently based their opertaions on more unfavorable advices concerning that industry from Mexico. Mexican Petroleum soon fell 1 1-2 points and General Asphalt and Royal Dutch also were heavy.

Leading shares added to their losses during the morning. Foreign Oils continued heavy, Shell Transport losing almost four points. New low records were made by half a score of stocks, including Houston Oil, Chandler, Industrial Alcohol and American Linseed preferred at declines of 1 1-2 to three points. Call money opened at six per cent.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—With less than 500 shares of listed stock changing hands, the Toronto stock exchange experienced another dull session this morning.

Brazilian and Steel of Canada, in which most activity was shown during the morning, were both lower, the former one-quarter at 22 3-4 and the latter losing a point from the opening quotation of 46 1-4, with the last sale at 45 1-4. War Loans were entirely neglected, while trading in Victories was on a very small scale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Wheat underwent fresh declines in price today. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 3-4 lower, with Sept. at 1.22 to 1.22 1-4 and Dec. 1.23 to 1.23 1-2, were followed by a material general setback.

New low figures for the season were made on Corn and Oats. Corn opened unchanged to 1-2 cent lower, including Sept. at 54 7-8 to 55 and afterwards declined all around.

Oats started 1-8 to 3-8 off, Sept. 33 1-4 to 33 3-4, and weakened still further.

The rallies in wheat failed to hold. The market closed heavy, 2¼ to 3 cents net lower, with September 1.19½ to 1.19 3-4, and December 1.20 3-4 to 1.21.

Rural offerings of corn continued liberal, and the market closed weak, ¼ to 7-8 to 1 cent net lower, with September 54 3-8 to 54½.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

AUGUST MILK SUPPLY HEAVIER THAN JULY

"A most unusual condition in the dairy industry," was the reference of R. W. Ward to the increased flow of milk during August as reported at most of the cheese factories he has visited. It has been the general experience that the milk supply fell off during August, but this month shows a heavier production than in July. Mr. Ward, who is the local dairy inspector, has kept an accurate record of the weather conditions this season showing that from the last week in June until almost the end of July an extreme dry spell affected the receipts of milk at the factories and was reflected in a diminished make of cheese. At the present time the pasturage is good, fields are green and the outlook is promising for the rest of the summer.

terror-stricken Fontana to confess and dare the gang's vengeance, he told the police later. He himself murdered a man, Caisze, who had slain one of this syndicate, he said. An apparition of the dead man followed him always, he believed, and finally his own gang, scornful of his terror and further uselessness, decided he must be put to death by being roasted alive in an oven.

Between two fires, Fontana fled to the police and gave himself up in exchange for the comparative safety of the Tombs.

Police say he has furnished evidence which will lead them to the American source of many crimes hitherto mysteries, but that the guiding power in the "ring of death" lies in the bands of leaders in Italy.

RENT REDUCED TO PRE-WAR LEVEL

Owns 350 Apartments—Cuts Voluntarily.

BOSTON, August 17. — Found at last, the landlord who has reduced rents of his own volition. Ira Shapira, who controls 350 apartments in all sections of Boston, is back to pre-war rentals.

"Any landlord can do it," he said to-day. "They are robbers if they don't and deserve what they'll get. I am going to lead this fight in the reduction of rents.

"The other landlords have been wasting a lot of hot air about what they were going to do. I'm doing it hight now. My rents are down and I have ordered them to be cut still more.

"My agents yesterday told me they could rent my places for $50. I told them $40 was enough. I will lose big profits but even then I will make enough to get me by with a fair profit. I have been following this game for 25 years and I predict the landlord who does not cut his rentals will go down in a crash."

Herbert Ellis, chairman of the mayor's rent and housing committee said that Shapira's action was the first favorable indication that rents were coming down generally.

"We have been fighting this thing for months," he said. "Landlords are so unreasonable. They are a gang of money grabbers. But we will get them in the end. When they come to their senses the awakening will be a sorrowful one for them."

WAVE OF CRIME IN PARIS UNHEALTHY FOR ALL TOURISTS.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—A summer crime wave has hit Paris with such intensity that late hours are not healthy for tourists who may escape being held up by bandits, only to be held up by the police and incarcerated twenty-four hours on suspicion of being bandits themselves.

The epidemic reached its climax in the killing of two train-robbers, the capture of a third and the wounding of a detective, all staged in the heart of the French capital.

To check the wave, the prefect of police has issued blanket orders to his men that they shall hold up anybody out late without apparent business, demanding their passports or cards of identity. If these cannot be produced, innocent persons are frequently carted off to jail and must wait till the following day to prove their innocence, without permission to communicate to their friends and without food or water or smokes! As a general rule these poor innocents are also handicapped by lack of knowledge of French and the universal thick-headedness of the police.

Furthermore, French jails are not as charming even as American prisons, but are smelly, dark and party.

French Third Degree.

The French third degree, too, consists of abundant application of night-sticks, a sport too rough to be appreciated, especially when a man does not know what it is all about and can't make himself understood.

Then, too, the French detectives have another unpleasant habit. If they learn that a "suspect" is stopping at some hotel, the Grenoble, for instance, they immediately go to all hotels of that name throughout Paris, rooting out respectable tourists and business men, demanding their identity cards and often forcing them to rise and dress and go to the station-house for an examination as to their right to existence.

The new prefect, M. Leullier, has instituted a drive against cocaine that is not without its troubles for tourists. The police swoop down on some particular cafe in Montmartre and search everybody in the place. If a casual lady acquaintance happens to slip a package of "snow" into the tourist's pocket—he's out of luck. And some of those Montmartre girls are just so far from being clubby that they will pull that very stunt. Which is embarrassing.

Look for the Trade-Mark

Most batteries are very much alike as to plates, case, battery solution, and many other features. The important—and the most important—point of difference is insulation. In ordinary batteries the plates are merely separated by thin pieces of wood. The wood softens with age, and it may crack, warp or carbonize, making reinsulation necessary, and frequently seriously damaging the battery.

In the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery the plates are insulated. Between each pair of plates is a Willard Threaded Rubber Insulator—each one pierced with 196,000 tiny threads. The rubber insulates; the threads allow free circulation of battery solution. All the insulating value and wearing quality of the rubber is retained.

Threaded Rubber Insulation lasts the life of the plates—no expense for reinsulation. Be sure you get it. Look for the Thread-Rubber Trade-Mark stamped in red on one side of the battery case.

A HARD BATTLE IS ASSURED IN SATURDAY'S GAME WITH OSHAWA

Although they are not preparing any "frozen" baseballs for Oshawa, the Petes are getting ready to give the winners of the first half of the Central Ontario League race a lively battle when they play here on Saturday. They beat Oshawa 3 to 1 the last time the motor car outfit visited Peterborough, and since then Oshawa has won twice on their own grounds, so that the Petes will have to bring home the bacon to get an even break on the season and also to stay in the running for the Central League honours. It promises to be a real old time battle, and there will be few dull moments, as there is no love lost between the two teams. Oshawa have Dainty back in the game and he is likely to be selected for the task of humbling the Petes, if he can get away with it.

SPORT COMMENT

There is an unusual line of champions to-day. They do not sidestep challengers. Jimmy Wilde, the lightest of all title-holders, will fight any man in the world at his weight, and a great many others weighing eight pounds and more than he does, writes H. G. Salsinger. Pete Herman, having retaken the bantamweight title, says he is ready to fight Joey Lynch again, since Joey fought him after taking the title from him and gave Herman a chance to win it back. Johnny Kilbane, shyest of all champions, has finally signed to meet Danny Frush. Benny Leonard is fighting Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia challenger, who has time and again reiterated his charge that Leonard feared to meet him. Incidentally Leonard has fought every lightweight challenger that appeared on the horizon. The welterweights are almost forgotten, but in the middleweight ranks Champion Bryan Downey says he will fight Champion Johnny Wilson and Champion Johnny Wilson says he will fight Champion Bryan Downey. Georges Carpentier claims the light-heavyweight championship of the world, but this division has never been seriously considered in this country, being of but recent creation, comparatively speaking. M. Carpentier picks his opponents very, very carefully, and slipped up but once, that when he agreed to meet Demsey, but the $200,000 that Georges got was better than the caution he would have exercised otherwise. Jack Dempsey will meet anybody in the world, anybody at all. He has met nearly everybody, and future opponents will have to be developed, unless he wants to fight some of the former victims again. The game, in one way, is improving.

Y.W.C.A. REGATTA WAS BIG SUCCESS

The Y.W.C.A. camp held a most successful regatta yesterday afternoon. About 100 cottagers from all around the lake gathered with the 25 camp girls at 2.30 and the crowds in front of the camp and the many boats at the wharf reminded one of the Juniper or Kawartha Park regatta.

Although a strong wind was blowing the races were well contested and everyone felt free to enter and enjoy the fun. Several events bear special mention. One which caused much excitement was 4 in a skiff padding. Another new race was the balloon race, which caused much fun on account of the wind. After the swimming races Mr. Gerald Wood took some of the girls for a surface ride, standing on a board and being towed by his fast launch. This was something new and much enjoyed by the girls.

The presentation of prizes was a novel idea. Each person at the regatta had brought a prize, some funny and some very nice ones, but all wraped up so that no one could tell what they were. Mr. Hamilton presented the prizes and much laughter and good feeling and most everyone present got a prize for something.

The cottagers had been asked to bring sandwiches and cake and stay for a picnic lunch. This gave everyone a chance for a little visit and to inspect the camp. Tea, milk and sugar were also donated and served to everyone.

The girls received many congratulations on the success of their first camp regatta. They also wish to thank all those who in so many ways helped to give everyone such a happy afternoon.

KENORA, Aug. 17.—Patrick, aged 8, and Frances, aged 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carrow, settlers about six miles down the Winnipeg River, were drowned Monday afternoon. With their mother and three other children they were crossing the river in an old punt, when a squall came up and the boat filled. They all clung to the submerged boat, but the weight was too much and Mrs. Carrow swam to shore for help. Frances lost her hold and Patrick, who could swim a little, went to her assistance, but was not strong enough and both went down. The other children were rescued later. The bodies were recovered.

SUNSHINE DOES HARM

A woman who, dressed only in a bathing suit, exposed herself to the sun for the larger part of two days last week on the beach at Atlantic City, is now in a hospital receiving treatment for what doctors would call a severe dermatitis and common folk an extensive "sunburn."

The case is one that should be a warning to the many people who have, not exactly an exaggerated, but certainly a dangerously inaccurate, idea of sunlight —often described as "God's blessed sunlight"—and the benefits it confers.

That sunlight is a good thing is unquestionable, but it is no more God's and no more blessed than shade, or even than darkness, and like many another good thing too much of it may be a very bad, a fatal thing.

Sunlight is, of course, the most potent of all bacteriacides. Its at least occasional presence, therefore, is highly desirable in our houses, and we do well to spend a reasonable amount of time in it ourselves. But sunlight is a bacteriacide merely because it has a destructive effect on all living cells too long subjected to its direct action, and it is not at all particular as to the nature of the living cells on which it acts. That is what the woman at Atlantic City—and many another bather and vacationist—forgets, or does not know, and the result is that they often are badly, and sometimes fatally "burned" when they think they are gaining health.

People constantly exposed to the sun acquire a "tan," which is a development of protective pigment in the superficial cells of their skin, and then they are fairly safe—as safe, for instance, as the negroes are for the same reason. But it is a wise instinct that keeps most of us on the shady side of the street, or in darkened rooms during the brighter hours of Summer days. Those who do not or can not do that pay penalties ranging from discomfort to the "prostrations" that so often end in death.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

One of the biggest screen productions of the year will be seen at the Capitol Theatre when Maurice Tourneur's super special, "The Great Redeemer," will be the feature of the bill for three days, beginning To-morrow, Thursday night. "The Great Redeemer," it is announced, is a tremendous drama of absorbing human interest. According to the expectations of its producers, it is destined to be hailed as one of the really impressive photo-dramas of the year.

Dan Malloy as the story goes, has eluded a posse that pursues him after he has held up a train, and takes refuge in the home of a girl of the mountains. The girl, startled by his sudden and unannounced entrance into her cabin, shoots the bandit, wounding him slightly. Later after hearing his story, and falling under the spell of his dominating personality, she begins to love him. With Dan it has been a case of love at first sight and he is soon contemplating the abandonment of his career as a bandit for a fireside and respectability.

Temptation soon apepars in the person of a former pal, who tips Dan off to the fact that the Limited can be held up with ease if Dan will essay one more fling at his old game. Dan succumbs and attempts the hold-up, but is surrounded and captured after his pal had died fighting the forces of the law.

Dan is sentenced to a long term in prison. It is within the grim gray walls that his heart changes and he begins the long long struggle for regeneration. The manner of his accomplishing this reform is told in "The Great Redeemer" with a new and startling touch. For a latter-day miracle is wrought that affects not only the life of Dan Malloy but those of others in the prison and outside of it.

MADE BOGUS MONEY WITHIN PRISON WALLS.

Ohio Reformatory Prisoners Detected After Circulating Their Product For Months.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17.—A counterfeit plot, hatched in the Ohio State Reformatory, at Mansfield, by prisoners who carried out their work of manufacturing and circulating bogus bank notes for months within prison walls, was revealed by United States Secret Service agents here.

The plot was discovered by Superintendent Jenkins and Assistant Superintendent Rowe of the Reformatory through investigation of a tip from a trusty.

Two prisoners, King Williams, 17 years old, and John Kmetz, 17, who are to be paroled soon, will be arrested on their release and turned over to the Federal authorities to be tried on charges of counterfeiting. Several weeks ago Assistant Superintendent Rowe said he caught Williams putting the finishing touches on a bogus five-dollar bill. The reformatory officials say Williams admitted making and passing counterfeit bills.

Great Increase in Use of Intoxicants in England Last Year.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(Associated Press).—Drunkerness increased by over 65 per cent. in England during last year, according to official licensing statistics. The reaction after the war period of sobriety was shown by 93,763 convictions, compared with 57,948 in 1919. There were only 29,075 convictions in 1919.

The convictions of women were 36 per cent. more than in 1919, and more than double the total of 1918.

The Daily Express, while admitting the figures are startling, attributes the increase in convictions to the continuance of early closing regulations enforced during the war and suggests that "people who are denied reasonable facilities for obtaining liquor, have taken in their resentment more than was good for them when they could get it." The paper also holds that the closing of properly-conducted saloons has led to the opening of many bogus clubs and illicit drinking dens.

Official health returns for 1920 just issued indicate, on the other hand, that the nation as a whole is distinctly healthier. Tuberculosis figures are the lowest recorded since compulsory notification came into force. The number of deaths from consumption was 12,460

The infant mortality rate, 80 per 1,000, is also the lowest recorded, while the birth rate rose from 18.5 in the previous year to 25.4, and the death rate, 12.4, shows a decline at most ages.

PROHIBITION LAW IS ABOLISHED BY SOVIETS

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— Prohibition has been abolished in Soviet Russia and the country now is on a light wine basis. A despatch to the Latvian Telegraphic Agency confirmed by Moscow newspapers, announces the issuance of a decree permitting the manufacture and sale of beverages containing up to 14 per cent. of alcohol, which will be highly taxed.

While America lost 81,000 in battle during the world war, 126,000 were killed accidentally at home.

RHEIMS CELEBRATES THE RESTORATION OF ITS FAMOUS CATHEDRAL

And the replacement of the Joan of Arc statue before it. German shots had greatly injured the beautiful edifice in spite of thousands of sand bags piled about it for protection. It has taken much time to repair the statues and building sections which had been cracked and marred—but it has been the labor of love. Photo shows the ceremony at base of the equestrian statue of Joan of Arc.

DETECTIVE IS SUED FOR DIVORCE "FRAUD."

Woman Alleges Evidence Against Her in Divorce Case False.

NEW YORK, August 16. — Val O'Farrell, formerly a lieutenant in the Detective Bureau of the Police Department and now head of a private agency, with a number of the men who have been employed by him and William J. Beauley, an artist, were sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for $250,000 damages on allegations of manufacturing divorce evidence against Mrs. Harriet W. Beauley, a dancing teacher of Arrochar, S.I., who was divorced by her husband last year.

The other defendants named were Nathan Salomon, Harry B. Beck, Charles P. Cooney, Louis Selles, Thomas Maxwell, and Samuel J. Maloney. All were accused of taking part in a conspiracy to furnish evidence.

Mrs. Beauley alleged that O'Farrell had knowledge of the conspiracy and took part in it, and asked heavy damages because, she said, she had been deprived of her source of support and held up as a woman guilty of improper conduct.

CHICAGO CRIMES INCREASE.

Police Fear Unemployment Will Cause Mounting Wave in Winter.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.— Police Chief Fitzmorris admits that the crime situation will be more serious this winter than last. Already police reports show petty crimes are mounting. The theft of food, hams, groceries and milk from doorsteps, is increasing in the poorer districts.

The savings of thousands of workers have been exhausted by months of unemployment and Police Captains say many families are dispensing with cooked food in order to avoid the purchase of fuel. Arrests of persons in the lodging house districts who enter restaurants, eat a meal and then admit they have no money to pay for it, are growing numerous.

The Italian Government has gone into the cigar business and is making a stogie that sells for two cents.

Requests to President Harding for charity are so numerous that a special form letter is used in replying.

GOLD MERGER URGED.

N. Y. Man Would Create One Reserve of World's Supply.

By Harold D. Jacobs

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Merging of the world's entire gold supply into a single reserve was urged by Alfred Owen Crosier as the one solution of the international financial situation.

Crosier, a recognized authority on monetary matters and international law, declared in an interview that he believed the Washington disarmament conference would develop into a new and permanent association of nations, and that concentration of the world's gold would be a natural corollary.

Such a super reserve says Crosier would have these results:

Stabilization of international finance and commerce.

Prevention of sudden and disastrous inflations or deflations of domestic currency.

Self-financing through interest profits of the world bank and the association of nations.

"The entire world's supply of gold amounts to only $8,000,000,000, about half of which is now held in the United States," said Crosier.

"Yet the aggregate debt of the two score principal nations is more than $200,000,000,000 and this combined with the billions of dollars of international commerce provides a world financial structure of possibly $500,000,000,000—all resting on the meagre $8,000,000,000 actual gold supply."

BABY CAN CAPTURE SMOKER WITHOUT AID

Men No Longer Have Safe Haven in Cars.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Woman's inroads upon the smoker go some years back. Woman has been known to enter the black-leather car a little stiffly, a little disdainfully, a good deal frightened, no doubt, but carrying it off bravely, nevertheless. She does not bother to reply to the conductor's warning that this is a smoking car, lady. She sits down, looks out of the window with shoulders set, expressing disapproval and defiance. Well defiance breeds defiance, and men have been known to puff only the harder in rejoiner to these immobile and critical toques and shoulders.

It is different with babies when lugged into the smoker in the arms of tired and flustered mothers. To them, too, the conductor addresses his warning that this is a smoking car, lady, and that there are plenty of seats in the rear. But on a hot and dusty afternoon the average decent male would almost as soon think of inviting a mother and baby to start climbing up a ladder for the plenty of room on top as to start walking back five cars for the plenty of seats in the rear.

So he raises no objection. He breathes no defiance. Mothers with babies in smoking cars are ever so much more apologetic than ladies unincumbered. They feel grateful for small favors. A seat on the sunny side is all they dare ask for. Men who have offered them a seat on the shady side have been repaid with such a wealth of weary gratitude that they have shamefacedly returned the itching cigaret to its pocket. Perhaps, after all, one is smoking more than is good for one. One puts back the cigaret, pulls out the comic supplement, and offers it to babyshrdlushrdsluhldrs baby. The baby either stares blankly or tries to bite it.

When the desire for tobacco becomes overpoweringly strong men cast a look at the surrounding infant population, sigh, get up, and walk into the baggage car. There, with the crated bicycle and the dog in the basket, they smoke and reflect upon how many different sexes and ages it takes to make a world.

DETROIT SCHEME FOR HOUSING PROBLEM

An idea of the way the housing problem is handled in American cities is afforded by a glimpse at the Detroit plan. There private companies put up entire blocks of dwellings at once, excavating a single trench down the property for basements, with a steam shovel, laying one each of water and sewer mains along the line, and moving concrete forms from one house to the next. By such quantity production methods, a large portion of the cost entailed when cellars have to be excavated one by one, water connections put in one at a time, and so on, is saved.

SKIPPED OUT WITH FETE FUNDS, ALLEGED.

HAMILTON, August 16. — A. J. Macdonald, who had full charge of all refreshment privileges at the Beach Day Carnival, held here to raise money for the sanitarium, has disappeared without accounting for $1,500, it is alleged.

Macdonald was in partnership with a young Russian, who reports that $500.00 belonging to him is missing.

A warrant has been issued for his arrest, but so far the police have found no trace of Macdonald, who is little known here.

MAKE HARDER PATH OF TRANSGRESSORS.

Poroscopy and Graphometry New "Sciences" For This Purpose.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—(Associated Press).—Poroscopy and graphometry are two new "sciences" intended to make the way of the transgressor harder than it is. Poroscopy is the science of measuring the pores of the body. Graphometry is the science of form and relative proportion of letters in handwriting.

Dr. Edmond Locard, head of the Lyons' Police Laboratory of Identification, has elaborated these new methods of crime detection to a point where the results have been accepted in the Lyons courts and are said to have been proved effective.

In poroscopy, Dr. Locard holds, the number, form and position of body pores remain the same throughout life. The impression of the pores in Dr. Locard's system is colored by chemical vapors or very fine powders so they may be photographed under a microscope.

Dr. Locard tells of several successful prosecutions supported by his new sciences. In one case a burglar wore gloves but left an impression of a small surface of forearm. That trace convicted him. Another burglar, perspiring freely, left the impression of pore surfaces through his gloves and went to jail.

Graphometry, as termed by Dr. Locard, consists primarily in the theory that handwriting shows always a certain relation in size between letters and unmistakable characteristics in form, particularly of loops. In addition to these principles, Dr. Locard, of course, utilizes generally accepted methods of detecting forgeries.

TRADE MISSION TO REDS PREPARED TO FACE THE UNUSUAL

Take Six Weeks' Food Supply and Own Cars.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(Associated Press).—A British trade mission of 17 members, headed by R. M. Hodgson, formerly British consul at Vladivostok, has left London for Moscow, where quarters have been secured to house them.

They took with them six weeks' food supply and large stores of office and household furniture, including tables, brooms, pails, dusters and even pens and ink.

"We don't know what may happen to us," said Mr. Hodgson to a reporter, "so we are going prepared. We are taking two cars, in case we find the railways on strike or the track blown up, but we are not carrying any arms."

MICHAEL ANGELO SET THE PRECEDENT FOR IRONIC CHURCH DESIGN.

NEW YORK, August 16. — Finding th dollar sign over the Bride's Door of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue, New York City, and society types carved over the centre doorway, has created wonder, protest, and humour. It recalls the story of Michael Angelo's fresco, "The Last Judgment," in the Sistine Chapel of St. Peter's, at the Vatican.

The picture was hailed with enthusiasm by the great artists of the world. But enemies of Michael Angelo condemned it as indecent because of its many nude figures.

Biagio, the Pope's master of ceremonies, was acting as censor. Michael Angelo painted him into the ferryman over the River Styx in Hell.

When the indignant Cardinal complained, the Pope replied that had it been Purgatory he might have helped him, but in Hell was no redemption.

A few years later Pope Paul IV. got Michael Angelo to allow Daniele da Volterra to drape some of the figures. The painter's work rendered him famous, for he has always been known by the nickname "Il Braghettone" (the Maker of Breeches).

BANDSMEN DINED AT THE HOME LUNCH

DELECTABLE DISHES AND EFFICIENT SERVICE CONTRIBUTED TO MINE HOSTS' HOSPITALITY

This popular restaurant has recently changed hands and undergone publicly-appreciated improvements; and the happy little company of bandsmen who sampled the catering there last night, by the new proprietor, Mr. James Hong, pronounce the viands most palatably delectable and the service the highest grade of courtesy and efficiency.

TRUTH WILL RIGHT

The world at large is at last realizing that the Health Science of Chiropractic is the logical and successful way of benefiting suffering humanity. Every day we see new evidence of the fact that the world of Science, as well as the ordinary citizen, is waking up to this truth.

Every new discovery has to go through its siege of doubt and ridicule. Franklin suffered the scoffs of the doubting Thomases when he said he would tap the skies for electricity, and Harvey died an ignoble death after he had announced the discovery of the circulation of the blood, because he was held up in scorn. Palmer and Chiropractic have been passing through the siege for quite a number of years, but while there are still many doubters, the majority of people realize this great work and have occasion to observe the remarkable things which Chiropractic is accomplishing for the sick and afflicted.

There is an old saying, "Truth will right," and to anyone with a grain of common sense, it is apparent that if Chiropractic were anything but right it would have died a quick death years ago.

No one can dispute facts, or rather they may dispute them, but in doing so they show crass ignorance. Chiropractic is a Science founded on facts, was discovered in an accidental manner, and that accident was the foundation of the greatest boon to suffering humanity which the world has ever known or ever will know.

To-day Chiropractic is the Science of PHILOSOPHY OF CAUSE OF DISEASE AND THE ART OF ADJUSTING IT. It has been developed into a wonderful truth, and the truth has been produced through the results obtained on tens of thousands of sick and suffering people.

CAUSE AND EFFECT—Chiropractic teaches the cause of the effect, and adjusts it. If you are sick, investigate this wonderful Science, find out what it will do for you and yours.

HYDRO-RADIAL FORCES PREPARE TO LAUNCH VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN AGAINST SUTHERLAND DECISION

MEET IN TORONTO TO-DAY TO MAP PLAN OF ATTACK—CHURCH APPEALS TO MUNICIPALITIES TO GO AHEAD WITH SCHEME.

CALLS GOVERNMENT "HYDRO WRECKERS"

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—Re-acting from the blow inflicted by the Sutherland Radial Commission against the proposed scheme of Hydro-radials recommended by the Ontario Power Commission, the Hydro-Radial forces are girding themselves for a vigorous fight to secure their establishment whether the Ontario Government guarantees the bonds or not.

The first shot is being fired in the campaign to-day, when the Executive of the Ontario Hydro-Radial Union will meet at the City Hall to map out a programme. J. W. Lyon, president, and T. J. Hannigan, of Guelph, are here bringing with them messages from Hydro enthusiasts all over the province, urging the association to go on. The meeting to-day will probably be the prelude to a monster demonstration to be held for the purpose of impressing the Government with the earnestness of the people in their desire for the consummation of the project.

Mayor Church issued a statement this morning, recommending that the municipalities apply for a Federal charter for Hydro radials in and out of Toronto. If this were obtainable the radials would have the right to operate anywhere in any municipality.

"I would advise," said the Mayor, "that the City of Toronto go ahead and apply for a Federal railway charter for a system of Hydro radials in and out of Toronto, under the General Railway Act, and that any other municipalities with the same ideals get similar charters and co-ordinate them and work altogether independently of any present or future Hydro-wrecking Provincial Government that comes along."

URGE PUNITIVE ACTION IN THE BERGDOLL CASE

U. S. CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE REPORTS ON INVESTIGATION OF MILLIONAIRE SLACKER'S ESCAPE.

DENOUNCE HANDLING BY WAR DEPARTMENT

By Herbert W. Walker.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, August 18—Punitive action against the persons involved in the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdell, the millionaire Philadelphia draft evader, was recommended to the House to-day by a majority of the Splitt Committee appointed to investigate the case.

In a report signed by three of the five members of the committee, the War Department's handling of the Bergdell case prior to his escape in May, 1920, was scathingly denounced. The findings of the majority as summarized, are:

Samuel T. Ansell, former acting Judge Advocate General, and who as an attorney obtained the War Department's permission for the release of Bergdell from prison, that he might dig up an alleged "pot of gold," should be delivered from practice before any departments, any courts martial and any courts of the nation.

Major Bruce Campbell, military counsel for the slacker, whom Mrs. Bergdell charges asked for $100,000 from her and obtained $50,000 "to fix higher ups," so that her son might be released,, was exonerated completely.

ARMS CONFERENCE IN ROUGH GOING

PUBLICITY AND PERSONNEL OF U. S. DELEGATION STARTS SQUABBLING.

BY A. L. BRADFORD,
(United Press Staff Correspnodent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The disarmament conference, approaching its opening date on November 11, began to hit rough going to-day. The question of publicity and of whom should and who should not be on the American delegation were the bumps encountered.

Senator Harrison, Missisippi, accompanied by Democrats and Republicans, endeavored to push his proposals to put the Senate on record as favoring open sessions before any funds for the conference are granted.

The arguments of the personnel of the delegation were more complex. Senator King, Utah, a Democrat, who opposed many of the provisions of the League of Nations, declared Woodrow Wilson had been a member. Friends of Senator Borah, author of the disarmament resolution, want him on the delegation. Women were in the quarreling about whether women should be on the commission or on an advisory committee it is proposed to appoint.

Reach Edmonton on Aerial Trip of 5,000 Miles

FLYERS WILL CROSS BEHRING STRAITS OVER TERRITORY NEVER BEFORE FLOWN OVER.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 18. — On an aerial trip of nearly 5,000 miles that will take them from Mexico's torrid sands to Siberia's barren shores, C. O. Prest and L. M. Bach, of Las Vegas, Nevada, sailed into Edmonton for a forty-eight hour rest. They were accompanied from the Canadian border by two Lethbridge flyers in a Curtiss biplane. The latter will escort the American airmen as far as Prince Rupert.

Hopping off from the local aerodrome to-day, Prest will take his plane, christened the "Polar Bear," over the mountain route, followed by the United States army flyers last year. Stops will be made at Jasper, Alta., and Fort George in British Columbia. The American flyers left Venice, Calif., three weeks ago, and are making the aerial journey from the Mexican line to Siberia, via Edmonton, Jasper, Fort George, Hazelton, Telegraph Creek, Dawson and Nome, from where they will fly across the Straits into Russian territory, returning again by practically the same route. The total length of the journey amounts to 4,688 miles, much of which will be over territory which has never been flown over.

TORONTO YACHT SEIZED; SEVEN MEN ARE TAKEN

CLEVELAND POLICE MAKE SPECTACULAR RAID ON VENICE, ALLEGED TO BE IN SERVICE OF INTERNATIONAL RUM RING.

4 WOMEN ARE HELD FOR INVESTIGATION

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— Police early to-day took seven men and four women into custody in the spectacular seizure of the steam yacht Venice, said to be in the service of a whiskey ring operating in Canada and the United States. The seizure was made at Whiskey Island, west of Cuyshega, and netted ninety-five cases of imported wines and liquors.

Six of the men seized, including Capt. Wm. L. Curry, of Toronto, said to be the owner of the yacht, are held at police headquarters. All are charged with violating the prohibition law. The seventh man, the engineer, will be taken to headquarters later.

Four women were not booked, but were held for investigation. Besides Capt. Curry, the crew gave their names as Norman Turner, Toronto, John Lawson, Toronto, Michael Perle, Kingston, and Jay Burney and William Kemport, of Cleveland. The women, Curry said, had no knowledge of the nature of the enterprise. All four women are from Canada.

BOTTOMLEY SAYS HOLLAND SHOULD GIVE UP KAISER

DEMANDS ACTION BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT IN MATTER.

LONDON, Aug. 18.— (Canadian Press Cable.)— In the House of Commons to-day, Horatio Bottomley, independent M.P. for Hackney, again raised the question of the trials recently of war criminals in Germany. He declared that Holland should be called on to surrender the Kaiser and if this demand was refused and the British government found itself unable to deal with the matter effectively, the government should make way for men of sterner stuff.

100 SLAIN BY GOOD KILLERS, POLICE THINK

TRAIL OF ITALIAN MURDER GANG LEADS TO FOUR CITIES—LINKED UP WITH 17 MURDERS IN NEW YORK ALONE.

SIX ALLEGED MEMBERS ARE HELD IN NEW YORK

(By United Press).

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. — Murder victims of the "Good Killers" gang of New York, hired assassins, may total more than 100, it was estimated to-day by detectives investigating the conspiracy.

Six alleged members of the gang are held in the Tombs here to-day in connection with the murder of Carmelo Caizzo, near Ashbury Park, N.J. They are Bartolo Fontana, the informer, Vito Bonventre, Francesco Puma, Mariano Galante, Giuseppe Lombardi and Bartolomeo Di Gregrio. The only charge against the last named is unlawful possession of a revolver.

Bloody trails of the "Good Killers" were being followed to-day to Pittsburgh, Chicago, Buffalo, Detroit and to several cities in New Jersey. Most of the gang's murders are believed to have occurred in New York, Detroit and Chicago. The conspirators have been linked up with seventeen New York killings. Seventy Italian murders remain unexplained in Detroit, and more than twenty in Chicago. Some of these may be traced to the "Killers."

The "Good Killers" was an organization of professional murderers, police say, which acted under instructions sent by the head of the secret society in Sicily.

LOCKS BRIDGE BADLY IN NEED OF REPAIRS

Immediate repairs to the Locks Bridge were reported necessary this morning by county officials. Some of the "sleepers" are said to have decayed to such an extent that traffic is endangered. Mr. Duncan MacFarlane, county road superintendent, drove his car over the bridge yesterday, and decided not to return over it. To-day Deputy-Reeve Lawrie, of Otonabee, consulted with County Clerk Elliott, and wired to Reeve Clarke of Galway and also to the county's engineer, Toronto, to meet in Peterborough as soon as possible. It was suggested that in the meantime the bridge should be closed to traffic, but no action was taken beyond sending the notices for a conference at which it is likely the committee, composed of Reeve Clarke and Deputy-Reeve Lawrie, will order such repairs as are considered necessary.

AMUNDSEN TO USE AIRPLANES IN HIS ARCTIC EXPEDITION

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 18. —(Canadian Press).—It is possible that the North Pole may be discovered by airplane. For the first time land machines will be employed in Arctic regions next year when Capt. Raold Amundsen embarks upon his fourth expedition to reach the extreme northerly point on the globe.

The famous discoverer arrived in Vancouver yesterday and delivered an address before the Canadian Club.

Conditions in Mother Country Not as Painted

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

QUEBEC, August 18. — The padre of the British House of Commons, and Canon of Westminster Abbey, Rev. Canon W. H. Carnegie, was amazed upon his arrival here to learn of the scarehead reports which have come to this country on the industrial and social situation in England.

Interviewed as he disembarked from the Empress of Britain last evening he said:

"We are really not half so badly off in England as the papers would lead their readers to believe. But perhaps it is the papers of both countries which are to blame, for in England they appear as prone to stir up things as here and in the United States. As a matter of fact I consider industrial conditions in England as good at this time as they could reasonably be expected to be. Taxes of course are frightful, and are particularly harsh on the man of moderate means, but the people are not so hard up as might be supposed from the news despatches. If they are, at least they do not show it. The labor classes are certainly earning more, and are living under better conditions than ever before."

SHIP BURNED, CREW EMBARKS IN OPEN BOAT

CAPTAIN BURTON ARRIVES AT QUEBEC AFTER BEING RESCUED OFF COAST OF SPAIN WITH HIS MEN.

SPENT FIFTEEN HOURS IN GHASTLY ANXIETY

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.— The thrilling experience of having his ship burned up and being compelled to embark with the whole of his crew in a small open boat recently befell Capt. J. Burten, of Newfoundland, who reached Quebec yesterday on the S. S. Maid of Syra.

Capt. Burten, when interviewed by the Examiner immediately on landing, said: "I left Newfoundland on the Roxina on June 11th with a cargo of fish for Naples, and on the 11th of July, when we were about 50 miles from the Spanish coast, fire broke out in the engine room, and despite all our endeavors to extinguish it, it spread all over the ship.

"We had no choice but to take to our boats and there was no time to take either water or any provisions with us. We spent fifteen hours in the most ghastly anxiety and suspense on the open sea in our little craft and were profoundly thankful and relieved when the British steamer Novelty picked us up and put us on shore at Terraviga in Spain. From this place we went to Gibraltar and from there the crew were sent to England, while I embarked on the Maid of Syra to come here. I am glad to say that I am no worse for the adventure, but it was somewhat of a shock to my nerves at the time."

COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE NOW ASSURED

GENEVA, Aug. 18. —(Canadian Press).—The creation of a permanent Court of International Justice is assured, it is announced here.

Far eclipsing craps in velocity is a new game which is fascinating men and women, young and old alike, played with an instrument that has just recently been offered for sale by local tobacco and jewelry stores, although the game has been popular for several months. It is not a complicated Monte Carlo contraption, but a simple little top that is holding thousands in its spell.

It is the most sensational game devised in a long time. Unless there is some classical name for it it is called in the vernacular "Put and take." It has been uproariously accepted by clubs and has replaced cards, craps, dominoes and the other popular indoor sports, and it is keeping more men out at nights than poker. Society circles have not been impervious to its attraction and bridge it is feared has been delivered a solar plexis blow. Bookkeepers are stealing time from the boss to spin the top in the back office and down town in back alleys office boys are playing the game utterly callous of the press of office duties. Hoboes have thrown away their dice and in cheap restaurants suspicious characters are intent on the new game.

"Put and take" can be played with a dice, but there is more fascination in playing it with a top. Several tobacco stores have the tops in stock, and in one local jewelry shop a de luxe sterling one was observed. Generally the tops have six sides, some have eight. If it is a six-sided affair the sides will be marked as follows: "Put one," "Put two," "Take one," "Take two," "All put," "Take all." The eight-sided top is an enlargement of the six-sided. Players simply follow the directions of the top; the top is the referee. The pot is built up or decreased or taken all at one sweep; the game moves fast, losses are quick and there is a fascination equivalent to the roulette wheel. Everywhere the game is being played; it has swept the continent. Some people say it will remain a popular game and otehrs hold that its present glory will shortly fade and this new star in the gaming firmament will sink to oblivion as quickly as it has risen.

BRITISH OFFICIAL CIRCLES ARE OPTIMISTIC AS IRISH ASSEMBLY ENTERS GRUCIAL SECRET SESSION

CONSIDER SUCH A FEELING JUSTIFIABLE IN VIEW OF LACK OF DEFINITE EXPRESSION OF DAIL EIREANN'S VIEWS, ALTHOUGH THEY ADMIT DUBLIN REPORTS THUS FAR ARE NOT REASSURING—PLEBISCITE REMAINS POSSIBLE SOLUTION—WOULD GIVE REPUBLICAN CHIEFTAINS MANDATE FOR FUTURE NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, August 18 (Canadian Press Cable). — Optimism with regard to the Irish situation was still being expressed to-day in British official circles, where it was indicated that this attitude was considered justifiable in view of the lack of definite rejection of the Government's terms by the action of the Dail Eireann, although it was added that reports from Dublin furnished scant basis for such a view.

It was commented that Eamonn DeValera's uncompromising statements of the last few days seemed to indicate that he was not convinced of the British sincerity in the peace offer, but officials were reluctant to believe that the offer, which to them appears so generous, would be rejected outright.

As for the truce being broken and the warfare of a month ago being resumed, officials stated that in their view there was not the slightest chance of such a thing occurring.

Members of the British Cabinet and leaders in both House of Parliament are keeping in close touch with the developments in Dublin.

The present session of the British Parliament is to end to-morrow, and it seems probable that in the brief interval no decisive step can be taken regarding Ireland. In any case, however, it is believed that the King's Speech in proroguing Parliament will be largely concerned with Irish affairs.

DUBLIN, August 18 (Canadian Press). —The debate on the reply of the Irish "Republican Parliament" to the British Government's offer of Dominion status to Ireland was begun by that assembly in secret session to-day.

During the public meetings held on Tuesday and Wednesday, the members heard Eamonn DeValera denounce the British offer, and assert that Ireland would insist upon separation from Great Britain, but, with the exception of the applause which greeted his utterances, there was little by which observers could estimate the attitude of the majority toward the absolute rejection of the terms submitted by Prime Minister Lloyd-George.

The possibility of calling a plebiscite by which the people of Southern Ireland might give their leaders a mandate governing future activities in the Irish negotiations remained to-day as one of the solutions of the situation.

In the addresses delivered before the public sessions of the Parliament it appeared that stress was laid on the principle that the chieftains of the Irish Republican movement could not entertain Great Britain's offer, and there were many who believed Mr. DeValera and his colleagues possibly intended to ask for new instructions.

(By Clyde C. Geals.)
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, August 18. — Armed troops of the "Irish Republican army," were called out to guard the Mansion House this afternoon while the Dail Eireann went into secret session.

Huge crowds, among whom it was feared there might be British spotters, surrounded the building where the secret deliberations which were to determine the fate of Ireland, were in progress.

Sinn Fein troops guarded lanes down which the delegates walked to enter the Mansion House, while an anxious throng watched them enter. Scarcely a cheer broke the silence.

UNITED STATES SURFEITED WITH GOVT. BUREAUS

BY HERBERT COREY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Here is a suggestion to builders. Why do they not erect a lot of office buildings for the Government in every city in the United States, bar a few, on the pay-it-like-rent plan? The buyer is good for whatever is bought, the buildings are needed, and nothing would better give that needed boost to business. The only trouble with the idea is that there is too much common sense in it as applied to Governmental operations.

The Congressional committee on reorganization, of which Walter L. Brown of Toledo, is chairman, is just beginning to find out a lot of horrifying things about the Government our fathers bullt up during their spare moments. One of them is that the Government is renting buildings in practically every city in the land. There may be a few towns where it isn't being done—there may be— but it is not yet proved.

How Many Buildings Are Rented?

No one yet knows how many buildings are being rented or where or how much are being paid for them. Each department presumably knows how many buildings or parts of buildings it is renting, of course, but the total is not known. It is vaguely believed that in New York, for example, and Philadelphia and Kansas City and Chicago, literally acres are leased or rented to the Government. But no one knows. There could be no better example of the loose and incompetent methods of administration pursued by all previous administrations.

The committee on reorganization, which is dovetailing its job on to that of General H. and M. Dawes' budgetary revamping, proposes to find these interesting things out. Then it proposes so to recast the business methods of the Government that the Governmental business will be—or at least may be, for every one here is as pessimistic as a new-made mother-in-law — conducted with some semblance of method and coherence. If this plan is carried to its logical conclusion it means that in each city the Government offices will be lodged conveniently near each other and grouped with an eye to the convenience of the public, as well as that of the officeholders.

Part of this conclusion of offices arose during the war. Many bureau heads, not to speak of department heads, came to the hasty conclusion that the war would last forever, and they should make provision for an eternity of good times. The army and navy very frankly tell one, for example, that their efforts were guided largely by the conviction of some of the superiors that the war might last from five to seven years. Consequently, the bureau heads rented offices. Money was flush, and the thought of the inevitable settling day had not penetrated even the loftiest American intellect. Any thoroughly on-the-job bureau head who needed an office would rent a couple of offices. Everything was done on the same plane. I heard the other day of a dismantled army camp in which there are now 1,800 typewriters gathering rust. No one is kicking understand. Probably it had to be done just that way.

Many Bureaus Hiding Out.

But when the war ended, the bureaus went merrily on. Some of them will continue forever. Others are being slowly throttled and made to surrender. Many are still hiding out in remote floors or remote buildings in remote cities. They might never have been discovered if it had not been for the bloodhound-like capacity for trail following which Mr. Brown's committee is manifesting. Little by little it will be learned just how many bureaus and sub-bureaus and annexes and temporary affixes and departmental lean-tos there are left. In the end the committee will know just now much of an office force this Government needs to carry on its business in all the states and cities.

Need Thousands of Buildings.

It is the hope that in the end they will be grouped conveniently. But that involves the building of thousands — literally thousands — of buildings. And Uncle Sam hasn't the money. It is too bad, and this is the richest nation in the world. But every one owes us money and no one can trade with us, so we can get our hands on a little cash. And there you are.

3 PETERBORO MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

While driving to Lindsay on Tuesday night Roy White and Allan Doughty of this city, and Fred Steinkrauss, of Smith township, narrowly escaped serious injury when the car owned and driven by Steinkrauss plunged over a bank at Sucker Creek, South Ops on a thoroughfare closed to traffic, but which they believed was negotiable. None of the young men suffered serious injury; they had a miraculous escape, but considerable damage was done to the car, which has only been run a short while. The accident occurred at Pottery Corners.

Workmen have been engaged since Monday tearing out the old bridge over the creek. In order that the public could reach Lindsay a detour has been erected immediately east of the bridge site through Mr. M. Moriarity's farm.

When the car passed the barricade at Pottery Corners it came north and instead of branching off on the detour near the gateway of Mr. P. Murphy's farm it went on towards the bridge, striking a pile of stones on the roadway. The car went over the bank and as it dropped turned over on the northern bank and went into the bed of the creek nose down. The drop was from ten to fifteen feet to the bed of the creek, which contained about a foot and a half of water. How the three occupants escaped serious injuries is a miracle. One of the young men went through the top of the car, it is said, and another jumped, but how this could be accomplished without injury and without damage to their clothing is more than those who visited the spot could understand. Mr. P. Murphy and the members of his family heard the crash and immediately hurried to the bridge. Two of the young men were clear of the car, but the third occupant was found near the fence on the east side of the bridge. He was taken to the residence of Mr. Murphy, where he received every attention. But for a few scratches on the face and other parts of the body, as well as a shaking up he was unhurt. The three young men were afterwards taken to town by friends.

The scene of the accident was visited during the night by hundreds and surprise was expressed that such an accident could occur, and the occupants of the car escape as they did. The car was a new one and this was its first trip out of Peterborough. The top was completely wrecked, one of the doors torn off and the engine, it is believed, has been damaged.

The three young men who had such a thrilling experience, were extremely thankful that they escaped without injury. They were travelling at a moderate rate of speed and little dreamed that there was not a clear pasage over the road to Lindsay.

LOCAL YOUNGSTERS PLAYED A GREAT GAME AGAINST THE CAREFULLY COACHED TRENT TEAM—HAD MANY CHANCES TO SCORE BUT FAILED TO BENEFT BY THEM.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 17. — The Hastings junior lacrosse team won their group here yesterday by defeating Peterborough by the score of 8 goals to 6 in an interesting game that began in a drizzle and closed in a downpour. A fairly satisfactory attendance was counted at the gate in spite of the rain. Hastings were heralded as the probable winner by a wide score, but Johnnie Sutherland's lads gave them a stiff argument all the way In the last period they scored four goals and had Tim Coughlin's youngsters on the run, but this effort came too late, the bell giving Hastings the junior honours of the Trent district. They got the last goal, too, just to show that they weren't stampeded.

It was a clean game, capably handled by Pat Kelly, goaler of the Campbellford intermediates, whose decisions were impartial and always above criticism.

Hastings took the first quarter by 2 to 1, and were leading half way by 3 to 2. They blanked Peterborough in the third session, and ran up their own string to six. Joe Gould was benched for 10 minutes in the last period and with an odd man, Peterborough got a couple of goals, and added two more when their opponents were at full strength.

Peterborough—Goal, L. Lebarr; point, E. Foley; cover-point, Chris. McCarney;; 1st def., J. Ward; 2nd def., A. Johnston; centre, L. Brown; 2nd home, J. Lawson; 1st home, K. Mein; outside home, S. Rosenfield; inside home, J. Killoran; spares, A. Miller, J. O'Toole and C. Doughty.

Hastings — Goal, C. Whitred; point, O. Scriver; cover-point, W. Whitred; 1st def., W. Tate; 2nd def., H. Rogers; centre, F. Scriver; 2nd home, S. Stevenson; 1st home, P. Walsh; outside home, B. Richardson; inside home, J. Gould; spares, O. Cruikshanks and K. Kennedy.

The First Quarter.

Peterborough had a couple of chances around the Hastings net early in the first session, but the home was wobbly. Tate got the first goal for Hastings on a long bounder that fooled Lebarr. Bruce Richardson and Gould worked a nice combination for their next, Gould scoring. Mein worked through the Hastings defence, but failed to get anything. Lawson scored for Peterborough on a play that started on a penalty throw given to Mein. In this session the Sutherland clan quickly revealed their strength and weakness. Lebarr in goal was at his best and improved as the game progressed. He gave a splendid exhibition of goal tending and was the main stay of the Peterborough team. The defence was good, but the home field was ineffective. Lebarr went into the game limping with a sore foot, caused by a truck at the C. G.E. works rolling over his foot in the morning.

Second Period.

Fred Scriver carried the ball in from centre, but tossed it over the net. At the other end Killoran muffed a pass from Lawon. Lebarr stopped three in succession. Killoran put Peterborough on even terms with a nice play near the goal. The Hastings forwards buzzed around Lebarr who stopped two difficult ones before Gould flipped one into the net on a pass from Richardson. Killoran took a bullet pass neatly inside the Hastings defense and in shooting the ball rolled out of his stick behind him. Gould's shot was blocked by Lebarr.

Third Period.

Cruikshanks replaced Walsh and O'Toole went on in Mein's position. McCarney was benched for tapping Richardson on the head. Steverison scored on a pass from Fred Scriver. Johnton went off for rapping Tait. Whitred drew ten minutes for roughing it shortly after. Richardson launched the attack that gave Hastings their next, Gould scoring and Cruikshanks came right back, passing to Stevenson, who made it 6-2. This was Hastings round decisively, but the Peterborough team had a large share of the play, although they failed to get results.

Last Period.

Miller went on for Peterborough and Mein was back. Lebarr blocked a hot one from Rogers. Gould drew 10 minutes for hitting Foley on the head. These penalties sound far more serious than they were. None of the players were hurt in the game except Fred Scriver, who is usually around when the injuries are going. He was hit over the eye with the ball, but continued after a few minutes. Lawson started Peterborough's rally with a pretty goal, and McCarney went right back for another. Meir had a big opening but his shot went over the net. On a splendid solo play Bruce Richardson feinted through the Peterborough defence and lobbed one into the net, making the score 7-4. Saul Rosenfield wormed his way within a stick length of the Hastings goal for Peterborough's next. Miller, Mein and Rosenfield showed a flashy combination, but it was foozled on the firing end. Jimmy Lawson got Peterborough's last, although McCarney almost beat Whitred with another. Then Scriver wound up the piece by bounding one by Lebarr.

A Fine Performance.

Hastings had their regular line.

WINNIPEG LABOR—ONE TIME RADICAL—WON'T HELP SOVIET

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 18.—Winnipeg labor men, who two years ago were proclaiming the benefits— many and varied—of Soviet rule, are not in a mood to help the starving brethren in Russia.

At the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council Tuesday night an appeal made by the Soviet Russia Famine Relief committee, a recently formed organization, for the Council's co-operation to assist in relieving the "suffering of the starving millions in Russia," was ignored.

It was stated in the Lemer that, owing to the wide area affected by drought, approximately 18 million persons were facing the spectre of starvation. The communication was filed, acting on the belief that charity begins at home. Plans were made to hold a survey of unemployment among the different unions.

REPARATION FOR AMERICAN LIVES LOST IN WAR MAY BE ONE OF U. S. TERMS IN DRAFTING TREATY WITH GERMANY,

BY CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—Reparation for American lives lost in the Great War is one of the demands of the United States in drafting a treaty of peace with Germany, it was reported here to-day.

That demand and others stirred resentment of German leaders, but they were prepared eventually to accede to all of them and sign the treaty as early as possible. It was stated authoritatively that the United States has refused to temper any of the terms in the rough draft in course of preparation.

Germany takes the position, according to authoritative statements that she cannot assume any more obligations than are contaiaed in the Versailles Treaty.

DAIL EIREANN ENTERS SECRET SESSION TO FRAME ITS REPLY TO BRITISH OFFER FOR PEACE

SEEMS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION THAT THE OFFER WILL BE SPURNED—MILITARY ACTIVITY IS RENEWED.

DUBLIN, Aug. 18.—While Ireland and England rushed preparations for renewed war, the Dail Eireann went into secret session to-day to frame its acceptance or rejection of Lloyd George's peace offer.

It seemed a foregone conclusion that the offer would be spurned, but whether the British Government will consider that ground for terminating the truce remained in doubt As the Sinn Fein Parliament met behind closed doors in the Mansion House, sentries of the "Irish Republican Army" paced up and down the corridors. Only a few blocks away there were scenes of activity around the Black and Tan barracks. Hundreds of khaki clad British soldiers were arriving on every train that pulled into the railway stations.

LLOYD GEORGE IS HOPING FOR PEACE

(Special Cable to the Examiner)

LONDON, Aug. 18.— "We have accepted with joy and delight the invitation of the United States to a conference on disarment", Premier Lloyd George wrote to-day, in a message to Caerphilly voters, supporting a Coalition candidate.

"I pray the result will lead us towards peace—making the Pacific Ocean really Pacific."

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Scores of unemployed former British service men are reporting daily to the Spanisfh consulate here for enrolment in the Foreign Legion of the Spanish Army. The men accepted are directed to report to the Spanish Transport Almirante Lobo, which is due to sail for Spain tomorrow. Information which led to this recruiting is said to have been secretly among the unemployed applicants for enlistment are asked two questions: "Can you fight" and "will you fight."

A NOVEL WARNING.

At the recent Fire Chiefs' Convention, the suggestion was made that the manufacturers of cigarettes should be asked to co-operate in the fire prevention campaign by inserting in their packages cards calling attention to the necessity of care in removing as far as possible the fire hazards that make Canada's fire loss the greatest on record.

There is logic in the proposal. Smokers are responsible for many fires, carelessness in tossing away a lighted match or a cigarette butt being one of the chief causes, and a warning such as has been proposed by the Fire Chiefs would reach a class that perhaps is most in need of advice on this point. The experiment is at least worth trying.

A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Down in Oshawa the Town Council has been perturbed by the accusation of a local paper that the councillors waste too much time in the transaction of public business. Naturally the Council resents the charge and intimates that if the representatives of the press do not care to remain until the business is completed, the doors are open, and they can leave whenever they see fit.

The Oshawa newspapers should not worry over the tendency of the Council to discuss the matters that come before it at great length. All public bodies have that feeling. The Dominion Parliament wastes weeks of each session in profitless debate, and then gallops through the important business in the last few days; the Provincial Legislature follows exactly the same course. And municipal councils everywhere devote hours to talking about a crossing or the removal of a tree, and sometimes only a few minutes to a by-law involving many thousands of dollars.

So the Oshawa councillors are no worse than aldermen anywhere else. The main point the Oshawa newspapers should be concerned about is not the length of time the Council devotes to public business, but rather the manner in which that business is transacted.

CURB THE REDS.

The authorities in Toronto are brewing trouble for themselves if they allow the Red agitators, with which the city is infested, to continue their wild speeches. The unemployment situation, serious enough now, will be worse during the coming winter, and the danger is that men who, under normal conditions, would laugh at the absurd theories of the Red orators, may be successfully influenced by appeals to prejudice and class hatred, and disturbances will follow. Many of the unemployed in Toronto are of foreign extraction, and if they are allowed to be filled night after night with Socialistic doctrine, there may be a harvest of riots and crime that would give the authorities a vast amount of trouble.

At a meeting this week, the audience applauded wildly the declaration of one worker that if he could not get employment he proposed to steal what he needed. That is dangerous kind of doctrine to feed the unemployed upon, and although Sam Gompers and other leaders of organised labour have hastened to condemn such utterances as flamboyant and mischievous, their statements will scarcely serve to check the effect of the original speeches. The most vicious of the agitators should be rounded up now before they succeed in stirring up trouble.

A SHORT-SIGHTED POLICY.

Once more the short-sighted policy of the Federal Government in dealing parsimoniously with its experts has been illustrated, this time by the resignation of Prof. L. W. Gill, Director of Technical Education, who leaves the employ of the Dominion Government to accept a post as directing head of the Departments of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering in the University of British Columiba.

Dr. Gill has been a valuable public servant, and it is a sad commentary upon the remuneration paid for technical work by the Ottawa Government that several of the Provinces actually pay their directors of technical education more than Dr. Gill received. Expert after expert in various lines of scientific work has been forced to resign from the service of the Dominion of Canada because private firms, both here and in the United States, could offer them much larger salaries than the Government sees fit to pay.

If competent, qualified men are to be kept in these important positions, they must be given remuneration commensurate with the duties and responsibilities they are called upon to fill. It is a pity to see bright Canadians, who could be of great service to their native land, forced to devote their talents to assisting private enterprises because the Government fails to appreciate the wisdom of rewarding merit.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Come Back to Erin" is the tune that British troops are hearing these days.

President Harding is to be asked to refrain from smoking cigarettes. There are drawbacks to every position.

"Flamboyant remarks will not bring any work to the unemployed," declares Sam Gompers. And the head of the American Federation of Labour is on safe ground there.

Judging by the programme Lord Byng is expected to go through in Toronto, the Victor of Vimy will be wish the old days, when he had nothing to do but hammer Germans, were back again.

ENTHUSIASM.

(By R. Sykes Muller)

Some time ago, when addressing a convention of salesmen on a campaign for a client, a bright young man asked me how I got so much enthusiasm. I told him that he would have as much enthusiasm as I when he had learned my definition, and had gained the factors in that definition which made up my enthusiasm.

Here is what I told him:

"Enthusiasm is made up of 70 per cent. confidence in yourself, 10 per cent. confidence in your product or service, 10 per cent. knowledge of your product or service and its competition, 10 per cent. willingness to work like ——."

Enthusiasm also includes ability, which is bred of knowledge. Enthusiasm stimulates ambition.

This bare definition of enthusiasm isn't enough in itself to direct the average man so that he will obtain it, therefore, to make it easy of understanding, I have qualified the definition by the percentages shown above.

Seventy per cent. confidence in yourself means absolute confidence in your ability to do, and is by far the greatest portion of enthusiasm. With this percentage, you have all the confidence that you can possibly obtain—nothing holds any terrors where your success is concerned—you surmount obstacles that seem impossible at first glance; any problem that comes to you is taken care of or adjusted, because you just know that you can handle it, and seldom, if ever, will you refuse to attempt a difficult problem—the more difficult, the more "zip" and interest a problem seems to contain.

Ten per cent. confidence in your product means all the confidence that you can have for that product or service.

Ten per cent. knowledge of your product or service and knowledge of your competition, means all that there is to know about your product or service; the kind of people that use it; its complete utility; its intrinsic worth; its wearing qualities, and everything that goes to make it and its market—as well as a clear knowledge of your competition; its products or service; its methods; its standing; its humanity and other points where it touches you and your organisation.

Ten per cent. willingness to work, means incessant effort — not only with your hands, but also with your mind—for the benefit of your organisation, whether you are the president or the office-boy, it matters not, for many office-boys have become presidents, therefore, no man in the organisation can "pass the buck" if that organisation is to realise its greatest success, and if its officials and employees are to benefit by that success.

Work and thinking are indicated in the selling of product; in helping to better the product or service; shortening a process; beautifying a design; enhancing the wearing qualities; improving methods of packing and distribution; in helping others in the organisation; in helping distributors of the product, and in building goodwill with those distributors and users, even though many of these suggestions may not be the particular job for which you were hired.

Ten per cent. willingness to work represents every effort that you can put forth from a common-sense standpoint for your company.

To gain enthusiasm, you must first have confidence which is born of knowledge gained through analysis.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The explanation given by Mr. R. Hicks chairman of the Utilities Commission, with regard to the purchasing of the pumps for the new filtration plant from the German firm situated in Switzerland is unworthy of the Unitilities Commission. People in the past have been too easily satisfied with just round figures, but when it comes to exact figures it often puts new light upon the subject as there is every reason to believe they would in this particular cas. The sum of $10,000, we understand, covered all the machinery and appliance connected with the job, including installation of the pumps; and machinery left in working order.

What the public would like to know does that $3,000 paid the German firm for the pumps, include duty on importation freight, installation, business tax etc. if it does not the city is practically money out of pocket, money which is so badly needed at the present when the whole Dominion of Canada is at their wits end to know how to meet the unemployed situation. Mr. W. Kennedy Jr., of Montreal, oud engineers as Mr. Hicks terms him, is not infallible. This raises the point would not not be better for the Utilities Commission to use our local engineers instead of going to Montreal or, elsewhere. Peterboro's professional men should be second to none in the Dominion and the same applies to our mechanics. If we are to adopt Senator G. Robertson's, minister of labor, Ottawa, solution to save the country from economic disaster to buy in Canada. Then from a patriotic standpoint the action of the commission is remiss in its duty. The municipalities of Britain have refused to purchase from firms of doubtful origin and to keep money at home, then to think that after all in the exact expenditure of pumps including installation that it will cost as much if not more than if done by home labor, is, to say the least, most short sighted and unpatriotic.

The people would like to have more light on this subject in exact figures and not just round numbers.

THOS. BALLARD,
Recording-Secretary,
Trades and Labor Council.

REAL TREASURE

A story runs of a young man who picked up a golden coin lying in the road. Ever after, as he walked along, he kept his eyes fastened on the ground in hope of finding another.

In the course of a long life he picked up a good deal of gold and silver, but in all these years he never saw the lovely flowers by the wayside or the grassy dell, or mountain peak and silver stream.

God's stars came out and shone like gems of everlasting hope, but he kept his eyes upon the mud and filth in which he sought the treasure; and when he died, a rich old man, he knew this lovely earth only as a dirty road in which to pick up money as he walked along.

He Will Think It Over

THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA rejected 1,506 applicants for Assurance last year, who thought it over a little too long. Every man thinks it over on his deathbed—some with satisfaction and some with sorrow. It will cost more next year than this year, and the probability of securing Assurance now is greater than it will be then. If he needs it tomorrow, he needs it today.

Do not delay too long and regret it, but secure the protection which you need before it is too late.

TOM BARNEY PLEADS A HEARING.

Chapter 40.

When the front door bell rang loudly one morning about 10 o'clock, I rushed to answer it, little suspecting who I should find waiting on the other side of the door.

I opened the door wide, and in walked Tom Barney. I was seething with anger.

"You!" I exclaimed. "Don't you dare come into this place again!"

But he was past me, and walked nonchalantly into the living-room. I followed, my hands fairly twitching to take him by the neck and run him out of the door. My breath came and went rapidly, in agitation.

Then Tom turned and faced me. His expression was entirely different. I looked at him startled. I would hardly have known him, he loked so white and strange.

"Sit down, Barbara — I had to come—I had to see you. I just want you to let me talk to you for a very few minutes," he said pleadingly.

Something in his manner made me hesitate. This was not the Tom Barney who had forced his horrid kisses upon me only a week ago. A strange something made me listen to him.

I sat down in a chair by the window. Tom walked back and forth for a few minutes, and then stopped suddenly, his head sinking down ashamedly between his shoulders.

"The night Kent went out to Philadelphia to hock the diamond I went out on the same train with him." Tom rubbed his mouth nervously with the back of his hand, and started pacing back and forth across the room again. "I did not see him or know he was on the train until I was getting off at Philadelphia. At first I was on the point of rushing up and speaking to him—then something held me back. I could not figure out what he was doing in Philadelphia. I was suspicious. So I followed him."

Tom came over a little nearer to me and dropped down on the edge of a chair. He was greatly agitated.

For myself, I hardly knew how I felt. I did not know what to think. Tom's manner was so stranger. I just sat like stone and listened to every word he was saying.

"Kent went straight to a place way over on the east side of Philadelphia—down in the lower business section. I never let him see me, but I followed carefully. He did not take a taxi, so it was easy to keep track of him. He went in a place finally and stayed over an hour, I guess. It was so long I couldn't wait. I had a date myself.

"But I remembered the place, and I determined to go back some time and find out why he went there.

"I did. I made a special trip. I tried a little bluff, but it didn't work very well. I told the man I was a friend of the fellow who had been to see him on that Thursday night, and that I had come to settle up the business with him. He looked at me narrowly and asked me if I had the cheque with me for the diamond. Of couse I didn't, and he got mad and ran me out of th place. But I found out one thing. I found out that it was a diamond. Kent had hocked a diamond. I discovered that much."

I leaned eagerly toward him. My heart beating wildly.

"Did you tell anyone else? Does anyone else know?" I asked fearfully.

"No, not a soul — honest, Barbara," he said, looking at me compassionately.

"Does the man — that man in Philadelphia, know Kent's name or who he is?" I demanded again. My hand clutched at my left side as if to tear off the fearful, iron bands of pain that were clamped around it.

"No, of course not. Those chaps know their business," he assured me but the thoughts of it all seemed horrible.

"Go on then," I said, sinking back exhausted in my chair.

STANFORD STADIUM AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 18.— (United Press.)— Construction on the mammoth stadium here was five days ahead of the engineer's schedule to-day, and it was expected that the great structure, which will seat 60,000 persons, will be ready for the "Big Game" with California in the fall.

More than one-tihrd of the dirt from what will be the bottom of the bowl has been removed and construction of the bleachers commenced. A fleet of tratcors is engaged in tearing up the soil in huge chunks and piling it on top of the already high surrounding mound.

They all come back to "Peaceful Valley." You will, too.

with the exception of Clapper. They were unquestionably superior in stick handling and clean cut, swift passing all along their line. In Bruce Richardson they have a splendid player. He is gentlemanly always, fast and "uses his noodle," in other words shows good judgment in his play. He flings a wicked shot and handles himself generally like a veteran. Otto Scriver and Rogers are good defence men, Rogers in particular. Stevenson on the home is also effective, but Gould was allowed few chances to-day. Rogers and Richardson were the outstanding performers for Hastings, and Fred Scriver worked well all afternoon.

Lebarr had a big day. He was right on edge and his stops kept the Peterborough team in the running right up to the last bell. Peterborough had just as much of the play and in some stages a great deal more than Hastings, but with this difference, Richardson and company wasted few chances, while many of Peterborough's attacks crumpled up before they got inside the defence, and it wasn't always hard checking that stopped them. The defence turned in a fine game and had the homes been exchanged the score would have been vastly different. Chris McCarney played his first game for the Sutherland team and was decidedly good. Eddie Foley and Johnny Ward blocked well and used their weight to advantage. Foley's speed also helped the forwards. Johnston, Brown and Jimmy Lawson looked good in centre field. Brown and Johnston showed a big improvement since their last game and Lawson was the main strength of the home. Miller and Mein handled themselves well and Killoran and Rosenfield showed flashes of good lacrosse style, but the home on the whole was not as effective as the defence. The team, however, surpassed its supporters and had Tim Coughlin and the Hastings crowd mighty anxious in that last quarter.

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.

THE HERMIT

By Mrs. A. F. Calder.

But the cold, selfish avarice
Unblushingly revealed,
That could a brother sacrifice,
With conscience ,triple steeled.

Almost beyond the firm control
Of reason, fiercely burned
Hot fires of anger in my soul,
Thus wronged and basely spurned

I scorned to seek redress or aid
From wolves of legal guise,
Who oft their wretched victim flayed
The Fleece, too, scant a prize.

Soon came the magic call to me
In accents clear and strong,
The glorious voice of liberty,
The prairies' subtle song.

While bitter sorrow wrung my heart
I bade my love adieu,
And ere for years, perchance, we part,
Our plighted vows renew.

Fondly we swore, whatere betide
To constant be forever,
Our bodies distance might divide,
Our kindred spirits never.

My one sweet secret solace, this Far on the western plain,
Full oft in dreams, I felt her kiss
Warm on my lips again.

There from gray dawn, till twilight late,
Through heat and cold and rain,
I toiled, but inauspicious fate
Proved all this labor vain.

Fierce devasting ruin fleet
Swept, blizzard, cyclone, gale,
And promised harvests low lay beat
Beneath dread frost or hail.

Discouraged by hope long delayed
Loss, failure's sickening blight,
I struggled on though most dismayed,
While five years winged their flight.

My loneliness fain to bequile
Came tender billette doux,
Bringing the sunshine's gladdening smile,
Though far between and few.

But these like flowers of summer sheen,
That droop in frost winds hoar,
Those that my solace pure had been
From Alice came no more.

Yet love as ever doubly blind,
Doubt nor distrust e'er knew;
Nor by a faithless thought unkind,
Held my fond love untrue.

For once enkindled Cupid's fire,
The heart can ne'er forget,
His flame can but with death expire,
Though storms of grief beset.

At length a sudden turn there came
In fortune's fickle tide,
When I with wealth might go to claim
Sweet Alice for my bride.

Eager, impatient of delay
That home-bound train's swift race
Seems but to creep, the lengthening way,
With tedious, slow, snail pace.

Duly on time all weary worn,
And dusty, travel stained.
Happly unshaven and unshorn,
My native town I gained.

The old familiar streets I wend,
Still in rude dishabille,
Unrecognized by many a friend,
Even so my fancy's will.

Until beside the silent mart,
In deepest shadows set,
He with well feigned surprise and start,
Me my false brother met.

Would that kind Heaven in pitying mood,
In death had laid me low,
Ere smiling, cruel, calm he stood
And dealt that deadly blow.

Spoke sneering he in bitter, hate
My sorrow to reride,
"Ah, laggard, sure you come too late
For Alice is my bride."

Full cautiously with worthy care,
Dear brother on my word,
Was laid the secret certain snare,
That caught your guileless bird."

These taunting words, swift kindled ire,
That raged with furious heat,
Instant just vengeance deep and dire
On this vile wretch to mete.

Your missives breahing passion's flame
Fair Alice never read,
For suddenly sad tiding came
Telling her you were dead.

To sleep in native church yard bed
A dire disease forbade,
So with no tear drops o'er you shed
In nameless grave were laid.

In frenzy of wild passion's storm
I dealt him one swift blow,
That laid the crafty schemer's form
Upon the pavement low.

But quick as savage tiger springs
Aroused from cautious doze,
And fierce his agile body flings
Upon his fated foes,

Sprang he to murderous attack,
Strong with fierce guilty hate,
Bearing me struggling slowly back
To earth by force of weight.

Help! Murder! far the streets resound,
With hurrying feet and yell,
And I was borne a prisoner bound
To a vile felon's cell.

The law, professed to equal stand
For justice, firm and sure,
Oft crushes with an iron hand
The helpless, weak or poor.

Against the wealthy lordling's word
A stranger's tale was ,vain;
So law pronounced me scarcely heard
A ruffian insane.

To those grim halls of dark despair
Where hapless wretches rave,
By heartless perjury doomed to share
Their awful living grave.

How Old Age Comes To Those Who Invite It

—"There's a Reason"

THERE are plain rules, well understood, about keeping a piece of machinery in repair and running smoothly.

Is the body as important as an automobile engine or a furnace?

Is it as reasonable to talk about the best ways of sustaining the body as it is to talk of proper care for the engine or the furnace?

Well, then—

The body is strengthened, warmed, sustained—kept young—in a very practical and scientific way.

Some Simple Facts

Food is heat and power and renewal for the body.

After all, there's nothing mysterious or magical about what food does in serving human need.

Nothing mysterious, but much that is interesting—and important.

Some foods are particularly good for the body.

GRAPE-NUTS is such a food.

Grape-Nuts is made from whole wheat and malted barley flour — product of the two grains which are richest in food elements for human need. Under the outer, or bran coating of the grain, nature has placed phosphates and lime which go to the making of bone, and the red blood corpuscles.

This may sound like physiology, but it works like health.

Hunger Not Cheated

All the richness of the kernel, together with essential mineral elements, are retained in the making of Grape-Nuts. Often, in the manufacture of foods, some of the most vital of nature's provisions are thrown away.

The long baking process (Grape-Nuts is the result of 20 hours continuous baking) partially pre-digests the food substances, develops the starches into dextrin and maltose—giving to Grape-Nuts its own natural sweetness—and produces a food which, when served with milk or cream, has been found by chemists to be almost perfectly balanced in qualities of nutrition.

The Enemies Within

No need to go into the particulars—it's enough to say that certain effects produced by food which is slow in digesting develop fermentation and other conditions which cause the bodily machine to slow down and wear out sooner than necessary.

Grape-Nuts digests quickly and wholesomely.

Much of this is due to the fact that the long baking has partly pre-digested the nutriment; partly to the fact that there is contained in Grape-Nuts the essential "roughness" to stimulate the action of the intestines.

Health's Splendid Champion

Grape-Nuts is a delightful food, for it is uniquely rich and sweet in flavor, and always crisp. It is unusually nutritious, for it has all the body-building elements of the most perfect food grains. It is a convenient and economical food, for it is ready to eat from the package, keeps in any climate, and is appetizing to the last bit.

It builds strength and vigor without taxing the digestion or leaving, within the body, elements whose familiar harm is really the beginning of "old age."

Grape-Nuts has been a favorite food, around the world, for nearly a quarter of a century—

And there is a reason!

The HealthyLife

is the only one that counts. Good health is the foundation of success. Most everyone needs a little medicine from time to time. To correct digestive disorder use Beecham's Pills. This is how nature intended the foot to grow—the Huribut way.

If the feet are crippled by ill-fitting shoes that prevent natural movement they will induce a stooping walk—the chest will not develop—the lungs will suffer. A child that walks well is always healthy.

Articles of a social or general nature are always welcome, providing they are brief. Address all communications, such as personals and other social items, to the Society Editor of the Examiner, or telephone 1,000.

The Peterboro Health Association Covers a Wide Range of Health Work

During the hot summer months, in the same way as it serves the community in spring, autumn and winter, the Peterboro Health Association tiontion continues to do a great deal of good work. The district nurse, Miss Edith Hamilton, who is replaced in her absence during the month of August by Miss Olive Leahy, makes the rounds of the city by day and night, giving attention and medicine to the sick, comforts for those suffering from lingering disease, dispensing milk and eggs in many cases where needed, and doing invaluable work in the way of advising as to better living conditions and the principles of hygiene. The evils of underfeeding and improper nourishment, of dirt, of crowded, unsanitary conditions of life, and of insufficient ventilation, are met with every day in the nurse's itinerary, and one of her duties is to give advice with regard to these matters.

Many diseases come under the scope of the nurse's observations. Tuberculosis, cancer, rickets, crooked legs and backs ,club feet, all come in for their share of attention.

Mothers and babies, and the constant care which both require, make a considerable item in the day's work. Any patient of the Association is entitled to receive two quarts of milk daily and two dozen eggs per week free of charge, and in addition to this, the annual report shows all manner of supplies given out in pursuit of the good work; sputum cups and refills, linen, blankets, comforters, absorbent cotton, cod liver oil, medicine, sometimes even cots, tents and electric fans. One of the recent reports showed a total of 1878 visits made by the nurse, 12 of these at night, and 500 of the visits were made to the 18 tubercular patients having treatment at that time; 2500 quarts of milk and 150 dozen eggs wih a large quantity of medicine, were not inconceivable items.

At present there are only three tubercular cases receiving attention from the Association. These are visited at least three times a week, and often daily, and receive a bath once a week. The nthere is a 'heart' case, and a number of mothers and babies to be attended to, so that the extremes of age, an old lady of 84, and a tiny baby boy of a week old, may be receiving attention from the same kind hands.

Most of the cases are in widely separated sections of the city, and it takes most of the nurse's time attending to them. She is also liable to be called out at any hour of the night by any of the city's physicians.

The Supervised Playgrounds have had large attendance despite the unusual heat of past two months

The Supervised Playgrounds have had a fine season ,although the extremely warm weather affected the attendance to a certain extent, and the usual coo and flow of summer sicknesses had their way with the children. The season as a whole has been very successful, and all the supervisors have given splendid service at their respective posts, Miss Welsh and Mr. Ingham, at the King Edward school, Miss Staunton alone at Queen Alexandra, Mr. Davis and Miss Nelson at Central, and Miss Stenton and Mr. Mackon at Queen Mary.

The boys and girls have gone regularly to the swimming beaches, the attendance there being on an average of 25, and they have patronized the playgrounds from early morning until closing time.

They have brought their sisters, and their brothers, sometimes their mothers, and, above all, they have brought the babies. No playground has been without its complement of baby carriages under the shade trees, and at one ground an entire family of seven were regular at attendants.

With swings for large and small, "giant strides," slides, sand piles, quoits, tether tennis, baseball, football, teeters, with games of forfeits, and story telling from the teachers, with raffia and knitting and jay wool work cards, they have empioyed their time and enjoyed their summer and laid up a great store of points against a final reckoning when the winning school will receive a pennant.

Winners and losers, the latter a smaller number of course, receive points in the games and for attendance at grounds and swimming lessons for finished tasks, etc., they are entitled to so many punches, even for minding the baby and drying the dishes.

The field days which have been held weekly, when certain grounds are visited, for competitive sports, the average attendance has been about 125 and the average daily attendance at the four school for the season stands at: Queen Alexandra, 40; Central, 54; King Edward, 56; Queen Mary, 63.

HENNA AND SHADES OF RED ARE VOGUE FOR THE FALL COSTUMES

For several seasons henna and its kindred tones have been much in evidence, and these shades, slightly different, of course, from those of the spring, will still be with us this fall and winter.

There is buddha, which is a richer red than brick, with formosa and satsuma, which are peculiar copper-brown shades. Bermuda, gaiety, and poppy are the alluring tones of red which will be in vogue for fall wear, while many blues and blue greens, opal, matrix, orient, and rapid, will be seen, together with the jade-like greens called yama and scarab.

For Evening.

For those who like shades of purple, there are hepatica and loganberry, with a delicate orchid tint called afterglow, which will be used for evening wear.

And last, but not least, black seems to continue, or even gain in popularity, judging by the early fall frocks, although there is a tendency to combine it with gaily coloured fabrics or vivid embroideries rather than with grey or white.

Canton Crepe.

Canton crepe, it would seem, will still be in vogue for early fall, with soft crepe satins, crepe Romain, and that delightful crepe and wool weave called roshanara as strong competitors.

Embroidery will be used to a very marked degree, fluffy angora forming the most attractive of floral motifs. Krimmer, which has been such a popular summer fur trimming, is also imitated in a lose loop stitch, while nail heads in steel and jet stud many a fall frock. Discs of celluloid, often in white, are used to outline designs on frocks of black.

Silhouette Popular.

As to the silhouette, it remains long and slender, with clinging lines. Although in the dance and evening frocks one still finds here and there a distended hoop or bouffant effect.

The tunic with the uneven hem and having a slight draped effect is, very good. Points, tabs, and scallops are seen as the finish to many skirt bottoms.

Wide Bateau Favoured.

While a few of the fall frocks are shown with high collars, it is not likely that the high stock will be a permanent fall feature in either the frocks or neckwear. It is said that a high back collar will be good, but as this mode usually interferes with the coiffure, it has never to any extent been liked by the American woman. The wide bateau or boat neckline is still favoured.

For Hot Weather.

For hot weather wear? Oh, the irony of it, soft, furry shapes of French felt, with the most alluring of lines, are quite the mode. Later, when cold weather is really upon us, uncut velvet, it is said, will fashion some of the smartest of models. Panne velvet and a new weave having chenille effect are other fabrics employed.

Long, trailing peacock or pheasant feathers trim many of the new felts, while the gaudy reds, greens, and yellows of parrot grace others.

Dear Jeannette, Grandpa says that if people would pump well-water into wooden moulds and let them freeze and then put them away in a few packing cases with no less than one foot of saw dust on the outside all round they would have plenty of fine pure ice for hot weather. Of course the freezing had better be done on winter nights.

MELCHISEDEK.

HOME CIRCLE

A WORD TO FATHERS

We have read a story of a little boy who, when he wanted a new suit of clothes, begged his mother to ask his father if he might have it. The mother suggested that the boy might ask for himself.

"I would," said the boy, "but I don't feel well enough acquainted with him."

There is a sharp reproof to the father in reply of the son. Many a father keeps his children so at a distance from him that they never feel confidentially and lovingly acquainted with him. They feel he is sort of a monarch in the family. They feel no familiarity with him. They fear him and respect him, and even love him some—for children cannot help loving some everybody about them, but they seldom get near enough to him to feel intimate with him. They seldom go to him with their little wants and trials. They approach him through the mother. They tell her everything. They have a highway to her heart on which they go in and out with perfect freedom. In this keeping-off plan fathers are to blame. Children should not be held off. Let them come near.

The prevailing idea of the time is to make everything as pleasant as possible for the children. And the principle seems almost unquestionable. It would seem a little short of barbarous to be otherwise. But some good things are spoiled by overdoing the attempt to make everything pleasant and agreeable for the rising generation. In the home, in the school and in the church our whole study may be to please the child and make the way easy. But when the household pet passes into the business world, the way is not made easy. Grim difficulties confront it on every hand, and nothing but pluck, patience and perseverance will overcome them. But the child that has always been entertained and helped along an easy way is not likely to possess these important qualities. There is no surer way of making anarchists than to pet and pamper the rising generation until it must take care of itself.

There is an old proverb, "home is home, be it ever so homely," but home should not be made any more homely than necessity requires. The family fireside should be associated, in the minds of the young people, not only with stern requirements of duty, but with a sense of pleasure. It is not enough to drill our sons with severe discipline, in all the formalities of rigid virtue. They should be taught not only how to keep straight, but how to bend, since it is not in the power of nature to undergo a perpetual tension. Provision must be made at home for relaxation as well as work, for pleasure as well as duty. If such provision is not made there it will be as it is often, sought elsewhere.

Husbands and wives give expression to every petty feeling of irritation and bandy words back and forth till some molehill assumes the proportions of a mountain. A tendency to nag goes unchecked among the children, and almost before the parents are aware there is a chronic condition of unpleasantness in the home. Young married people, especially need to learn control in this direction. Another disagreeable trait to be guarded against is the habit, peculiar to some people, of always being on the opposite side of a question. Call attention to the good points of a book, a person, a public movement, a work of art, or what not, and this individual is ever ready to interpose "Yes—but." Conversation in such a home gives one the chills.

"Mother of Parliaments"

British House of Commons as Seen Through Canadian Eyes.

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY

Thanks to the courtesy of the Empire Parliamentary Association, Mr. Speaker had dubbed us for the day Distinguished Strangers and admitted us to the tiny gallery over the gangway, reserved—as in the Parliaments of all the world—for the outlander who has a friend at court.

We looked around with curiosity and pleasure. "A small dark-brown box of a room." I said to myself, "panelled richly in wood with Gothic carvings. No granite or marble apparently anywhere." Suddenly the full force of my remark struck me. "No granite", I said, "AND NO MARBLE!"

In Canada our Solons invariably demand stone or marble halls in which to practice their statesmanship. Granite or marble are abundant, though (as critics of extravagance will admit) not exactly cheap, and theres is too often a flor.d quality about, reeking of the contractor and suggesting that somebody had made lot of money out of them. But the British House of Commons, though built in an age not too free from commercialism, has the air of having been put together by a Build ing Guild.

The next thing that struck me was the the smallness of the Chamber. Its size, as I was presently to discover, tends to make the proceeding much less formal than in our own House of Commons. Canadians arrive in London with certain fixed ideas about the Englishman — his sense of formality, his singular habits, his reserve in public. Pure unadulterated myths. One has but to sit at Westminster to realize that the Briton, in the herd, is the most bovish and spontaneous and incurably disorderly Anglo-Saxon in the world. As a Canadian I missed a number of things. I missed active little pages darting about, fetching sinister looking (to the Press Gallery) Hansards for threatening members. I missed the drone of the Honorable gentleman from somewhere in New Brunswick (or maybe Ontario) reading interminable extracts from the press; I missed the Speaker's "Order, order!" whenever the subdued hum of the House rose above a certain decorous pitch; I missed the Hansard reporters seated (as in Ottawa) in the middle of the gangway (or is it aisle?) But most of all I missed the Canadian set speech; the sonorous rise and fall of our "orators" declaiming over the state of the nation. Instead I swam for three mortal hours through a sea of British "Hear, Hears!" bumping occasionally—as into islands in an arch pelago— into pungent, hestitating, but perfectly lucid British speeches. There is no comparison of Canadian with British oratory. There is no comparison for the British House of Commons has no orators. Occasionally Mr. George will be heard in a flight of Celtic imagery, or Mr. Joe Devlin will lapse into a purple patch of Irish rhetoric, or Mr. Churchill or Mr. Asquith may marshall a piece of Gladstonian eloquence, but, generally speaking, the old oratory of the grand manner has died out. In its place, and more in harmony with the spirit of the age, has come the quick, clear, comprehensive, and conversational style. A Canadian member talks at the House; a British member talks to it. There may be some question as to which is the more pleasing; there can be no question as to which is the more efficient.

The average Canadian would be stunned at the apparent informality of British parliamentary proceedings—the freedom with which members interrupt one another without addressing the speaker, the deresive, sometimes passionate interjections, the spectacle of Mr. Austen Chamberlain and Lord Robert Cecil for it may be a leader of (Labor) with boots reclining on the Clerk's table, the apparent air which the House has of leaving legislation to the Government.

During question time the House was alert and attentive. Extraordinarily so. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill sat there, heroically replying with true ministerial inscrutability to the interrogations that were rained upon them; but it was no easy task. At Ottawa questions are put down on the Order Paper, answered with adequate vagueness, and that is the end of them. Not so at old St. Stephens. Your Englishman, always a stickler for his rights, must know. And so if Commander Kenworthy, most hated of Radicals, is told that British interests in Mesopotamia dictate certain policies, a procession of other Radicals with a host of supplementary queries will demand a revelation of what those "interests" are. It is a duel between the Ministry and the private members, and symbolizes the genius and meaning of British parliamentary government.

I left the House and started for home in a state of high satisfaction with the "Mother of Parliaments". It may not be, as Burke said it ough to be, an image of the British nation, but neither it is the "assembly of hard-faced stupid men" that Mr. J. M. Keynes has dubbed it. Faults, it has, undoubtedly, yet one could not help thinking that it pretty clearly exemplified those deep social instincts, those constructive cooperative capacities of the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic race. And while we at home may take pride in our own House of Commons, there is much that we may still learn from the old "Mother of Parliaments."

BANANAS TOO HIGH; THEY SHOULD SELL FOR HALF THE RETAIL PRICE

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—"It's a crime—the price the public has to pay for bananas," Eugene Sherwin, fruit broker and representative in Monereal of the Atlantic Fruit Company, said when asked the reason for the prevailing high price of the fruit. Bananas are retailing at 40 cents per dozen in the city, while in Westmount 50 and 60 cents per dozen are asked, according to size. Yet, he states, there is a glut of bananas on the market.

"Bananas should retail at not over 25c a dozen at the outside. The wholesaler could sell cheaper than that and still make money," said Mr. Sherwin. He went on to show the disparity between what the wholesale houses pay and what is paid over the counter by the consumer.

"Wholesalers," he pointed out, "are buying bananas for the low price of 90 cents to $1 a bunch of from 28 to 30 lbs. or $2.50 for a large bunch of 55 or 60 lbs. Bananas have fallen greatly in price. Last year wholesalers were paying $4 for a bunch of 55 or 60 lbs. This year they were paying in many cases less than $2.50. Small bunches for which last year they paid $2, they now obtained for $1. Prices to the consumer were maintained from week to week though bananas were selling to-day for half the prices they were selling for in June when the wholesale price was $5.30 a hundred pounds. "Now," said Mr. Sherwin, "the original importers cannot get $3 a hundred pounds."

Many Goats.

The "goats" in this case, Mr. Sherwin pointed out, were the public, the importers in the United States, who were losing thousands of dollars owing to the low prices they have to sell for the wholesalers owing to the glut in the market, and in many cases, the grocer, who is "stuck" because he is not in a position always to know the markets. Mr. Sherwin gave the instance of a retailer who bought seven bunches (about eight dozen) for $4 a bunch. The wholesaler could have sold them to him at $2 a bunch and still make 100 per cent., he declared.

The peddler, Mr. Sherwin pointed out, had the advantage over the grocer in that he was on the ground and could get to know the prices, whereas the grocer, especially in outlying districts who telephoned his orders was ignorant in many cases of the prevailing market prices. Mr. Sherwin recognized fully that the wholesale merchants had losses to make up, but he maintained that the public should have the benefit of a cheap market. If wholesalers reduced prices in proportion to what they were paying for the goods they would create a better market.

TREES ALONG THE ROAD.

By Dr. Frank Crane.

If I were asked what of all the beautiful things I saw in the beautiful country of France was the most beautiful, I should unhesitatingly reply:

"The trees along the road."

I have only to close my eyes to see them now—the long white road stetching away, and above it the arched trees.

It seems to be a general custom here to line the highway with trees. And it bespeaks at once the taste, the good sense, and the thrift of these people.

Trees are beatuiful anywhere—in their native forest, clumped in meadows where the cows shelter in their shade, about the house, in the garden, and in the park—but take it all in all I think I like them best by the roadside.

There they are public — everybody's trees, as trees ought to be. They shade equally the king in his coach and the vagabond asleep at their feet.

And they are there deliberately. Men must plant them there. And so it shows men appreciate them. They stand as invited guests. They are deservedly honoured.

And there is something about a row of trees that is specially appealing. It is the most magnificent of processions. It is the permanent standing army of beauty.

As you look down a long avenue of trees you find it easy to believe that architects got their first idea of a cathedral nave from the spectacle of their meeting branches.

When I think of the infinite reaches of treeless bare roads I have traversed in America I wonder why we could not follow the hint of the French.

For these trees are valuable, economically as well as sentimentally. They say one tenth of France is in trees.

The government carefully looks after forestry. For wood is a considerable asset. Some day America is going to wake up to the necessity of conserving its trees.

Water tennis is a new sport rapidly gaining in favor on the Pacific Coast.

DETECTIVE AGENCY COMBATTING LABOR

ALLEGED AT MEETING OF LOCAL TRADES COUNCIL—A PAUCITY OF BUSINESS AND ATTENDANCE.

The showers last night were responsible for only a minority of delegates at the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, and beyond the receiving of two letters, there was no business transacted. President Fred. Mesley was in the chair. A Toronto weekly, in a communication to the secretary sent out on August 12, advised the Council of an article they were publishing on August 20, in which the alleged methods of the William J. Burns International Detective Agency of Canada, Ltd., in combatting labor were revealed. A proof sheet of this article was submitted. The paper published a letter alleged to have been received by a Western Ontario manufacturer, in which the Agency offered to put men into his plant to guard against labor troubles, and also offered to report upon labor conventions. The letter urged that the manufacturers, by the use of their detectives, protect themselves against trouble. The paper demands of Walter Rollo, Minister of Labor, an investigation into the affairs of this agency, which, it states, is annarently an arch enemy of labor. If there is any question of the legality of the alleged letter, it is stated that upon an investigation being ordered, it will reveal the name of the manufacturer. The article asks of Hon. W. E. Raney and Hon. Walter Rollo why the license of this agency was cancelled in Quebec and not in Ontario. The paper demands that the license which was granted by Thomas W. McGarry, former Provincial Treasurer, be withdrawn.

In the letter a request was made for any information that might be in the hands of Labor men in this city regarding the activities of this agency. The secretary said he had no information against it, and none of the other delegates had. The letter was received.

A resume of the stand the American Federation of Labor had taken at their Denver convention in June on the Workmen's Compensation Laws was contained in a letter from Washington. The objectives in this direction, including a general 66 2-3 per cent. compensation to prevail in the United States and Canada, were outlined. Other recommendations to improve the existing laws were made.

At 8.45 the Council adiourned, to meet next on September 7.

SARAH BERNHARDT HASN'T BEEN ILL

REPORTS STARTED BY TOURISTS SHE DID NOT CARE TO RECEIVE

PARIS, Aug. 18.—(By United Press).—A personal message to her admirers across the Atlantic was to-day telegraphed to the United Press by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt.

Wiring from her home at Belle Isle, the famous actress said: "I have not been ill for three months, reports to the contrary are stupid canards, started by discontented tourists whom I didn't care to receive and who have caused the rumors. I am at Belle Isle, in the midst of my family. Many, many thanks and heart felt remembrances to my American public."

WARSAW NEWS HAPPENINGS

WARSAW, August 17. — About 70 people, including adults and children, in ten automobiles, motored to Sandy Lake on Tuesday, and had a very merry picnic on Picnic Hill. Several of the cars attempted to go by Young's Point, but on reaching the bridge found it undergoing repairs and had to return and go by Lakefield. Among the party were some Americans on their first trip to Canada, and they thoroughly appreciated the beauties of the little lakes, while the floating bridges at Gannon's Narrows, and at Chemong were revelations to them.

School Meeting.

There was a school meeting in the School House on Monday evening, when the main points upon which Warsaw section would have to agree upon in case Warsaw and 4th Line Schools should be consolidated were decided. Some of them were:

Debentures covering twenty years. Any money either section has on hand, that section will keep. The equipment, fit for use, be sold to the new school, and each section have this value of equipment realised. That when a building is being erected, the best is really the cheapest.

A new schol is almost imperative in both sections. In a properly equipped building two good teachers can be employed, and not so much money raised in the two sections to pay them as is now needed. There is the expense of building, but that is necessary anyway.

Church Services.

There was no service in the Anglican Church on Sunday.

Rev. Vose preached on "The Unforgiven Sin." There will be a prayer meeting in the Baptist Church on Thursday evening.

Rev. Weir preached on "Conquering the World, the Flesh, and the Devil." The choir sang "Jesus, Jesus," and Mr. Batten, "Does Jesus Care?"

The Methodist prayer meeting is on Wednesday evening.

The U.F.O.

The regular meeting of the U.F.O. was held on Wednesday evening last.

Cheese Shipped.

Cheese was shipped from Warsaw at Lakefield on Friday.

Good Rains.

Thursday and Saturday nights' rains did much good to pastures, roots, and fall grains.

Women's Institute.

The regular monthly meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute was held in the Rest Room on Thursday afternoon, when it was brought to the notice of the ladies present that the village children are using the monument enclosure as a playground.

It was decided to give a certain amount of money to the Children's Fair for special prizes. It was also decided that as the Indian Band want $40.00, and must be fetched and taken, that we do not attempt to get them the day of the School Fair.

Miss Ella Dewart gave most interesting talks on "Medical Inspection" and on "Edith Cavell." Her talk on the martyred nursing sister was most interesting and instructive. For medical inspection, Miss Dewart sees the greatest need. She instanced pupils who were not getting on as they should, and no one suspected anything wrong; but inspection showed them deaf, because of adenoids, etc. These troubles were removed and better progress was made. In practically every case, the parents agreed to the treatment suggested. At times mothers' meetings are held, when the nurse instructs in the better care of infants. The nurse makes regular visits. Poor eyesight, defective hearing, bad teeth, adenoids ,etc., were discovered and treated with beneficial results.

Personal Mention.

CROP CONDITIONS

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

The dry spell in Eastern Ontario —Dundas says that drouth had lasted practically three months— was broken on Thursday night by a steady rainfall which has been of great benefit to pastures and to corn roots and other fall maturing crops.

Spring grains, oats and barley more particularly, are showing up light in both yield per acre and by the measured bushel, although a few reports are to the contrary.

Essex reports that a kiln of tobacco was cut on August 3rd, possibly the earliest record for the County.

Norfolk says: 'There is a good demand for mixed carloads of vegetables, and this trade is capable of great expansion in this district." This representative also says that he never saw more promising fields of second growth of red clover, and extra large yields are expected.

Essex remarks that bumble bees have been plentiful this year, and as a result the prospects for red clover for seed, of which there is a considerable acreage, is good.

Leeds regards ensilage as the only saving crop for the dairy farmer this season, as hay is scarce and dear. As high as $50 a ton has been paid for some hay brought into the County In Western Ontario, however, hay has been selling in some places for $20 a ton.

A good deal of summer plowing is being done, especially in the Western half of the Province. A number of Welland farmers are dishing out stubble and are preparing it as a sed bed for Fall wheat.

Waterloo says: "Considerable after-harvest cultivation is being done at present. Rag weed has been very bad this year and for that reason many are skimming their fields."

Five carloads of cattle were recently shipped to Great Britain by dealers in the County of Perth.

Leeds is of the opinion that more live stock than usual is being marketed in that County. Some heifers and young bulls are being sold at from 5 to 6 cents a lb., according to quality.

Brant reports that the marketing of Sheep is dull, but that lambs are selling well.

Hogs are relatively scarce all over the Province, and are selling more slowly than usual at from $15 to $16.75 a cwt.

PAINFUL DIARRHOEA

CRAMPS IN STOMACH

Mr. Fred Funston, Craig, Sask., writes "A year ago last harvest I was taken with a sudden attack of diarrhoea which completely laid me out and in a few hours I had to quit work. The cramps in my stomach were dreadful, the beads of perspiration would stand out on my face at times I was in such great distress. At last I got a chance to send to town for a couple of bottles of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I used it according to the way I felt and soon obtained a great change for the better, for which I was very grateful. I don't know what the cause of my sickness was, except the extremely hot weather and the active work of stooking the wheat.

Several of my neighbors were taken the same as myself and had the doctor attend to them, but they did not get any great relief until I advised them to use "Dr. Fowler's" when they soon experienced a great change."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past 76 years and many cheap imitations are being offered to the public.

PARIS COPS CARRY CLUBS AND GATS.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The late Sir William Schwenk Gilbert must have had the Paris policeman in mind when he wrote that famous line: "A policeman's lot is not an 'appy one."

For the poor Parisian "flic," after having been shot at, beaten up, sandbagged, lead-piped, and just plain beaned with clubs, to say nothing of the ash-cans which practical jokers have emptied on their domes from third story windows have finally succeeded in getting permission to carry revolvers—only to find to their disgust that the said revolvers were not to be loaded. In fact no ammunition was provided for in the official orders.

There is one relief, however. The prefect of police has taken away those little low-comedy swords that always made them the laughing stock of all Paris and all Paris' visitors, and which were continually getting tangled up in their legs when they tried to run after some culprit. Instead, they are now to carry dignified and useful, if less ornamental, regular policeman's club.

Officially, these old swords were known as "sabres." Unofficially, and particularly on the vaudeville stage —and among the "flies" themselves, for that matter—they were known as "cabbage choppers." Which was all they were good for. I never saw one used but once, and then it was when a gendarme tapped a red-headed fat little man over the head with it while his partner held him down.

But getting back to the revolver argument, it seems that the new police order permitted the agents de police to carry these weapons, and said nothing about shooting them. So the police have sent in a petition to the new prefect, M. Leullier, asking that he furnish ammunition for them, in order that his police force may be protected from automobile bandits, coke traffickers, yeggmen, and just plain bums who are now infesting the streets of the Luminous City.

But it may be a long time yet. There has been one decree from the prefect authorizing them to carry the gats. The next one will authorize them to be loaded when carried. But then they will have to wait for another prefectorial degree which will co-ordinary the two previous ones. And perhaps a fourth decree permitting them to shoot at miscreants.

PUNISHMENT AND PROTECTION ARE DENIED THE DEAD

Executed Man, if Revived, Free to Commit Crime.

CHICAGO, August 17.—A man legally executed, pronounced dead, and then revived by means of a pulmotor, could commit any crime known to law and not be liable to prosecution and legal punishment.

The law couldn't recognise his existence.

He might walk into the court room of the judge who sentenced him and kill the judge who pronounced his fate, and no hand could be laid on him.

On the other hand, he would have no protection under the law, no matter what offence might be committed against him.

This is one of the phases of the legal question that has been brought up since he attempts to resuscitate into life the bodies of Sam Cardinella and Nick Viana, murderers hung here recently. The law is taking no chances now, and bodies are being held several hours by the authorities after hanging an hour before they are turned over to the dead man's family.

Chicago jurists are divided over the status of a person who might be thus revived.

Assistant State Attorney Lloyd Heth declared such a complication would free the man. "He could walk out of the morgue, and the law couldn't touch him. But he couldn't marry and couldn't vote. If he were beaten up by a citizen, the citizen couldn't be punished for anything more serious than cruelty to animals."

"There was an old theory that if the rope broke, the law was fulfilled and the man couldn't be hung again," said Judge Harry Fisher. "That idea is not according to modern law. Either he's dead or alive."

OPPOSITION PUTS TWO AMENDMENTS THROUGH TO BILL.

May Prolong Session of British Parliament.

LONDON, Aug. 18.— (Canadian Press)—The possible prolongation of the session of Parliament was seen in the passage against the government of two amendments to the safeguarding of industries bill in the House of Lords last night. One of these amendments limits the operation of the measure which imposes protective customs duties on certain articles and authorizes the Board of Trade to include any other article on which a protective duty is deemed necessary to two years instead of five. The other amendment excludes agricultural implements from the operation of the bill.

CROWN PRINCE OF JAPAN TO BECOME REGENT.

PLAGUE OF CRIME PRODUCED 21 DEATHS IN "MURDER BLOCK."

By Henry W. Kinney

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, Aug. 18. — When the Crown Prince returns from his visit in Europe he will be appointed regent of Japan.

This was the belief to-day of the best informed public men and journalists, but as yet no whisper even has been allowed to filter through into print. No newspaper would dare to discuss the matter, as it would mean certain and instant suppression.

The Crown Prince is now of age, according to Japanese count. Over a year ago, when the ill-health of the Emperor reached the stage where he could no longer attend public functions, and when it became necessary to have the Empress or the Crown Prince receive ambassadors and perform similar duties in his place, there was some talk about appointment of a regent, but the Crown Prince was not mentioned at the time, and the Imperial Household Department promptly denied the story.

Now, it is pointed out, the Crown Prince is receiving the finishing touches in his training as a future sovereign by his visit in Turope, and there will be every reason for placing him in the position as regent when he returns.

In the meantime the press satisfies itself with elaborate speculations with regard to the movements of the Elder Statesmen, particularly a long conference which Prince Yamagata and Prince Saionji recently had with the Emperor. Most of the papers confined themselves to the supposition that the talk concerned itself with arrangements for the Crown Prince's return and for his wedding.

Whether the Crown Prince is, in fact, made regent immediately upon his return to Japan or not, the public looks forward towards great changes, owing to his experience abroad. Great satisfaction has been expressed at his rubbing elbows with ordinary mortals in England, France and elsewhere. The mass of the people, as well as many enlightened men of high rank, look forward to a more democratic turn of things.

CONSCIENCE IMPELS MAN TO SURRENDER.

Naval Mail Clerk Absconded Four Months Ago.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18. — Four months ago yesterday, Harry Roy Wilson, 32 years old, mail clerk on the U. S. S. Hawk, mother ship of a destroyer flotilla at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, is alleged to have absconded with $8,000. On Tuesday night he walked into the Central police station and surrendered.

During those four months Wilson, who is a former bandmaster of Boston, said he had outwitted intelligence agents and police of a score of cities. His troubled conscience, he said, impelled him to give himself up.

Not only did Wilson admit stealing $8,000 in cash from the safe of the Black Hawk, but he signed a confession.

"I served the flag for 12 years," said Wilson. "and the disgrace of my act made me an outcast. I could not sleep."

Wilson is alleged to have absconded from the ship April 16, 1921, just prior to the manoeuvres of the destroyer flotilla in Guantanamo Bay. He said another confidential clerk, George Sheldon, escaped from the ship at the same time.

The feature of the proceedings yesterday was the oddress by S. Roy Weaver, manager of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada, who expressed the opinion that there would be a serious shortage of boots and shoes for the fall and winter trade.

B. C. COUGAR WAR PROGRESSING WELL

VANCOUVER, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The Cougar war, launched some time ago by the British Columbia Game Conservation Board, in order to rid the woods of these carnivorous beasts which have been destroying wild game and livestock at a great rate and menacing the lives of persons in isolated districts, is getting good results, board officials report. Nelson Island, known as one of the worst cougar haunts on the coast, has been absolutely cleaned.

MANY BUFFALOES ARE LOOKING FOR WORK.

Secretary of Ancient Order Says Thirty Per Cent. Idle.

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—A general appeal to employers is to be made by the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes in an effort to relieve the unemployment situation among its members. The secretary, J. M. Derrick, states that there are 4,000 members in Montreal and that 30 per cent. of these are out of work. In the Maisonneuve district, owing to the closing down of the Vickers' plant, there are 50 to 60 per cent. of the members unemployed.

SAYS ACID STOMACH CAUSES INDIGESTION

Excess of hydrochloric acid sours the food and forms gases.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble wth excellent results.

ACT SAFELY, THINK SAFETY

MEETS INSTANT DEATH.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 18.—While endeavoring to replace the belting on a threshing machine, Mike Wok, 27, Reeve of the municipality of Birch River, on the Greater Winnipeg water line, was instantly killed on Tuesday when his arm caught in the belt and his body was hurled around the pulley.

FIRE AT GUELPH.

GUELPH, Aug. 18. — An early morning fire did from $7,000 to $10,000 damage to H. H. O. Stull's garage and hide and wool warehouse. The loss will be partly covered by insurance. The damage done was principally to the contents of the building. The interior of the building was damaged by fire and water.

FIRE AT ALMONTE.

ALMONTE, Aug. 18.—Fire which broke out at noon yesterday destroyed the building, in the centre of the town, occupied by the store of C. E. Henderson, the C.P.R. telegraph office and a soft drink and refreshment store owned by Bernard Toohey. The fire was not fully under control until 2 o'clock. The damage is estimated at $3,500.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Rails and Equipments carried yesterday's rally to greater lengths at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Shorts evidently were apprehensive of financial relief for transportation companies before the Congressional recess and covered contracts in those issues.

Early gains were extended for a time, but shorts renewed their aggressions when Rails and Equipments became dull. The retention of the six per cent. call money rate was another discouraging feature. General Electric, Harvester, Sears Roebuck, United States Rubber, American Car, Corn Products and National Biscuit eased one to two points.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand 3.63¾; Canadian dollars, 9 7-8 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—New downturns in the price of wheat took place to-day. The pit trade was still lacking in volume. Opening quotations, which varied from ⅛ cent lower to a like advance, with September 1.19¾ to 1.19 3-4, and December 1.20¾ to 1.21½, were followed by a material set-back all around.

After opening a shade off to 1-8 up, including September at 54 3-8 to 54 5-8, the Corn Market averaged a little lower all around.

Oats touched a new low price record for the season, starting unchanged to 1-8 cent down, September 33 to 33¼, and giving no sign of power to rally.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The market closed as it opened—dull. The trading during the morning was negligible, and price changes small.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The local Stock Market passed through another very dull session this morning. Trading in listed stocks was almost at a standstill, with only approximately 250 shares changing hands. Brazilian accounted for one hundred shares at 23, with the remainder spread around the board in odd lots. In the unlisted section there was more activity, Pulp, on sales of 325 shares, sold up to 4½, later re-acting to 4. The last sale in this stock was at 3 1-8, over a week ago. Hollinger and McIntyre were stronger, the former advancing six cents to 7.12, and the latter two cents to 201.

SILVER CUP FOR PETERBORO RINK

Of five rinks of Peterborough bowlers who went to Belleville, Dr. A. H. Allen was the only one to return with any silverware. Dr. Allen won the singles by defeating Judge Deroche of Belleville by 7 shots, and captured a handsome silver cup, mounted on an ebony base.

Dr. Allen had eliminated Symons, of Belleville, McFarlane, of Kingston, Willans, of Ottawa, and Smith, of Montreal before entering the finals.

Campbell, of Kingston, Newman's partner in the winning of the doubles, came third in the singles, and Rev. Smith, of Montreal, was fourth, all four sharing in the prizes at the close of the day.

If they had won the singles, it would have been a clean sweep for Kingston, but Dr. Allen put a spoke in their wheel.

The Riggs, Ackerman, and Ritchie Trophies became theirs, and Newman won the doubles to complete the victories of the Limestone City.

Mayneord, of Peterborough, went into the semi-finals for the Ritchie Trophy, but was defeated by Elliott, of Kingston, by 19 to 9.

WOMEN ARE MORE HONEST THAN MEN.

In an address on "Gambling on Human Nature," before the Kiwanis Club, Kingston, Mr. Frederick N. Withey, Vice-President of the National Surety Co., New York, declared that women are more honest than men; they seldom embezzle or default, and when they do it is usually for more clothes, or luxury, or perhaps in case of dire poverty, and then they are delinquents for but small amounts.

"We find that most of the embezzlers are men under thirty years of age," he said. "It is very rare for a middle-aged man to become an embezzler. He knows life and the consequences of embezzling, but once he does embezzle he makes a good job of it." He scouted the idea that every man has his price, but admitted that every man is vulnerable at some point. "I am sorry to say that in many cases a luxury-loving wife is the reason for embezzlement. Sometimes the wife leads her husband beyond his income, and to keep up with her desires he become a defaulter. Many a poor devil has faced the prison walls because a woman led him too fast a pace. Doubtless she was not bad, but just didn't know any better."

MINERAL OIL

FOR CHRONIC CONSTIPATION

By buying this produce from us, you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin Oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other Oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is Guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be constantly increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after-effect, which is Constipating.

GREYBIRDS NOSED OUT BY ONE RUN IN 14-INNING BELLEVILLE BATTLE

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 18.—In one of the most sensational games in the history of the Central Ontario League the Belleville team wrested the League leadership from Lindsay yesterday by beating the Greybirds by 2 runs to 1 after a fourteen innings duel between Freddy Goyer, Belleville's veteran southpaw and Jack Oulette, Lindsay's sterling young right hander. The game equalled the long distance record established by the Belleville and Cobourg teams at Cobourg on May 24, 1919, when fourteen innings were played before Belleville got the verdict.

It also established a new record for strike outs in the Central League, for Goyer in the first nine innings struck out no fewer than 19 men and he whiffed 8 more in the extra innings, making the remarkable total of twenty-seven during the game. It was a wonderful come-back for Goyer after his ill luck in Port Hope Saturday.

A Belleville account of the game credits Belleville with eight hits and Lindsay three, but neutral reports place the safeties at five for each team. At all events, Oulette had Belleville almost as completely mystified as the Lindsay team were baffled by Goyer ,although a Belleville despatch gives his total strike-outs as fourteen as compared with the southpaw's 27 whiffs. It was a pitchers' day, with a leaden sky, that made the ball hard to see, and as both Goyer and Oulette had "everything," speed, curves and control, most of the batters would have been just as effective with a whisp of hay as they were with a bat. Only one base on balls was given during the remarkable pitching duel, and that one complimentary, issued by Oulette in the fourteenth, won the game for Belleville.

Belleville scored in the first innings, assisted by a couple of misplays. "Sports" Coombs, the Lindsay first baseman, evened up the count in the third with a clean home run to deep left, and from then on to the fourteenth the teams battled without a score. Belleville had a great chance in the ninth when "Peeney" Mills, first up, cracked a terrific drive to deep centre. It was a sure fine triple, but Mills tried to make a hero of himself by stretching the hit into a homer and a fast relay, McMahon to Carew to Bates, nipped him at the plate.

Belleville won out in the fourteenth on a pass to Weir, who was advanced to third on Billy Mill's hit and scored the winning run when Harry Mills singled to centre.

The score, as the Belleville reports give it:

		R.	H.	E.
Lindsay	001 000 000 000 00	1	3	6

INTERNAL INJURIES RECEIVED IN FIGHT WITH DEMPSEY MAY COMPEL CARPENTIER RETIRING FROM RING

PARIS, Aug. 18.—(By United Press).—Internal injuries which resulted from the body blows of Jack Dempsey, may cause Georges Carpentier to retire from the ring without another battle.

The European Champion admits that he is going to undergo a general physical examination to determine the exact nature of the injury to his thumbs and to ascertain the condition of his heart and interior organs.

While Carpentier did not admit it, it was learned from his friends that he has been having trouble with his heart since he was defeated by Dempsey.

Asked about the conflicting reports that he would not return to the United States to meet Tommy Gibbons, the American light-weight, the Frenchman said he would not be able to announce his future plans until after the examination in two weeks.

IMPRISON FOOTBALL PLAYER FOR HAVING INJURED OPPONENT.

Precedent Thought to Have Been Established By Court.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—A Rouen court has condemned a football player to four months in prison and to pay a fine of 6,000 francs for injuring another player during a match. This is the first time such a sentence has been delivered in France and if the judgment is held on appeal, it is believed in sporting circles that it will have a lasting effect on sports, as players will hesitate to risk going to prison for a game.

The Olympic Club of Paris was playing the Rouen Club (Association) and during the first half Aymard (Rouen) had to leave the ground on account of an injury to his eye after a collision with the international player, Langenove, (Olympic.) The day was very foggy and only two or three players could see what really happened.

The Rouen Club lodged a complaint with the French Football Association which found it impossible to obtain proof of misconduct sued Langenove before the Rouen scud Langenove before the Rouen courts and the foregoing judgment was given by default. French courts always give the maximum penalty when they condemn any one who does not appear for trial, but the sentence may be changed if the condemned man takes the case to appeal.

Langenove says he never received a summons to appear before the court. He was a student at St. Cyr Military College when the match was played, and was in garrison at Mayence when the case was heard. When he charged Aymard, the latter said: "It wasn't decent to charge me like that." Langenove said, "There is no truth in the accusation that I struck him with my fist."

LACROSSE NOTES

The officials for Havelock's game at home with Campbellford on Friday will be Len Smith, president of the O. A. L. A. and James Labbett, secretary. Some of Campbellford's supporters said they despatched emissaries to Havelock, a few days ago with scads of money but could not flush a bet. The Trent towns will practically shut up shop to-morrow. It is a half holiday with most of them anyway, and hundreds of farmers will knock off for the day. Expectations estimate an attendance of 3,000.

MOTION PICTURES REVERSE LIFE ROLES OF PLAYERS.

Things have certainly been turned topsy-turvy in filmland. Charles Ray, who was born and reared in the city, has won fame through his portrayal of rube roles such as he has in his forthcoming First National production, "Peaceful Valley," while Harry Myers, who plays his usual part of a sleek city youth in the same attraction, was reared on a farm. This new Ray starring vehicle will be the attraction at the Allen Theatre, beginning to-day.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Maurice Tourneur's great screen production, "The Great Redeemer," which is to be shown at the Capitol Theatre for a run of 3 days, beginning to-night, tells a story that is so absorbing and thrilling that persons who behold it will inevitably conclude that it is fiction—that it never could have happened in real life.

Such is, in fact, not the case. While "The Great Redeemer" was written by H. H. Van Loan and is in the main a work of the imagination, its central theme is taken direct from life. It embodies an incident that happened in a prison at San Bernardino, Cal., two years ago.

The painting of The Crucifixion photographed in the production of "The Great Redeemer," is a copy of that on the wall of the Mexican's cell in San Bernardino. Priests who were interested in the Tourneur production because of its powerful appeal to the finest qualities in its beholders, saw the painting and requested that it be given to them to be hung in their church. This request Mr. Tourneur gladly granted and the painting is now on view in the Roman Catholic Church at Glendale, Cal.

The magnificent scenery of the untrammelled west serves as a background for the mighty dramatic incidents of the story. Jules Furthman and Jack Gilbert scenarioized Mr. Van Loan's story and the production was directed by Clarence Brown under the personal supervision of Mr. Tourneur. Metro releases the picture as one of its most important superspecials.

The balance of this big programme also includes the first episode of the new Pathe mystery serial, "The Yellow Arm," and many other good pictures.—Fan Fan.

AT THE GRAND.

The Halifax Echo says of the comedy, "Three Live Ghosts," which comes to the Grand on Tuesday night next:

"Three Live Ghosts," which opened at the Majestic Theatre last night, more than sustained its reputation as "the funniest show in years." It is a portrayal of Cockney character and Cockney humor, that is as true to that immortal phase of English life, as the Cockney is as genuine in himself. But in its essentials it is not limited to those inimitable people, but it presents, as an after-war play, certain elements of that tragic period which will live as long as this genration endures and memory knows us no more, for running through all the comedy, the unconscious comedy of the Cockney, is the theme of comradeship, the gold which was shown through all the dross of the dark day from 1914 to 1918, and is shining yet. It was a gold that all possessed irrespective of social taste. For that reason "Three Live Ghosts" should strongly appeal to a Canadian audience, made up, as they inevitably are, of so many who bore the brunt of the war.

The plot of the play gives a number of situations which are enlivening to a high degree. Especially can that be said of the climax of the second act, where the stolen jewels so surreptitiously disappear as to even battle the Scotland Yard sleuths. As a characterization of a Cockney woman Mrs. Gibbons, a type which has no classification but its own, Ruby Hallier performs one of the cleverest impersonations seen on the Halifax stage for a long time. She dominates a company which in itself is excellent, but which with her takes leading rank among the first class comedies presented here for many years.

The story of the play is that of three men, two Englishmen, one a Cockney, one an aristocrat, and the third, an American, a fugitive from justice, all of whom had "gone over the top," had been captured, either wounded or shell-shocked, by the Germans, and had suffered a long time in a German prison camp until they had effected their escape from the Hun. The success of this escape had been due largely to one "Spoofy" the English aristocrat, who had lost his memory and identity through shell shock.

When the three of them reached London they learned that the were reported as killed in action, and the authorities refused to recognize them as alive. Thereupon Jimmie Gubbins the Cockney of the trio took them to his East End London home, and in the humble sitting room of costermonger, the evolution of the plot takes place, with every tragic moment turned to laughter by the inimitable observations of the Cockney mother.

Edward Martyn as "Spoofy" has perhaps the most difficult part of the play, because as the absent minded man, without memory or identity, he maintains an equilibrium which could be easily lost in such a role. Harry Vincent, as Jimmie Gubbins, is the character that all will recognize, who remember the irrepressible English Tommy as he trudged the roads of France, heard him qualify his officers as "bleedin'" and "bloody," and whose favorite ejaculation was "blime me." "Three Live Ghosts" received a good first night house, and for the rest of the week it deserves capacity houses as an expression of appreciation to Philip Klein who presents Halifax with this so excellent and original production.

DISTRICT SPORT COMMENT

Belleville Intelligencer: The game between Belleville and Port Hope on Saturday last, which resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 13 to 12 in a ten-inning game, has been protested by Belleville on the ground of the erratic decisions of the base umpire, Lewis. In the last inning a man was called safe who was out a mile, and this out would have retired the side, but after this incident Deer, the Port Hope pitcher, knocked a double, scoring Friar on third. If Belleville wins the protest the game will be played over, and Belleville will have another try at Port Hope, probably with a neutral base umpire, and on neutral grounds.

Port Hope Guide: Belleville has decided to protest Saturday's game on the ground that the impire's decisions were not fair. President Kimmell would be quite within his rights to dump such notice of protest in the waste basket. At a special meeting of the Executive Committee provision was made whereby the visiting club could have an outside umpire appointed to officiate on the bases. Belleville made no request for an outside official, therefore they must take their chances like the rest of us. And by the way do the Belleville fans recall Port Hope's visit to the Bay of Quinte town when a gentleman by the name of Fahey, we believe, performed the duties on the bases. His work on that occasion was so bad that he was criticized by the Belleville press. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

PICKLED BASEBALLS.

Belleville Intelligencer: Oshawa fantasy of baseballs pickled in ice water is the funniest joke of the present season. While admitting that the "icy mitt" is handed out to Oshawa occasionally, Belleville pleads not guilty to unsportsmanlike tricks and Oshawa must think up some new reason for defeat other than ice-water logged baseballs.

OVERWORKED FREDDY.

Belleville Intelligencer: Belleville senior baseball team, the G. T. R.'s lose a game so seldom that an occasional defeat comes as a shock to the local fans. There is a general belief that Freddy Gover, the star pitcher, is being worked too hard, which seems bad policy. One pitcher can not possibly twirl two games a week without going back and the other pitchers should be given a chance lest Freddy's arm goes out entirely.

SCENE FROM "THREE LIVE GHOSTS," COMING TO THE GRAND AUGUST 23RD.

SATURDAY'S GAME HERE WITH OSHAWA IS A CRUCIAL FIXTURE

A victory for Peterborough over Oshawa on Saturday will leave them still in the running for the Central League honors, while a defeat would mean good-bye to practically any chance. The game at Riverside Park is therefore one of the most important of the season, and the indications are that a record crowd will be in attendance. The Petes beat Dainty when he visited Peterborough before, and they say he'll know he has been in a ball game before Saturday's fixture is finished. Oshawa are in second place, and by winning here Saturday can tie Belleville for the premier position. It will be a battle royal, and should provide the most exciting game of the season.

FIRST WORK BEGUN ON GREAT NEW STADIUM AT UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Aug. 18. — (United Press).—A two-block-long horseshoe-shaped concrete stadium settled in the centre of the valley of the horseshoe ridge of hills that make up the campus of the University of Kansas here, will serve as a community centre as well as athletic field to the entire State of Kansas.

Work on the huge structure, the largest in the Missouri Valley, which will be dedicated to the memory of the 126 Kansas University men and women who died in the World War, was begun this week.

Fifteen thousand seats will be finished in time for the big football games this fall, although the structure when complete will seat 32,000 and cost more than $500,000.

The location of the stadium is ideal for pageants of statewide interest, according to state authorities. It is within the city limits of Lawrence and directly on the Golden Belt, Midland Trail, and the hard-surfaced fort-to-fort highway. The fact that there is an automobile for every six persons in Kansas and that the stadium is a soldier memorial are expected to make the big stadium a mecca for conventions and outdoor meetings from all over the middle west.

A football gridiron, a baseball diamond, a quarter-mile running track with a 220-yard straightaway, and tennis courts are the principal features of the arena, which will be below the surface of the ground, and in plain view of all seats.

SAYS SHE LEFT HIM AT LEAST 150 TIMES

John Caldwell Testifies Wife Disregarded their Child.

DETROIT, August 18. — Helen Caldwell left her husband, John, 150 times during their married life from 1907 to March, 1921, John told Judge Harry J. Dingman to-day. He asserted that his wife was fond of dancing, that on coming home from work at midnight he would find the little boy sitting on the front door steps waiting for him, and that his wife would come in later, saying she had been to a dance. He got a decree.

Seymour Clossen said his wife, Helen, spent during their married life from 1917 to 1920 not only $2000 he had saved before marriage and $1000 he inherited after marriage but also insisted on his bringing her his weekly pay envelope. One day he got paid with a check and could not cash it before returning home. When he handed his wife the check, he said that she seized a butcher knife, and swung at him, missing his nose by the fraction of an inch, then took a medicine bottle and threw that at his head, and then followed by kicking him out. He says that he did not return. Judge Dingeman gave him the decree but he later withdrew it on discovering Clossen had not lived in Michigan the required two years.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT HAS GONE TO EXTREME LIMITS IN OFFERS TO IRELAND, SAY GOVT. LEADERS

LLOYD GEORGE AND EARL CURZON STATE POSITION OF GOVERNMENT OF COMMONS AND LORDS RESPECTIVELY—CANNOT GO FURTHER WITHOUT COMPROMISING SAFETY OF REALM, DECLARES CURZON—MEASURES TO BE TAKEN IF DAIL REJECTS PROPOSALS WILL BE SUBMITTED FOR APPROVAL OF COMMONS, PREMIER PROMISES.

(By Ed. L. Keen, Unied Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, August 19. — Premier Lloyd-George in the House of Commons and Earl Curzon in the House of Lords to-day told the British Parliament that the Government had gone to the limit in its offers to Ireland.

While Curzon was telling the Lords that the Government had "gone to the extreme limit in its offers," Lloyd-George reported to the Commoners that "the Government has already said all it has to say in its letters to DeValera."

The Premier warned an anxious House that there was great danger of misrepresentations and misunderstandings at the present stage of the Irish negotiations. "The Irish atmosphere is always full of suspicion," he said.

CONSULT COMMONS IF WAR IS RENEWED.

The British Government, declared the Prime Minister, in making its settlement proposals to Ireland, had decided on putting the whole of its terms into a letter to Eamonn DeValera, wihout keeping anything back; and the sequel had proved, he said, that it was right in adopting that course.

DESIROUS OF PEACE.

"The British Government is sincerely desirous of peace in Ireland," Lloyd-George continued. In the event of a final rejection of the terms by the Dail Eireann beyond the hope of negotiations, he said that it would be necessary for the executive to consult with the Commons and secure its approval or disapproval of the steps which the Government proposed to take.

CURZON CONTINUES.

Foreign Minister Curzon, in the House of Lords, declared: "The only possible criticism of the terms is that they are too generous. We have offered all that is possible without compromising the safety of the realm, the sovereignty of the Crown, and the unity of the Empire.

TO ACCEPT CHALLENGE.

"It is inconceivable that Ireland should consent to a resumption of the quarrel," Curzon continued. "Separation would mean infallibly the economic ruin of Ireland. If the Government is challenged, it will not quail before its difficult task."

THE PREMIER'S STATEMENT

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The British Government in its Irish Peace offer had conceded everything it was possible to concede, Prime Minister Lloyd George declared to the House of Commons to-day in his expected statement on the Irish peace negotiations. It embodied the largest measure of freedom ever offered Ireland, he said, and he hoped the Irish leaders would not reject it and take the responsibility of renewing the conflict which would be robbed of all glory and all gratitude by its overshadowing horror.

Mr. Lloyd George disclaimed any menace for his words. He declared however, that the government, in making its terms, had done everything it could to secure the peace and good will of the people of Ireland and that it was faced with the possibility, through some things that had been said, that its terms would be rejected. In that case, he said, the country would face a graver situation regarding Ireland than ever before. Therefore, he said, provision had been made for the summoning of Parliament on 48 hours notice if negotiations broke down and the prospect of peace became hopeless. He hoped, however, that reason would prevail and the Government's desire for the ending of the long misunderstanding between Great Britain and Ireland would be realized.

SITUATION IS SERIOUS.

That the British Government considers the situation extremely serious was evident when it was announced that the prorogation of Parliament had been postponed until October, and that to-day's adjournment would be merely temporary, leaving the Speaker free to recall the members to discuss the reply of the Dail Eireann to the British peace offer.

Great importance was attached here to-day to Lloyd-George's statement in the House of Commons, in which he declared that the Dominions would not have "one-fifth the dignities nor power if they had been independent nations."

"I hope it will not be forgotten in other quarters," the Premier said, "that national freedom, pride, and development is possible inside the Empire, which is the first great successful league of free nations."

"RUBBER STAMP" REPLY.

A report from Dublin that the Dail Eireann will "consider the report" on Monday was taken here to mean that the Irish Cabinet plans simply to hand a drafted reply to Britain to the Sinn Fein Parliament, and expects the Dail to rubber-stamp it.

There were no indications that the Government here would make further concessions.

Sentiment in Ulster was reported to be hardening.

REPUBLICANS PREPARE FOR WAR.

(By Clyde C. Beals, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, August 17. — The Irish Republican Army was to-day preparing for renewed warfare, while the Dail Eireann was reported to have rejected the British peace terms and to be formulating counter proposals.

DUBLIN WATCHES LONDON.

DUBLIN, August 19 (Canadian Press). — Leaders of the Sinn Fein to-day were centring their attention on London, awaiting the expected statement on hte Irish negotiations by Prime Minister Lloyd-George in the House of Commons, and the Government's reply in the House of Lords to the recent investigation by the Marquis of Salisbury for the official statement on the subject.

Meanwhile the rank and file of the members of the Dail were engaged in committee work on consideration of Irish internal affairs.

FREIGHT RATES EAT UP PROFITS

INSTANCES OF HEAVY LOSS REPORTED FROM IWNNIPEG.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, August 19. — So great has become the freight rates on certain commodities on which the prices are falling, that shipments are made at an actual loss.

An instance of this was reported here on Thursday. Messrs. Sadowski and Sadowski, of Fort Wiliam, sent a shipment of lard to the Beaver Soap Company, who after they had paid the freight bill, sent a bill for $64 to the shippers and requested them to send along their cheque. A few years ago the shipment yould have netted Sadowski and Sadoyski in the neighborhood of $1500 instead of standing debtor on the transaction.

Movie Divorcee Banned By Club

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN AND BEVERLEY BAYNE HAVE INVITATIONS TO WINNIPEG DINNER CANCELLED.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, August 19. — Francis X. Bushman, the one time Apollo of the movies, was to have been the guest of the Winnipeg Women's Press Club on Thursday, along yith his present wife.

Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne, the stage name of his wife, are appearing at a local theatre. Just a short time before the time set for the dinner some person brought to the attention of the president of the Press Club certain reports concerning Mr. Bushman's divorce from his first wife. Now the president of the Press Club is exceedingly straight-laced. Result—Mr. Bushman was informed right speedily that the invitation was cancelled and the reason was given.

MAXIM CLAIMS RELATIVITY AS HIS DISCOVERY

DECLARES HE PUBLISHED HIS FINDINGS IN 1889 WHEN EINSTEIN, NOW CLAIMING CREDIT, WAS 10 YEARS OLD.

NEW YORK, August 19. — Hudson Maxim, inventor and writer, declared in a speech here last night that he and not Dr. Einstein, was the first to advance the fundamentals of the philsophy of relativity. He said that those discoveries were published by him in the Scientific American in 1889, when Einstein was ten years old.

STRAW VERY SHORT THRESHERS REPORT

Corn Crop Will Help the Feed Situation in Peterborough County.

Threshing operations are in full swing throughout the country, farmers seen by the Examiner said to-day. According to them the threshers are having an easier time than last year on account of the short straw and farmers are being threshed in about half the usual time. Except on poor land the grains are all in the barns. It was stated that the straw is the shortest in years and this will affect the cattle feed situation to some extent. With the great corn crop, however, the farmers are not worrying much about ensilage. Corn has reached an unusual length this year and the average is far exceeded, although there is an occasional poor field, likely planted early.

STOCK COMPANY OPENS AUGUST 29 AT THE GRAND.

The coming of the English-American comedian Mr.Rex Snelgrove and his talented company means an era of new things for the theatre fans of the city. With the company are all the favorites of the larger cities. Miss Vaughn, known as "Chicago's Prettiest Leading Lady,' will play the leads across from "Rex." A company of 15 people, a carload of scenic effects and two special Orpheum Vaudeville acts go to make up the biggest stock company events of the year. Seymour and Williams, a comedian who is also a ballard singer, and a really pretty girl, that can really dance, and the "Park Kiddies" (America's youngest vaudeville performers, furnish the vaudeville. The gowns of the ladies are all New York's latest, and everything is bright and snappy.

Mr. Snelgrove (after you have seen him once, you will think of him only as "Rex") is the sort of comedian known as "Polite." He has that bright pleasing way and has been compared a great many times with the screen actor "Wally Reid."

The Rex Company was one of the leaders of, "Bac kto Normal Prices" and it is safe to say that this is the only company of its standard that has attempted such popular prices.

RECRUIT BADLY DAMAGED AFTER BEING RAMMED

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

QUEBEC, Aug. 19.—The Canadian Government Merchant Marine steamer Canadian Recruit, is badly damaged as a result of a collision with the steamer Maskinong at Stone Pillers in the St. Lawrence River.

Both vessels left here last evening bound for Sydney. On account of the heavy fog the Recruit anchored opposite Stone Pillers and was struck by the Maskinong, which was trying to pick its way through the fog.

A hasty examination showed that the Recruit was badly damaged as she made for the shore, where she was beached, but not until she had been almost filled with water.

AFTER SCALPS OF RENT PROFITEERS

WINNIPEG JOINT COUNCIL OF INDUSTRY ISSUES WARNING.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, August 19. Canadian Press. — Rev. C. W. Gordon, (Ralph Connor), chairman of the Joint Council of Industry, has issued a warning that prompt action will follow any increase in rents.

Already a probe is being quietly held concerning the realty operations of one landlord who purchased an apartment block for $30,000 and made a net profit last year of $5,000 after he had deducted all possible expense and charged off a large amount for depreciation.

NEW SALES AND SERVICE GARAGE.

Equipped on Modern Lines, Now Open at 195 Simcoe Street—The Gray-Dort.

As announced elsewhere in this issue, Hendricks Motor Sales, wholesale distributors in Eastern Ontario for the popular and moderately priced Grey-Dort car, have decided to themselves operate their retail service in this city, at 195 Simcoe street, practically utilizing the whole of the premises.

The display rooms, showing the last word in Grey-Dort improvements, are now open and in charge of Mr. G. N. C. Patterson, for four and a half years sales and service manager with General Motors Limited, Oshawa, who guarantees all business will be conducted on approved modern and four-square lines.

It should be borne in mind that from now on here will be conducted a fully equipped, up-to-the-minute service garage—not merely a sales agency—carrying a staff of skilled mechanics for repair work on all classes of cars, together with a complete line of ever-ready repair parts for the Grey-Dort machine, and also offering every accommodation needed by the most discriminating public.

Hendricks Motor Sales' aggressive policy, "Get after business and KEEP it," is in safe hands here with Mr. Patterson's experience and inherent energy and courtesy at the local establishment's helm.

You are invited to look over the attractive display, at 195 Simcoe street, of graceful, full-stream-lined bodied Grey-Dort cars, built for comfort, durability and economy of up-keep. Mr. Patterson will shortly introduce in this city a line of Grey-Dort "Closed Cars," including "Four-Season" Sedans and Coupes—motor conveyances now in ever-growing demand throughout Canada, especially so now that the day of the closed-car has arrived for smaller towns, as well as larger cities.

MASSACHUSETTS PROBS LUNCH ROOM PRICES

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—A State-wide investigation of arm-chair lunch rooms with especial reference to prices charged and quantity and quality of food served, is planned by the Commission on Necessaries of Life. The commission said complaints had been received from a number of cities. In some instances it was alleged that price cuts were followed by reduction in the size of the order or lowering of the quality of food.

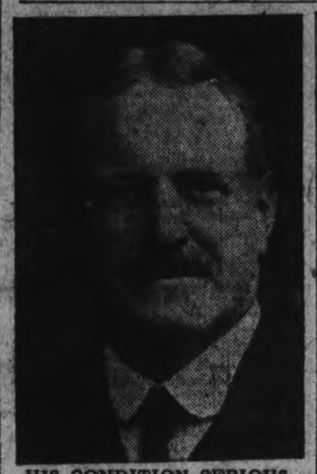
BIG DRINK REQUIRED TO SLAKE THIRSTY PETERBORO'S THROAT

Figures given the Examiner to-day by R. L. Dobbin, Waterworks superintendent show that July was an exceedingly warm month. In July this year 112,410,000 gallons of water were pumped or an average of 3,626,130 gallons a day. The average pumpage for July, 1920 was 3,359,000 gallons and in June of this year 3,414,500. The maximum rate reached was on the 11th when seven and one half million gallons of water would have been sent into the mains if the pressure had remained all day. This is one-quarter of a million higher than the June maximum and two and one-half million gallons higher than in July, 1920. To chlorinate the water 1242 lbs of chlorine were used in July, compared with 1054 lbs. in July last year and 1036 1-2 lbs. in June 1921. The maximum temperature of the water in July was 83, the average temperature of the air 76.7, the highest tem perature of the air 99 on the 7th, the lowest 52 on the 31st.

A Comparison.

In comparison with July of this year, July a year ago was a frigid month. The maximum temperature of the water was ten degrees below the high this year. It was 73, the average temperature of the air 64.8, the highest 84 on the 13th, the lowest 44 on the 6th. June this year was about as warm as July last year The maximum temperature of the water in June was 78, the average temperature of the air 64.8 the highest 94 on the 27th and the lowest 42 on the 2nd.

August however promises to be a cool month compared with June and July and the water is cooler now than it was early in June. Yesterday the temperature of the water at the intake at the waterworks was 70 and a year ago it was 75. In spite of the drop in temperature the water is still greatly polluted and citizens should not dare desist from boiling it, the superintendent stated. With the summer season at the lakes at its height and construction gangs working at Lakefield and Nassua the polution could not be reasonably less and there is no prosject of an improvement until next month.



HIS CONDITION SERIOUS.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

ASK DR. HASTINGS TO WITHDRAW HIS RESIGNATION NOW

(Speial Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—The resignation of Dr. Hastings as head of the Public Welfare Department, created by the City Council, to assume the duties of the Social Service Commission, came as a bolt from the blue to the Mayor, Controllers and Aldermen.

Dr. Hastings had protested to the Board against the tendency to go back on the City Council resolution giving him a free hand to organize the new department, but it was not expected that he would bring matters to a crisis by tendering his resignation. An effort will be made to have the M.O.H. withdraw his resignation, but this will not be done, it is safe to say, on a strict understanding that the report presented to the controllers, on which action has several times been deferred, will be adopted at once.

"Dr. Hastings is still head of the department," said Mayor Church today, when asked if the Board of Control would accept the resignation of the M.O.H. As head of the new Public Welfare Department the appointments recommended by Dr. Hastings will have to be ratified. Dr. Hastings should not be discouraged because his report on the oragnization was not adopted. Some of the members wanted copies and it was left over, although I thought it should be adopted. The whole matter will be taken up on Wednesday."

FIRST BISHOP IN U. S. WITHOUT CATHEDRAL

Unparalleled Situation Arises in in Lloyd Election.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Election of the Rt. Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd to be suffragan bishop of New York Diocese last May has been confirmed by a majority of votes in all orders of the Episcopal Church throughout the country, it was announced last night.

Dr. Lloyd, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, White Plains, N. Y., thereby automatically becomes suffragan bishop of New York without further ceremony than an interview with Bishop William T. Mannings as to when he shall take over his duties and what those particular duties shall be.

As Dr. Lloyd already is a bishop he can not be consecrated again, and, being a suffragan and not a diocesan, he will have no special cathedral and consequently can not legally be enthroned. This is said to present a unique situation in the Episcopal Church of America, though common enough in the sister church of England.

PROBE NAVIGATION POSSIBILITIES FROM EUROPE TO SIBERIA.

RIGA, Latvia, August 18 (Associated Press) — An expedition will leave Moscow this month for the Siberian coast to investigate the problems of navigation between Europe and the mouths of the Siberian rivers, says a despatch from the Russian capital. The task will be to make a survey for a canal across the Yamal Peninsula, which would make it possible for ships to avoid the Kara Sea, where, because of ice, navigation is almost impossible.

The expedition is to go first by rail to Omsk, thence by steamer along the River Obi, northward, while a part of the way it will have to go on horseback or be drawn by moose.

Another of the aims of the investigation is the fitting up of wireless communication with the Siberian coast, and the establishing of stores of supplies, etc., along the coast.

The party leaving will include 8 professors, engineers of various technical branches, some students, and others, making a whole of about 200 men.

As equipment they will have two hydroplanes, motor boats, various scientific and technical instruments, and as much other necessary material as can be carried.

APSLEY TOWNSHIP TAX RATE SET BY COUNCIL

RATE FOR TOWNSHIP LOWERED —FIFTY SHEEP KILLED BY DOGS.

APSLEY, August 19. — The municipal council of Chandos held a meeting at Hale's school house when the most important business that was discussed was the matter of dealing with the claims for compensation for sheep killed by dogs, and the striking of the tax rate. After a lengthy discussion chiefly on the value of sheep, the matter was laid over but little hope of getting more than $4 a head was held out to the claimants. The council considered that the only available fund for paying sheep killing claims was the revenue from the dog tax. As this in 1921 only amounted to about $200, and there are about 50 sheep to be paid for, $4 per head would consume that entirely. It is hardly likely however that the claimants will be satisfied with this amount, especially as the councils' own valuator put down in his report the value at $8.

Tax Rate.

After a long and careful discussion the tax rate was fixed at 29 3-5 mills on the total assessment of the municipality and the township rate was lowered $200 ,dropping from $1000 to $800, a reduction that will be appreciated by the ratepayers.

LAKEFIELD BOYS HAD GOOD RECORD

LAKEFIELD, August 19. — The record of Lakefield boys in the various regattas held on Stoney Lake this year has been a splendid one, and the village may be very proud of her sons.

The record of Lakefield girls has also been a good one, and next season we hope to have a good regatta here again, when the young ladies of Lakefield will be represented in larger numbers.

DECORATION DAY MILLBROOK LODGE

REV. J. WILKS CONDUCTED THE SERVICE—PERSONALS.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 19. — The annual Decoration Ceremony in connection with Millbrook Lodge, No. 308 I.O.O.D. was held at the Presbyterian Cemetery on Sunday afternoon last.

Led by the Kilties' Band of Peterboro followed by the speakers and members of the "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge in cars, the Oddfellows marched to the cemetery, leaving their lodge room at 2.30 p.m.

The usual Decorative Service was in charge of Bro. P. I. Bentley, N. G. and addresses were delivered by Bro. W. S. Given, who spoke on behalf of the Order, and Rev. Jos. Wilks whose subject was "Christ and Christianity the foundation of all spiritual and social reform".

At the conclusion of the service flowers were tastefully arranged upon the graves of the deceased members, and committees, previously appointed, then visited the other cemeteries of the district, and decorated the graves of departed brethren there interred.

There was a large attendance of both lodges present, and the general public also being invited, many availed themselves of the opportunity of attending the service.

UNCERTAINTY OVER IRELAND PREVENTS PROROGUING HOUSE

PARLIAMENT TO MERELY ADJOURN UNTIL OCTOBER 18.

LONDON, August 19 (Canadian Press). — Uncertainty over the Irish situation has caused the Government to change its plans, and instead of proroguing Parliament to-day, as had been intended, it will merely be adjourned until 18th October.

The Speaker in the interval will have the power to convoke Parliament should Irish developments necessitate it.

Premier Lloyd-George is expected to make a statement on the Irish situation just before adjournment to-day.

EXTRA ALIMONY BECAUSE HUSBAND CHEATS MOTORISTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Mrs. Lillian LeBello, recently granted a divorce from Anthony LaBello, employe of a gasoline filling station, will receive $75 a month alimony because, she said, her husband makes $200 extra a month by cheating motorists.

"How can you expect your husband to pay $75 a month alimony when his salary is only $165 a month?" Judge Samuel Stough asked Mrs. LeBello.

"Oh, he makes about $200 a month extra," the witness answered. "Motorists pay for the amount of gasoline they order, not for the amount the filler puts in their tanks. In this difference is where my husband makes his extra money."

FREIGHT RATE CUT ASSURED

CONFERENCE ON AMOUNT AND DATE OF REDUCTION TO TAKE PLACE IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.— (Canadian Press.) — Early move toward the lowering of freight rates on Canadian railways is expected as a result of recent developments.

It is understood that a conference of railway executives with the Board of Railway Commissioners will take place in the very near future when a decision as to the amount and date of the reduction will be reached.

That there will be a reduction is certain, the only question at issue being the amount of the reduction and the date on which it will become effective.

It is now expected that whatever reduction is ordered will be brought into effect some time next month.

U.S. AND JAPAN WITH US SHOULD ENSURE PEACE

GREATER UNDERSTANDING AMONG THREE POWERS OF PACIFIC PROBLEMS WOULD GUARANTEE WORLD PEACE, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE.

LONDON, August 19. — Canadian Press. — "If an alliance with Japan could be merged into a greater understanding with Japan and the United States ,on all the porblems of the Pacific, that would be a great event, and it would be a guarantee for the peace of the world."

The Premier was dealing specifically with the Anglo-Japanese Alliance at the time, and explaining how the conference had unanimously recognized that Japan loyally had carried out her obligations to Great Britain during the war in letter and in spirit.

CUT OFF THE TRAFFIC.

Attorney General Raney's attitude on many questions has been so domineering that even sincere temperance advocates are enjoying the difficulties he is experiencing in endeavoring to stop the flood of Canadian liquor into the United States following the judgment of a Windsor magistrate that such exportation outside of Canada is legal. However, as good neighbors of Uncle Sam, there seems every reason to hope that the way of stopping the shipments may be soon devised. It is against the law of the United States to import liquor into the republic; in allowing Canadian liquor to be handed over to men who propose to violate the law of another country, we are not carrying out the golden rule, and the Attorney-General is quite justified in endeavoring to bring the traffic to an end as speedily as posible. The role of bartender to the United States is no tone that the province of Ontario particularly desires.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Many months ago the Examiner ventured to criticize some features of the vocational training scheme inaugurated for the benefit of Canada's returned soldiers, particularly that men were being given a course in trades for which they were not fitted and that some of those who applied for and were granted vocational training were concerned only with the pay and allowances, and had no serious intention of following up the course once it was completed. Officials in connection with vocational training objected to these complaints, but according to the testimony of Secretary F. J. Marsh, of the G.A.U.V., the Examiner's contentions have been substantiated. He declares that a large number of the veterans registering as unemployed are men who had been given a course in vocational training but have never worked at the trade in which they were educated. Some of them, he says, have forgotten the little training they received, which means that the expense of providing vocational training courses for such men was simply throwing away the moeny of the people. It will be interesting information to know just what percentage of men who received a training course are at the present time engaged in the work for which they were trained.

PETERBOROUGH'S POPULATION.

The census returns give Peterborough's population on June 1st of this year at 20,989, a figure that will prove somewhat disappointing to those who imagined that there were at least 22,000 residents within the city limits, but that, nevertheless, shows a steady increase during the past ten years. The rate of increase since 1911 is 14.31 per cent., which seems a considerable falling off from the 63.36 increase registered between 1901 and 1911, until it is remembered that a large portion of the gain in the ten years terminating in 1911 was due to the fact that the union of Ashburnham and Peterborough took place during that period. The census figures will of course, be accepted as an official return of Peterborough's population and the assessor's figures or estimates based on the number of names in the city directory, although they may differ from the total arrived at by the census enumerators, will have to stand aside. The 20,989 total does not include Brownton or the other suburbs, the people residing in those sections, which are virtually part of the city, being listed in the township returns.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

Although there has been no definite pronouncement to that effect, signs that there will be another session of the Dominion Parliament before an appeal is made to the country are multiplying. The rank and file on the government side are strongly opposed to an election at the present time and with the exception of the Farmer members of the House and the Liberal block from Quebec, both of which classes have no particular reason to fear a campaign, the members of the Opposition are by no means eager for a test of strength. These are strange times politically, a new party has sprung into being and it is not easy—as it once was—to diagnose fairly accurately the trend of public opinion. Consequently there is no tendency on the part of many members to hurry the government into an appeal to the people, when by merely letting things drift, another session can be held and everybody can cash in on the welcome $4,000 indemnity. There does not seem to be any sound ground for expecting an election for the present.

THE CAMPAIGN TO SAVE FORESTS.

The Expositor desires to commend the Ontario Department of Lands, Forests, and Mines on the enterprise which it has shown in the campaign to educate the people of Ontario to preserve the rich heritage which they possess in the forests of the Province. The Department is in harmony with modern business methods by undertaking to reach the people through striking advertisements in the newspapers of the Province. These articles have been pleasingly designed, and have contained a large amount of matter of a truly educational value, calculated to inspire pride in the people over the proprietorship of such vast natural timber resources.

There has been altogether too prodigal a waste of the timber resources of the Province, and anything that can be done to impress upon the people the desirability of preserving and renewing the forests, is a matter of great public concern, and of immense value in the building up of the natural wealth which is one of the great heritages of the nation.

The results of negligence and recklessness in the administration of the timber resources are specially observable in the case of the United States, and constitute a forceful warning to the Provinces of Canada to undertake a policy of strict regulation of the timber reserves before it is too late.

To-day the United States has ceased largely to export timber. On the other hand it is importing large quantities and is making strenuous efforts to preserve what remains, and to re-forest large tracts of devastated lands. Canada has not yet reached this stage of devastation and depletion and for this reason the policy of forest preservation undertaken in Ontario is a new one, and will have the hearty support of the people.

In order to arouse the interest of the people to the necessity of preserving the forests, the Department of Lands, Forests, and Mines has undertaken this great campaign of education. The Expositor sincerely hopes that it may be successful, and that it may stir up greater endeavours to prevent the tremendous slaughter of the forests by fires. The waste from the ravages of fire has been appalling, and is for the most part needless. In addition to this a wise policy of conservation is necessary, for the forests of the Province are a great wealth producer. Lumber, pulp, and other products are of immense value in the markets of the world, and are an important part of Canada's exports. — Brantford Expositor.

LITERARY GEMS

DON YOUR ARMOUR.

There are those who sit down and wait for fortune to come their way, and complain of hard times because they do not prosper. Of course, there are periods of depression, but the man with any energy, the man who eventually succeeds, does not lose courage because calamity howlers tell him that blue ruin threatens the land. No, he buckles on his armour and more vigorously fights for success than he would in more prosperous times. He uses every effort possible and every means that suggest themselves to quicken business. The man who waits for business to come to him will wait in vain.

To work strenuously is the only secret of success these days of readjustment. It is no use lamenting the fact that times are hard; let all unite in an aggressive and co-operative policy to improve conditions and girt the cloud of trade adversity with an ever-broadening silver lining of increased activities until prosperity shines once more with old-time refulgence.

Alterations to the flag have been suggested, to which these Principals and teachers strenuously object.

TELLS HOW EXPORTER STRUCK AND BROKE UP

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—A dramatic story of the breaking-up of the steamer Canadian Exporter was told by her officers and crew when they arrived here. The vessel went on Willapa bar on a Sunday and it proved impossible to get her off. On Monday the crew was taken off. Tuesday morning they looked at the hulk as she stood up above the breakers.

Captain Logan of the Underwriters' Association said: "I think she is breaking up."

Then an uncanny thing happened. The Exporter lifted her voice in her death agony and bellowed her pain over the waves. Again and again the plume of the white steam billowed from the whistle and the deserted ship announced her distress. Fast amidships each heave of the swell lifted the bows and then drowned them as the waters receded. With each drop the ship bent, and as the break was between the stack and bridge the bending of the hull tightened the whistle cord and the siren sounded.

Owing to the rough water it was impossible to board the Exporter before 1 p.m. She had broken, and was lying at an angle of thirty degrees. When the salvage outfit left her, after having recovered all the salvage rigging excepting one anchor, she was in two pieces, bow to stern.

DRUG ROUTE EXPOSED; 88 PATRONS ON LIST

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—A drug route on which deliveries were made regularly after the fashion of milk and ice deliveries was disclosed when detectives last night arrested three men and seized a route book containing 88 addresses from Yonkers to Lakewood, N.Y.

An automobile used in making deliveries and a quantity of narcotics were taken at the same time. Several of the addresses were also used as narcotic distributing points for addicts in the neighborhood.

The route book was printed in business-like fashion and contained many addresses in wealthy residential sections. Detectives several days ago obtained possession of one of the route addreses and waited outside the distributing station until the vendors arrived to make a delivery.

The m... arrested said the route paid an average weekly profit of $2,500.

LOVE CONQUERS.

Chapter 41.

Tom sat and looked at me for a minute. There was something strange about his expression.

"Go on—," I said. "I want you to tell me everything."

"You see, Barbara, I hate to tell you this." He moved uneasily and pressed his hands together. "It's just because I see the thing differently now—so differently, that I've got to tell you. And—and I want you to know about it, too," he added, looking away from me.

I felt extremely nervous. I did not know what to expect next. I wondered anxiously what it was now that Tom wanted me to know about. I waited for him to continue.

"When I discovered that Kent had slipped up — that is, I was pretty sure hocking diamonds late at night in Philadelphia meant that he'd stepped off somehow—wenn, then I suddenly thought my chance had come—my chance to get ahead of Kent—to get the best of Kent with you. Don't you see?" he cried, jumping to his feet. "Oh, I know I was a cad, but I didn't see it then. I thought if I told you about Kent—if you knew what he had done, you would hate him. Then—then I thought I might have a better chance to make you love me.

"I love you, Barbara — I've cared about you for a long time. I'd told you often enough, but I thought if I could get Kent out of the way then you might care for me. I thought all I had to do was to tell you about the diamond, and you would turn immediately from Kent. Being crazy about a woman can make a man do some strange things," he said slowly.

He stopped pacing back and forth, and came and stood in front of me. He looked down at me and a strange sadness suddenly crossed his face.

"I might have known that your love for a man would be like that—like the way you love Kent. You didn't just love him for the things he did for you. You loved and wanted his soul, and — and you couldn't give him up so easily. I guess I didn't know much about real love until I saw and understood how you felt the other afternoon. I guess you woke up something inside of me that day.

"You see, I didn't think you really knew about the diamond. I just thought I had to tell you; or perhaps squeal on Kent to someone, and you would turn from him. Then I figured it would be my chance to win you. I was blind enough to believe my part would be easy after you knew the truth about Kent.

"Then when I acted like that—and you said you knew everything and still loved Kent, I could hardly believe it. But I knew only too well that I had made a mistake, and that you hated me. You made me feel that strong enough all right."

He went over by the window and looked out into the street. He was silent for a long time, and I knew that he was fighting to control his feelings. I saw his hand tremble. He pulled at his collar as though it was strangling him.

After a while he came back to me again. There were tears in his eyes and a look on his face which I shall never forget.

"I've been thinking a lot since that afternoon," he said, "and—and I see and understand things so much better. I just want to tell you—want you to know—that's why I came here now—I want you to know that I'm never going to hurt Kent or do a single thing to injure your love—your splendid love for each other."

A PLAGUE OF MURDER IN A SMALL U.S. TOWN

By Herbert Little
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

CENTERVILLE, Ia., Aug. 18.—Iowa's "murder block," in the Italian residence district in this little town of seven thousand, has seen twenty-one tragic deaths in the last fifteen years.

Beautiful young Italian girls have been the "loreleis" that caused eight of the murders in the lethal area, and eight young suitors lie in a nearby graveyard.

The mood of killing has hung heavy over the spot. Most of the murderers have been erstwhile friends of the victims, turned traitor to friendship by greed, passion, jealousy and the green-eyed god of envy.

Camilla Russo, pretty school girl, who broke into newspaper headlines a year ago, slew her man in the fatal district. She lived on a corner near-by.

The last crime was three months ago, when a Mexican laborer, refused credit by an Italian ice cream peddler, shot and killed the peddler as he was driving across the street intersection.

Three of the deaths resulted from shooting duels, following arguments over "honor." One man was found dead in the street, pockets ransacked and a pick run through his back, several years ago. Two Italians, pals for years, met with .38 caliber automatics one sultry afternoon, and shot it out. Both were killed.

One Italian, unidentified, was found lying across the crossing with his throat cut. There were whispers of a vendetta. Four of the slaying resulted from drunken debauches, when knives and revolvers were too easily available.

The "hoodoo block" is avoided by Centerville citizens. Delivery boys will travel four or five blocks to avoid the spot.

A local photographer refused to take a picture of the street. "I don't think it would be advisable," he said.

Scene of Present Fighting Ground of Warfare For Many Centuries.

MADRID, Aug. 17.—(Associated Press).—That part of Morocco called the Spanish zone where Spain's troops have just suffered disastrous reverses at the hands of the Moors with the loss of thousands of men and thousands of square miles of territory is part of the notorious Barbary Coast whose pirates preyed on European commerce for many years and carried Europeans into slavery.

In the present generation it has been made famous by the operations of the chieftain Mulai Ahmed-er-Raisuli, who captured and held for ransom, Ion Perdicaris, an American citizen, in 1905. This was in the administration of President Roosevelt, and evoked from Secretary Hay the historic phrase demanding "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead!" It resulted in the almost immediate release of Perdicaris.

The rest of the world knows comparatively little about Morocco despite the fact that it has been the ground of intermittent fighting for centuries. It occupies the extreme north-western part of Africa, having an area estimated at about 309,000 square miles and a population of 5,000,000 to 10,000,000. Its people contributed to the armies which once invaded Spain and conquered Granada.

The country is an absolute monarchy with a sultan or caliph as its head. The present occupant of that position is Mulai-el-Mehdi, but his control over the shereefs, or nobles, has been for many years only nominal. Various European governments have negotiated with the sultans in an attempt to pacify the Moors, but these have only resulted in outbreaks by numerous leaders such as Raisuli, who have committed outrages which again brought the Moorish question before the European cabinets.

Three races inhabit Morocco, the original Berbers, or mountaineers, who conquered Spain on three different occasions; the mixed race of Arabs and Berbers known as Moors, both of which races are generally Mohammedans; and the colonies of Jews which inhabit the coast cities and control the majority of the country's commerce.

The Spanish zone, where the fighting is now in progress, is a narrow strip of land along the north-western coast fronting on the Mediterranean Sea. It is about 200 miles long, east and west, with an average breadth, north and south, of about 60 miles and extends from Algeria, under control of the French, to the Atlantic Ocean on the west. It does not, however, include the extreme north-western tip of land on which is located the city of Tangier. The French nominally control the territory further south. Spanish troops have fought the Moors for centuries but it was only in 1912 that the northern littoral of Morocco was assigned to Spain under the terms of the Franco-Spanish treaty signed in that year. Since then Spain has been engaged at intervals in sporadic attempts to maintain her authority with varying success and failure.

Both the French and Spanish Governments decided in January, 1920, to make military demonstrations in their respective zones for the purpose of preparing the way to more orderly government. The French zone was soon pacified. The Spanish territory which is administered by General Damaso Berenguer, as high commissioner, was not so submissive. Spanish troops at first made their base on the Atlantic coast of Morocco at El-Arish, also known as Laraiche. From there they penetrated well into the interior and captured a number of Moorish strongholds, including the so-called secret city of Sheshawan. For some time little activity has been reported in that western district of Morocco.

The Spaniards, however, sent another expedition under the command of General Silvestre, who established a base at Melilla, midway on a promontory which extends from the eastern end of the Spanish zone northward into the Mediterranean. From that point, General Silvestre's troops attempted to penetrate southward into the interior. Early successes were reported, but last spring the Spaniards encountered strong native troops and hostile tribesmen, estimated to number 20,000, and said to be well armed and equipped with artillery.

The present reverses of the Spanish forces had their beginning early in June when six companies of auxiliary or native troops mutinied, killed their Spanish officers and then joined the rebels. Since then the Spaniards have suffered several other disasters and have been thrown back upon Melilla. General Silvestre was either killed or committed suicide while endeavoring to maintain one of the outposts. The Moors in that section are headed by Abd-el-Krin, who is about 35 years old, was educated in France and Spain, and is an accomplished linguist. His aim is said to be to civilize Morocco in accordance with European ideals but without losing the essentials of Moorish culture. He was once a judge of a native court in Melilla and loyal to Spain. During the world war he became actively pro-German and Spain, acting on the protest of France, interned him, but he escaped and was said to have sworn vengeance upon the Spaniards and particularly upon General Silvestre.

Raisuli has not figured in the recent fighting. His territory seems to lie further westward and he is said to have his stronghold in the native city of Wazan which lies below the line of the Spanish zone.

DRAGS SELF ON KNEES 2 MILES TO FULFIL VOW

Lisbon Woman Had Vowed To Do So If Husband Recovered.

LISBON, Aug. 19.—(Associated Press).—A curious sight was witnessed in the streets of Lisbon just after dawn recently. Maria Conceicao, wife of a workman, was seen dragging herself painfully on her knees from her house through the busy streets to the Church of Our Lady of Health, thus carrying out a vow made during the illness of her husband, in case of his recovery.

The distance from her house to the church was over two miles, and long before she had accomplished one-half of her pilgrimage, her knees were torn by the stones and her dress was stained with blood.

Maria's husband, a young tinman, fell seriously ill about six months ago and was given up by the doctors. His devoted wife tended him with untiring care and love, and when it was thought that he was dying, she prayed for a miracle that should have his life, making a vow that, if he recovered she would go on her knees, as a sign of thanksgiving, to the shrine of the Lady of Health.

The husband recovered and the wife has fulfilled her vow.

B. C. MINERAL PRODUCTION INCREASED 7 PER CENT.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press). Despite the decided fall in prices of metals, mineral production in British Columbia for the last year totalled $35,543,084, seven per cent. greater in value than the production of 1919, which was valued at $33,296,313, according to the annual report of the Ministry of Mines. The report contrasts this showing with the announcement of reductions in mineral output in other sections of the Continent. Last year's figures bring total mineral production of this Province for all years, since records have been kept, beginning with 1852, up to $705,192,078.

CASEIN FROM ITS MILK ENTERS INTO VARIETY OF MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS, SUCH AS PAINTS, TEXTILES AND PAPER FLASKS.

The average person's knowledge of milk is confined to finding it, rich with cream, at the door every morning ready for breakfast and the day's consumption in tea, coffee or mixed with other foods. And, incidentally, how many know that, to avoid carting milk around the streets during the heat of the day, the drivers for the Peterborough Milk Products, Limited, leave the creamery on their rounds at two o'clock each morning these days, and thus — incidentally again—belated bed-seekers take their milk in "at night," so to speak, before tucking themselves away to sleep.

Then, it is not commonly appreciated that, while milk's outstanding value is for human consumption, still it contains casein, an ingredient which enters into the manufacture of a great many products, and used in a variety of other ways. Thus farmers and dairymen have many interests looking to them for milk and its products, and should be encouraged to build up their dairy herds, with the certainty of a demand ever growing to meet such enterprise.

In Paints.

Casein constitutes a little over three per cent. of normal milk, and is classed as one of the milk solids. The first of the many products in which casein is used is in the manufacture of paint, comprising over 15 different kinds. There are interior and exterior paints, an enamel paint, wall paints, and paints for woodwork and iron. Then there is a boiled oil substitute, a kalsomine wash and a quick drying paint. It is used in the manufacture of a paint which is dustless, washable, and has a disinfecting property which makes it especially valuable for use in hospitals and many other public buildings. It is also used in making a waterproof paint for playing cards, a cement paint, and a paint for marking bags, cases, iron barrels, etc.

In Adhesives.

Second is its use in many adhesives and putties. Here we have a liquid and a powdered glue, a glue for match making, and a waterproof glue. Also three or four different putties for use in stone and cement work, and for stopping joints and cracks in stone, wood and brickwork. Casein also finds extensive use in the textile industry. Here it is used as an adhesive which enables fabrics to absorb dyes, as a glaze for dressing other fabrics, as a waterproofing and softening dressing, and in a process for sizing and loading cloth. Another use of casein is its manufacture into many foodstuffs, comprising a number of different varieties. In this class is a casein food, a synthetic milk, a milk food, a baking preparation, and a phosphate for baking. Also an emulsifiable product, which, when boiled with water, gives a product closely resembling milk. In the paper industry casein is used in many extensive and valuable ways. Here it is used in making paper for transfer pictures, for use in photography, sizing paper, waterproofing paper, a solution for coating paper, in waterproofing and fireproofing asbestos paper and board, and in making washable drawing and writing paper.

In Paper Flasks.

Again it is used in the manufacture of paper flasks for oils and fats, and in making a special paper for wrapping cloths to protect them from moths and other insects, and also a special wrapping paper for food, etc. Lastly, there are a great many products which fall under no special class, and which can be listed for the sake of convenience. These are imitation ivory, insulating preparation, anti-corrosive composition, anti-radiation composition, covering for floors and walls, imitation linoleum, leather and bone, and a fireproof substitute. Also a paint remover, shoe polish, use in photography, wood-cement roofing paper, glaze for wooden casks, preparing artist's canvas, a solidifying mineral oil, casein ointment, clarifying glue, and in soapmaking. Still again it is used in the manufacture of medicinal foods, and in making a substance called galaith, which is an important substitute for ivory, ebonite, celluloid, etc.

The Busy Cow.

Thus we see that our old friend the bossy cow, not only provides us with a most important human food, but indirectly may be the source of our $15 leather (?) shoes, pretty clothes, the beauty and cheerfulness of our homes, made so through the use of casein paints; in many other ways she contributes to our general comfort and welfare. Truly the dairy cow is a modern Aladdin.

HEAVY FINES FOR WATERING MILK.

SIMCOE, Sept. 18.—Fines totalling $200 were imposed at Courtland on six men charged with diluting milk with water, and the costs as usual were considerable.

A six-foot saw generally is run at 530 revoutions a minute.

THE HERMIT

By Mrs. A. F. Calder.

Thus rudely reft in flush of youth,
Of love, wealth, home, defamed,
Small wonder, if in very sooth,
I had been what they claimed.

In that inferno, no smile
Was mine, nor word of cheer,
But frenzied laugh or shriek, the while,
Tortured my shrinking ear.

On leaden feet, slow weary time,
Monotonous, crept by,
For death (unmindful of the crime)
Was my one and bitter cry.

But death, which oft we impious woo
Not man's rash will obeys,
Kind Heaven in patient mercy, true
The untimely hour delays.

Through iron bars I watched the light
Of starry lamps on high,
Or seeming but to my mock plight,
The moon sail up the sky.

With Alice, 'neath her silvery beam,
Once was I wont to rove,
While the fair fabric of love's dream
With roseate woof we wove.

In slumbers visionary train,
Those vanished joys were led,
At midnight near, but all save pain,
With dawning, sadly fled.

One passion in my bleeding heart
Held homicidal sway,
With pitiless, swift, 'vengeful dart,
My brother to repay,

But soon the grace of Heaven benign
Taught me that other's sin,
We must forgive, and hate resign,
If we would pardon win.

For to the Powers above belong
All issues small or great,
And scathing vengeance on each wrong,
Will fall, or soon or late.

When ten long years had slowly passed,
Of useless misery,
Just Heaven remembering me at last
Set the worn captive free

On a still, sultry summer night
A wild storm furious broke,
Red glared the lightning in the height,
Loud crashed the thunder stroke.

A cry, "Fire, Fire," rang sudden loud
Then pandemoniam reigned,
Short space amid that frantic crowd
Of wretches I remained.

I saw at one swift cautious glance,
A ponderous gate aajr,
Stole stealthy through (nay, 'twas no chance)

Fearful of capture, on I sped,
Through silent wood and brake,
And guiding fate my footsteps led,
Toward, Ontarios' Lake.

Some simple men, who venturous sail
The deep, for finny store;
Heard without scorn my mournful tale—
Grim danger then was o'er.

From meagre raiment free they shared
With me a needful hoard,
And sumptuous every day I fared
At coarse, but social, board.

Long with that hardy sailor band
I roamed the water's wide,
But saw no more my native home
Beyond Ontario's tide.

My brother deemed me buried deep
'Neath debris ruined pile;
Well pleased, for death would safely keep
The secret of his guile.

When fortune, false and fickle dame with gold my pockets, lined,
A solitary wretch I came,
Safe refuge here to find.

To seek a peaceful, calm retreat
From down draft cankering care,
Here hold with Heaven communion sweet
In saintly fast and prayer.

The voice of God in every rill
In gentlest tones I hear,
And round me Angel legions still Encamping, linger near.

No wife, nor child, or friend I own,
No human's dwelling nigh,
Free, in the wilderness alone
I live and hope to die.

No busy gossip comes to spy
Some guilty secret dread;
And forth in treacherous haste to hie
The slanderous tale to spread.

No faithless fears my soul affright,
Instilled by foe malign,
Nor man can harm me, day or night,
For unseen guards are mine.

Surprised, the youthful stranger said:
"Your Alice is my mother,
My father, twenty summers dead,
Was your unworthy brother.

"The memory of that deed of hell
Lay heavy on his breast;
Remorseless tortures none may tell,
His dying hour, oppressed.

"And ere death's icy hand had sealed
His lips in silent grave,
To Alice was the crime revealed,
Who nobly all forgave.

"So now those years of adverse fate
Their dismal course have run;
Come where my widowed mother waits
For her returning son.

"Across yon broad lake's drifting foam,
Standing in modest pride,
The welcome portals of our home
For you are open wide."

"Kind Heaven be praised," the hermit cried,
"That comforts all my woe,
By sending you, bids me decide
With you this hour to go."

Thus ere the sun's meridian ray
Shone in the cabin door
Far, they were on their joyous way
To Canada's loved shore.

Ah! What emotions, mingling rise
Tumultuous in his breast,
When to the exile's eager eyes
Arose her turrets blest.
But, to depict, mere words are vain
The joy bedewed with tears,
Of these true lovers, met again
After long parted years.

And love, till life's declining glow
By adverse fate delayed,
Amply in trusting tranquil flow
Youth's sorrows all repaid.

THE END.

The gentry of Hunan, China, are talking of having an electric railway buillt from Siangtan to Changsha, a distance of 3 miles.

THE CHURCHES AND ADVERTISING.

Publicity As Old As Christian Religion.

Church publicity and church advertising are as old as the church itself, the Rev. Howard R. Gold informed the Summer Assembly of Wagner College, Staten Island, in a recent address.

"Jesus was undesignedly the best source of real news in His day," declared Mr. Gold. He said that even in those days, "reporters were not lacking." Speaking of miracles, Mr. Gold said that "unconsciously Jesus used such incidents to give wide publicity to the miraculous service He was rendering."

"So effective was the publicity as Jesus preached that in a remarkable sermon Peter referred to the Gospel as 'that word, I say, ye know which was published throughout Juda," said Mr. Gold. "And after sermons by Paul and Barnabas the Acts record, 'And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region.'"

Mr. Gold told of a Philadelphia church which he said through "conservative advertising" has built up its regular church attendance and has interested its people so that for ten months in the year there has been an average attendance of 600 people at midweek prayer meeting.

"I am convinced that we are about to enter upon large activities in church advertising," said Mr. Gold. "The experimenting has been done successfully.

"The agitator for advertising and publicity is no longer on the defensive. And with almost every daily paper and many magazines giving much space to the Church and its work, a new era of dignified, sane and persistent advertising of the Gospel according to a modern and well-tried method is before us."

Farmer and Wife Sole Voters; He's Judge, She Clerk.

PLAINFIELD, Ill., Aug. 19.—There probably will be no hard-fought campaign preceding the election that will be held Aug. 27 on the farm of L. A. Hartong.

L. A. Hartong will be the judge of the election. Mrs. L. A. Hartong will be the clerk. The voters will be Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hartong.

The election, ordered by August Mause, Superintendent of schools of Will County, will decide if the Hartong farm is to be annexed to the Plainfield school district.

Neighbors are speculating as to what will happen in case of a tie vote.

Our $5-a-Week Vacation

"Walk Instead of Ride, Cook Your Own Meals and Sleep in a Tent Like We Did," Is the Advice of These Young Women Who Have Solved the Vacation Problem to Their Own Entire Satisfaction.

Miss Elizabeth Burchenal, Who Says: "My Clothing Outfit for a Summer Vacation Hike Would Amaze Many Young Women."

THERE is only one objection to the summer vacation these days, and that is the cost. Railroad fares, hotel and boarding house rates, and even the little incidental expenses without which no vacation would be complete, are calculated to eat the very lining out of the average pocketbook.

For that reason it is worth while knowing how two sisters, Elizabeth and Ruth Burchenal, are limiting their summer vacation expenditures to $5 a week and—in the sisters' own words—"having the time of our lives."

To keep their weekly expenses within $5 apiece they are traveling afoot, cooking their own meals out in the open, sleeping in a tiny tent, and getting all the enjoyment out of life that a long hike up hill and down dale affords.

By Helen H. Hoffman

"IF you wish to keep your slender, athletic figure, if you wish to improve your health and increase your strength and keep young, if you would feel the thrill of free and natural living, such as the birds enjoy, if you would dodge the profiteers, then borrow brother's old kit bag and go a-hiking!"

So says Miss Elizabeth Burchenal. For 12 consecutive summers Miss Burchenal, in company with her sister Ruth, visited and toured European countries on foot, studying the folk dances and teaching them in the public schools of this country. So when this famous hiker imparts such hints to the young women of this country she is fully aware of their value.

And this summer during the vacation period the high cost of living is not inviting serious attention from Miss Burchenal. Her vacation is costing her $5 a week.

"It is true," she said, "that as late as last summer one could live on $3 a week camping out. This past summer things were a bit higher, but a week's supply of food did not cost more than between $4 and $5 and one could live for even less. This summer the cost will be just about $5, but no more.

"They Crossed Several Streams Where They Caught Most Delicious Fish."

Figuring Out the Cost

"You see, camping out means the elimination of the greatest overhead charges of livelihood, such as rent and railroad fare, if you are enjoying a vacation; high summer hotel rates, laundry, a stock of new summer clothes, bathing and boating privileges, and many other items which run up a big sum.

"Do you want to know how to enjoy a real summer vacation on $5 a week? Well, I'll tell you. First of all, one must know how to fry bacon and prepare coffee and cook vegetables. The rest is simple. At least it seems simple to me, because I am accustomed to camp cooking on my hiking trips."

The $3-a-week mark, Miss Burchenal said, was first set last year by a young couple who tramped across the state of Maine to Rutland, Vt. They crossed the southern part of Maine and the hike represented 175 miles, avoiding automobile roads across country into Vermont.

"The trip took a month," said Miss Burchenal, because it was made by easy stages. For instance, hikers should not try to make more than two or three miles a day at first. They should begin a hike leisurely, increasing the distance each day. Otherwise they may become so exhausted that it will be necessary to rest a few days before continuing their trip.

"In the new Green Mountain 'Long Trail,' which has been worked out by the Green Mountain Club, composed of a group of men and women interested in hiking, rude shelters have been arranged at intervals, so that if stormy weather should interrupt the walking the hikers would be enabled to reach shelter and a camping place by continuing not more than a few miles farther.

"The thoroughness with which automobile roads have been laid out all over the country has at times seemed to me to eliminate the chances of hiking, but clubs in various parts of the country today are organizing for the purpose of laying out interesting trails through mountain and lake countries.

"The Green Mountain 'Long Trail' is one of the loveliest of these. It leads through a wild country, within view of the White Mountains. By leaving the trail a distance of a few miles, one may be put in touch with New England farmers who are willing to provide these chance pilgrims with fresh vegetables, eggs or milk at nominal prices.

"However, a hiker can get along very well with the supplies he carries. An illustration of what I consider an ideal hiking trip was represented by this young woman friend and her husband who did it on $3 a week. They kept account of their expenses, and for this reason I am able to give them.

What a Hiker Carries

"They carried the regulation army outfit, with 'pup' tent. One of these tents can be had at any army supply store at about $3.50. Each hiker carried a blanket and half of the tent which comes in two sections. Each carried an army slicker, which they used, in addition to its wear on rainy days, to spread on their bed of fresh-cut boughs to ward off the ground moisture.

"The camp equipment included besides the axe for cutting wood, an electric searchlight, and small tin boxes for carrying matches, pepper, salt and sugar and food. We always carry a few cans of condensed milk, bacon or pressed meats, pancake flour and coffee.

"Within less than a day's walk one will always meet up with a farm where fresh vegetables, or eggs, or even a chicken can be procured. But doing a hike on $3 a week, my friends did not eat chicken. They crossed several streams and lakes where they caught most delicious fish, such as bass and brook trout.

"Of course, to get the best cooking results one must know how to build a proper camp fire. The wood, and hard woods, as a rule, make the best camp fires, should be arranged so that the air can draw under it and upward through it. This can be done by first laying two good-sized sticks on the ground. This serves as a foundation. Across these sticks at right angles place some dry splinters. At one side of these place paper or bark chips. Then on top of these place two sticks crossed, and on top of these another cross layer, building up the pile with increased size of wood. When this fire is burned down to a bed of hot coals it will cook about everything needed.

"One of the utility jack-knives, such as has a can-opener and bottle opener attached, is invaluable to a camper. Then of course there must be an army mess kit. Such kits, including knife, fork and spoon, cup, plate, pail and frying pan, can be had for as low as $2 at any of the army supply stores.

"My clothing outfit for a summer vacation hike would amaze many young women who spend large sums for a more dressy summer outfit. Such an outfit as mine never goes out of style, and worn from year to year represents a great saving in clothing, especially in these days of soaring prices.

Wardrobe and Medicine Chest

"My hiking wardrobe includes a khaki skirt or knickerbockers, flannel blouse, light-weight stockings, a heavy suit of woollen underwear to sleep in, a light-weight suit of underwear, a sweater, a knitted cap, and a good-sized towel, which I wash daily and dry in the sun, a comb and brush and hairpins, and a little sewing box.

"To anyone contemplating a long hike, it is most necessary that excellent care be taken of the feet. I often bathe mine two or three times a day, and I carry plenty of salve and plasters. And in case the first tiny blister appears I treat it at once. A little blister if allowed to have its way may spoil many a hiking day.

"I found from experience of a few cool nights that by starting a fire and heating a few big stones and placing them in the tent, that they took the dampness off and made this tiny home quite a comfortable abode.

"Army packs carrying supplies weighing up to 45 pounds can be obtained from any concern handling camp equipment. A party of three makes the carrying much easier. Thrown across the back, with good heavy belt attachments, makes the average pack quite simple to carry.

"The manner in which we did our hiking in Europe would not be possible for a cross-country hike in this country where the distance between cities and towns are so vast. Where villages are only a few miles apart, as they are in most European crowded countries, we would send our baggage to a sort of central supply station. From that particular town we would take a small supply to last us to cover so many villages. This eliminated the necessity of carrying large supplies.

Nothing to Be Afraid Of

"Many young women have asked me if I were not afraid to camp out over night. I presume I could think of heaps of things to be frightened about if I permitted my imagination to play on the possible pests of camping, but one is tired after a day's hike. It is the sort of tiredness that comes from a day spent in the fine air of the woods and water, and one is apt to fall asleep before one has time to indulge in any of these fanciful disturbing thoughts about safety. To a timid soul, one unaccustomed to outdoor life, the flutter of birds, the rustle of dried leaves and the movement of harmless animals in the woods, might be terrifying. However, one is perfectly safe, and much less exposed to dangers than in the city.

"A camp outfit such as I have spoken of is within the reach of all, even the working girl of small means. Many girl hikers use for this purpose the pack carried by their soldier brothers during the war. It is really cheaper these days to hike than to pay board and buy expensive seashore clothing.

"The benefit to one's health is incalculable, provided one does not overdo the walking and become too exhausted at first. Of the thousands of miles that I have walked during the past 12 years, the best day would not amount to more than 23 miles.

"If you have not experienced the thrill of a summer hike, you have missed much. Try it, girls!"

"One Must Know How to Fry Bacon and Prepare Coffee."

"Hikers Should Not Try to Make More Than Two or Three Miles a Day at First."

LEEDS LIBERALS LIKELY NOMINATE GEORGE P. GRAHAM

FORMER LAURIER MINISTER, HOWEVER, ALREADY NOMINATED IN ESSEX.

BROCKVILLE, August 19 (Canadian Press). — When the Liberals of Leeds and Brockville Federal riding hold their convention here on Tuesday next to select a candidate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Sir Thomas White, it is expected that an invitation will be extended to Hon. George P. Graham, former Minister of Railways and Canals in the Laurier administration, to become party standard-bearer in the coming by-election.

Hon. Mr. Graham represented the riding of Brockville in the House of Commons from 1907 to 1911, but in view of the fact that he is already the Liberal candidate in South Essex, it is doubtful if he would accept the nomination here.

FOR MONTHS HE COULDN'T WALK

TORONTO WAN WAS IN BAD SHAPE FOR NINE YEARS—RESTORED YEAR AGO HE STILL FEELS FINE.

"I can testify to both the immediate and lasting results one gets from Tanlac, for it fixed me up fine last fall, and I haven't felt a trace of any of my troubles since," said James Gordon, 1177 Ossington Ave., Toronto, Ont., recently.

"For something like nine years I suffered with rheumatism, and my whole system seemed to be out of fix. The rheumatism got so bad one time I lay in bed for three months, and ached and hurt all over, and thought I never would be any better. It was months before I was able to walk, and my legs, arms, and feet just kept bothering me so bad I could hardly get up and down stairs. I had no appetite, and suffered terribly from indigestion. I had headaches and dizzy spells, when I would almost fall over.

"My second bottle of Tanlac seemed to help me in every way, and in a little while I was eating like a horse, and everything agreed with me so well I picked up twelve pounds in weight. Those rheumatic pains disappeared entirely, and I've been feeling fine and sleeping better ever since than I had in years. Tanlac helped me so much that I am glad to give this statement for what it may be worth to others."

MORE ARRESTS IN FIRL CASE SOON

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

MILTON, Ont., Aug. 19.—County Crown Attorney Dick, of Milton, has lost no time in setting the wheels of justice in motion, following Fire Marshal Heaton's inquiry at Georgetown last week to determine the cause and origin of the fires which completely destroyed Hugh Logan's two barns in Esquesing township on June 7 last.

Yesterday Thomas Hartshorn, of Georgetown, was arrested on the charge of committing perjury at the inquiry after receiving his preliminary hearing at Georgetown last evening. He was remanded for one week and brought to the Milton jail by a Provincial officer, who has been detailed by the Government to assist the Crown in apprehending the perpetrators.

Other sensational arrests are expected to take place within the next few days.

PUBLICLY OWNED FRENCH TELEPHONE SERVICE SHOWS HUGE DEFICIT FOR YEAR

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(Associated Press).—The deficit of the French telephone service, which is run by the State, will amount to over 220,000,000 francs for this year, according to Louis Deschamps, who ought to be well informed as he was Undersecretary of State for the Department of Posts, Telephones and Telegraphs in the previous Cabinet.

M. Deschamps says that the service needs an expenditure of 1,500,000,000 francs for improvement and extension and recommends the State, if it cannot see its way to this outlay, to hand the service back to private companies and let them reorganise it.

NERVOUS, IRRITABLE, AILING WOMEN

Mrs. Britten Tells How She Was Restored To Health After Suffering for More Than A Year.

Another Triumph for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dimondale, Mich.—"I had inflammation and a displacement and weakness, and it had been neglected so long that it caused great pain, and this affected my mind and nerves so that I was very irritable. I had severe pains every month, so that I was often obliged to lie in bed for two days at a time. I suffered for more than a year before my friends said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I purchased one bottle after another until I had taken ten bottles, then Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I received so much benefit from this treatment that I am now able to do my own work."—Mrs. W. D. BRITTEN, R. No. 2, Dimondale, Mich.

Another Michigan Woman says:

"I was bothered for a long time with female troubles and was so nervous I felt almost afraid at times. I also had a pain in my right side and was certainly in a bad way. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved me of these nervous feelings and pains and I am much better in every way. I don't know just how many bottles I have taken, but I took it for nearly a year and it has done me a world of good."—Mrs. JESSIE GRANGER, R. No. 8, Box 51, Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Good health is a woman's greatest asset. With it she may be the inspiration of her husband, a happy mother, and the life of the home. Without it she suffers agonies herself, household duties are a burden, and her family is made miserable by her condition.

Is it any wonder that these women were nervous and irritable after suffering so long from such deranged conditions? Such ailments act directly upon the nerves, and it has been said that a large percentage of nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," and nervous irritabilty of women arise from some derangement of the female organism.

If women who are in this condition would only profit by the experience of others and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, much suffering and unhappiness would be averted, as everyone knows a nervous, irritable, ailing mother makes the home unhappy and her condition irritates both husband and children.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Early Advance Arrivals of Women's Autumn Suits and Coats

She is no longer stiff and formal. She has taken on a delightful new graciousness that is wonderfully becoming. The old hard lines have disappeared, and instead there is a suppleness of effect that diffuses youthfulness and atheletic vigour, without any loss of alluring femininity.

The New Collection of Women's Suits and Coats is not at all extensive. Quite the contrary. Impossible that they should become common; for they are mostly one or two of a model—individual possessions for the next few weeks at least of those women who shall secure them within the next few days.

See them as soon as you can.

The August Sale of Furniture Goes Merrily On!

THE NEW PARIS

by CLARENCE AXMAN.
(Written for the United Press.)

PARIS.—(By Mail).—"Paris is gay again; yes, monsieur, but it is not the Paris of before the war," said the wife of the Boulevard des Italiens banker.

"The crowds flocking to the modistes, and jewelry shops of the Rue de la Paix are not the aristocratic set seen there a few years ago, but are the bourgeois of Lyon, Marseilles and other places in the Provinces, new rich, who made tremendous fortunes in the war."

And yet to the visiting American, Paris is the same old playground of the world that it was in the old days. Nothing is permitted officially to jar one seeing Paris on parade. Even the beggar is barred from the boulevards.

Out on the Bois in the afternoon the tea places are crowded as never before. American tunes and American bands, and wiggling, twisting and turning that must have come via the Argentine. A couple reaches a spot on the floor and five minutes later they have not progressed more than ten feet. The women are wonderfully dressed, with the smartest of hats, bracelets about their ankles, and dresses which would make Ziegfeld weep with envy.

Many of the men dancing are gigelots—professional tango lizards—with spats, sharply-creased trousers, colored waistcoats and Picadilly morning coats. They are the professional hangers-on. A gigelot approaches the wife of the American when she skips a dance, and asks if he can have the next. At the finish he expects a few francs.

A few months ago a story was printed in American papers that a French Government official had decreed that women in French revues should wear more clothes. Probably he is on a vacation, because in two revues the entire apparel of the chorus could be placed in a tiny pocketbook. This sort of thing quickly palls on the American. In the case of revues, it is, see one, see all.

Paris is filled with Russian actors, Russian dancers, Russian singers, Russian noblemen and Russian radicals. The Russian vaudeville show at the Femina Theatre is the best on the Continent, and has taken Paris by storm, the great hit being the march of the "Wooden Soldiers." It is coming to Broadway next season.

SAYS 50 HOUSES IN OSHAWA NOT TAKEN IN CENSUS

Court Interpreter Receives Complaints From Foreign Section of Town.

OSHAWA, Aug. 19.—That more than 50 houses in that section of the town east of Ritson Road, and north of the C.P.R. tracks, were missed by the enumerators who took the census in Oshawa, is the information given Police Court Interpreter Igel, who is at present collecting poll tax in that section, and who made the rounds with Assessor James to assist him in his work. There are over 300 people in that section, and Mr. Igel says that many of the residents are quite indignant because their homes were not visited. Many of those missed are of foreign birth, and naturally many of them have been residents of Oshawa for some time and speak good English.

The census gave the town's population as 11,552, so that if it is correct that about 50 houses were missed, the population would easily be 12,000 or more.

The matter, it is understood, is to be brought to the attention of the authorities at Ottawa.

OLD BLACK BOX USED IN "CHARITY" SWINDLE.

Police to Bring Brusch Back to Face Victims.

DETROIT, August 18. — Charity covered $19,800 in sin in the case of Peter Brusch, the police say. Detective Sergeant Harry Schouw will leave for Montreal to-day where Brusch is under arrest, to bring him back to Detroit to meet his charity cases. e is charged with larceny by trick.

Brusch's methods were clever, according to the police. With a confederate, he would visit a man known to have funds and explain that he, Brusch, had been left a fortune by an uncle, but that under the terms of the will, Brusch must give large sums to charity. He would then appeal to the intended victim to pick out a worthy object.

After the victim had done so, Brusch would place a large sum of money in a black box, and deposit it with the victim, first insisting, however, that the victim place an equal sum of money in the box. Brusch would then leave, and the victim, after suspicions were aroused, would open the receptacle, only to find blank paper.

The complainant against Brusch is Mick Halmacy, Detroit, who lost $1,800. Four others reported they lost a total of $18,000.

WATER PIPES TAKEN UP AND USED AGAIN AFTER FORTY YEARS' SERVICE

SEVERAL EXTENSIONS UNDER WAY IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE CITY.

The Waterworks Department of the Utilities Commission are laying an eight-inch main on Lansdowne street from Maud to Park streets to give water service to the residents of that street whose numbers are being added to by the erection of many new houses and on Water street from Brock to Dublin streets the department are replacing the five-inch pipe with an eight-inch. This latter work was undertaken preparatory to the paving of the street, and although there will be no paving this year the work is being done in readiness. Fourteen men are working on Lansdowne street and the laying of the main will not be complete for some time as a start has just been made. Twenty-five men are on the job. In two weeks the Water Street job will be finished, R. L. Dobbin, Waterworks Superintendant, said today.

Pipe Taken Up.

The pipe that is being taken up on Water street was part of the first water system laid in Peterborough in 1882 by the Peterborough Water Co. Although the main has served for nearly forty years, the pipes are in a good state of preservation and will be used again, in fact, some have been used already in a small job. They are of cast iron and were manufactured by R. Laidlaw & Son of Kilmarnock, Scotland, and R. L. Dobbin had this morning in the office the original shipping bill for the pipes on the Allan Steamship Lines, dated May, 1882. The bill was part of the papers of the water company, now in the hands of the Utilities Commission. The pipes bear the date 1882 and the initials of the manufacturer unaffected by laying forty years, five feet under ground. In the inside there was naturally a crustation of rust and dirt and the same on the exterior, but the pipes have been brushed, cleaned and painted and will give many more years' service. In that, the pipes are in nine-foot length and not 12 feet as now used, and in that they have what is called the turned and bored joint and not a bell and spigot joint. The pipes are old-fashioned. In these pipes there is a machined tapered joint much deeper than at present used. To make a connection the pipes were fitted and molten lead sealed the joint. There is no machining now-a-days, it having been determined that it is cheaper to eliminate the machining and use more lead. In this regard the pipes are antique, but in cases where a five-inch main is required they will be used by the department, although there will not be many more five-inch mains laid as six-inch give more water for only a slightly greater expenditure and eight-inch mains will be used to a greater extent.

WHITE SMOKE SCREEN TESTED BY U. S. ARMY

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—A white smoke screen, denser and more impenetrable to vision than any yet invented, was demonstrated yesterday at Camp Meade for the members of the Reserve Officers' Training Camp. It is a recent invention, the secret of which is being guarded closely by chemists and Army officers directing its use.

When the smoke candles were lighted, instead of seeing black clouds as they had seen them rise on the battle fields of France, the reserve officers were surprised by the beautiful white clouds which rose from the ground; they were so dense that they seemed almost solid.

Maj. Earl J. Atkisson, commandant of the Edgewood Arsenal, said the white smoke candles were a distinct improvement over the black smoke candles used in the World War. They not only possess a greater obscurity power, he said, but produce smoke in greater quantities. They are not poisonous and produce no toxic effect. The white smoke "makes a much more opaque protective screen than the black, and it is absolutely harmless to the person passing through it," said the Major.

BLIND MAN KILLS WOMAN AND CLUBS HER CHILDREN

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 18.—Ramon Ramirez, 20 years old, a blind man, was arrested yesterday and charged with murder when deputy sheriffs found him sleeping in a shed half a mile from the house in which Mrs. Conrado Alazar, 32, was killed and her children, Conrado, 4; Ophelia, 7, and Fanna, 8, were clubbed and seriously injured last night.

"Yes, I killed them," was Ramirez's statement, according to Deputy Sheriff John Boone.

"I wanted to kill them all. It would be better for them."

Mrs. Alazar was sleeping with her 18-months-old baby when attacked. Her husband had gone to Tularosa, N. M., to hunt for work.

PEACE PACT WITH U.S. A PERIL TO HUN GOVERNMENT

(BY CARL D. GROAT, (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, Aug. 19.— The Wirth government will be overthrown if it signs the peace treaty proposed by the United States, according to authoritative information given the United Press to-day.

Negotiations over the treaty are in progress between Loring Dresel, the American Charge D'Affaires, and Chancellor Wirth, with the latter taking the stand that no party in Germany will support his ministry if he agrees to the American terms as they stand.

ENNISMORE SOCIAL ATTRACTED RECORD CROWD ON THURSDAY

Perfect Weather Brought Out Large Attendance From the Whole Surrounding District.

Although the amount of the proceeds were not available last night to serve as a comparison with other years, it seemed from the large attendance that Rev. Father McAuley's picnic in connection with St. Martin's church, Ennismore yesterday brushed the old records off the boards. Both financially and socially it was a thorough success, bringing together a big crowd of visitors who were most hospitably received by Father McAuley and an active committee of the men and women of the church. The social was held on the grounds of the school adjoining the church, and among those present were not only numerous parties from Peterborough, Lindsay and other towns in the district, but also many Americans who are holidaying in the district, including visitors from Rochester, Buffalo and Pittsburg. The weather was perfect and the arrangements worked smoothly and comfortably. Chicken dinner, served in the parish asembly hall, was of banquet quality, and the service was exceptionally good. The various booths on the grounds did a flourishing business throughout the afternoon and evening, and those who had charge of them, especially the young ladies, found few resting spells until late in the evening when the hundreds of motor cars that were parked in the village, began to stir into life and gradually disappear. The various amusement features were well patronized, and the visitors found the usual enjoyment in the social intercourse the lawn party afforded.

The drawing for the tombola prizes will be held next Monday evening in St. Martin's hall.

GOOD CROPS IN TISDALE, SASK.

Examiner Each Week as "Good as a Letter From Home," Says Former Peterborough Lady.

The following interesting letter has been received from Mrs. A. J. Abbott, of Tisdale, Sask., regarding the crops in that locality:

I see by the papers you are having a very dry season, while we are having a wet one and would very much like to share up with you.

Crops are looking real well in our district and wheat is about ready to cut. Quite a lot will be harvested in the next few days if it is fine; but it rains about every third day, and the ground is very soft for running a binder, so it is going to be hard pulling. This is a mixed farming district and the pasture for cattle has been of the very best. Hay is a splendid crop, and garden stuff of all kinds is good. We have had a wonderful growing season. There have been no frosts to harm anything as yet.

Potatoes are going to be very plentiful. We are using green peas, beans and corn at present. As we cannot always have those things here on account of late or early frosts we consider ourselves lucky when we can get them.

Mrs. Abbott adds in a P. S.: that "the Examiner is as good as a letter from home."

RUSSIAN PEASANT WOULD ACCEDE TO RULE OF A CZAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(By United Press.)—"If the Czar weer to set himself up in Russia to-morrow and proclaim that the peasants should retain the ownership of the land, they would accept him with complete indifference," according to Lewis Gannett, asociate editor of The Nation to-day.

STAFF OF 300 IN MOVIE THEATRE.

No theatre designed for the production of plays has ever been built on such an ambitious and splendid scale. The Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, Ltd., of which Lord Ashfield is chairman, were determined to make the Regent a challenge to every place of amusement in the world. They have spent $2,000,000 on the scheme. Robert Atkinson, F.R.I.D.A., is the architect, and he has been assisted by distinguished artists.

The theatre will accommodate 3,000 people, and several hundreds more will find room in the restaurants, ship cafe and foyer. The ship cafe, which is is a free rendering of the ward room of an eighteenth century three-decker, will ob one of the most original rooms of the kind ever designed.

Although the Regent is built on an enormous scale, there are so many exits from the theatre that it can be emptied of its 3,000 visitors in three minutes.

Recitals will be given from time to time by famous musicians on the organ, which was built at a cost of $40,000. A staff of 300 will be kept in regular employment.

SILENT ON SPANISH RECRUITING CAMPAIGN.

Government Refuses to Make Statement Yet on Matter.

LONDON, August 19. (Canadian Press)—The recruiting campaign being carried on by the Spanish consulate in England to secure troops to fight against the Moorish tribesmen, was brought up in the House of Commons to-day by Joseph Kenworth, Independent Liberal, who endeavored to get the government to make a statement on the subject, but Cecil Harmsworth, the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, declined to discuss the matter until he had had an opportunity to consult with other Government departments.

CAMPAIGN TO LOWER HIGH COST OF BIRTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—A campaign to lower the high cost of birth has been launched by Commissioner Coler of the Department of Public Welfare.

He declared that big fees charged by obstetricians keep down the birth rate in families with an income of $2,500 to $5,000. Asserting that this group was too proud to accept charity in city hospitals and too poor to pay the rates prevailing in private hospitals, the Commissioner announced he was admitting to municipal institutions patients able to pay moderate fees.

NO MAN A HERO TO HIS VALET BUT—

A Sultan May Be a Hero to His Chef.

But a Sultan may be a hero to his chef, if one may judge from the case of Nicholas Theodore, 2010 Medbury ave., Detroit and Maulai Yusuf Sultan of Morocco.

Nicholas was chef to the Sultan of Morocco for three and one half years. He liked the Sultan very much. He is an affable man, Nicholas says. Nicholas declared he liked cooking for Mualai, and for Mualai's 24 wives, and for the 90 women attendants of the harem, and for the Nubian slaves guarding it. Nicholas also liked the country and says Fez is an interesting city, but Nicholas had to leave the Sultan because he could not stand the food he had to cook for the ruler.

Too Much "Pelafe"

"They eat pelafe, they eat halva, I do not like them," Nicholas explained that pelafe is a stew, made of rice and mutton, while the last named dish is a desert made of goat butter, sugar and meal.

Nicholas is a Greek—a native of Mitylene. There he learned the art of cooking and later gained a position in the Pera-Palace, Constantinople.

Donned Nat'ye Costume

So Nicholas went with the Sultan He donned a straight dress, a wound turban, turned up red shoes and took charge of things in the kitchen. There he presided over a stone stove, which was fired by charcoal. He mixed the endless stews af mutton and rice in bowls of stone, pottery and aluminium sent from Paris. He puttered around the kitchen in Turkish shoes of real morocco, ordering about his 25 assistants.

Oh, no; for the women were only visible to the chef as they filed their way into the dining room and then tey were heavily veiled. Once there, they were served by Nubian slaves on a low table a foot from the floor on which they sat.

Table Easily Set.

No forks are used in Morocco, so setting a table at the palace at Fez is a simple matter.

The country and the capital of Morocco are interesting, Nicholas says. The Sultan, who always ordered his own meals, is an ideal emperor, but the food! After the chef had concocted a stew pronounced perfect by the Sultan, he would broil a bit of lamb for himself.

7 BY-ELECTIONS QUEBEC PROVINCE.

A Miniature Provincial Election Soon.

QUEBEC, Aug. 19.—A miniature Provincial general election will take place in Quebec this fall, due to the necessity for holding seven by-elections. It is expected that Premier Taschereau will also re-arrange his Cabinet. He himself is expected to drop the work of the Attorney-General's Department, this office being taken over by Hon. J. L. Perron, at present a Minister without portfolio, who will resign from the Legislative Council and stand for Vercheres. Premier Taschereau will remain President of the Council of Ministers and may also take in addition to this certain branches of the Provincial Secretary's Department under his jurisdiction. Dr. Desaulniers, M.P.P., Chambly, will be made a Legislative Councillor, replacing Hon. Mr. Perron.

THE SCIENTIFIC SIDE OF MUSIC

By E. R. Buehner

The scientific side of music, which you desire me to deal with is a large enough subject to fill a good-sized book, rather than a single newspaper column.

Music is rhythmic sound, air pulses occurring at regular intervals and at a rate of not less than sixteen vibrations per second and not more than about sixteen thousand vibrations per second which, in a fair way, represents the limits within which an average musical ear can differentiate between two tones having different rates of vibrations or different pitch.

When several musical tones of different pitch sound together, their vibrations or waves overlap, and form compound waves, so that at one instant a fraction of one set of waves predominates, in the next instant a fraction of another set. As these different fractions follow one another at a very rapid rate, between sixteen and, say, 6,000 per second, we receive the sensation of a chord, or also of a single mass of sound, either of harmony or disharmony.

This is similar to the manner in which the eye receives a motion picture, by the rapid projection of several progressive photographs of a moving object. Even if we listen to a whole orchestra, with or without the addition of singing, the ear at one instant only take notice of that fraction of the performance which happens at that moment to predominate.

The Phonauto raph.

To prove that this is the case we can let sound write itself down by means of the phonautograph, invented by the Frenchman. Leon Scott about 1856.

One of these instruments is in the United States National Museum. It consists of a large cylinder, covered with paper, the surface of which is covered with soot from a smoky flame. A sound box, having a diaphram and a receiving horn, is provided with a slender bristle stylus, fastened to the center of the diaphram, and which is so adjusted that the stylus just touches the surface of the cylinder sideways. When the cylinder is rotated and passes the stylus in screw fashion the latter traces a spiral line around the cylinder.

If no sound is emitted into the horn the spiral line becomes wave and each wave represents a fraction of the sound that caused the diaphram to vibrate.

It will then be found that the higher pitched the sound is the more rapidly do these waves follow one another, and as the pitch is lower the fewer are the waves in a given time. In the case of an orchestra playing, the wave line becomes most complicated, yet there is discernible a certain regularity, as sets of waves repeat themselves when a more or less sustained chord is recorded.

Jazz instruments will record themselves in waves of striking or irregular forms and so will all mere noises which in themselves are not considered musical.

If we should try to analyze the wave lines of articulate speech by means of a phonautograph we shall discern sets of complicated waves which represent the vowel sounds, but most consonants are merely short, irregular and very shallow wave lines preceding or following the vowel waves and difficult to analyze. Exceptions are the consonants r, s, sh, c, and z, which are very minute waves repeating themselves rapidly.

The tune of a melody is due to the inspiration of the composer, but the harmony to accompany the tune follows strict laws, which, while capable of a great variety of modulations, have to be kept within certain limits, prescribed by the science of harmony. The highest musical art is expressed by proper orchestration, and the finest compositions are those in which the inspiration of a lovely or artistic melody proceeds and stands out against the background of perfect harmony, expressed by skillful orchestration. Such is the case for instance in so-called grand opera. Besides, however, we have the works of orchestral music itself, with an infinite variety of leading melodies, as well as the masterpieces of dramatic effects giving the musical background by means of which stage action is illuminated or by which emotions are expressed. Then there are the immortal creations of piano and organ music, instrumental and vocal duets, trios, quartettes and sextettes, and the superb compositions for the violin and other solo instruments. Songs of all kinds from the simple folk melodies to the great church masses and oratorios form a rich heritage bestowed on us by past geniuses, and which are added to without end by living creations of contemporaneous songs and harmonies.

All these treasures of musical science have during the past twenty years been made more accessible to the great public by the talking machines, phonograph, graphophone and gramophone. In these instruments the record is not merely a wave line drawn on paper, but is a groove of soundwaves indented, engraved or etched into solid material. The soundwaves are either represented by the varying depths of a straight groove as in the phonograph and graphophone or by a groove looking like the old phonauto graphic record, of even depth, and showing the sound waves as an undulating groove writing. The latter system is that of the Gramophone or Victrola and is the more perfect of the two, so that the great singers and performers prefer that their art be recorded by that system.

Sound is reproduced in talking machines because the sound grooves move the stylus connected with the center of the diaphram and the latter is vibrated by the sound waves that are embodied in the grooves caused by the original sound waves.

Like engravings for printing, sound records can be duplicated without limit by pressing electrotyped reverse engravings, called matrices, into a proper material under heat and pressure. The material usually employed is a special kind of hard black sealing wax, so that a disc sound record might often be properly called the seal of the human voice

GIRL REHEARSED TAKING BURGLAR.

And When Great Moment Came She Outwitted Him As Planned.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—"Because she has often pictured to herself how she would cope with a burglar if she ever discovered one in her room, Miss Margaret McDonald, a young concert singer living with her widowed mother, coolly captured a burglar in her room, early a recent morning, by bluffing him into thinking there was a revolver in the house.

There is nothing morbid about Miss McDonald forehandedness. It was inspired purely by indignation over burglaries and the way women acted when they met them. She made up her mind long ago, although she is only 24 years old, that the thing to do was outwith and capture an intruder, not to have hysterics over his presence. There was to be no jiu jitsu about it! Her encounter was to be wholly a matter of brains.

Rehearsed Moment Arrives

The gente sound of a drawer in her chiffonier being opened wakened her to the fact of a burglar's presence. Her reaction was smoothly automatic.

"Drop that! she shouted, suddenly. Then, "Mother, get the revolver. There's a burglar in my room."

It was a tense moment in the play, for her mother, in the next room, had never even heard of her part in the drama. She rallied to the emergency, however, with a "All right!"

The succeeding action came rapidly. Up went the burglar's hands, over the pockets to see if he carried a weapon. Finding none, she sat down on her bed to stall off his departure until the police came.

"Must Have Vamped Me"

For 20 minutes Miss McDonald hypnotized the man into standing uneasily in a corner of the room 'She must have vamped me," he said afterward at the police station, when the officers seemed puzzled that he did not escape.

He had taken her purse with 55 cents in it, but missed diamonds worth hundreds of dollars. He wished most heartily to be allowed to go in peace and reform.

"I really felt sorry for him," said Miss McDonald later. "We shook hands just before I opened the door and confronted him with the detective.

"I was terrified," said Mrs. Mc Donald. "I never dreamed she would be so quick-witted—"

"Nothing quick-witted about it," answered her red-haired daughter. "I'd had it planned for years."

FIRST CAPITALISTIC ENTERPRISE IN RUSSIA

Equipping With Machinery Landing Places on Volga.

RIGA, Aug. 18.—The first new private capitalistic enterprise on a large scale has just been authorized by the Soviet government, says the Riga Rundschau's Moscow correspondent. It is the work of equipping with machinery the landing places on the Volga River and the building of three steam mills, six elevators and various railway plants, all of which is to be done by a Russian industrialist.

The Soviet government, it is stated, does not stipulate any rights for controlling the affair, but agrees to ration the workmen.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Correspondence schools which guarantee to turn out finished writers in four weeks and three days should have their attention called to this article by some kind-hearted and literal person.

For, if by one of those chances which make life almost worth while, one of their students should suddenly reveal himself as a man of talent and feeling there is a job waiting for him. The job is simple and has been open for a long time. It is that of Shakespeare of the movies, and the sponsor of the "position" is J. G. Hawks, scenario editor for the Goldwyn company and himself the author of over a hundred motion pictures

"The movies will yet develop their Shakespeare," Mr. Hawks asserts. "Within the past two years the new medium has taken a turn which in the end will prove its salvation and enlist the imagination of men of the first quality—as it has already done. Maurice Maeterlinck, to cite one instance, was here last year studying motion-picture technique, and American writers of the first rank are now continually on the lot helping in the picturization of their original themes.

Hope for the Future.

"It is in this last phase, in this development of the original screen story, that the hope for the future lies. For years we went along borrowing plots from novels and plays and the result is that we have nearly bankrupted that field; it is scarcely worth exploiting any longer. Now it is an old adage that necessity is the mother of invention; and the soundness and lasting capabilities of the screen are being demonstrated at present in the fact that they are meeting the story situation with imagination and confidence.

"During the last few months we have had Rupert Hughes, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Gertrude Atherton, Gouvernor Morris, Basil King, Leroy Scott, Anzia Yezierska, and others, writing directly for the screen. Their work has been splendid and an indication of what can be accomplished when trained writers turn their attention to the screen as a primary and not secondary means of expression.

The Greatest Weakness.

"I look on the movies as pre-eminently a popular entertainment but so was the Elizabethan theatre a popular entertainment. And it is by no means beyond the ken of the future that the movies will develop a single great writer who will stand head and shoulders above his contemporaries, and above the past and the future; a man who will be born with an adaptability which, when utilized to further screen stories, will prove itself magnificent and unique and everlasting.

"The trouble with the films for many years was manifold, but one of the worst flaws was the fact that every picture was a translation from a play or novel or short-story. You know that the Italians have a saying that a translator is a traitor. That is a half-truth, but even half-truths have that much of truth. A story was bought from a writer whose only interest, usually, was in receiving his money. He despised the screen and regarded it as only fit to give him money and not as worthy of his own service.

The Author Takes a Hand.

"The story being bought under such conditions, it was only natural that the scenarioist should take great liberties with the theme, and the director still further liberties, with the result that the authors complained that when their works reached the screen they were unrecognizable. Consider how different must be the results achieved when the author, that is, the imaginative creator, takes a theme and fashions it directly for the screen, either by himself or in close cooperation with the scenarioist! And furthermore, actively cooperates with the director! Well, you have a different sort of production, a better sort of production, a real sort of picture!"

A. L. Rockett of the Rocket Film Corporation says: "In my eight years' experience in studios I have seen only one fist fight, and I have never heard of a murder or an assault among workers or players. I venture to state that the police have had less to do with motion picture studios than with any other phase of social or industrial life." Not such a bad commentary upon the most maligned institution in the world.

"The time has come," declared Mr. Schertzinger, "when the public's constant repudiation of the spectacle picture must be heeded by the producer and the producer-director.

"The spectacle is much like the effort of a new writer. With an extensive command of words at his fingertips, the temptation is to use them all. The result is a florid article or story which loses its effectiveness by its effusiveness. Likewise with the average director. Realizing new creative horizons unfolded by the technical experts of the picture industry, the director's temptation is to cram them into mighty epic. The result is the spectacle, the lesson or the point of which is lost in the clustered magnificence with which the director has surrounded it.

"But today the tide is turning. Like the finished writer who couches his ideas in the simplest phrases, the producer is getting back to a sane form of picture. First of all, he determines what he wants to say and then says it."

CELEBRATION OF 38TH ANNIVERSARY OF VAUDEVILLE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Vaudeville artists and managers are making plans for a nation-wide celebration of the thirty-eighth anniversary of the first Keith vaudeville performance in a little store in Boston in the autumn of 1883.

B. F. Keith began with a freak black baby midget so small that it could be put into a pint bottle, and within a few years he had under way in the cities of the East a new entertainment that made a tremendous hit with theatre-goers and grew into present-day vaudeville. He took old-time variety and renamed it Keith Vaudeville, and to-day it reigns in amusement sovereignty from coast to coast.

E. F. Albee, who, from the first, was B. F. Keith's chief of staff and later his successor in the ownership and management of the vast amusement properties, looks with favor upon the anniversary celebration. He has humanized vaudeville and made the relations between artists and managers kindly, sympathetic, mutually helpful and strictly honorable. It is the era of good-will in vaudeville.

POWER OF HUMAN EYE A REALITY.

London Physician Tells of Selenoid Set in Motion By Glance of Human Eye.

LONDON, Aug. 18. —Why is it that when a man looks a caged lion or tiger straight in the eye, the animal tries in vain to meet the gaze, and finally turns its head away?

Why is it that it is impossible for human gaze to meet human gaze for more than a few seconds?

Dr. Charles Russ, of London, believes that "a ray of radiation" issues from the human eye. "If there is such a ray it may produce an uncomfortable effect on the other person's retina or by collision with the other person's ray," he writes in the Lancet. "It is a fact that after a few seconds the vision of one or the other will have to be turned away for at least a short time. Numerous every-day observations and experiences seem to support the possibility of the existence of a ray or force emitted by the human eye."

The Russ Experiment.

Dr. Russ demonstrated the possible existence of such a force by experiment. He constructed an apparatus in which a small solenoid was suspended and held in place by a magnet.

"If the human eye looks through the slot in the observing window," he writes, "and maintains a steady gaze at one end of the solenoid, the latter will be seen to start into motion, which is usually away from the observing eye. If the gaze be now transferred to the true centre of the solenoid, the latter stops, and if the vision is now applied to the opposite end of the solenoid the latter moves in a reverse direction to the motion first induced. This manœuvre may be repeated several times, each subsequent attempt being made only after the magnet has brought the solenoid to complete rest."

Dr. Russ is extremely cautious in his statement of his discovery, making no assertion beyond this that the machine which he has devised is set in motion by a glance of the human eye, and that so far this motion has not been explained as due to any other cause. He has come to the tentative conclusion that there is an electrical charge in the retina accompanying vision.

A Technical Term.

The term solenoid is technical, an electrical one, defined ideally as being "a system of equal circular currents flowing in uniform direction from a single straight or curved axis."

Defined practically, a solenoid is "a cylindrical wire helix having one or both ends of the wire turned back along the axis so as to neutralize the component of the effect of the current which is due to the length of the wire."

In further explanation the definition points out that "when traversed by a current the solenoid acts in general like a magnet with the south pole at the end at which the current flows clockwise to an observer facing it."

WORKMEN SPEED UP IN MONTREAL.

Bigger Production Now At Less Wages.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.— Workmen in all branches of the building industry are doing a better day's work than they have done for the last four years in the opinion of Montreal's leading contractors. They say the increase in production is equal to 20 per cent and that during the past two months there has been larger production in practically all branches of the building industry and in labor generally.

The workman's output is greater this year than it has been for the last three or four years. Men are more inclined to work, but nothing like pre-war conditions, which a builder attributed due to hard times. With scarcity of work men were more eager to please their employers. When work was plentiful they were not so anxious to please. "It is the law of supply and demand," he said.

"Wages have gone down but reduction has gone up," says another leading contractor, who pointed out that bricklayers who not long ago were laying 770 bricks a day, the average for a union bricklayer, were now laying 900.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities in the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food taken into the stomach nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins, which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which suck only nourishment.

A splendid health measure is to drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons from the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the alimentary canal before eating more food.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bathing.

The number of drug items now on the market is 45,900.

GERALDINE FARRAR AND LOU TELLEGEN IN TROUBLE

Is there such a thing as a perfect union? The wedding of Geraldine Farrar, prima donna and movie star, to Lou Tellegen, actor, was called such, but now both are seeking a separation.

URGES COLORED RACE TO STAND ON OWN FEET.

Dr. Hill Sees Need For United Front.

Addressing his own race in Hamilton, Dr. J. T. Hill, colored, stated that up until the present time it had been the unconscious habit of his people to let the white people assume responsibilities which should have been theirs.

Passing the Buck.

"The white folks are giving huge sums every year for the support of our native churches in Africa," the seaker said. "I hope that the time is not far off when our own colored people will feel that it is up to them to do this work. The other race is waiting for us to do it and there is no reason why we shouldn't. The whole trouble with us is that we are afraid to stand on our own feet and feel that we need outside held to do so. Many of us are merely playing with the good thing in life, while the other folks are makiug good use of them."

Have Been Pets.

"If we are to hold our place in the world of endeavor then all should co-operate in an effort to help the other fellow along," declared the speaker. "Many of us have been deluded in thinking that it is necessary for the white folks to pet us along in order to get anywhere in life. I pity the boy or girl of my race who has no vision and who thinks as his parents did before him. It is the men of our race who possessed vision who have opened up for us the wonderful possibilities that are to be had to-day."

Talking of ties of patriotism, he asserted that the race not posessing the power to cement its people in one great union should see that fatal handwriting on the wall, "Weighed in the balance and found wanting."

ANIMALS WITH FOUR HORNS

Are Found in Certain Parts of Asia.

It is nothing out of the ordinary to see an animal without horns, so they excite little curiosity in this respect. Likewise two horns get little more notice, while the single horn of the Indian rhinoceros is well enough known to distinguish that animal from the two horned African animal. But when mention is made of a four-horned or six-horned creature everybody immediately becomes suspicious and asks what the joke is. Nevertheless there are such animals found in certain parts of Asia.

Principal among these is the four-horned chouka, a small antelope of India, its name being derived from the native word chouk, meaning a leap. Its front pair of horns are short and placed just above the eyes while larger ones are in the usual position higher on the head. The length of the upper horns is about three or four inches, though the lower ones rarely exceed one inch and no special use for them has ever been discovered by the naturalists

The chouka is a beautiful little creature with its bright bay back contrasted with the gray white of the underpart, beneath which are the lithe legs that enable it to make the high bounds for which it is noted. An adult chouka rarely exceeds 20 inches in height at the shoulders.

In their wild state all sheep were furnished with a pair of horns, but the number never exceeded two until some curious specimens were discovered in several isolated sections of Asia. These species had from four to six horns, the upper set being the largest, the other two being graduated with the smaller ones just above the eyes. Curiously enough, the two lower sets always curve upward, while the large pair curl downward as do the horns of our domesticated sheep.

THE HOME CIRCLE

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS.

I want to go home to the old house I love—
To the dear grassy yard, and the long winding lane;
To the pool, with its border of willows above,
And the hills that in springtime are misty with rain,
Oh, the soft mountain zephyrs are sweet, pine sweet,
And they ripple and billow the green seas of wheat.

There's a cool shady orchard, where each wind that blows
Threads the dim leafy silence with whisper and call,
And a rose hedge that scatters its dawn painted snows
In a pink and white drift, by a mossy stone wall;
There are great, friendly cedars, that steadfastly wait,
And a pear tree in bloom by the old garden gate.

When the crimson light closes in night shadows long,
And a star beacon shines through the lace of a tree,
When the low winds are waving the dream of a song,
Then a yearning thought wings o'er the darkness to me;
There's a whippoorwill's note in the shadowy gloam—
Oh, the spring and the southland are calling me home.

SLEEP A MEDICINE.

The cry for rest has always been louder than the cry for food. Not that it is more important, but it is often harder to obtain. The best rest comes from sound sleep. Of two men or women, otherwise equal, the one who sleeps the best will be the most moral, healthy and efficient. Sleep will do much to cure irritability of temper, peevishness and uneasiness. It will restore to vigor, an overworked brain. It will build up and make strong a weary body. It will cure a headache. It will cure a broken spirit. It will cure sorrow. Indeed we might make a long list of nervous and other maladjes that sleep will cure. The cure of sleeplessness requires a good clean bed, sufficient exercise to produce weariness, pleasant occupation, good air and not too warm a room, a clean conscience and avoidance of stimulants and narcotics. For those who are overworked, haggard and nervous, who pass sleepless nights, we commend the adoption of such habits a swill produce sleep; otherwise, life will be short and what there is of it sadly imperfect.

BOOKS AND NEWSPAPERS.

Books are wonderful, not only in their multiplicity, but in their persuasive power. The books and papers of today mould the minds of men. They are not only an intellectual but a moral force. If all books and papers were correct in principle and in judgment, there would be a rapid decline in crime. Crime is due to ignorance and ignorance is due to false preaching or no teaching. Much of the viciousness, anarchy and restlessness of modern times is due to the pernicious influence of newspapers and books written by men who are either purposely deluding the people or lacking in understanding. If we could purify our people we must put our newspapers into the hands of men who will not sacrifice truth and morality to political and financial ends. We must have a literary censorship, that books may be examined and those of evil influence condemned before they reach the people. We all have much to learn and it is economy of time to read only the old and well tried books. Books and papers teach us to know life—the present and the past. They stimulate and train the mind. They inspire us by example and precept. They teach us morality. They help us to distinguish between the good and the false. They quicken the imagination. They give us worthy and beautiful things to think and talk about. They are the best and most accessible means of education.

CHEERFULNESS AND HEALTH.

People never break down in health so long as they keep a happy, joyous heart. It is the sad and despondent heart that tires, and whatever the load we should always keep a cheerful spirit within. There are two ways of meeting a hard experience. One is to struggle and resist, refusing to yield. The result of this is the wounding of the soul and intensifying the hardness. The other is quietly to accept the circumstances or restraints and make the best of them by enduring all cheerfully. Those who live in the first way grow old in the middle of life. Those who take the other way keep a young and happy heart.

MUSIC NOTES.

A Mid-European Musical Congress will be held in Stockholm, Sweden, in September, to found a Middle-Europe Musical Association.

A traveller in the Philippines came across a quaint old church in the suburbs of Manilla in which was set up all organ made entirely of bamboo. An of the pipes are of reeds, this curious instrument, which gives forth a peculiarly sweet and bird-like music, was constructed over a hundred years ago by a missionary priest, who was both a mechanical and a musical genius.

The National Music Festival, an educational institution of five years' standing, will hold its annual festival this year at Buffalo on one week in October next. The festival is not operated for commercial gain, but in the cause of American music and the American-born composer and artist.

CHINK RETRIEVES BAD BARGAIN.

Sells Worthless Stuff For Opium—Causes Seizure.

Montreal Star: A few weeks ago a Quebec Chinaman came to Montreal and opened negotiations for the purchase of a large quantity of opium. The sale was completed, with the stipulation that the drug was to be delivered in Quebec. The purchase price was to be $7,500.

The Quebec Chinaman returned to the Ancient Capital and with money ready awaited the arrival of his white friend, the "dope peddler," to deliver the goods. He had been shown the opium in Montreal, and all was satisfactory. In due course the large automobile journeyed one night from Montreal to Quebec carrying the parcel for the Chinaman. He received the package, paid over the money, and notified his opium smoking friends that the long-looked-for drug had arriver. The smokers arrived from all quarters with visions of sailing on the seventh plane, at least until their money was expended, for "hitting the pipe" at one dollar per hit is expensive.

The large package was undone The neat bricks in their red tissue paper covering were all in the box. Greedy eyes surveyed the drug. Alas, when the packages were opened they were found to contain a substitute, which would produce none of the desired effect.

The wily Chinaman after retiring for the night and borrowing a little "hop" from a neighbour to sooth his nerves had a pleasant dream. He dreamt that across the great international border there were people clamouring for opium. Next morning early, he slid across the boundary line. He went to the nearest large city and located a countryman who was willing to buy his opium The deal was made, at a profit of $10,000 to the wily Oriental from the ancien capital. The drug was to be sent in trunks, under some description other than drugs. The trunks were packed but seized by customs officers.

The seizure made good excuse for the Chinamen to his friend, but what he did not tell the other Chinaman was that he had himself tipped off the revenue officers and caused the "drug" to be seized.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because, after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

MORRIS ACKERMAN'S FISHING TRIP TO PETERBORO WATERS

By Morris Ackerman

Eventually, why not now? No four words were ever pressed into service in one line that can better ask the question we have in mind. Ours refers, of course, to fishing. Our two weeks on the Kawarthas in Ontario demonstrated that the bass fishing there was never better than NOW. The lunge, too, have come to life after the hot spell and NOW is the time to get 'em. "The kind you have always bought" is a thing of the past on the waters from Lakefield clean around to Bobcaygeon, for the veriest tyro is bringing home the ham at each evening meal. "No metal can touch you" and neither can your creditors if you'll just take our tip and hike for the waters that seemingly are bass crazy just now in Peterborough and Victoria counties in the great Canadian province due north of us.

Last week we wrote you down a few lines from Stony lake. We told you the bass were hitting fine there. Since then we have been in Chemong, Buckhorn, Lovesick and Pigeon lakes. We called on a coupla dozen resorts in that time and found our friends at every jump. Everywhere the folks were raving about the "fine bass fishing." THEN along came a storm on Thursday and cooled the air above and the waters below. AND on Sunday I was lucky enough to catch the prince of Bobcaygeon guides, Percy Nichols, trying to enjoy a day with his wife and six kiddies.

"Gotta get a lunge or two for a picture today," says we to he. We have a family of our own and bein' as we hafta show up and divide the payroll every other Saturday we told "Perce" we had to get that picture on Sunday. He listened, relented and went. Result: four lunge and a half-dozen pictures. A week ago today. So, we say NOW is the time for your lunge fishing.

Then last Monday it rained cats and dogs and got so chilly that a coat went good for the first time on the trip. THAT is a good musky sign. So we again urge on you to get busy, grab the tackle and be on your way for a real fishing trip. We never had a hotter tip for you in the last seven years and can't guarantee this advice to carry longer than a week or ten days. You know that August isn't considered the best month in the year for bass and muscalunge fishing anyway.

My friend C. D. Kellett, proprietor of the Rockland house at Bobcaygeon, his good wife, son Wren and li'l daughter Bernice got old Dick Nichol's motorboat on Monday and we traveled all the way through Pigeon lake, Gannon's Narrows and clean into Buckhorn in a rainstorm to see what was doing up that way. We stopped in at Oak Orchard on Gannon's narrows, and at Kawartha Inn on Jacob's island. At both places the folks were having fine luck with the bass and getting a few lunge. Fact is, we got rained in at the island and mingled with the other guests for two or three hours a while an electric storm kept tickling the telephone bell, blew out the fuse in the living-room and nicked the corner off the house, causing us to momentarily forget what we came after. Gee, Gertie, ain't lightnin' stumthin' awful? Tye guy what ever described a baseball pitcher as havin' "lightning speed" has got a poor idea of how fast that stuff is. Bing! and you are ready for the lilies. Yea pop! But as we was sayin' that is just what was needed to make the lunge perk up and they has now perked and if you can do the same you, too, will realize how really clever we is as a fish expert.

Now right here we might intersperse a profuse amount of information that will get us into more trouble, but here goes. If you want the latest dope on any of the following places "as is" write, phone or wire: Rockland, McIntyres, Whytes, Alexanders, Huffs, Crowes, Llivers, McIlmoyls, Al and Hal, Margy Eastwoods, Buckhorn, Thompsons, Viamede, Alex. Lowes, McCrackens, Lennox, Dan Whetung, Young's Point, Hall's Bridge, South Beach, Darcys, Lawless—well, if you think we haven't the grass fresh from the pasture that's your fault.

Now another thing may be well said here if not said well. The rates up on the Kawarthas this summer. You will be surprised. Pre-war, the "pre" meaning "before," so we are told. From twelve Canadian dollars per week to seven good home-grown sweeties per day. (Information on request). How can you afford to stay at home and work for wages when you can go on a fine fishing trip like that at those figures—and all are good, too? You can't. It's really cheaper than staying at home.

Now listen! I left Kellett's at Bobcaygeon on Tuesday morning at 6:20 and four hours later I was in Toronto. At 10 p.m. I hopped off the rattler at E.105th st. Sixteen hours from home over all. Deduct two hours lavover at Toronto and another hour of the same at Buffalo and you find that you are only thirteen hours' "running time" from some of the best fishing in America today. Of course, there is the matter of fare. At this season of the year the Canadian railways make excursion rates, a little matter that at one time was popular with our own transportation lines. A round trip ticket to the Kawarthas doesn't figger no fortune by no means.

We have a friend down state who runs a hotel at a fishing place. He says "fish makes brain." If that be so we would like to enquire why one should stay at home and be foolish? Or, to carry the matter still further, we might ask you to name the smartest man of your acquaintance. Naming same we lay a bet that he is a fisherman. Are we not right? Look at me and Dempsey and Mr. Harding. Figger it any way you like the folks who go fishing and enjoy its benefits and change of scenery each year ain't quite the suckers they goes after. Is it not?

As my friend Leaf Lard might ejaculate, take for "inst." the following well-known folks from here and closeby who are catchin' and eatin' fresh bronzebacks in the daytime and sleepin' amongst the cooling breezes of the old Kawarthas at the present writing: W. B. Hammer and wife (we mention them first for they're honeymoonin'), E. J. Betts and wife, Bill James and wife, E. D. L. Smith and wife, Dr. L. L. Smith and wife, Louie Fetterman, Z. A. Zimmer, J. A. Kuber, Judge Alvord and wife, Kenneth Plummer, Harry B. Burt and family, W. B. Stroup and wife, R. W. Carran and wife, Harry Lutton and wife, W. W. Browning and wife, Mrs. J. W. Draper and husband (just for a change), Ralph DeVoe, C. R. Loomis, William Harrison and wife and that Orwell orator, Ward B. Stone. And these are only a few of our folks who have strayed away to health and happiness.

LETTER NUMBER TWO.

If we ain't got drowned or nothin' by the time you read this here item we will be fishin' somewhere on the Kawartha lakes, over in Ontary. It happened like this: 91 guys has come into our office and asked us if we knowed how the fishin' was 9 and one-half feet below the left-hand rock that sticks up outen the rapids below Burleigh Falls. That is that much happened. Another thing is that the boss wanted to know if we was gonna do all our fishin' at Bass Lake this summer and then try to fool the publick into thinkin' we was on a reg'lar out-of-town trip. (?) It's no use. The folks think we orta know every fishin' place in the world and as one of them places is beside the "rock" we mentioned and as the boss just won't let us lay up a cent and as the wife got fired seein' us 'round the house gettin' at without making no board money we has gone.

We might as well start off by tellin' you that the Kawarthas draws more city dudes than any other fishin' spot in Canada and as its close enuf to home to guarantee us a line of credit at the resorts we picked this here place as the one to go to. So's not to have nobody else want to know nothin' about the fishin' in them lakes, notwithstandin' the fact we've been there a half dozen times before we have made up our mind. Didn't know you had no mind. So we've made up our mind. This time we're gonna cover every durn pint of water from Peterboro to Bobcaygeon and the next gent or gentress what comes along and wants any li'l particle of dope about any fish or fishin' place on them lakes we're either gonna tell 'em the facts of the case even if we hafta lie about it.

You'all proberly remember a while in the rear that we said "we wasn't so busy" we couldn't go and get any dope anybody wanted about any fishin' places they wanted to have us go. Well, t iat was a bum statement. Some folks we have told where to go since then and some others have told us where to go and as the past week made us feel like we was already there we thot any old place would be better'n where we then was. Therefore if the weather cools off we will come home and give you a great earful of how "Ackerman discovers wonderful fishing waters near at home," or words to them effect. However, if it goes too hot we're gonna experiment in bein' a fish for a few weeks. They is one thing nice about bein' a fish, especially in hot weather; no matter how fast he swims he never sweats. That's sumthin'.

But speakin' in our most serious vain this here li'l trip we have figgered out will be a dinger. We're startin' in at Peterboro, on to Lakefield, splash into Stony Lake, clean through one lake after another and comin' out at Bobcaygeon, on Pigeon lake. Won't that be a nice trip, boys and girls? You say it's simple. Do you know anyone who ever made it and came out alive? Neither do us. Of course, if we don't come back a million readers will quit readin' newspapers.

Anyway, we left Tuesday night and feel terrible that we couldn't take you all with us. In the interim (meantime) look for some of our usual clever stuff to come down through the mail.

LETTER NUMBER THREE.

Empress Hotel, Peterboro, Ontario.
Wednesday p.m., July 6, 1921.

Dear Boss:

This here is Wednesday nite. Just arrive I a few minutes since. Waitin' for Chris Graham, great friend of Tris Speakers' to show up. Am told Chris is out to the golf links gettin' "stimmied," as Joe Williams might pipe, "on the nineteenth green." When our train hit town Cyril Lech was waitin' for his girl at the train. Cyril is well-known to Spoke, Nunie and some of the other boys as a wicked wielder of a ten gauge shotgun. Stanley Coon has just showed up here to the hotel. Stanley is another noted ducker.

Coming over on the boat I run into George J. Koller, manager of Koller Bros., and Ed. F. Emrich. I can't figger what Ed manages unless it's George. "Where you guys goin' and what for?" I ast them. They answered they was going fishing but didn't know where. Ed, I give you my word that they didn't have nothing with them but one of my Guides. Please don't delete that fact.

Tomorrow I'm gonna get straightened out on my trip and will no doubt surprise all my friends by writing something sensible. The boys here is sure pullin' for the Indians to repeat and for Spoke and Les to come back here duck huntin' this fall. Hoping it ain't no hotter at home than it is here. I beg to remain as ever the world's most noted fishandgamer. "ACK."

FORMER HUSBAND DEFENDS WOMAN AT MURDER TRIAL.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19.—While Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain is in court answering to a murder charge involving the death here on August 5 of J. Delton Kennedy, broker, Ralph B. Obenchain, her former husband, will be sitting at the counsel's table as her attorney. After a private conference with the prisoner, he emphatically declared himself sure of his former wife's innocence.

EARTH GROWING BIGGER

Is it ever realized what a ceaseless rain of solid matter falls from the sky! It is not dust which has been carried into the atmosphere by powerful uprushes of the air or by volcanic eruptions but material ranging in size from a tiny grain of sand to a big boulder hundreds of pounds in weight. Many of the tiny missiles with which the earth is forever being bombarded become visible to us as shooting-stars or meteors. When these have ended their brief but brilliant career across the sky they fall to the ground as minute specks of dust, and not even a snowflake falls more gently or silently. The larger objects, weighing up to 28 or 30 pounds, appear as dazzling fireballs which travel slowly across the heavens and sometimes light up a whole district before they come to earth. The very largest often drop into the water, as, for instance, that which fell into one of the American lakes some time ago. It has been calculated that no fewer than 460 million meteors drop upon the earth every day. Most people will conclude that all this solid matter must add to the bulk of the earth. And so it does, but it takes a surprisingly long time to make any appreciable difference. No less a period than 185 million years is required for the rain of dust, rock and metal to increase the size of the earth by half an inch.

GLORIA CARUSO WILL INHERIT BULK OF CARUSO WEALTH

Although no intimation of the manner in which the fortune amassed by Enrico Caruso will be disposed of, has come from any of those most intimately concerned, it is believed that little Gloria, his two-year-old daughter, will receive the bulk of it. Estimates place the Caruso fortune at varied figures ranging from $500,000 to $5,000,000.

FINE THREE OF MEN TAKEN IN VENICE RAID

CAPTAIN BURNEY OF TORONTO ASSESSED $1,000 WHEN HE ADMITTED BEING CONSIGNEE OF LIQUOR.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press.)— Three of the seven men arrested yesterday morning in connection with the seizure of the Canadian liquor carrying yacht Venice, pleaded guilty in Police Judge McMahon's Court today and were fined.

The men fined were Ivy Burney and Charles Cianciolo, both of Cleveland, and Captain William L. Curry, Toronto, Ont., master of the Venice.

Burney was fined $1000 when he admitted being the consignee of the 96 cases of liquor on the yacht.

Curry was fined $500 under the State law for transporting liquor, and Ciancilo, the driver of the truck into which the liquor from the yacht was being loaded, was fined $500.

SERIOUSLY HURT AUTO ACCIDENT ON AYLMER ST.

While riding a bicycle, Edward Garvey, 15 year old son of Mrs. Mary Garvey, 442 Driscoll Terrace, received serious injuries at 3.15 p.m. today when he was struck and knocked down by a six-cylinder McLaughlin automobile driven by H. Clarke, R. R. No. 5, Peterboro, at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets.

The boy was riding a girl's wheel east on Charlotte and turned into Aylmer to go north. The big car also turned into Aylmer from the east and just north of the corner the colision occurred. It seems that both the boy and driver of the car became confused.

Young Garvey's injuries were not determined. There was no doctor near and he was rushed to the Medical and Surgical Clinic in Ed. Wright's car. Clarke reported to the police. He was not held and promised to report later in the afternoon. The boy's father, William J. Garvey was a victim of the Quaker Oats fire.

PUBLIC IS CARELESS WITH POSTAL PARCELS.

The British postal authorities have complained to the Canadian offices of the delay and inconvenience caused by persons who neglect to make known the contents of a parcel on their Customs declarations. If there is no room on the Customs declaration papers for the statement, it should be placed on the wrapper. Complaint is also made of persons using general terms, such as candy, groceries, presents, etc. The exact nature of the contents of the parcel should be legibly written either on on the wrapper.

9,000,000 EGGS A YEAR

The poultry farmer who has to be content with the annual production of a couple of hundred eggs from each hen would like to learn the fish's secret of producing eggs so prolifically. The cod tops the list with nine million annually, then comes the sturgeon with seven and a half million. Another great producer is the flounder, which just touches the million. The mackerel deposits half a million eggs, the perch four hundred thousand, while the humble herring is content with a paltry ten thousand. Eggs are generally deposited in sand or gravel though fish which live on the bed of the ocean attach their eggs to seaweed. Fish are almost entirely carnivorous and have no compunction whatever in swallowing their own young. It is by smell rather than by sight that they obtain their food.

MANY OSHAWA FANS ARE COMING HERE TO-MORROW

Oshawa has already got to-morrow's game with the Petes counted as a win for the Motor crew. The Oshawa Reformer remarks that "Oshawa fans in large numbers will follow the team to Peterborough on Saturday afternoon to witness the Petes' downfall right in their own ball yard." The cocky gang from the town of cars and wretched pavements, are likely to find the task a little more difficulty than they anticipate, for the Solomon crew, fighting with their backs to the wall, are out to grab off a win and keep in the running. Oshawa are expected to use Dainty in this battle if the tempermental southpaw is willing to work — otherwise Patton will perform. The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp and the biggest crowd of the season will be on hand.

A FITTING CLOSE FOR THE CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE

Oshawa Reformer: The Central Ontario League will this year be brought to a close in a more fitting manner, the plans of which are now being arranged by Secretary J. G. Nott and President Kimmel. At the conclusion of the playing season, it has been decided to stage a game between the new champions, and an all-star team picked from the remainder of the C.O.B.L. teams to take place in the city where the championship is claimed. The game will be followed by a banquet at which the Johnson Cup will be presented. While it has been suggested in previous years that a programme similar to this be held, it has never been carried out, but this year something worth while is being promised by these officials.

The Canadian Woollens Athletic Association have drawn up an interesting program of sports for their first field day, which will be held at the Exhibition Park on Saturday, September 10. 50 yards handicap, under 10.
75 yards handicap, under 15.
60 yards sack race, girls under 15.

Miscellaneous Events.

The committee in charge of the athletic meet have also included tentatively the following contests: greasy pole (open), catching greasy pig (open), tug-o'-war, for team of nine men (open to the city), putting the shot and a tug-o'-war between lady teams representing the Auburn and Bonner-Worth mills.

There will also be competitions such as kicking the football, throwing cricket ball at wicket, throwing baseball, dribbling football 100 yards, shooting football at goal and a wheelbarrow race for ladies' blindfolded, and also throwing quoits.

Three-Mile Race Probable.

The committee will also make an effort to secure entries for a three-mile open race, which may include Charlie Thorpe, Albert Smoke and others. There is nothing definite about this event, but if a promising field of starters can be secured it will certainly be included in the programme and will be given special prominence.

A nominal fee will be charged the entrants, and arrangements will be made to receive entries as early as possible. A programme will be prepared embodying all the events and the prizes offered for them. These programmes will be sold at 25 cents each and will also be accepted instead of admission tickets. In other words, the programme for the field day will admit the holder to the park. One of the local bands will be engaged for the afternoon, and all the arrangements will be laid out in a manner that should make this first field day under the auspices of the Canadian Woollens Athletic Association a big success.

BRIGHTON LOST TO CRESSMAN'S.

First Defeat of Season For Brighton Team.

Yesterday afternoon, in an especially fast game, Cressmans gave the good Brighton team their first defeat of the season on their own grounds by the score of five to two. The full nine innings were played in one hour and thirty-five minutes, which is a time record for a ball game in the Lakeshore town. The game was full of thrills and kept the crowd of over four hundred people on edge throughout. Two fast double plays by the big store team, Murphy to Rutherford to Cobb, and Hunter to Rutherford to Cobb, cut off promising Brighton rallies, and in the seventh, with runners on second and third and nobody out, Hunter, pitching his first innings of the season for Cressman's, got the next batter at first and struck out the two following, leaving both base runners stranded.

Cobb's hitting was also a feature, getting three clean hits out of four times at bat.

After the game the Brighton management and team were splendid hosts and the store boys voted the trip the best of the season.

BASEBALL

Discussing American League pitching, a New York writer makes this comment on "Dutch" Leonard, ace of Tyrus Cobb's hurling staff:

"Leonard looks just like the great left-hander that he was when he pitched for Boston in the days, not so long ago, when the Red Sox won the world's championship, and when Leonard was good in those days there was not a better southpaw anywhere. In the game against the Yankees he had his curve ball breaking better than in any game he has pitched against New York in years. It had real speed behind it and it broke down on the Yankee batsmen in a way that had them acting as though they were hypnotized. The Yanks kept popping up the ball or striking out. Leonard made them look especially bad when New York had men on bases."

This curve ball, that looked so impressive, is in fact something new in Leonard's delivery. It is a knuckle ball and Leonard has been working on it for three years. Just now he is perfecting it and in the last month Leonard has pitched ball that should have been unbeatable in each instance, but, strangely enough, he has won few games, being taken out for a pinch batsman in the latter part of five contests that he worked in. This would have been unnecessary had Leonard received support. Pitching great ball he is the unluckiest hurler in the majors (unless you care to count in Naylor, of the Athletics) in that his support always sags at some critical point and provides a run or two or three to the opposition that brings about a tie score, as in the five games mentioned. But Leonard continues pitching and with the knuckle ball breaking for him, he is delivering the best ball of any portsider in the League.

POWDER FOR PITCHERS USELESS.

Ban Johnson has received word from his umpires that the new powder, invented by a Philadelphia chemist, and used in every city of the American League, is a failure. This powder was supposed to solve the trouble experienced with new base balls. Unable to "doctor" the new and glossy covers of the balls, pitchers found it impossible to grip them and exercise control. The League tried to find a way to remedy the matter and finally decided to adopt the powder offered by the chemist. But now this is inadequate and really creates a condition worse than the original one. The powder puts a "drip" white surface on the ball, packs the seams and makes it impossible to firmly grip the sphere. Boxes of powder can be found in all the umpires' rooms of the American League parks, but, with the long list of complaints and evidence before him Mr. Johnson will undoubtedly cause the powder to be thrown out and permit the pitcher to rub the ball with dirt. Anyway, that is just what the pitchers are doing now without any official permit.

In the meantime, several chemists are at work trying to evolve some substitute for the white powder that will discolor the ball to some extent, make the cover "grippable" and, at the same time, give no undue advantage to the pitcher.

The second game in the Corner Lot Ball League was played at the Oval last evening between the Black Bucks and the Campers.

The Campers were the winners, holding the lead throughout the evening, with a final score of 10 to 4.

The batteries were: Campers, Field and Northcott: Blacks Mucks, Maudsley and Hinds.

BANKERS WON FROM HASTINGS.

The Bankers, Juvenile League champions, journeyed to Hastings yesterday for an exhibition game, beating the home team 9 to 5, and thus getting revenge for a loss earlier in the season at the hands of the Hastings outfit. Lefty Turner and Shaughnessy did the twirling for the Bankers, the latter striking out five men in the last three innings, while Rogers was behind the bat.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR.

Chief Bender pitched a no-hit game for New Haven against Bridgeport.

FIELD DAY ENTRIES

All entries for the Canadian Woollens Athletic Association Field Day to be held at Exhibition Park on Saturday, September 10th must be in by September 1st. Entries are to be mailed to Mr. A. Brooks, 833 Water street.

AT THE THEATRES

"THREE LIVE GHOSTS" SCORES A BIG HIT

HALIFAX ENDORSES ITS REPUTATION AS "FUNNIEST PLAY IN YEARS."

Philip Klein's latest production of "Three Live Ghosts," which will appear at the Grand Aug. 23rd, is a rollicking good English comedy by Frederic S. Isham from his story of the same name. The scenes are laid in London in 1917 and deal with three men who return to life though supposedly dead. In a deliciously humorous manner, Mr. Isham describes the effect of one boy's return home one day upon his drunken, greedy old witch of a mother. One of the Pals is "wanted" by Scotland Yard and the reprehensible Mrs. Gubbins, commonly called "Old Sweetheart," by her appreciative son, is all for turning him over to the authorities and claiming a righteous reward. But when he returns home one day with a rich haul she meditates on the benefits which might accrue if she kept him to herself and let him pry his trade unmolested by the police.

And so the play goes on, brim full of fun and humor, it is a human play with great chances for character acting and Philip Klein has chosen a very capable cast that brings out every good point and keeps the audience in gales of laughter. The exceptionally good cast includes Ruby Hallier, who enriches the part of the spiritious Mrs. Gubbins, Harry Vincent who plays the errant son, Jimmie; George Duthie, as the impressive Scotland Yard detective and other who make the play the liveliest comedy of merit that has appeared in this city in many moons.

AT THE ALLEN.

AT THE ALLEN

One critic has rescribed Charlie Ray's smile as being "ghost-like and yet delightful." It's pretty difficult to reconcile the two extremes, but it must be admitted there is something unusual in the brand of smile he hands out in "Peaceful Valley," which is the attraction at the Allen Theatre for the balance of the week.

AT THE ALLEN

Once more Charles Ray has demonstrated in the delineation of so-called rube characters he is by far the peer of al motion picture stars.

This time he proves his superior talent as a portrayer of "hick" parts in a delightful celluloid version of Sol Smith Russell's great stage hit, "Peaceful Valley," which is the attraction at the Allen Theatre for balance of the week.

Ray takes the part of Hosiah Howe, a hard-working farmer lad of happy disposition, with a widowed mother and little sister to provide for. It is no exaggeration to say that in this role he has contributed to the screen a character that ranks as one of the most noteworthy achievements of the silent drama.

The photoplay is filled with humor and pathos, with a spirit of optimism predominating. It is one of those clean-cut, wholesome cinema productions that never fail to leave an audience thoroughly refreshed.

AT THE CAPITOL.

One of Maurice Tourneur's best and most recent productions was shown at the Capitol Theatre last night. It is an unusual picture, which held the attention of the audience from beginning to end. "The Great Redeemer" is a title which needs no explanation and the theme of the photo-play, the Saviour's love for erring mankind, with the changes wrought in the souls of hardened criminals is one which requires delicate handling. There is always a drawing power in the religious note, no matter how we try to get away from it, as witness the great crowds who throng to a presentation of the "Passion Play," "The Servant in the House," and so on, but the human appeal in last night's show is so simple that its effect seemed almost miraculous. To those who are not too deeply sunk in realism, there is nothing startling in a present day miracle, and on the whole the audience seemed to appreciate the play, and flippant remarks were conspicuously absent. Some people near me found it a bit weird and disliked the tortured, remorse-stricken ravings of the condemned murderer, but the stage is replete with examples of horror-stricken humanity, and I did not find anything objectionable in this particular instance. It is really necessary to the working out of the plot. House Peters is an ideal choice for the daring outlaw, whose love for a sweet, innocent young girl, combined with a natural gift for drawing, caused him to eventually overcome his evil habits and gain the great reward.

The opening scenes of the play depicting the usual bandit gang holding up the "Overland Limited" and robbing the passengers are along familiar lines. The sheriff is quite as mean and hateful loking as Dan Malloy, the bandit leader is brave and handsome. So it is very natural that the little girl, whose father is in temporary difficulties, should fall in love with the gallant man seeking shelter, once convinced he means no harm to her. While hiding, Dan sees the sheriff attempting to force his attentions on the unwilling girl, played by the charming Marjorie Daw, and promises before leaving the house, that if she will believe in him, he will go straignt; also leaving her money enough to allow her father to pay back his indebtedness to the easterners who trusted him, and whom he deceived. As may be imagined in a small western town, it is not long before the suspicions of the sheriff are aroused about the stranger who finds such favour with the girl he considers his sweetheart. He determines to "get" the man and frames up a trap whereby Dan succumbs to the lure of the old life and is caught in the act, holding up the stage. Ten years at hard labour is the sentence received, and one sees the prospect of a living death opening up before the former bandit as the prison gates receive him and bang grimly after him. The story proceeds to give us uncomfortable, unsavoury views of brutal prison guards. A murderer about to be hanged next day becomes almost a maniac through fear and hate, only to fling a Bible offered him by the prison chaplain, into the cell of the outlaw, who spends every moment drawing pictures on the wall. From his drawing of Dempsey, his eye falls on the open page of the Bible, showing a picture of the Saviour crucified. To appreciate the dramatic effect of the last scenes one must really see this remarkable picture. How the change is wrought on the raging, blasphemous murderer, hurling curses on God and man, as the saving features of Christ appear on the prison wall, how he finally succumbs to the miraculous effects of divine love, must be seen to be appreciated. Even the erstwhile brutal guards feel the divine presence, and so impressed are all who hear of it that a petition is signed by thousands for the release of the artist who was instumental in bringing about the strange phenomenon. No sooner out of bondage than he makes straight for the little town of Amethyst, only to find his dear little girl fleeing from the arms of the half-crazed sheriff into a teeming, terrific rainstorm. As in all satisfactory stories, the sheriff falls a victim to his own evil passions and leaves the future cloudless and full of promise for the true, loving little girl and her reformed lover.

The cast is exceptionally good, but of course Majorie Daw has the female end of it all to herself, and House Peters deserves all the praise he receives both as to his acting and appearance. To me there is a very strong resemblance to Faversham and William Gillette—in other words he is an ideal hero.

The Pathe Review and Paramount Magazine seak for themselves. Particularly interesting were the views of large birds, rising gradually and gracefully into the air, every movement featured by the ultra-rapid motion camera.

A comedy called "Kids As Pals" caused many laughs, combining likewise a never failing attraction with the slap-stick methods, namely, a lively little baby and a very intelligent dog, Brownie, which seemed to solve the "help" problem quite efficiently. An ardous and persistent search for a bottle of "hooch" lost in the briny proved that the cartoon was quite "up to the minute," as the ads say, while the Burton Holmes' travel picture gave a glimpse at Malacca, the oldest European settlement on the Malayan archipelago, and at the wonderful scenery of the Pyrenees.

GERMANS USE WHALE MEAT FOR HAMBURGER

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 19.—(United Press)—The German taste for hamburger seems to be greater than their supply of meat with which to make it.

At any rate, exports of whale meat from this port to Germany are rapidly increasing. It was said that whale meat was to be used in the manufacture of hamburger in Germany, and that in many cases it was actually preferred to any other ingredient.

The latest shipment of whale meat left here recently aboard the Holland-American freighter Noorderijk. Another will follow shortly.

WALL OF WATER FALLS ON TOWN.

Every Building Destroyed — Residents Escape Successfully.

LAS CRUCES, New Mexico, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Relief was being rushed to-day to residents of Hatch, N. M., 38 miles north of here, who fled to the hills when a wall of water from a cloudburst flooded the town and destroyed every building in it early yesterday. No loss of life was reported.

MUSIC FOR THE POSTAL WORKERS.

Little Jazz Might Help Peterborough Office.

WASHINGON, Aug. 19.—Music to improve the [illegible] of workers whose duties take them well i[illegible] the early hour[illegible] morning has been tried in the Minneapolis Post Office and proved a success, E. A. Purdy, the postmaster at that place, to day informed Postmaster General Hays.

The idea was tried, Mr. Purdy said, after he had made a psychological study of the conditoins under which his night force worked. He found that men working apart from the general noises of the day, as a rule, showed a low morale and were inclined to be morose and generally worried at being away from their familels, which resulted in an absence of enthusiasm in their work.

As an experiment a phonograph was installed and records which it was thought would rest the nerves and enliven the spirits of the employees, were tried nightly. There were gratifying results, Mr. Purdy said. Although he was careful to explain that no "jazz" was played until the fagg end of the night, as he "did not want the men juggling and tossing about letters and parcels." Everybody was more alert and at quitting time went home less tired, less worried and with a more efficient night's work done. The Postmaster General approved the idea, and said that he would watch further experiments with interest.

Mr. Purdy, who was characterized by Mr. Hays, as a "bird of a Postmaster, with a batting average of 1000, althouhg a Democrat," is in Washington to give the department some of the ideas which have made the Minneapolis office one of the best and most successful in the country, Mr. Hays said.

BIG PLUM CROP FROM ONE TREE

Mr. Osway Carver, of 592 Charlotte street, has had this year 200 quarts of plums from one tree. It is called the "Abundance Plum," and has evidently lived up to its name. Last year the tree yielded 100 quarts, which is remarkable, as usually plum trees yield only every other year. Mr. Carvel feels that the wonderful production of the tree is due to the care and cultivation that it gets, and what can be produced by him, can be produced by others with similar attention.

BAVARIA IS REAL GOAL OF BERGDOLL FLIGHT; HIS RUMORED TRIP TO SWITZERLAND A BLIND

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll has fled to Bavaria, according to information which has reached New York. A clumsy attempt has been made by Bergdoll and interested Germans to cover up his tracks. Stinnes's Deutsche Allgemeine Gazette printed a modest news item, tucked away on an inside page, bearing the suggestive headline, "The end of the Bergdoll case."

Recently, said this item, the report was circulated through the press that negotiations were being held between the American representative in Berlin, Mr. Dresel, and the German Government regarding Bergdoll. There was danger, the report continued, that the Bergdoll case might lead to numerous difficulties between the German Government and the United States. "However, it is reported from Eberbach that Bergdoll has disappeared," added the story. "He is said to have left with his automobile without indicating the goal of his journey. It is supposed that he has gone to Switzerland."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Gazette first said that this was a Wolff Agency report, but later that it came from one of its correspondents and and that no further details were known. There is reason to believe, however, that the rumor that Bergdoll had fled to Switzerland was put out to lead any one interested in Bergdoll's where abouts on a false scent and that in reality Bergdoll motored to Bavaria, seeking a safer sanctuary in that hospitable hotbed of monarchistic reaction.

About two weeks ago the Berlin papers printed a circumstantial story that the German Government had informally agreed to surrender Bergdoll to the American authorities as soon as a separate peace with America was signed, and that General March, during his visit here, had made informal, unofficial representations to the German authorities regarding Bergdoll's surrender.

The supposition was expressed here to-day that the German authorities might have let a strong "tip" be slipped to Bergdoll that he had better vanish from the scene and lie low during the final stages of German-American peace negotiations.

ACT SAFELY, THINK SAFETY

FALLS UNDER TROLLEY.

AMHERSTBURG, Ont., Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Mary Lafferty, 52, was probably fatally injured Sunday night when she attempted to board an Amherstburg street car about three miles out. Mrs. Lafferty tripped, and in some way fell under the heavy interurban car. She was taken immediately to the Hotel Dieu, Windsor, where it was found necessary to amputate both legs. Mrs Lafferty had been visiting friends on the Amherstburg line for the day. She lived here with her daughter.

TWO LADS DROWNED.

DIXVILLE, Que., Aug. 18. — A double drowning occurred here yesterday, when Philip Fortier, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Oliva Fortier, and Joseph Watts, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Watts, of this town, lost their lives while bathing. The bodies of the boys were recovered shortly after the accident. Heroic efforts at resuscitation failed of any result.

CABLE CATCHES MOTORIST UNDER CHIN; HE'LL RECOVER

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 18. — John Sutherland, Merritton, narrowly escaped being decapitated or nearly so late last night when he drove his auto against a cable stretched across George Street to indicate that the street was closed for paving. The auto hit the first cable, tearing it down and breaking the windshield, but the cable on the other side of the street caught Mr. Sutherland under the chin, inflicting two very bad cuts. He is in the hospital, but is likely to get over it, doctors say.

LAD DROWNS WHILE BATHING.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 19.—Arthur Davidson, aged 18, of Tempo, Ont., was drowned at Port Stanley yesterday afternoon while bathing in Lake Erie a short distance from the shore. He was an employee of the Casino, and had been out only a short time. The physician who examined the body attributed his death to heart failure.

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. The branch managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation, and are in close touch with crop conditions in all sections of the districts shown:

Prairie Provinces.

Edmonton District.—Cutting of wheat is general and outlook on the whole very favorable; yield should be high.

Lethbridge District.—Harvesting general. Rye threshing completed. Good returns wheat in south of district will average 15 to 30 bushels. First wheat sold is of excellent quality; yield light in other parts of district, but better than anticipated. All points report damage by rust and saw fly. Oats, rye and flax above average.

Saskatoon District.—Cutting started; amount of twine being used indicates heaviest wheat crop since 1915. Sample should be good. Oats satisfactory.

Winnipeg District. — Harvesting well under way; about 100 cars of wheat and rye already passed inspection. Quality good. Average yield expected throughout whole district.

Province of Quebec.

Harvesting operations are well under way, and a yield of sixty per cent. to seventy of an average crop is expected. Recent rains have been beneficial to root crops and grass pasture.

Province of Ontario.

Earlier indications of lighter yield of grains are confirmed by recent reports. Quality, however, is generally good. Corn is in excellent shape in all districts and promises a very heavy crop. Early potatoes are small but later varieties have improved and may make up the shortage. Other root crops are up to the average. Early apples are light; others fair. Plums and grapes good. Peaches average. Tobacco is in fine shape. Pasture still needs rain.

Maritime Provinces.

Cereals will be light, having been adversely affected by the prolonged drought. Oats expected to be about 60 per cent. of average. Recent rains have improved late crops, roots and grass pasture. Potatoes give promise of a light crop, probably 60 per cent. to 65 per cent. of average. The Nova Scotian apple crop is expected to be fairly good. Prince Edward Island reports potato and other crops much improved from recent rains.

Province of British Columbia.

Continued dry weather affecting all crops, particularly roots, although beneficial rains has fallen throughout Fraser Valley, which should assure previous estimate of potato yield of 80 per cent. Onions and tomatoes, good yield on smaller acreage. Grains are in good condition. Cutting general, average yield. Hops reported very good. Okanagan fruits are holding to previous very satisfactory estimates. Kootenay and other districts report tree fruits below average. Pasturage is fair.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, August 19. Canadian Press.—Trade was unusually light at the opening of the stock market to-day, but the losses exceeded the gains. Steels, equipments and motors were again under selling pressure. Union Bay and Paper was the heaviest of the specialties, falling 2 points. Sugars also were reactionary.

Although call money opened and renewed into next week at 5 1-2 per cent., prices suffered further irregular impairment during the morning. American Car, General Electric, Harvester, Great Northern Ore, Westinghouse, United States' Rubber, American Tobacco and Retail Stores reacted one to two points and selling of Pullman continued. The entire sugar crop was heavy, notably Cuba Cane preferred, and American Linseed fell 3 5-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Wheat prices showed more steadiness to-day than has been the rule of late. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1-2 cent higher, with September 1.16 3-4 to 1.17 and December 1.17 1-2 to 1.18, were followed by a moderate set-back and then by a rally to about yesterday's finish.

After opening 7-8 cents off to [illegible] cents higher, including Sept. at 52 to 52 1-2, the Corn market underwent a general sag.

Oats developed a little firmness, owing to receipts being smaller. Prices started 1-8 to 3-8 lower, but then scored slight gains.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.— (Canadian Press.) — Sterling exchange easy. Demand $3.64 3-4. Canadian Dollars 9 7-8 p.c. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Business was very dull and price changes confined to small fractions on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Total sales of listed stock amounted to under 300 shares of which Dominion Steel accounted for 125 at 27 1-4, a gain of 1-4 from yesterday. Steamer preferred sold off quarter of a point to 5 1-2.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—A few odd shares here and there were sold in the first hour on the Stock Exchange this morning in another very dull market. The irregular tendency which has been displayed by the market lately was a feature of the early trading. Brazilian, after opening at 22 3-4, gained a 1-4 to 23, while Dominion Steel opened a quarter down at 27 1-2. Shawinigan on the other hand was a point up at 103. Other sales showed very little change over yesterday's levels.

DID NOT DISCUSS ELECTION MATTER

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—"The matter was not even mentioned," said Premier Meighen, when asked regarding the possibility of an immediate election at the close of the Cabinet Council to-day.

RURAL MAIL MEN AFTER INCREASE

WANT FEE OF $70 A MILE A YEAR IN COUNTRY—THE PETERBORO RURAL CARRIERS INCLUDED.

An effort is being made at present to obtain more satisfactory conditions for the rural mail contractors and those who take contracts for carrying the mail to and from the stations in the cities. Garfield McKinnon, agent-general and secretary-treasurer for the Rural Mail Deliverers' Association, has presented their case in detail to the Government, and a circular letter outlining the wishes of the association has been sent to every member of the assembly and Senate.

Not satisfied that enough had been done, the secretary of the society canvassed each member of Parliament separately, and appeared before the Postmaster-General, and put before him the facts of the case, asking that het society's requests be granted, that the society's requests be granted before Mr. Blondin again, accompanied by several members of the assembly, and discussed the matter with him, aided by the members. Feeling that they are underpaid, and that the existing conditions are not all that they might be, the rural deliverers are asking that a number of requests be granted them.

In the first place, they want all contracts cancelled, and all the contractors immediately placed on a permanent salary with a rate of $70.00 a mile per year for the rural contractors, and three times the present rate for the station to post office carriers.

To offset the loss sustained during the past four years, it is the desire of the association that the increased rate shall date from January, 1917, and shall include all contractors who have done work in that period. On account of the increased cost of living, the letter carriers in the cities received a war bonus, but nothing was done for the country postmen in any way.

Secondly, they are asking that all arrears of money owing to them be paid at once. Every person who enters into a contract with the Government in regard to mail-carrying has their first month's pay held back until their contract expires at the end of four years, and therefore do not receive any pay for two months and a half after they begin work. Besides this, the cheques are sometimes a week or ten days overdue.

On rural routes, the postman works on all statutory holidays. These nine days are being asked for with full pay. On account of the boxes on both sides of the road, a number of accidents have occurred in the past year. To remedy this, the contractors suggest that all boxes be placed on the right hand side of the road.

Due to the time that the train arrives in some of the smaller places, the deliverers find it necessary to leave with the mail as late as four o'clock in the afternoon, thus necessitating them being on their routes for the greater part of the evening.

Another request is that all be allowed to leave at 8 o'clock in the morning only.

The case of the contractors is receiving the endorsation of a number of public bodies throughout Canada. When the Canadian Municipal convention was held in Ottawa last month, the grievances of the men were presented to them, and again to the car men's convention in Toronto last week, where they voted their heartiest support.

It would seem that the association has cause to complain, and it is to be hoped that all matters between them and the postal department will be satisfactorivl arranged.

MARKETING PRODUCTS OF FARMS BIG PROBLEM

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press).—"The problem of marketing farm products will be the greatest question confronting western agrarians for the next five years," Prof. John Bracken, President of the Manitoba Agriculture College, declared in a recent address on "Some Problems of Western Agriculture," at a short course and conference for publishers, held here.

"The problem necessitates lessening the cost of 'production in' order to meet severe competition of countries producing similar commodities," the Professor stated.

"Distribution, including transportation, and retailing of produce also are important factors in the development of western agriculture." Prof. Bracken said. He asked the rural editors to study the farmers' problems so as to give them all the assistance possible.

NAPOLEON'S TOMB AT ST. HELENA IN DISREPAIR

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Napoleon's original tomb on St. Helena has fallen into a sad state of disrepair since the body was removed in state to the Invalides in Paris 81 years ago, according to a letter received by Sir Lees Knowles, a former cabinet minister, from a recent visitor to that remote island.

"I walked the five and one-half miles uphill to Longwood, Napoleon's old home," the writer says, "and inspected his much neglected tomb which is down in a deep corner of a deep valley— just a slab covered with dirty whitewash —no inscription whatever. The grass around was upkept, and surrounded by a circle, about 20 paces in diameter, of tall trees, and there was nothing anywhere to tell a visitor when the body was removed, or to whom the old tomb had belonged."

MOTOR BANDITS ROB JEWELRY STORE NEAR OTTAWA, ESCAPING AFTER GUN FIGHT WITH POLICE

AFTER SECURING $2,000 WORTH OF JEWELRY AT BUCKINGHAM QUINTET IS INTERCEPTED BY OTTAWA POLICE AT GATINEAU POINT.

OTTAWA, Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Five armed automobile bandits robbed the jewellery store of Elias Barbeau, Main Street, Buckingham, Que., early this morning of various articles of jewellery valued at $2,000, and emerging victorious from a brief gun fight with a squad of Ottawa constables sent to intercept them at Gatineau Point, a village on the outskirts of this city, were able to make good their escape.

When last seen the car was proceeding at a high speed in the general direction of Carleton Place, Ont.

The owner of the Buckingham jewellery store, who lives above the premises, was awakened about two o'clock this morning by sounds of breaking glass. He reached the downstairs part of the house in time to see five men departing in a high-powered red touring car.

Police officials in the surrounding districts were notified by telephone, and every avenue of escape was guarded. The Ottawa police sent a squad of five men to a point of vantage on the Gatineau Road. Their command to the driver of the car, however, was answered with a volley of shots from the other occupants of the car, and the car brushed past them, nearly running them down.

The police gave chase in an automobile, but were unable to maintain the terrific speed set by the bandits and the bandits escaped.

It has been learned that the bandit car was later seen at a notorious road-house on the Chelsea Road. There were five occupants, and, according to reports, they were all intoxicated. One of the men was seen lying on the road, and was, according to the story told the police, either hurt or very intoxicated.

SINN FEIN TO BOYCOTT GOODS FROM ULSTER?

REPORTED TO PLAN THIS TO COERCE THE NORTH.

BELFAST, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press). — Interviews printed here attributed to Alderman Macdonagh, of Dublin, of the Dail Eireann Labor Department, declare economic pressure against Ulster, designed to bring Northern Ireland peaceably to what the Sinn Fein would regard as a more reasonable attitude, will result in the complete shutting off shortly of the movement of goods from Belfast for Southern Ireland.

SUNDAY STREET CARS MAY BE DISCONTINUED

BUSINESS WAS LIGHT LAST WEEK AND ANOTHER SUNDAY OR TWO OF SIMILIAR LOSS WILL WIND UP THE SERVICE.

Peterborough's Sunday street cars will soon follow the swallows and the last rose of summer, if in fact they do not precede them in disappearing before the advancing fall. Some of the employees have been predicting that the cars would be called in before August ends, and others will give odds on the discontinuance of the service before September is far gone. Last Sunday's collection was light picking, and conductors are scoffing at the suggestion that the cars were much used by church-goers. The Sunday cars served their purpose apparently in enabling citizens to get away to the lake and river the excessively warm weeks of summer. With the coming of autumn that attraction is removed, and business will undoubtedly drop to a mere nominal traffic. Such are opinions of employees based on the "empties" that were carried last Sunday.

SCHOOL BOARD HARD UP; SCHOOLS MAY BE CLOSED.

JAPAN'S POSITION ON ARMS MEETING TO BE UNCHANGED

At present, it is forecast that the reply will be in the nature of a reiteration of the position of Japan, which has been voiced in formal notes sent to Washington.

Pessimism Over Irish Situation

NATIONAL AND CIVIL WAR IN ITS MOST TERRIBLE FORM WOULD FOLLOW BREACH OF TRUCE.

LONDON, Aug. 20.— (Canadian Prss.)—Despatches from Dublin to London newspapers appear to reflect pessimism over the Irish situation, in view of the latest developments.

Henry W. Nevinson, war correspondent and author, telegraphing to the Daily Herald, says the situation is "undoubtedly very serious," and he "is unable to see hope as brightly as some do." However, he admits that hope still exists.

"If the Irish Republican leader," his despatch continues, "frames a reply to Great Britain's terms and submit it to the Daily Eireann for approval, rather than discussion, it almost certainly will be accepted with minor alterations. Members of the Dail are, for the most part, accustomed to discipline and were elected or appointed for field service. Danger for further negotiations and subsequent peace comes from the influence of theorists and doctrinaries upon a spirit of militarism."

In discussing the prospect if negotiations fail, Mr. Nevinson declares: "If the truce be broken, war in its most terrible form will sweep through Ireland. Civil war will be added to national war, and all who refuse to support the Republican army will be driven from the country and shot.

The Dublin correspondent of the Daily News says Prime Minister Lloyd George is being charged with "rattling the sabre" in his address yesterday in the House of Commons. He says the speech may do indefinite harm.

RACE FEELING FLARES AFTER NEGRO ATTACK

SHERIFF ASKS FOR TROOPS TO GUARD PRISON WHERE THREE NEGROES ARE HELD FROM RESCUE ATTEMPT.

WHILE WHITE MOBS THREATEN LYNCHING

BARNSTABLE, Mass., Aug. 20. —(By United Cress.)—Fearing a negro mob would storm his jail to rescue three Cape Verde negroes held there, Sheriff Samuel C. Rosenthal early to-day asked the commander of Camp Perkins to rush more troops to the scene. He said he had been informed negroes in the 'Jungle Town' section of Onset, Mass., were preparing to remove from prison the three islanders who were arrested, charged with attacking Miss Gertrude Butler. A white mob has twice menaced the jail, threatening to lynch the negroes.

GET LORD BYNG TO OPEN FAIR

THIS IS THE OBJECTIVE OF EXHIBITION BOARD.

Who will apen the Peterboro Industrial Exhbition this year? President Denne said last night Hon. Dr. Tolme, Minister of Agriculture couldn't arrange to do it and he suggested trying to secure the new Governor-General as chief functionary. He said he realzed there was not much chance of his coming but it wouldn't do any harm to try. It was agreed that Lord Byng of Vimy would be a premier attraction and it was left to Mr. R. M. Glover to wire or write the Governor-General and if unsuccessful seek some prominent public man elsewhere to declare the Exhibition open.

Efforts to have Premier E. C. Drury here have ben unsuccessful. T. Tooms, M. L. A. received the following letter from Premier Drury in reply to an invitation to be present. xxxx

Toronto, Aug. 16, 1921

Dear Mr. Tooms:—

I have received your letter of the 10th August extending, on behalf of the Board of Directors of the Peterboro Agricultural Exhibition an invitation to attend the Fair to be held during the week of September 14th. I would be pleased indeed if it was possible for me to comply with your request, but I find I will be in the western part of the Province during that week. You might therefore, kindly express my regrets to the Committee.

Yours very truly,
E. C. DRURY.

IRISH LEADERS CONFERRING ON THE SITUATION

DAIL EIREANN HAS NOT YET COMMENCED OFFICIAL DISCUSSION OF REPLY TO BRITISH PEACE OFFER.

DE VALERA LEARNS OF PARLIAMENT SPEECHES

DUBLIN, Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Leaders of the Irish Republican Parliament were expected to confer with Eammon De Valera, their chief, to-day at Black Rock, where he is spending the week-end at the home of Prof. John McNeill, Speaker of "Parliament." Before Mr. De Valera left for Black Rock he received despatches telling of the addresses at London yesterday of Prime Minister Lloyd-George and Lord Curzon, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and it was believed that the text of these speeches would be considered by the Dail Eireann leaders, preparatory to the reassembly of the Sinn Fein leaders here on Monday.

Formal discussion of the reply to be sent to London in reply to the British offer looking to a settlement of the Irish controversy has not commenced, but it is believed that the rank and file of Parliament have been apprised of the attitude of Mr. De Valera and his colleagues relative to further negotiations. The attitude of the members yesterday appeared to be hopeful, but no inkling was given as to the sentiment prevailing as to continuing the parleys.

FARMER'S MARKET WELL ATTENDED

SPRING CHICKENS BECOMING PLENTIFUL—THE PRICES-

The farmers' market was very large to-day, and there was unusual activity. Sales of fruit and vegetables were good, and by eleven o'clock many of the gardeners did not have a thing left.

Eggs were selling freely at 35 cents, and spring chickens were down to 35 cents.

Butter seemed steadier than last week at 45 cents, and there were fairly good quantities.

All manner of fruits and vegetables could be found on the open market. New potatoes were not very plentiful, and sold at 60 cents a peck. There were waggons full of corn. Yellow Bantam was 20 cents. Cucumbers were 50 cents a basket for large ones; picklers were scarce, and sold as high as $1.25

Beets, carrots, lettuce, radishes, onions, parsley, and other small stuff were selling at 5 cents a bunch.

There were quite a few vegetable marrows going at 15 and 20 cents, and one gardener had pumpkins, the first of the season, at 20 cents.

Duchess and St. Lawrence apples were bringing good prices. Huge quantities of Duchess sold at 60 cents a peck; but one man had nice St. Lawrence at 40 cents.

Plums went like wildfire, blues bringing 15 cents readily.

There was honey in bulk and in combs on to-day's market. By the pail it brought 25 cents a pound, or in combs 30 cents.

Quarters of lamb were selling on the open market at 25 cents pound.

WHEN WILL YOU DIE?

A POISONED SYSTEM SOON DECAYS.

Ninety per cent. of us die 20 years before we should; we neglect ourselves by forgetting we have a Liver. When the Liver is not working our system becomes clogged with all sorts of poisons, causing Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, etc. There is only one drug known that acts directly upon the Liver and that is Tanated Calomel. Doctors say you should take one before meals and at bedtime, and in one to five days you will feel 100 per cent. better. You cannot expect to live long or feel well if you do not take care of your Liver. When your Liver does not exeret bile into the intestines, the waste collects in the bowels and is carried away by the blood causing all sorts of aches and pains.

Making the Hip Safe for Flask

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — Whether the nation will be flooded with beer soon depended to-day on Andrew J. Volstead, author of the Prohibition laws.

Here is the situation to-day:

Volstead opposes the Stanley amendment to the anti-medicinal beer bill which forbids dry agents from hunting liquor unless armed with search warrants. This amendment would hamper prohibition enforcement. Unless Voltsead yields on this point his opposition will hold up the whole anti-medicinal beer bill until it is killed by the congressional adjournment next Thursday.

In that case the internal revenue bureau will proceed to issue its regulations governing the sale of beer for medicinal purposes. Those regulations are only being withheld now because there is a chance Congress will pass the bill making medicinal beer illegal.

Senators and Congressmen say they are being swamped with letters from all parts of the country urging them to stand fast for the Stanley amendment, which the wets contend safeguards the sanetity of the American home and hip pocekts against invasions by the dry agents.

RIGA, August 20 (United Press). —Relief started for starving Russia to-day.

Brown, head of the United States Relief Administration, removed by the signing of a contract containing 27 articles with mutual pledges, orders went out from the relief headquarters here to start everything moving.

Inspection parties of the Relief Administration here will enter Russia next week.

SALE OF HOSE AT TURNBULL'S

Through a regrettable mix-up of display headings and items of Ladies 'Silk Hose and Ladies' Mercerized Silk Hose in the J. C. Turnbull Co's advertisement yesterday, headings, prices and descriptions did not agree, and must have conveyed a misleading impression. Ladies Silk Hose (seconds) showed the wrong price in the heading, and was above the description of Mercerized Lisle Hose, which quality of goods was quoted at 29c a pair in the heading, instead of 69c, and unfortunately placed above the description of Ladies' Silk Hose. The mix-up was mainly a matter of transpositions, and the panel of this advertisement should have read as follows:

THE CORRECT VALUES.

Ladies' Silk Hose (Seconds) 29c Pair Fashioned and seamless make in colors of black and whtie. They are seconds but all imperfections are factory repaired and they are just as good as firsts as far as wearing qualities ore concerned. All sizes may be had at ..... 29c pair

DRAFT REASONS FOR COMPLETE DISARMAMENT

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., August 20 (Canadian Press). — Fifty prominent women from various points of the United States and Canada opened a two-day conference at the Clifton Hotel to-day, over which Miss Elinor Byrnes, of New York City, president of the Women's Peace Society, presided.

The purpose of the conference is to form a Pan-American Peace Society, which will embrace Canada, the United States, and Mexico, and federate from pole to pole the American continent instead of reaching out of Europe.

SINCLAIR CAN'T COME

Completing final arrangements for the Exhibiton, the Board of Directors met last night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with President R. Denne in the chair. There were 20 directors at the meeting.

Secretary Fred Hall read a letter from J. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of Agricultural Societies warning the Board against allowing any nefarious gaming devices to be operated on the grounds, and asking that two or more special constables be sworn in to guard against not only gamblers and fakirs activities but also to stop all immoral or indecent shows.

A motion of Mr. R. M. Glover's was passed that Mr. Wilson be notified that the Exhibition Board turn over the responsibility for a clean show to the police.

Mr. T. Brown and his assistant will, however, as usual, be sworn in as special constables.

Sinclair Can't Come.

Dr. J. A. Sinclair of Cannington advised the Board he could not act as starter this year, as he cannot get away from Ottawa on the 16th. He suggested Alexander Brownlee of Barrie as a good starter. Mr. Webber Turner will follow up this suggestion. Regret was expressed at "Doc," Sinclair's inability to start the horses.

New Accountant.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe has for many years kept account of the ticket sales and performed the work efficiently and scientifically but this year, he told the board, in a letter, he was unable to perform the work on account of the press of other duties. Many members spoke their appreciation of his services. They left with Mr. Webber Turner the securing of a successor.

Special Trains.

Mr. R. M. Glover reported that while he could not yet give an assurance of special trains on the Lindsay and Lakefield lines he could arrange for a special train leaving here at 10 p.m. on either Thursday or Friday for Campbellford. After some discussion he was instructed to close the agreement for a special on Thursday on the Campbellford line and continue his negotiations for others on the same date.

School Children's Day.

Thursday was fixed as School Childrens Day and the Board of Education will be so notified. An effort will be made to have all retailers cooperate with the Board by closing their shops on Thursday

U. S. RAIL FINANCES BEGIN TO REVIVE.

Hope to Show Net Earnings of Half a Billion This Year.

BY HAROLD D. JACOBS,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The railroads have "turned the cerner" in their financial condition, says Thomas De Witt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

Cuyler, in a statement to the United Press to-day said it was hoped the carriers would show net earnings of at least half a million dollars for this year.

Further "drastic reductions" in operating expenses are necessary, however, before the railroads can make any general reduction in rates, he said.

"As a result of the war and of the period of federal control, the earning power of the American railways was practically destroyed," Cuyler declared.

"Net earnings declined from approximately $934,000,000 in 1917 to approximately $62,000,000 in 1920.

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH SKIN WHITE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whitness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD CLINCH GROUP; DEFEATED HAVELOCK BY 9-5

HAVELOCK, August 19. — Campbellford won the Trent group of the intermediate lacrosse series by defeating Havelock here this afternoon by the score of 9 goals to 5, and qualified for the next round, which will likely be played with Oshawa.

It was the last and deciding game of the district schedule, terminating a series of games that has demonstrated the popularity of lacrosse and its strong appeal as the national summer pastime.

An immense crowd circled the field, banked by hundreds of automobiles that made Havelock a rallying centre for the game of the season. There wasn't a car left in Campbellford, and the motor busses creaked in with capacity loads. Hastings; Norwood, Marmora and Stirling sent large contingents, and others came from Peterboro, Madoc and remoter centres.

The weather was ideal. A cool wind blew in from the south, and light clouds shut off the sun. The stage was all set for the lacrosse finale in so far as the local group was to be decided, and the first three periods produced a brand of lacrosse that was expected of the concluding and climacteric game. In some respects it fell below the quality of the last clash between these teams in Campbellford, probably because the third quarter provided an anti-climax that discounted the final score. There was some marked difference, but it probably does not call for an analysis.

The Campbellford team presented well-balanced strength from goal to goal. They gave the appearance at times of working under wraps; in other words they seemed to be holding something in reserve all the time, and created the impression that they could get goals whenever they needed them.

Havelock did not fulfil the promise which they gave earlier in the season, and one of their supporters stated that the team had not had a practice all week. And that is about the way that they performed. On occasion their work was brilliant. This particularly applies to Brinkman and King, who bore the brunt of the play on the home. Charles Holmes, McGee and Doug Brennan, gave all they had, but they seemed to be less effective than in other games this summer. Frequently the attacks of the forward line were spoiled by the sloppy handling of the ball and by passes that went wide or high

On the other hand Campbellford showed unmistakable improvement, a factor that must be counted in some of the weaknesses seen in the Havelock play. It must be recognized that the Trent team have had every opportunity to develop their style and tactics, and they have had the advantage of the coaching of "Dot" Phelan. And in this connection the team revealed that it had made good use of these opportunities. Kelly had a big day, and the defense smothered many an attack, although King and Brinkman sifted through them at times. King played his usual brilliant game, and got four of Havelock's five goals. Harte was perhaps to-day's star for Camp-

BREAD WAR STARTS

Price Cut to Two Cents a Loaf in Rivalry between Indiana Bakers.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 20. — Bread at two cents a loaf was the public's plunder to-day in a war between the local bakers and an outside bread concern.

The outside concern has been wraping each loaf separately and enclosing a check good for five cents in trade.

Local dealers who are also interested in South Bend bakeries, removed the checks and turned them into the company for more bread.

This enabled dealers to sell bread for less than cost and to attempt to stop competition by discrediting the "cheap bread."

LAKEFIELD BOY WITH PARTY OF THREE ON AN 8,000 MILES TRIP

FROM TORONTO TO FORT NORMAN, ON MACKENZIE RIVER—FIND CRUDE OIL AND STAKE 15 MILE CLAIM FOR W. S. DYER SYNDICATE.

A Lakefield boy, W. G. Ogilvie, enjoys the distinction of having made an eight thousand mile trip to Fort Norman and back to Toronto, in company with W. S. Dyer and R. E. Henderson, both of the Queen City.

Mr. Dyer is a member of the lecturing staff of the geology department of the University of Toronto, and also head of the W. S. Dyer Syndicate; and this journey to the far-western district of Canada's great North-Western Territory was made to stake out the syndicate's claim of 15 square miles of oil-producing holdings on the Mackenzie River.

Mr. Ogilvie expects to pay a visit to his home at Lakefield in a few days, when, no doubt, he will be found, like his companion, Mr. Dyer, who was in Peterborough on Thursday, fairly bubbling over with optimism of having located an oil-bearing field of stupendous promise, situated in the neighborhood of Fort Norman, between the two claims of the Imperial Oil Company. So sure is Mr. Dyer of his ground, that the S. W. Dyer Syndicate, with headquarters at Toronto, are arranging to organize an operating company with enough financial backing to thoroughly exploit the whole of their claim.

Flushed With Success.

This intrepid little party of three have returned from their three months' trip of rail and river and lake travel, with no inconsiderable roughing it, flushed with the exhilaration of success. For they bring with them samples of the oil as it is found in fields. It is a high-grade crude oil containing by measurement 35 per cent. of gasoline. A 20 per cent. content is usually considered very good. The oil found also contains 40 per cent. illuminating oil, and the remainder is suitable for lubricating purposes.

The Journey.

Leaving Toronto on May 10th this year, Dyer, Henderson and Ogilvie travelled by C. P. R. to Edmonton, hence by way of Peace and Slave Rivers, Great Slave Lake and the Mackenzie River to Fort Norman in a comfortable little 17-foot single cylinder disappearing propellor motor boat, peculiarly adaptable to such waters, and built by the Disappearing Propellor Motor Boat Co. of Toronto. The whole trip was void of any disturbing incident, excepting, perhaps, once, when Mister Bruin, a big black bear, poked his inquisitive nose into the Toronto trio's affairs, while on the Mackenzie River, and met sudden death for his curiosity. All three men are crack shots, and from their staunch little launch the venturesome animal was brought down in his tracks. That night, as the result of a single well-aimed bullet, the party had bear meat for supper.

Treacherous Waters.

Mr. Dyer describes Great Slave Lake as a huge body of water vieing with Lake Huron in Size. It is a treacherous inland sea, in that sudden storms sweep down with scant, if any, warning, and whip its quiet, inviting surface into a tumultuous caldron of angry, white-bearded billows. Being warned of this, the party made all haste across the 100 miles' breadth of Great Slave Lake, which distance they accomplished in 28 hours, arriving at the head of the Mackenzie River, just in time to escape a veritable snorter of a wicked storm.

Another 600 Miles.

From this point to Fort Norman is just 600 miles, which was covered in seven days. Mr. Dyer describes the Mackenzie as a noble, fairly sinuous river, running between picturesque banks clothed in beautiful spruce and stately poplar, with here and there bright sun-lit glades revealing a luxuriant carpeting of grasses of varied coloring and other rich growth. And the whole backed in the perspective, at times, with mountain peaks and high wooded elevations. Hence, the scene presented the travellers was here entrancingly beautiful, and there massive and sublimely majestic. The weather was normal — warm days and cool nights.

Pesky Mosquitos.

The joy of this river trip was to some extent marred by two portages over a distance of twenty miles.

"But our greatest hardship was fighting away the pesky mosquitos," laughed Mr. Dyer. "They held us up for 15 days. They're small, but, oh my. We had to wear masks and use oil of citronella. Besides, the willow bush is very thick in that part of the country, and we had to struggle through it a foot at a time. Then the high winds blew down many trees and we had a hard time getting over these. Our speed was about half a mile an hour."

The Mackenzie River is flanked on each side by the Mackenzie and Franklin Mountains, the latter offer-

SINN FEIN BELIEVES BRITISH GOVERNMENT HAS "DOUBLE-CROSSED" IT AND RESULTANT RESENTMENT HAS STIFFENED ITS ATTITUDE

BRITISH SABRE RATTLES IN LORDS; REJECTION OF TERMS BY SINN FEIN MEANS CIVIL WAR, SAYS BIRKENHEAD

LONDON, August 20 (Canadian Press). — Sinn Fein Ireland heard the rattling of the British sabre in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon when Lord Birkenhead, supporting Lord Curzon's motion for the adjournment until October, told the peers that the rejection of Lloyd-George's terms means Civil War.

A conflict is necessary, said Lord Birkenhead, for the purpose of preventing the secession of Southern Ireland from the British Empire.

Lord Birkenhead said: "If the events of the past year have proved anything, they have proved that the number of soldiers and police in Ireland were inadequate. In the event of a breakdown in the negotiations, the Government will take whatever steps are necessary to prevent secession, and take those steps with the spirit and determination adopted by the Northern States of America towards the South in 1861."

DUBLIN CASTLE FEARS OUTBREAKS AS RESULT OF INCREASED TENSION

CRIME SHEETS THROUGHOUT IRELAND EXCEPTIONALLY CLEAR THUS FAR BUT PROLONGATION OF NEGOTIATIONS HAS INCREASED TENSION BETWEEN EXTREMISTS GREATLY.

DUBLIN, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press.—Dublin Castle is concerned over the possibility of either the Irish Republican Army or the military breaking the truce.

At the castle yesterday it was asserted that the tension had increased during the past few days among the extremists on both sides as a result of the prolongation of the peace negotiations.

Fear was expressed that incidents such as those at Cork where Irish Republican Army men and members of the Royal Irish Constabulary mutually commandeered each others automobiles and the arrest by Sinn Feiners of three detectives and an army officer outside Mansion House during the sessions of the Dail Eireann, might lead to outbreakse which the chiefs would be unable to control.

Thus far this undercurrent of unrest has not been followed by an increase of unlawful acts.

Reports from police throughout the whole of the country show an almost clean crime sheet. The few arrests that have been made were for trivial offenses.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 20.—The Northumberland Regiment Band Garden party held on Thursday evening on the spacious lawn of Mr. C. W. Smith was a grand success. SPECIAL SERVICE AT APSLEY CHURCH

APSLEY, August 20. — On Sunday last the Rev. J. E. Beckel, of Bethany, paid a special visit to this church, and conducted the school aniversary services, which were an innovation for this circuit.

The church was nicely decorated with flowers, etc., for the occasion, and each of the three services were well attended, about 150 people being present at the evening service.

Mr. Beckel, in his addresses, dealt with the Sunday School, its work and problems, speaking particularly to the three groups of scholars.

All the services were keenly interesting, helpful and much appreciated.

Miss Lulu Knox, school organist, had taken much pains in training the choir and children, who rendered the musical part of the service.

Misses Brown, Verda Whitmore, and Grace Kilborne each sang very appropriate solos, and sang with much pathos.

Miss Robson, of St. James' Church, Peterborough, sang 'Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam" with sweetness, and was very inspiring.

Mr. Archie Downing sang "Will Your Anchor Hold?"

At the afternoon and evening services Misses Ella Brown and Grace Carr sang duets, which were most beautifully rendered.

The offering at each service was in aid of the Sunday School.

Mr. S. Carr, former pastor of the Apsley Methodist Mission, will (D.V.) conduct the services on the Mission on Sundays, 28th August and 4th September, while the present pastor is on vacation.

REPUBLICANS, IT IS SAID, CLAIM ACTUAL BRITISH TERMS DO NOT EMBRACE KIND OF DOMINION STATUS SMUTS INFERRED.

PRESS, HOWEVER, STILL CLINGS TO OPTIMISM

BY CLYDE C. BEALS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN, August 20. — The Sinn Fein to-day seriously considered issuing a manifesto to the world, pointing out the alleged unfairness of the British peace offer.

The issuance of such a manifesto would be considered a preliminary to a resumption of hostilities.

Despite the favourable reception of Lloyd-George's speech in other than Sinn Fein circles, the Republican Cabinet was known to feel that it had been "double-crossed" by the British Parliament. This, it was said to-day, was the inside story of the sudden switch of the Sinn Fein from its determination to accept the British offer to its present stand of absolute rejection.

On 31st July, the Republican leaders, influenced by the favourable attitude of the most powerful single individual in Ireland, were disposed to accept Lloyd-George's terms. But when DeValera acquainted the members of the Cabinet at a secret session with the actual terms, a stiffening attitude developed for the purpost of obtaining the utmost from Britain at the present time.

The present offer does not embrace the kind of Dominion status which General Smuts the peacemaker, inferred, it was said, and the Sinn Fein now claim that Lloyd-George had given General Smuts, as well as Ireland, the wrong impression of the actual terms.

Despite the reported attitude of the Sinn Fein, most of Ireland still clung to its hopes of peace.

The press to-day was strongly favourable to a settlement.

The Irish Times said: "President DeValera has said that he will not accept the terms. If this be the last word, our country is facing disaster and ruin. We refuse to believe it the Irish people's last word. The world applauds the offer, and every true friend of Ireland in either hemisphere prays it will be accepted."

The Irish Independent said: "A breakdown in the negotiations would be a calamity. Ireland relies upon its leaders to obtain the best possible terms from the British Government. Fortunately both DeValera and Lloyd-George leave the door open."

CANADIAN DANCING MASTERS CONCUR IN ADOPTING NEW STEPS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian dancing masters, out of courtesy to their confreres in this Volsteaded country, at the recent International convention of dancing masters concurred in the adoption of one-half-of-one-per-cent. dances for the coming season. The new dances are the "Tango-trot" and the "Porto-povitch." Neither has the slightest kick, the dancing masters assert. They say both are designed to "elevate dancing."

PETERBOROUGH'S ADVANTAGES.

With Labour Day rapidly approaching and the opening of school drawing near, the many local people who have been spending the summer on lake or river will soon be returning home, filled with fresh vigour and vim by reason of their holiday in the great outdoors. Peterborough is singularly blessed because of the many beautiful resorts at its very doors and many centres may well envy the opportunities the people have to go far afield for their ing under ideal conditions, only a few brief miles from home. Other people have togo far afield for their outing, but our citizens have their choice of Chemong Park, only six mile saway, the Otonabee River, bisecting our city and offering along its beautiful banks scores of camping sites, Rice Lake, an easy run by motor boat or car, Stoney Lake, with its myriad islands, accessible by means of a triple daily train and boat service, and other splendid lakes nearly as close as those we have mentioned. The wealth of scenic beauty in this district makes Peterborough one of the most desirable cities in Ontario from a residential viewpoint.

A LITTLE LIGHT NEEDED.

The people of Ontario have a right to be told some definite facts about the engaging of Arthur Hawkes and other individuals to "dig up" information against the Hydro radial project and present it before the Sutherland Commission. There is natural curiosity as to what interests are behind Mr. Hawkes and his associates, and as to why the Government was so anxious to discredit Hydro-radials that it spent many thousand dollars of the people's money in preparing a case against the proposal. The whole transaction has a dubious air and there are many people who are frankly puzzled as to any logical reason for the Province paying the expenses of the enemies of Hydro-radials and apparently of the whole Hydro system. That there are many interests hostile to public ownership is a fact that needs no proof, but why was it necessary for the Ontario government to finance their opposition campaign unless, as has been frequently alleged, the commission was appointed by the government for the sole purpose of administering the death blow to the Hydro-radial undertaking.

TAKING CHANCES.

A few days ago in a northern Ontario city a motorist attempted to drive past a standing street car, ran down a woman who had just alighted from the trolley car and killed her. The tragedy should be an object lesson to every person who drives a car. There is a tendency in Peterborough and no doubt everywhere else, on the part of motorists, to disregard the regulation which prohibits running past street cars which have stopped at a corner to take on or let off passengers. Away from the sections where police supervision is regularly exercised, many drivers pay no attention to this section of the traffic by-law. What happened in the case referred to has nearly happened on more than one occasion in Peterborough recently, and there is no justification. The average driver is not in such a hurry that he cannot wait for a few seconds until there is no danger of an accident and yet many motorists cannot brook delay but ignore the law and take the chance of averting an accident. But the game is not worth the candle.

THE LINE OF SAFETY.

Mr. Samuel Gompers expresses anxiety with respect to communist propaganda in Canada, and probably for a sufficient reason. He is in a peculiarly favorable position to learn about "red" activities and to measure their probable effect. There are some who will quite naturally feel that if Mr. Gompers' apprehensions are genuine he ought to do all in his power to avoid preparing the soil with which he is most closely in contact for just such a sowing. That he assails Sovietism as such matters little. It is impossible to make a Bolshevist out of any sane man who is contented. But a man who is smarting under a sense of injustice may be won to extreme radicalism, and Mr. Gompers has been saying a great deal of late which is calculated to turn his hearers into rebels against the established order of things. No man could be happy who felt that he was a slave, or that his employer was unjust and rapacious. Yet that is precisely what Mr. Gompers has been telling the members of the American Federation of Labor in many of his recent speeches. He has spoken so definitely and clearly that it would be impossible to misunderstand him.

It is not for a moment suspected that Mr. Gompers has deliberately tried to prepare the way for the long-haired theorists whom he vigorously denounces; but he has, perhaps unwittingly, done so. For example, Bolshevism is founded on the creed of Karl Marx, and its bible is "Das Kapital." The purpose of that book was to discredit employers and to picture them as heartless robbers of the working classes. Mr. Gompers, in his denunciation of capitalists, has scarcely been a whit less vituperative. He certainly does not favor the social revolution which the German propagandist urged as a remedy for the alleged tyranny of capital; but he has led his hearers up to the point where they might be expected to be ready for almost any kind of a revolution. To the extent that he has convinced them, or influenced them at all, he has made them discontented. He has even forbidden them to have any other relations with their employers than through the pay envelope.

If the head of the American Federation of Labor is really sincere in his fears about red efforts on this continent he is taking an odd way of combating these dangerous influences. He is saying very much the same things the agents of Sovietism are saying. He is, at all events, appealing to the same prejudices. Up to the point of what should be done to secure justice for the toiling masses their preaching is alike. That they there separate, leaves it open to the communist to urge what he regards as the logical course of action. If capital is what Mr. Gompers and the Soviets say it is in almost identical terms, and capitalists are the relentless enemies of those who call themselves "workers," then the means of destruction would seem to be a mere matter of detail. Mr. Gompers may not talk about destroying it; but if all that he charges against it is true, his hearers might be excused for determining that it ought to be destroyed.

Just how the supply of golden eggs is to be kept up after the goose which lays them has been decapitated by the Soviets is not clear. It would be futile to look to Russia for the answer. The only answer which would come from that stricken country would be the wail of starving men, women and children. Mr. Gompers does not want to see that dreadful spectacle repeated on this continent. He is not insane. On the contrary, he is singularly shrewd. But the way to avoid that calamity does not lie in trying to embitter employee against employer, and thus drive them widely apart. The course of wisdom is to bring them together, for a better understanding, for co-operation, and for a rational recognition of their common interest, despite the mere difference in labels. The inevitable effect of Mr. Gompers' fiery speeches will be to accentuate the cleavage. — Ottawa Journal.

Life was not intended to be easy, but, rather, fruitful. Character is not upon the bargain counter, and virtues are attained, not bestowed. Temptations are about us as water is about the ship in mid-ocean. There are hotels for those who want to be in the wilderness and yet enjoy all the comforts that good service and social companionship can bring. The largest of these, the Highland Inn, is situated at Algonquin Park Station (Park headquarters) and overlooks beautiful Cache Lake. The hotel will accommodate one hundred and fifty people. Electric lighting, modern plumbing, large bright sleeping rooms, writing and reading rooms, and commodious dining-room are some of the features. The cuisine is a matter of special attention. PORCUPINE FOUGHT.

Airedale Put under Care of Vet. for Charging Pet Animal.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N. Y., August 20. — Billy, a thoroughbred Airedale, was under the care of a veterinarian to-day as the result of charging a neighbor's pet porcupine and biting through most of his fortifications.

When Billy returned home with his chum Timmy, an Irish terrier, after a night's absence, quills were projecting all over him. In an hour's work with pincers the doctor removed 300 spines, many of them two inches long. Scores were stuck in his mouth.

Despite the fighting nature of his breed, Timmy was more discreet in charging the enemy than Billy, as he had only a few reminders of the fray. The porcupine has disappeared and so Billy's owners think the Airedale won the battle.

Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.
We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

WHO'D LIKE TO LIVE IN SAHARA DESERT?

The King recently received Mrs. Rosita Forbes, who has recently returned from a long journey through the Sahara desert, at Buckingham palace, and listened to the story of her travels. The Queen was present at the interview.

Mrs. Forbes, who wore a navy serge red-trimmed dress, a black hat with a russet veil, black shoes inlet with red, and a fur coat (because the daytime in England is colder than the coldest night in the Sahara), was astonished at the knowledge of North Africa that the King and Queen displayed.

"I went to Buckingham Palace prepared to explain everything about my tour," said Mrs. Forbes to a Daily Express representative, "and discovered that the King and Queen know more about the country from which I have come than I do myself.

"The Queen was especially interested to know how I managed to pass as a Bedouin woman, as I have grey eyes, and I told her the story I used to tell when it was necessary—that I had a Circassian mother, who came from the harem of the Bey of Tunis."

FORBIDDEN

Author of "Love"

"TO KNOW ALL IS TO FORGIVE ALL."

Chapter 42

As Tom Barney stopped speaking he sank limply into a chair and buried his face in his hands.

I sat motionless, tears welling up in my eyes and a lump catching me in the throat. The full meaning of what Tom had said rushed over me in a warm, compassionate thankfulness. I realized that my great love for Kent had touched a sympathetic cord in Tom Barney's better nature and had appealed to his superior manly qualities. I felt that wonderful elation which comes to a woman when she is able to bring out the best in a man.

"Tom!" I said gently, getting up and going over beside his chair. "We understand each other better now. I am so glad," I put my hand firmly on his stooping shoulder. "We will be good friends—always good friends, Tom," I told him.

He looked up at me and gripped my hand hard for a second.

"I was a cad—a beast, but I'm so sorry. You understand, Barbara?" he questioned, with his blue eyes full of pleading.

"Yes Tom," I answered reassuringly.

He got up and went over to the table and picked up his hat.

"I'll run along now."

"One thing, Tom—does anyone else know about the diamond?" I asked a little fearfully.

"No, not a soul. I have never told anyone," he declared, looking straight into my eyes, and I knew that he spoke the truth.

"Thank you," I answered looking away from him. "And, and now everything is all right — it's all straighfened out—I want you to know that Kent returned the diamond to its owner—and we, all of us, are going to have another chance to live right, to do the square thing," I finished, the hot tears were streaming down my cheeks.

Tom caught my two hands in his.

"Oh, Barbara, you are so big and strong and splendid. "It's going to mean a lot to me just knowing you," he cried impetuously.

I gave his hands an answering press.

"And Kent gave the diamond back! Ah, Barbara, you will make worth while men of all of us," he smiled down at me. "But don't tell Kent. Don't ever tell him about this part of it—what I have done. He would not understand or forgive as you have. He'd brand me for a cad—as I deserve," he exclaimed.

"No Tom, it's our secret and I'll respect it, just as you have done for me," I promised. "And now you must run along—and remember that to-day you have made me very happy," I told him softly.

"And sometimes perhaps, I can come and see you and Kent—if you can keep Kent from disliking me too much?" he suggested.

He looked sad and so lonely as he said it. I thought of his wife, Lillian, and wondered if their unhappiness was all Tom's fault. Poor boy, I determined to see if I could help him.

Tom went out and I closed the door softly behind him. My thoughts turned to Lillian.

"Some people are unhappy and selfishly miserable just because they have never really known what it was to have real sorrows and difficulties," I philosophized musingly to myself. "Lillian is self-centered. If something big came into her life she might rise equal to it, and come out a better woman. Ah, a woman doesn't know what a wonderful, splendid thing a man's love is or else she wouldn't treat it so lightly and casually. Only when she comes near losing it or having it taken away from her," I thought.

"Dear Kent, I want to be big enough and worthy, always," I whispered softly.

(To Be Continued).

HOME LABOR IN JAPAN.

Large Part It Plays in the Industries of That Country.

Although tremendous strides have been made in Japan since 1914 in the factory system of manufacturing goods, a very large part of the merchandise exported from that country is still made in the home and by the labor of women and children. According to data compiled by the Far Eastern Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in the three-year period between 1914 and 1917, nearly 14,200 new factories, giving employment to more than 270,000 persons, were established. In addition to this, 5,498 factories enlarged their production facilities with the resultant employment of nearly 200,000 more workers. Even greater expansion took place during the 1917-20 period, but specific figures are lacking in this case. The division's report continues:

"Notwithstanding these facts, Japan is still a nation in which household industries predominate. This is evidenced by the fact that out of a total of 540,028 families or factories engaged in the weaving industry in 1918, 275,003 employed less than ten operatives, and only 5,463 employed more than this number; 246,803 were piece-workers, the balance, or 12,579, being contractors (heads of families). This small-scale production is characteristic of the majority of Japanese industries, important exceptions being the cotton-spinning and the newly organized iron and steel and shipbuilding industries. It is interesting to note that labor troubles were more prevalent in these branches, and this seems to indicate that the increase in the size of organizations has been accompanied by a loss of sympathetic relations between employer and employe, with a consequent increase in labor unrest and strikes."

The report further asserts that one of the distinguishing characteristics of Japanese industry is the extent to which women and children are utilized. This has been largely due to the lack of restrictions on the employment of this class of labor and to the fact that industrial development has been along lines in which such labor can be profitably utilized. The silk spinning and cotton textile industries, which predominate in Japan, are cited by the report as examples of this type of development.

So largely did female labor bulk in the exports of Japan that, in 1918, it was estimated that over 80 per cent. of them were the result of women's work. At the same time, it was estimated that women factory operatives numbered more than 560,000, or about 60 per cent. of the total employed. Accept these figures as approximately correct, the report says, and it becomes clear that women are a very important factor in the Japanese labor situation. However, the recent increase in the number and variety of industries there, particularly iron and steel manufacture, in which female labor cannot be used profitably, has considerably decreased the percentage of exports in which women's work played the largest part in producing.

WARM WEATHER CALLS FOR CARE OF AUTOMOBILE.

Cars Require More Than Usual Attention During Hot Summer Season.

With the summer motoring season here and the call of the open road at hand the time of year owners are naturally more eager than usual to so operate their cars that they will get the maximum efficiency.

In general, motor car owners should bear in mind that the heat of summer, combined with the harder and more constant use to which they put their cars at this season of the year, causes more evaporation than at other times. This applies not only to water in the radiator but also to oil.

During the hot weather months attention should be given frequently to the radiator; the owner should see that it is kept filled and at intervals it should be flushed out and filled with clean water. In connection with efficient operation of the cooling system, fan belt adjustment should be made, for the fan is needed in summer. The position of the spark lever should be watched to see that it is kept in an advanced position, thus assuring better cooling of the motor.

Minor parts, such as wheel bearings, spring shackles, steering connections and universal joints, require oiling more often in summer. It is well that a heavier grade of lubricating oil be used in the motor than is used in colder weather and oil should be drained from the motor at intervals not to exceed every one thousand miles. Better performance will result when this is done.

Careful attention should be directed to the brakes to see that they are kept in as nearly perfect condition as possible, for during the summer months they get greater usage with more traffic to contend with and more cars on the road.

The pressure should be watched more closely on tires that have been in use for a long period, because tires expand more in the hot weather. The owner should have a tire gauge and use it in inflating. In taking long trips the owner should be provided with a good spare tire and should go over all tires during the trip to see that they have no defects.

Every owner wants to have his car in the best possible condition during the summer months, for it is then he uses his automobile most. To get this maximum efficiency he must exercise greater care in going over the car.

The table moved nervously, the medium snored, and from her lips came the very voice of the great Athenian:

"I owned a yacht, you call it a houseboat," said the sage. "I lived on it. The jealous yachtsmen of the times called it a tub. Gimme a drink. I say, gimme——"

The voice died away, but we had solved a mystery.

Revival in Industry May Be Started by the Fall.

BY HAROLD D. JACOBS,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. — Basic business conditions are improving.

This opinion was reflected in telegrpahic staements to the United Press to-day by commercial organizations— diagnosticians of economic conditions in all parts of the country.

The general feeling appeared to be that the industrial revival would be well under way by fall, although some were inclined toward the belief that material progress would not be made in that direction before spring.

Represented in the symponium were New York, Chicago, Boston, Bridgeport, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Memphis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Paul, St. Louis, Dallas, Denever and Portland, Oregon.

Better Tone Seen.

"A better tone is appearing in the business world," declared William Fownes Morgan, president of the Merchants' Association of New York, who discussed the country-wide situation as well as conditions in this district.

"Although few industries have yet benefited by an increased volume of business there are indications that the country is beginning slowly to pull out of a serious business and industrial depression.

"The crop outlook, with one or two exceptions, is good. Many of the railroads are reporting increased earnings.

"Re-discount rates of the federal reserve banks have been lowered and there are other indications of easier money. Price revisions in many lines have proceeded rapidly and prices of certain commodities are even showing a slight increase, indicating a stabilization of prices.

"Deflation in building materials is proceeding slowly. Coal production has declined somewhat.

"The large stocks of goods in the hands of merchants last year have now been greatly depleted, making it necessary during the coming months for them to buy on a much larger scale."

That the "tide has turned in New England," was the statement of Melville E. Liming, secretary of the bureau of commerce and industrial affairs, Boston chamber of commerce.

"Orders and inquiries are coming in and while there is still plenty of room for improvement a more optimistic tone generally prevails," he said.

Other statements are:

Seward H. Price, secretary Bridgeport chamber of commerce—"Business in the Bridgeport district is picking up steadily. We ought to be tasting real prosperity before winter."

Atlanta chamber of commerce — "Business in this section looks better to-day than in many months. In practically every line conditions justify a more optimistic feeling for the fall."

John B. Reynolds, secretary, Indianapolis chamber of commerce—"I believe conditions will begin to improve in the fall. However, it may be a year before business is wholly on a normal basis again. Some factories are increasing their forces even now."

W. L. Ware, trade commissioner Chicago Association of Commerce—"Fundamental business conditions in Chicago point toward improvement in practically all lines."

SUNDAY STREET CAR SERVICE IN OSHAWA MAY END

OSHAWA, Aug. 20.—The agreement between the Town of Oshawa and the Oshawa Railway Company, granting the latter the right to operate their cars within the town limits on Sunday, with church hours restricted, terminated yesterday. The Town Council about two months ago passed a resolution authorizing the town solicitor and the mayor to sign a renewal of the agreement, with no changes, but so far, it is understood, that agreement has not been signed. While arrangements have been made to continue the operation of Sunday cars, it is said that the company, in view of the restricted hours, may not be favorably disposed to continuing the service, on the ground principally that the cost of operation exceeds the revenue.

In some civic quarters it had been suggested that the company be allowed to operate a continuous Sunday service, with no church hour restrictions, but a motion to this effect in Council was defeated.

ARE UNABLE TO KEEP UP HISTORIC BRITISH HOMES

Peers Among Many Hit Following the War—Estates Go to the Hammer.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The wholesale closing down of historic and stately homes of England and the housing of their lordly owners in humbler style is prophesied by the Duke of Portland, owner of nearly 200,000 acres and half a dozen noble residences. He was addressing his tenants at Wellbeck.

This is not the first intimation given by the Duke that he has found himself among many big landowner whose position has been changed by the war. In April, 1919, he gave notice that a large portion of his Ayreshire estate was to be sold and in November of that year he announced with pain and regret that there must be a reduction in the labor employed on the Wellbeck estates. Since the war there have been many evidences of how England is changing hands owing to the large landowners disposing of their family estates, a number of which have been broken up into small holdings. One nobleman after another has placed big estates in the market and several historic castles have gone under the hammer and many peers have been forced to economize on their estates.

Have Sold Valuable Properties.

Among many big landowners who have sold valuable properties are the Duke of Sutherland, the Duke of Rutland, the Duke of Westminster, the Duke of Marlborough, the Marquis de Castega, Earl Beauchamp, Earl Bradford, Lord Aberdeen, Lord Lovat, Lord Harrington, Lord Harlech, the Countess of Warwick and Sir Richard Bulkeley. In all, hundreds of thousands of acres, worth millions of pounds, have changed hands.

The Duke of Devonshire sold Devonshire House in 1919, while Stanestawe House, the property of Baroness Kinross, was sold recently. The Earl of Denbigh sold a part of his Downing estate in North Wales during 1920. The Earl of Harrington sold some of his estates in Cheshire in the same year. During 1920 349,695 acres of country properties were sold by one firm of auctioneers alone, for £4,332,514.

Says Future Uncertain.

The great war, said the Duke of Portland, addressing his tenants at Wellbeck, had altered the outlook of him and most other large landowners. For centuries past the landed estates had been handed down from generation to generation in one family and landlords and tenants had lived on terms of mutual trust and affection. He feared, however, he said, that state of things was passing away, for with the present enormous weight of taxation and the extremely onerous incidence of death duties, the future had become very uncertain for all landed proprietors.

"With regard to my own case," he said, "it may be or may not be possible for me and my family to continue to reside at Wellbeck, but I fear there can be little doubt that those who come after me will not be able to do so." It was no use blinking the fact, however disagreeable it might be, he declared, that if the present scale of duties was maintained, there must be and there inevitably would be a wholesale closing down of the larger country houses, if not now at all events when the present generation passed away. It must be exceedingly painful, he asserted, for representatives of old families to be obliged to part with the major part of their estates, which had been in the possession of their ancestors for many generations.

Can't Maintain Them.

"Many land proprietors cannot maintain their old family residences in habitable state," he said. "Nor can they adequately discharge the duties which they had been so glad to fulfill as owners of land. I, scarcely dare contemplate what would be my wife's feelings if it should become necessary to sever the ties that bind us to Wellbeck."

It was not for him to say whether breaking up of the estates would or would not be for the advantage of the country. He did not desire for one moment to complain, nor did he imagine that other landowners would complain of heavy taxation, if it were necessary for the welfare of the country. "It pains me deeply," he concluded, "to think that in the years to come it will most probably be necessary for my family to find a new and smaller home elsewhere."

Another royal estate adjoining Osborne House in the Isle of Wight will soon be auctioned. "The King is simply in the position of many other large landowners," an authority explained to the correspondent. "Like many others he finds economic conditions altered, and his advisors have probably suggested realization on detached properties."

Five thousand acres of the Duke of Leeds' Kineton Park estate have been sold privately to tenants and the remaining 5,019 acres are to be auctioned publicly during August. The property to be sold includes 21 farms, two country residences and a limestone quarry.

COCOS ISLAND AND ITS HOARDED LOOT

Great Britain is just now seething with the romantic story of Cocos island and its hoarded loot. The stir and ferment arises from the fact that the old familiar legends concerning the island have been authenticated by the British foreign office.

The fabled treasure was a reality; it has never been discovered; it is there today—nearly twenty-five million dollars' worth.

The circumstances are exceptional. For the purpose of the peace conference a historical section of the foreign office was established to furnish information as to such parts of the world as might conceivably come under review. One of the hand books deals with Cocos island, which lies in the eastern Pacific, some 340 miles from Panama, and is indisputably a possession of the republic of Costa Rica.

It is a mere dot in the ocean, four and a half miles in length and fourteen in circumference; has been discovered, lost and rediscovered repeatedly; has been the temporary home of buccaneers, whaling crews, deserters from ships and the scene of one set attempts at colonization—in 1897—which failed and left the island unpopulated, as it is believed to be today.

Cocos island became a treasure depository because it was so frequently forgotten by the generality of mariners and geographers. The men who did not forget were the old buccaneers. They remembered. The forgotten island was a safe sanctuary for their stolen gear. Lest one should either exaggerate or diminish the romantic possibilities of the island, let the official handbook itself declare the story.

Advantage of one of these recurrent periods of oblivion was taken in 1818 or 1819, it stated, by a notorious pirate known as Benito, alias Bennett Graham, to secrete there a vast plunder he had obtained by rifling churches in Peru. A few years afterwards, it is said, Benito deposited a fresh quantity of gold bars and specie worth eleven million dollars.

Gold Coins, Jewels and Silver.

"In or about 1826, a man passing as William Thompson, who appears to have served previously under Benito, but was then in command of the brig Mary Read, concealed about twelve million dollars' worth of stolen gold coin, jewels and silver ingots in Cocos island."

This accords with the legends of Cocos which most of us have read, but here comes the imprimatur of the historical section of the foreign office: "Some of the circumstances of the three lodgments of treasure at the island, and of efforts that have been made for its recovery, are related (by persons who were more or less concerned in the matter) in documents preserved at the admiralty."

No fewer than a dozen organized attempts to unearth the buried treasure have been made. In matters of this sort it seems that "man never is but always to be blest." Our authority tells us that "Clues to the spot where one batch of treasure was deposited have led some searchers to a marked rock; and one man is said to have come upon some gold bars and kegs of Spanish coin through an accident in falling over the face of a scarp. A silver ecclesiastical cross was also found in the bed of a stream. But the main stores of treasure are still hidden in spite of various excavations and blasting operations which have been undertaken from time to time."

Lord Fitzwilliam's Search.

One of the most notable searches was that carried out by Lord Fitzwilliam's party in 1905. The Costa Rica government, who had at that time granted a concession to a T. Robinson, at first "professed to regard Lord Fitzwilliam's expedition as a filibustering one." Ultimately the rival parties reached an agreement, joined forces, worked together—and failed. Seven years later two enterprising women, Miss L. Brocklesby Davis and Mrs. Barr Till, determining to devote any gains to philanthropic work in London, obtained a two years' concession from the Costa Rica government, but, like their forerunners, they wrought and sought in vain.

And there the matter stands unto this hour. One cannot but picture a cloud of romantic adventurers descending upon the volcanic island. "There has been an unprecedented demand for the booklet," the present writer was informed by the foreign office. "The Daily Mail published an article on it—and we have been inundated with inquiries from all parts, by post, telegraph and telephone. Whether the inquirers are all prospective treasure hunters, it is impossible for the foreign office to say, but one can draw one's own conclusions." One can, and the result is that he imagines many Britons, not broken by our wars, ready to—

"Push off, and sitting well in order, smite
The sounding furrows.
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

"More Discipline for Women!"—

And Colonel Helen Bastedo Adds: "We Need It to Develop Our Souls"

How the Energetic Organizer of the Women's Motor Corps Is Gathering and Drilling Recruits for the New Women's National Guard Which, She Declares, Will Demonstrate the Advantage of Military Training Even in Private Homes.

Fencing Master Martin Capdevielle Drilling a Company of Recruits for the Women's Guard at the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York City.

"Servants, Husbands and Children Stand in Terror of the Undisciplined Woman."

By Ethel Thurston

"THE American woman needs a new soul. New conditions and new problems are knocking today at her door. How shall she meet them? Can the old mind, the old life square with the new? They can NOT!"

With emphasis on the "NOT," Col. Helen Bastedo, who organized more than seven hundred women into a highly disciplined and most efficient motor corps for war and post war work, of both a military and a civilian nature, stamped her foot and then proceeded to tell of her plans in connection with the organization of a national guard for the women of this country, and also of the great amount of benefit women may gain from military discipline.

There may be those who disagree with Col. Bastedo concerning this stated deficiency in the American woman's make-up; but whether or not they share her views on the subject, no one who is familiar with this energetic little officer's work and achievement will question, for a moment, her sincerity and her practical common-sense and successful organizing ability.

Recently, acting upon her own suggestion, for with Col. Bastedo a constructive thought means action, she decided to perfect a peace-time organization of women, the "Women's National Guard," as it is known, patterned, in a fashion, after the National Guard. The preliminary work is being done in New York city, where women recruits are being enrolled and drilled at the Seventh Regiment Armory. They are being trained in military tactics, sword practice and shooting, in addition to the ordinary routine of soldiering.

"The Women's Guard will be a national organization, with branches in every state of the Union," Col. Bastedo pointed out in describing the purposes of this new work for women.

"We will co-operate with the police and fire departments, as we have done and are still doing in our motor corps work. Just as both these bodies of men are trained for emergencies that may arise, we shall train the members of the Women's Guard, so that they may act quickly and efficiently whenever any occasion may arise requiring their aid. Trained workers can render more efficient aid than those who may appear on the scene with no previous experience to teach them how to administer to this need.

"It is a well known fact that being occupied in the service of others helps to develop one's soul, and so a movement of this sort is certain to create a favorable impression on the women who are enrolled in it.

"In this rapidly moving age we either progress or stagnate. It is dangerous to stagnate, else we may get run over by one of the many destructive influences at work today in the world. Every human being must not only work, but must fight for what he has and wishes to maintain. This is the law of nature."

Col. Bastedo, it is interesting to note, is the mother of three handsome children. Her husband is a well known member of the medical profession in New York, and Col. Bastedo, besides her public work, is the splendid housewife.

Recruits Being Enrolled in the New Women's Guard at the New York Headquarters.

"Scores of women," she continued "returned from overseas work each with a new soul, and it was all due to the excellent military training and discipline they had been subjected to. These women who had worked long hours in hospitals in France and England caring for the American boys and doing other work which helped to win the war, came back with a new vision of life. They had seen the great uselessness of being mere social butterflies. Scores of these women now have turned their backs on the old life, and have gone into business or social service or public work of some sort. Idleness to them means tragedy, stagnation.

"War work taught many women the great importance of organization. It is unfortunate that this truth could not have been borne in on every American woman.

"Now that women have the vote, added to the other responsibilities that modern life has produced, woman's influence in the community, in the nation, will not be felt until she realizes the power of organized effort. And once having learned this, she must know that in self-control and better discipline and the patience to hear another's point of view expressed without losing her temper, lies the secret of successful team work.

"These are the chief reasons why I first planned the military drills and the other exercises for women, which are meeting with success at the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York, and upon which the idea for the Women's National Guard was based.

"There is nothing finer for women's health than vigorous exercise. It stimulates the circulation and brings into play muscles that would never otherwise be used. Fencing and jiu-jitsu, which are practiced in conjunction with the drill, are enormously beneficial to women. These strengthen the nerves and will quicken the mental processes.

"The war showed in the physical examinations made that we as a people were getting soft; it showed the need of universal training for men.

"The fine healthy boys who found their way into the army and navy were to a large extent boys who came from the ranches and farms of the great outdoor life of the various states that go in for these things.

"Now isn't it just as natural and important that women, especially those who lead sedentary lives in offices and homes, be equipped physically and mentally as well as men? Doing things for oneself teaches one to do things for others. And this should be the spirit of the day.

"We are flourishing around with political futures, but with little sense of civic and national duty.

"In these military drills women get the personal contact with other women that they need for soul and mind expansion. In their attitude toward life and in their manner of meeting others one can readily distinguish between the woman who has led a narrow, selfish life and the broader visioned woman whose usefulness and helpfulness and whose poise and happy frame of mind make all things glad.

"Now, if you meet a woman who is easily offended, who can brook no criticism of her suggestions or plans of work, you know at once how to label her. She is, you will doubtless find, the boss of her household. Her servants, husband and children stand in terror of the undisciplined woman, for they know, if she does not have her way, she will flood the house with her tears and her scoldings. In organization work she at least gets the lesson she needs. She finds that she has much to learn by such association, and that only by subjecting her own nature to a thorough course of discipline can she hope to accomplish the things she would like to do.

"Nothing brings out the fine gold of a woman's nature more quickly than working with large groups of men and women of all classes. She begins to perceive that she has a social consciousness, of which she had not been aware.

"I believe the business woman is the woman of tomorrow. She has learned in life's school those lessons that make for character development of the highest order. Her business training gives her, too, that broader comprehension of affairs which comes to men through contact with diversified problems of far-reaching importance to the state and nation.

"The business woman is democratic in the finest sense of the term. She knows how to mingle and work with others.

"By business women, I do not necessarily mean unmarried women, for today we find scores of married women in the professions as well as in business careers. And during the war the work done by married women was most excellent. In fact, many military authorities were disposed to say that the work of the married woman showed a deeper and more intelligent grasp than that of the single woman.

"In the Military Drills Women Get the Personal Contact with Other Women That They Need for Soul and Mind Expansion."

"If we desire a strong, virile nation, we must develop our women to work in concert. The problem of every nation from generation to generation is the problem of improving the quality of its mothers. A nation rises in importance and achievement according to the quality of its motherhood, the moulders of the race. Women find the freest expression of their talents and abilities through team work, that is to say, with groups of men and women."

Whichever you choose it will be the BEST you ever tasted.

CAMPBELLFORD CLINCH GROUP

bellford. He took all kinds of chances, and when he succeeded they were spectacular. The Campbellford crowd, however, gave the bigest ovation to Abe Jacobs, when with three of his team on the bench, and the remainder flung back on the defensive, he eluded the Havelock defense and, unassisted, scored a goal that might have been considered impossible Such were the high lights.

The game was strictly handled by Len Smith and J. Labbett of Toronto, and if several of their decisions irritated the visitors they may be excused by the desire of the officials to keep the play clean.

The Personnel.

The teams were as follows:

Havelock: Goal, E. Powers; point, J. Hooper; cover point, R. O'Brien; 1st defence, D. Wright; 2nd defence, C. Holmes; centre, A. McGee; 2nd home, D. Brennan; 1st home, W. Brinkman; outside home, E. King; inside home, W. Haughton; spares, W. Copp, Glen Wright and C. Brennan.

Campbellford: Goal, P. Kelly; point, T. Thomas; cover point, C. Alexander; 1st defence, C. Montgomery; 2nd defence, B. Gannon; centre, A. Jacobs; 2nd home, J. Nesbitt; 1st home, Harte; outside home, J. Kerr; inside home, P. Johnston; spares, C. Weston, L. Hill and J. Blute.

Referee, Len Smith.
Judge of Play,
Penalty time keeper, Clarence Gladney, Marmora.

Time keepers, Don Robertson, Campbellford and A. R. Mack, Havelock.

First Period.

Jack Nesbitt got the ball from the face off and started Campbellford's first attack. Hooper relieved and a minute later he broke up another combination, intercepting a pass from Harte. Campbellford kept boring in and had all the best of the opening ten minutes. Montgomery blocked a Havelock rush and threw to Jacobs. On this play Kerr made the first shot of the game but the ball bounded past the goal a foot outside. Johnston missed another in the same way. On a fast combination Jacobs threw to Harte who racing through the defence, made a beautiful catch and tossed the ball into the net. Nesbitt started the next rush but Johnstons' shot went over the bar. Campbellford's home raced in again but Kerr dropped the ball in front of the goal. At the other end Alexander broke up a Havelock combination and Wright stopped the following Campbellford assault. Both teams were checking hard and the play shuttled up and down the field in rapid succession. Havelock's home tried hard and as they began to pick up the pace they spoiled their work by loose passing and catching. McGee went in for Havelock's first shot on goal but it whizzed over Kelly's head. Brinkman and Brennan tried to get through but Big Tom relieved and carried the ball out. He followed the play. The ball was returned to him but Powers swept his shot to one side. Houghton loosed a long one at Kelly's goal but it was wild, and Nesbitt bounced the next one over the Havelock bar. The C. P. R. attack was weak, or perhaps more correctly they were too closely checked. Charles Holmes' broke away from centre field and passed to Brennan but Kelly saved neatly. King and Brennan worked a fast play but it failed.

On the return Kerr had a chance but the ball went wide and hit Art Keleher, the goal umpire. Wright snuffed a combination by Johnston, Kerr and Nesbitt. McGee dodged through the Campbellford defense, and was right on top of Kelly, but his shot was blocked. Kelly stopped a hot one from King just before the bell rang.

Second Period.

Copp went in for Havelock. "We might as well take it easy," said "Dot" Phelan, explaining the Campbellford manoeuvre that drew the defense back, including Jacobs, their centre. Havelock started to enliven the sesion. Brennan's shot went wide, and Jacobs blocked the next from Houghton's stick. Alexander passed out to Johnston but his throw to Gannon was wide. Harte bumped through the Havelock defence for a try. Powers made a fine save. Holmes got away fast, passed to Brinkman, and King racing in from the opposite side, completed a flashing combination with a splendid catch and swift shot that Kelly hadn't a chance to get.

Both teams were travelling at top speed. Jacobs came right back for Campbellford's next goal a few minutes later, combining with Kerr and Johnston. Harte tried to take a bullet pass from Johnston inside the defence but missed. At the other end Brinkman and King got by the defence, but Kelly made a clever stop. Pete Johnston scored Campbellford's third goal, and before the echoes of the cheering had faded, Brinkman was in on Kelly, who blocked the shot. The ball bounced in front of the goal and King following in front flipped it past Kelly. Campbellford buzzed around the Havelock defence. Nesbitt couldn't find a home man uncovered and took a chance on a long shot from about forty feet. The net bulged behind Powers.

Play shifted from end to end without result. Finally Brinkman and King filtered through the Campbellford defence, King scoring These youngsters were putting up a great game, their passing was bullet-like and made on the run. The half time count was 4 to 3 for the Trent team. In these forty minutes the crowd was treated to lightning fast lacrosse. The second half produced a noticeably poorer brand.

The Third Quarter.

Havelock had a great chance at the opening of this period. Alexander was serving time for an offence which the Campbellford men said occurred after the half time gong sounded. Play had been in progress only a short time when Gannon followed him, and to add to Campbellford's alarm and also their anger at the officials Thomas was given five minutes for striking Brinkman on the head under the new ruling. The Kelly men started to rag the game within their own defence, but Referee Smith stepepd in and faced off at centre. Campbellford threw their remaining force as a bulwark, and held Havelock's superior numbers off. King got through for a shot but Kelly tagged it. And right here Abe Jacobs broke away from the swarm that was milling around the Campbellford side of centre, dodged through the Havelock defence who were playing out past the safety line, and with a clear field before him dashed in on Powers who was helpless to prevent a score. With that the Campbellford enthusiasts swarmed over the edges of the field, flaunting that goal at their rivals. If there was any doubt about the turning of the game it was settled right there. The penalty bench was emptied of its occupants a few minutes later, and both teams were at full strength again. Kerr made it 6 to 3 for Campbellford, but was given what appeared to be an unearned penalty when Hooper was hit while checking him. Rollie O'Brien gave Havelock new hopes with an easy goal on a long shot that fooled Kelly. Holmes drew five minutes for tripping Kerr, and King flashed once more through the Campbellford defence, putting Havelock within one goal's reach. Harte widened the gap again on a brilliant play with Kerr, Running in at full speed he took a pass from Ker close to the nets for Campbellford's 7th goal.

The Fourth Quarter.

The final period may be briefly dismissed. Jacobs went in with a Campbellford attack but the ball rolled out of his stick when he drew back to throw. Thomas was right at his heels, quickly picked up the rubber and swept it past Powers. Havelock had shot its bolt and the team looked groggy. Powers blocked a shot from Thomas but the ball bounded out to Kerr who lobbed it into the net. Several delays occurred and there were one or two diversions which are probably best forgotten.

LAKEFIELD BOY WITH PARTY, ENC.

Fur Trading Posts.

The few settlements passed by the subjects of this story in this sparcely-settled district of the North-West — a country, by the bye, of rich promise—are all named 'Forts,' in each of which are located a few whites, and many times their number of Indians. The buildings are mostly, if not exclusively, of log. The largest of these settlements is Fort Resolution, on Great Slave Lake, a community of 40 whites and 600 Indians. Here is the post which, for some time now, until this season, Mr. George Boucher, of Peterborough City, has visited every year, trading in the interests of Fairweathers, Limited, furriers, Toronto.

At Fort Norman, the objective of Messrs. Dyer, Henderson and Ogilvie, are situated the stores of the Hudson Bay Co., Lansom-Hubbard Co., and the Northern Trading Co. The population consists of 20 whites and 200 Indians.

Mr. Dyer says his party was very hospitably entertained, and rendered every accommodation and aid needed, by the representatives of these three fur-trading companies. At their destination the prospectors sold their gas boat, and the gasoline remaining brought them $1.65 a gallon.

Petroleum Rocks.

Speaking of the geological formation of the district, Mr. Dyer said:

"Highly bituminous shales and limestones measuring close to 1,000 miles in thickness underlie the district for hundreds of square miles. These rocks are capable of generating immense quantities of petroleum. The structure also is favorable since the rocks have been thrown by mountain building forces into a series of folds or anticlines. It is true that the crust of some of the anticlines have been eroded and a considerable amount of the oil-bearing formation has been lost. These crests are poor places in which to drill, but the chances of finding oil in good quantities on the flanks are excellent.

"The most important of these anticlines parallel the Mackenzie for 100 miles below Fort Norman. The average distance of the crest from the river is six miles in a north-west direction. The whole area between the river and the range may be considered as the flank of an anticline and a well put down near the river anywhere in this district should strike oil. The majority of the larger oil companies have started on this side of the river, including the Imperial Oil, Fort Norman Oil Co. and the North-Western Oil Co.

"The Imperial Oil Co. is very active at Fort Norman and is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in development work. They have established five camps between Fort Norman and the well, and five complete drilling rigs are being taken into the country for them this summer by the transportation companies. They will have two or three wells drilled by the time the winter sets in."

SHAKLETON LEAVES ENGLAND ON ANOTHER TRIP TO THE ANTARCTIC

APTLY-NAMED QUEST, MANNED BY STAFF OF EXPEDITION, STARTS FIRST LEG OF 30,000 MILE VOYAGE OF DISCOVERY IN SOUTH POLAR REGIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 20.. — (United Press.)—Amid the cheers of thousands of well-wishers lined along the Thames embankment, and the frantic tooting of ships' sirens, the aptly-named Quest, commanded by Sir Ernest Shackleton, started to-day on the first leg of a 30,000 mile voyage of discovery in the unchartered seas of the frozen South.

Romance and science is bound up in this new adventure in the Polar regions. The journey will take Sir Ernest 30,000 miles in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and in the unchartered seas of the South Pole. The explorers are making for the Enderby Quadrant, the Antarctic, south of South Africa. Some ninety years have passed since a ship was in these waters.

The Quest will also search for the lost Pacific island of Tunaki, mentioned in missionary history and native legend, but never seen; in search also for secret seas, whose existence is believed but not proved.

The ship is barely 200 tons net. Her length is 111 feet, and depth 12 feet. Her sides are two feet thick of oak, pine and fir, and her bows are shod with steel. A remarkable feature of the expedition will be the vessel's lack of a crew—a crew, that is, distinct from the scientific works. The staff of the expedition will manage the ship themselves.

The British Admiralty has lent an oceanographical equipment, and the Air Ministry has lent two officers who will do kite and balloon work. Sounding platforms have been built on the vessel, which will enable the scientific staff to sound the ocean to a depth of six miles, half a mile more than has ever been done before.

Arrangements have been made so that the vessel can steam for 10,000 miles without re-coaling. A seaplane is housed on a special deck, and two moving picture men are among the staff. The Quest will have on board stores for two years.

TO COUNTER RADICAL INDIAN PROPAGANDA

Mrs. Besant Sails to Check Growth of Movement Under Ghandi.

PARIS, Aug. 20. — Mrs. Annie Besant ,the English woman, who has devoted the latter years of her life to the cause of India, and who as president of the International Theosophical Society, presided over the first world congress of the society, which has just closed here, is hastening back to India to counteract the activities of Gandhi, the radical agitator.

Mrs. Besant said she had received several disquieting cablegrams from Madras, since she has been in Europe, as to the activities of Gandhi.

"Gandhi is getting desperate and likewise losing his head," said Mrs. Besant, "and I must get back to my people as quickly as possible. They have great confidence in me, and I am sure I can in a large measure lead them away from the radical, vicious teachings of Ghandi."

The Indians, Mrs. Besant said, want home rule under the Empire, and want to attain their freedom through peaceable means rather than by violence. While this may not be as far off as some think India must be able to defend herself against aggression with native force rather than English before she is ready to take the reins of Dominion government into her own hands.

Great Britain, Mrs. Besant believes is at last awakening to the needs of India, is more sympathetic, and through the newly formed National Native Council, is granting many of the demanded reforms.

Mrs. Besant expressed great admiration for Lord Reading, the Viceroy, whom she said had shown since his arrival in India a profundly sympathetic understanding of the Indian character, and she felt, would gradually further the cause of Home Rule.

Gandhi, whom she described as the Tolstoi of India, is losing his following, she said. He had preached boycott of schools, legal machinery, even the hospitals, and gaining for a time a tremendous following, but in all cases, where the boycott was effective, many of the agitators' disciples returned to the schools, and utilized the legal machinery and the medical aid.

Revolution will never gain any headway in India, Mrs. Besant believes, first, because the people are unarmed; secondly, because they do not want to gain political liberty that way.

Mrs. Besant frankly talked of her internment during the war for her teachings, and with pride, said a large number of the reforms she had been striving for are gradually being granted.

"During my recent suit for libel," she said, "the presiding judge remarked that most of the reforms for which I was agitating, thus causing my internment, have since been granted by the mother country. I look upon that statement by the judge as being my justification."

2,000 JOIN KU KLUX KLAN IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—More than 2,000 Chicagoans were inducted into the Order of the Ku Klux Klan here in an initiation ceremony conducted six miles south of Lake Zurich. Twelve thousand were said to have been in the automobile cavalcade that drove in the rain to the place where the ceremony took place. There, in a driving downpour of rain, in the presence of Colonel William Joseph Simmons, of Atlanta, Ga., Imperial Wizard, the initiates kissed the American flag and took the Ku Klux Klan oath.

REDS COMPEL WOMEN TO TOIL HARD—TEACHERS FORCED TO BE WAITERS TO EKE OUT LIVING.

(By Eda Treat O'Neil).
(Written for the United Press)

REVAL, August 20. — Few women in Russia to-day are having an easy time of it.

"They tell me you're a teacher," a waitress in a Moscow guest house said to me the other day.

"We're all teachers waiting on table here," she continued. "We had to find work when the schools closed for the summer. Otherwise, we would have lost our rations."

The incident is characteristic.

Every Woman Works.

Every Russian woman is supposed to be a worker. Without a worker's card, she hasn't the right to lodging, clothes, food, or transport facilities.

The teacher or office employee has never been quite so well off here as the factory girl who receives the same pay and pakok (rations) as the factory workman.

The teachers and office workers receive scantier rations and their pay ranges from six to twenty-five thousand roubles monthly — not a vast sum in a country where an egg costs 1,000 roubles.

To add to the women's troubles, there is a tendency to diminish the food rations due to the present shortage, while increasing the pay.

Office Hands Victims.

Such prostitution as can be said to exist in Moscow to-day recruit its victims chiefly from among the office employees. The problem of the married woman and mother is less simple than that of her unmarried sister. She, too, must have a worker's card—and housework isn't considered a profession once the children are of school age.

Little sympathy is felt for the woman who objects on principle to doing her housework.

In fighting the famine every Russian family solves the problem of getting food and keeping up its household in its own way.

"I know one woman who told her husband emphatically, 'If I cook, you've got to do the washing.'"

Willing or not, he was forced to accept.

Most city families make an effort to divide their heavy tasks among different members of the family.

In general, however, the heaviest burden falls on the mother.

LORD BYNG SAW "THREE LIVE MICE"

BRILLIANT COMEDY MAKES A HIT AT OTTAWA—COMES HERE TUESDAY.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Byng attended the performance of "Three Live Ghosts" in Ottawa on Wednesday. This splendid comedy, which comes to the Grand here on Tuesday night, made a big hit in Ottawa, as the following from the Ottawa Journal shows:

Manager Moxley, of the Russell Theatre, is to be heartily congratulated on his choice of "Three Live Ghosts" as the initial venture for the coming season. It was an unqualified success last night and with better acquaintance will play to increasing audiences.

Any paly having as its basis a War, must be more than ordinarily meritorious to appeal to audiences satiated with war stories, war films and war plays, and the fact that last night's performance made a friend of everybody in the house is its best possible recommendation. The clean humor, clever handling of a not too involved plot, and the splendid caste, headed by Miss Ruby Hallier, made an impression quite as favorable as that recorded by "General Post."

The story of the play has already been told. The return of the three "officially dead" soldiers who have escaped from a German prison, only to find, on reaching home, that there are good reasons why they should not convince the Government that their deaths have been much exaggerated; the complications with the law, as exemplified by detectives from New York and Scotland Yard, brought about by the kleptomaniacal tendencies of "Spoofy," an aristocratic "live ghost" who accumulates a variety of spoils, including a baby, cannot be told,—they must be seen — while the rich humor of Old Sweetheart and Jimmie Gubbins, both characters a joy to the lovers of real cockneys, will bring a reminiscent chuckle of delight for many days to come.

Of Miss Hallier it can safely be said that her Mrs. Gubbins is as great a study as was her Mrs. Porter in "The Lady of the Barge," and all who saw Cyril Maude in Jacobs' comedy will not have forgotten the all round excellence of the performance. As Mrs. Gubbins, Miss Hallier has the part of her career, and makes every point.

Henry Vincent as Jimmie Gubbins, ran Miss Hallier a close second in popular favor, he was a cockney of the Gus Elen type, rough in speech, kind in heart and a real "pal" to the man or woman in trouble.

"Spoofy" in the hand of Mr. Edward Martyn was a pathetic figure, restrained gentle and courtly. As "William Foster," alias "William Jones," Mr. Ben Lyon was quietly efficient, his only fault, a slight one, being a disinclination to use his hands to emphasize his speeches. Briggs of Scotland Yard, played by Mr. George Dutbrie, a Canadian actor, with a vigor and crispness that brought out the hesitancy of the "criminals" with marked effect, and was well backed up by Mr. Fred Bean, as the American detective who, to spite tradition, was unobtrusive to the point of bashfulness. Miss Alida Middlecoat and Miss Eleanor Masters, as Peggy Woofers and Rose Gordon, made the most of the roles assigned to them, and minor parts were in the capable hands of Miss Agnes Atherton as Lady Leicester, and Mr. J. L. Levy, as Benson.

MUSIC TO AID POST.

Phonograph May Speed Mail Delivery in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Sousa's next may be "The Parcel Post March."

Letter carriers may sound a tuning fork instead of announcing their presence with a whistle.

"The Special Delivery Blues" may be next season's greatest song hit.

"Stamp, Stamp, Stamp, the Boys are Marching," may be the official slogan of the letter sorters.

Postal notes may be sold in three denominations— soprano, tenor and bass.

All if Postmaster General Hays decides to put into general use a scheme now being tried out at Minneapolis. E. A. Purdy, posmaster of Minneapolis, is now in Washington delivering lectures to Hays on "music as an aid to postal efficiency."

Purdy claims that since a phonograph expert installed concentrated harmony in his office, the morale of his night workers has improved tremendously.

Dreamy waltz tunes early in the evening when the men are fresh, have a soothing effect, while in the cold grey hours of dawn, good snappy stuff like "Please Mail Your Letter Early," "Count Your Change Before You Leave," revives drooping spirits.

COMPLETING ARRANGEMENTS

President Denne felt if they were approached they would help to this extent. Mr. Glover was doubtful of them closing as there are so many buyers in the city that day but claimed the only way to sound the retailers was through their association He moved accordingly seconded by T. Brown that the Retail Association be asked to co-operate to this extent

Music for Exhibition.

A solicitation from William Lech, secretary of the 57th Band for their music for the Exhibition was referred to Webber Turner. Several delegates complimented the band on thir music on Civic Holiday.

Mounted Police

Mr. Brown told the directors he had discussed the policing of the grounds with Chief Constable Newhall, but had had no definite answer to a proposal that "mounties" be used. Mr. Glover favoured mounted police outside and President Denne also considered mounted police more efficient for watching the fences and automobiles. The President promised stringent measures this year to stop motorists getting a free show on Lansdowne street and surrounding avenues. He declared no cars would be allowed past Mr. Popham's corner and every car along the fence would be taxed.

Can Park in Ring

A decision was made to allow parking of cars within the circle. On Civic Holiday no automobiles were allowed in here and Mr. Denne said he knew of six families that did not come in on account of this. W. J. Cox was opposed to parking cars inside because of its blocking the track view but the consensus of opinion seemed to be that the motorists paid enough to be allowed to draw up somewhere near the platform and stamped approval to a motion of R. M. Glover's, that cars be allowed to park in the circle under the supervision of the traffic policeman.

No "Extras" Here.

Loud cheers greeted the financial statement given of the cost of the new grand stand constructed by Reg. Turner's Building Committee. The expropriation made was $3,500 the cost was $3156.72. After building the stand Reg Turner said they had enough left to turn the under part into seven garages, reconstruct the front fence, build a new pay box and picket fence and repairs the amusement stand and there was still $11 left.

A Challenge.

It is hoped to have a lively tug-of-war engagement this year for the Denne Cup. Fred Jopling and the lusty men of Smith Township won it last year and Fred, who is captain challenge all comers. LOCAL MILK DEALER FINED YESTERDAY

USED BOTTLES OF THE PETERBOROUGH MILK PRODUCTS LIMITED WITHOUT PERMISSION.

A fine of $10 and costs of $7.25 was levied against a local milk vendor in the police court yesterday for using the bottles of the Peterboro Milk Products Co.

The bottles were given him by customers, but it is said when the company asked him to return them he refused. He pleaded guilty and paid the fine. Magistrate Dumble severely censured the milk dealer for having to appear in court under such a charge, and threatened more serious punishment if any other occurrences were reported to him.

A Warning.

Mr. Gillespie has declared that further prosecutions under this section of the Criminal Code will be made. Section B, 490, reads as follows:

"Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence who being a manufacturer, dealer or trader or bottler, trades or traffics in any bottle or siphon which has upon it the trade mark duly registered or name of another person, without the written consent of such other person, or without such consent fills such bottle or siphon with any beverage for the purpose of sale of traffic."

The public should also take notice that a house holder who uses bottles for preserving fruit and other purposes, which is known to be frequently done, is liable under the criminal code to similar prosecution as in the above case.

EDWARD GARVEY GETTING BETTER

POLICE INVESTIGATED YESTERDAY'S AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

First reports of the condition of Edward Garvey, who was injured in a smash up between a motor car and a bicycle at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Streets at 3.15 yesterday afternoon were exaggerated, and this morning, while he was not yet out of danger, Dr. F. P. McNulty, who is attending him, held hopes of his recovery. His condition this morning was reported at the hospital to show improvement.

Investigation of the accident by the police lifted the responsibility for the accident from Cortland Miller, 571 Water Street, who was driving the automobile. According to Miller and H. Clarke, the owner of the car, and Miller's uncle, the automobile was travelling east on Charlotte Street. At the corner Miller slackened his speed to seven miles an hour, blew his horn and gave the proper signal to go north. He took a wide turn and did not cut the corner. The boy was coming west on Charlotte, and, according to those in the car and eye-witnesses, apparently became confused when he turned into Aylmer, and cut across in front of the automibile. Miller applied his brakes, but could not prevent the accident. The police stated to-day that the wheel was a girl's Garvey had borrowed, and he could not ride very well, and at the corner seemed to lose complete control.

Passed Over Boy.

The bicycle was knocked down, the left wheel of the automobile passing over it and over Garvey. This showed, the police say, that the boy had got far over on the road and did not hug the curb at the corner as he should have done.

P. C. Puffer tested the brakes and found them satisfactory. P. C. Carey brought the badly smashed bicycle to the Police Station with the boy's grey peak cap which had lain beside it. The boy was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. McNulty attended him.

Mr. Clark, R.R. No. 5, the owner of the car, was riding in it, and Mrs. H. Clarke and Mrs. Humphries, 69 Russel Street, Lindsay. Miller and Clarke were not held by the police when they had explained the accident, but Clarke was advised to remain in the city and await definite reports on the boy's condition.

Edward Garvey is the 15-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Garvey, 442 Driscoll Terrace, whose husband, William J. Garvey, was a victim of the Quaker Oats fire.

What You Owe to Advertisers

You owe to advertisers in daily newspapers almost everything that has made living more comfortable and healthy.

Daily Newspaper Advertisers of foodstuffs gave you clean foods, just weights and fixed prices for the things you buy to eat.

Daily Newspaper Advertisers gave you better clothes to wear by educating the public to the value of good clothes and their economy.

Daily Newspaper Advertisers made your housework easier by giving you quick cleansing fluids, furniture polishes, floor machines, vacuum cleaners, carpet sweepers, aluminum cooking utensils, clothes dryers, sewing machines, gas and electric irons.

Daily Newspaper Advertising made it possible for you to retain the beauty nature endowed you with by suggesting emollients, toilet preparations, shaving creams, safety razors, etc.

* * * *

The pioneers in all these things were the firms who made them and advertised them.

They led the way.

It is for this reason that you should always buy advertised goods.
These goods have raised your standard of comfort and living; and the manufacturers of them command admiration for their courage and foresight.

Dollar for dollar, the advertised article is always better value. The reason is that when an article is advertised, production of it is invariably greater. Therefore, the manufacturer has a larger output and a lower cost of production; hence the greater value for the money.

Further, the advertised article generally has superior merit and greater refinements about it. If it were not so, it would not be advertised.

Buy advertised goods, and buy them from the local store that advertises.

LARAMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

"Not what they did for Abe," averred John Lefever promptly, "and don't you forget it. But I don't call Abe Hawk a thief—never. Abe was a freebooter born out of time and place. He called himself a thief—he wasn't one. He hadn't the first instincts of one—no secrecy, no dark night stuff, no lying. He never denied a raid if he made one. And never did worse, when the big cattlemen protested, than to tell them to go to hell. He had a bunch of old Barb's calves branded along with his own one year. 'Well, you're the coolest rustler in the Falling Wall,' I says to him. 'They're my share of Barb's spring crop,' was all he said.

"You know, he lent Barb all his savings one year—that was when he used to have money, before his wife died. He never got a red cent of it back, never even asked for it. But when he wanted money he'd drive off some of Barb's steers. Yes, Abe stole cattle, I admit; yet I couldn't call him a thief—not to-day, anyway," said John, raising his glass. "Why, if Abe Hawk owed a man a hundred dollars, he'd pay him if he had to steal every cow in Falling Wall to do it. But take a hoof from a poor man," he went on, freshened, "why the poor men all used to run to Abe when Dutch Henry or Stormy Gorman branded their calves. They'd yell fire and murder. And Abe would make the blamed thieves drive their calves back! You know that, Jim."

Lefever between breaths threw the appeal for confirmation across at Laramie, who sat moodily listening and trying without success to interest themselves in a drink that stood untouched before him.

Laramie made no response. "Have it your own way, John," nodded Carpy intolerantly, "have it your own way. But whatever they say against old Barb, the man ain't livin' that can say a word against his girl—not while I'm in hearing. And I'll tell you, you could have knocked me over with a feather when I seen her this afternoon and she bound to ride in that procession behind Abe Hawk."

"What do you mean?" asked Lefever.

"I mean riding to the graveyard," insisted Carpy.

"What are you talking about?" demanded Lefever, to bring out the story. "You never saw it."

"I'll tell you what I saw." Only those who knew Laramie well could have told how keenly he was listening. "I drove down hill street," said the doctor, "just after the funeral started, and sat there, quiet, to one side, waiting for it to pass; a doctor's got no business around funerals. Right then Kate Doubleday pulled up close to me on horseback. She was just from the trail, that was sure; her horse showed the pace and the girl was excited—I seen that when she spoke to me. 'Doctor'—then she hesitated—'is that Abe Hawk's funeral?' 'It is,' I says. She looked at it and kept looking at it. The tail end of the procession was passing Hill Street. I noticed the girl bite her lip; she was as restless as her horse. 'Doctor,' she says, hesitating just the same way the second time, 'do you think people would think it awfully strange if I—rode to the cemetery with them?'

"I never was more dashed in my life. 'Well,' I says, 'I expect they would, Kate.' 'I feel as if I ought to do it,' she says. 'Don't do it for the fun of the thing, Kate. The boys wouldn't like that.' 'Oh,' she says, looking at me mighty hard, 'I've got the best of reasons for doing it.' 'Then,' says I, 'do it, no matter what they think or don't think. That's what Abe Hawk would 'a' done!' 'I'm such a coward,' she says, but I want to tell you there was fire in her words. 'Go ahead,' says I. 'Doctor, will you ride with me?' 'Hell!' says I, 'I never went to a funeral in my life.' 'Will you ride to this one with me? I can't ride alone; all the rest are men.' 'Doggone it! Come over to the barn,' says I, 'till I get a horse.'

"That's the way it happened.

"When we got to the graveyard we kept back to one side. All the time, she saw the whole thing. But just the minute the boys turned from the grave, away we went down the hill lickety-cut. We took the back streets till we struck the divide road, and there she turned for home."

Laramie felt no inclination that night to go home. In his depression he could think only of Kate Doubleday and reflect that the years were passing while he faced with the future without an aim and life without an outlook.

It was not the first time this conviction had forced itself on him. And it was getting harder and harder, he realized, to shake it off. But tonight, talk served in some degree as an anodyne, and he sat with the idlers late. The one bit of news that did stir him in his torpor was that Kate Doubleday had had at least the feeling to appear at the funeral of the man who, though rightly regarded as her father's enemy, had, Laramie knew, let go his own life, without a thought, to save hers.

This was the last reflection on his mind before he went to sleep that night. It was the first when he woke. Late in the morning he was sitting in Belle Shockley's at breakfast when McAlpin walked in.

"Jim," exclaimed the excitable barn boss, "I got a word this morning from the Falling Wall."

Laramie regarded him evenly, but did not speak till McAlpin looked inquiringly toward Belle. "No secrets here, Mac," he said briefly.

"Probably couldn't keep 'em from a woman if you tried," returned McAlpin, grinning. He pointed calmly toward the kitchen. "If we're all alone here—"

"Go ahead," intervened Belle impatiently, "we are."

"Punk Budd brought the stage from the Reservation this morning. Coming down the Turkey he met Van Horn. They had a bunch of Barb's boys with them driving in some cattle."

"Who's cattle?"

"Punk says when he run into 'em they was roundin' up yours."

"Was Punk sober?" asked Laramie.

"He sure was," replied McAlpin.

Belle with folded arms stood in the archway immovable as a statue; McAlpin sat in silence; Laramie, continuing his breakfast, looked at his plate. The silence grew heavy, but two of the three had no reason to break it and the third did not choose to.

Laramie, at length, took up his coffee, and, drinking slowly, finished the cup. Setting this down, he wiped his lips and looked at McAlpin.

"Much obliged, Mac," he said, laying down his napkin.

McAlpin regarded him inquiringly. "What you going to do about it, Jim?" he demanded, when he saw Laramie would say no word.

Laramie pushed back his chair. "What would you do?"

McAlpin spoke seriously. "I'm askin' you."

"I can tell better after I know more about it, Mac."

The barn boss evidently thought Laramie was taking the news too quietly. He was for violent measures, but Laramie calmed him. "If they've got any of my cattle, they won't run away," said he, "and they won't blow up. They'll keep, and I'll get them back—every hoof. I'm riding home this morning, anyway, so I'll be over after my horse in a minute."

McAlpin went away somewhat disappointed. Laramie only laughed when he talked it over with Belle. "So long as they don't burn my place, I can stand it," he said, philosophically.

Nevertheless, he felt disturbed at McAlpin's news—not for its substance as much as for what it might connote in renewed warfare. Getting his horse, he followed the railroad right of way out of town and struck out upon open country toward the north. He had no intention of taking the direct road home; that had long become dangerous, and he rode along abandoned cattle trails. At times he struck, swiftly and straight, across open country, at times disappeared completely in favoring canyons, and, emerging again, headed winding draws up to the divide—any ground that carried him in his general direction was good ground.

He tried always to be thinking just what the other fellow must be thinking as to favorable points to pick a man off—the fellow patiently waiting with a rifle day after day in ambush for him. And not having gone home of late twice by the same route, he meant to keep the other fellow continually guessing. To-day he was somewhat handicapped, in that he was riding in broad daylight instead of in the dawn or in the twilight when the uncertain light made it more difficult with the fine sights of a Winchester or Savage to cover a distant man. This hazard, however, called only for a little more precaution, which Laramie did not begrudge to the pride of disappointing an enemy. At points in his route where the main road could not well be avoided, he rode faster and with quickened circumspection. The Double-draw bridge he could not avoid without a long and difficult detour. Moreover, there, or beyond, he might expect to intercept the raiding party, and this was his business.

He did, however, approach the Double-draw bridge with an uncertainty and a caution not reflected in the pace which he rode toward it; but his horse was under close control and his rifle carefully in hand.

Despite his misgivings, no enemy was sighted. Only a flight of bank swallows, disturbed by the footfalls of his horse, darted noisily from their nests under the south bridge abutment and scattered twenty ways in the sunshine. Spurring freely, as they flew away, Laramie galloped briskly across the bottoms and up the hill. Skirting the long trail toward home, he rode on without meeting a living soul or hearing the unwelcome singing of a bullet.

In fact, things were too quiet; the silence and the absence of any sort of life as he approached his ranch were a surprise. The few head of cattle and horses he usually met when riding home along the creek were nowhere to be seen. Evidently the raid had been made. To survey the whole scene without exposing himself, Laramie rode out of the tangle along the creek bottom and took the first draw that would bring him out among the southern hills. As he emerged from the narrow gorge his eyes turned in the direction of the house. But where the house should be he saw above the green field only a black spot with little patches of white smoke lazily drifting from it up into the still sunshine.

Kate awoke the morning after Hawk's funeral with a confused sense of having consorted with her father's enemies and of trying to justify herself for having done what she had felt compelled to do to answer her sense of self-respect.

And all this before any one had accused her. But being extremely dubious as to how her father would take her conduct, she was not only ill at ease until she should meet him, but glad he had been away. And it was something of a shock to her that morning to find his bedroom door closed; it meant that during the night he had unexpectedly come home.

After her breakfast she walked down to the corral to talk to Bradley about the saddle horses. Not that she had anything to suggest, but because she was nervous. Laramie was intruding more and more into her mind; every time she banished him he returned, frequently bringing some one else with him. Between the perplexities and the men that beset her, Kate was not happy. And when, after a ramble along the creek, she returned to the house, she was not surprised to find that her father, coming from the breakfast table, hardly responding to her greeting. He was much engrossed in cutting off the end of a cigar as he passed her and in walking to the fireplace to find a match.

But the matches were not on the mantelpiece, where they belonged, and this annoyed him. If he said nothing, it did not deceive Kate as to his feelings. She hastened to hand him the matchbox from the table. He took it without saying a word, but he slammed it back to its accustomed place with a silent and ominous emphasis.

She knew it was coming. What surprised her was that she felt no further inclination to shrink from the moment of reckoning she dreaded. Doubleday, his cigar lighted, seat ed himself in his heavy chair beside the fireplace.

"What kind of a trip had you, father?" Kate, as she asked, made a pretense of arranging the papers and magazines on the table.

There was little promise of amiability in her father's answer. "What d'y' mean?" he asked.

"Did you get your notes extended?"

"Yes." His heavy jaw and teeth, after the word, snapped like a steel trap. "Did you go to Abe Hawk's funeral?" He flung the question at her like a hammer.

"Were you told I did?" Kate asked.

"Rode to the graveyard with him, didn't you?"

Kate saw there was no use softening her words. "Father," she said instantly and firmly. "The night I came out from town in the storm I got lost. I got on the wrong side of the creek. My horse gave out; I was dead with the cold."

Her father flung his cigar into the fire. "What's that got to do with it?" he broke in harshly.

"Just wait a moment."

"I don't want any long winded story."

"I won't tell any."

"I won't listen to you," he shouted. "Answer my question."

Her eyed kindled. You may call it whatever you like, but you will listen to my answer in the way I make it. When I'd given up hope of saving my life, and my horse was drifting, he fell into a dugout. And in the dugout were two men—Abe Hawk and Jim Laramie. They thought there was a party of men with me. They seized me. They got ready to fight. I was at their mercy."

"At the old mine bridge."

A flash of cunning lighted her father's eyes. The curtain fell instantly, but not before Kate had seen. "When they questioned me," she hurried on, "I told them what had happened. They believed me. They rode with me to the creek. We swam our horses across. Mine couldn't make the bank. Abe Hawk pulled me out and Laramie saved my horse. But the bank caved in with Hawk when he pulled me out of the creek, and the next thing I heard he was dead. I didn't go to his funeral except to ride to the cemetery in the procession. Father, could I do any less?" she demanded, wrought up.

Barb's harsh, red features never looked less uncompromising. "D' you expect me to believe that stuff?" he asked, regarding her coldly. She only eyed him as he eyed her. "D' you expect anybody to believe it?" he continued, to drive in his contempt.

Kate turned white. When she spoke, her words were measured. "O, no," she said, quietly. "I don't expect you any more to believe anything I say. Those other men would believe me when they had me at their mercy—when they might have choked or shot me or thrown me into the Falling Wall canyon—they only believed me. But my own father—he couldn't believe me——"

Neither appeal nor reproach moved her father; his mind was fixed. Van Horn had been sarcastic over Kate's escapade; Barb's own men were laughing at him. He interrupted Kate. "Pack up your things," he said, ruthlessly.

She faced her father without flinching. "What do you mean?" she asked.

He tossed his head with as little concern as if he were discharging a cowboy. "Don't want you around here any longer," he snapped. "Pack up. Get out."

She looked at him in silence. Perhaps, as she turned defiantly away and walked to her room she thought of the man that had deserted her mother when she herself was a baby in her mother's arms. At any rate, anger fortified her against the shock. Her preparations were soon made. A trunk held all she wished to take. She asked Bradley to get up her pony. Bradley was hitched up for a trip to Sleepy Cat, and, putting her trunk in the wagon, was on the road ahead of Kate. She spent a little time in straightening up her room and shortly afterwards rode down the trail for town.

Absorbed in thoughts tinged with bitterness and anger, she rode toward the creek as if casting things up again and again in her mind, but reaching no conclusion. When her horse struck the Sleepy Cat road he turned into it because she guided him. In this haphazard way she was jogging on, her eyes fixed on nothing more encouraging than the storm-worn ruts along her way, when a shout startled her. Looking up, she saw she was nearing the lower gate of the alfalfa patch and across the road a party of horsemen had stopped Bradley with the wagon. She recognized Harry Van Horn—his smart hat, erect figure, and scarlet neckcloth would have identified him before she could distinguish his features; and he always rode the best horse. Stone and three of the Texas men were with him. With the exception of Van Horn, they had dismounted, and with their drooping horses close at hand were stacking their rifles against the gate and yelling at Bradley.

Swinging his hat, Van Horn dashed toward Kate just as she looked up, and, whipping but his revolver, he pulled his horse to its haunches directly in front of her. "You're held up!" he cried.

The shock on her reverse was sudden, and Kate was too confused and frightened to speak.

"You can't get by without giving up your tobacco, girlie," Van Horn ran on in singing raillery. "Shell out!" He held out his left hand for the spoil and poised his gun high—a picture of life and dash. "You see what's happening to Bradley." The cowboys, in great feather, were dragging the old man with mock violence from the wagon.

Kate recovered her breath. "What's it all about?" she asked.

Van Horn put away his gun. He was in high good humor as he glanced over at the boys crowding around Bradley: "They want tobacco," he laughed.

"O."

"You know what I want."

Kate regarded his expectancy unmoved: "How should I know?" she asked, chilling her question with indifference.

"Because," he exclaimed, sweeping back with a flourish the brim of his hat, "I want you."

She eyed him without a tremor and responded without hesitation: "Well, I can say you will never get me if that's all you want."

He laughed again: "Talk it over with me, Kate; talk it over."

His eyes, always bright and liquid, were a little inflamed. Still laughing, he glanced toward the wagon. The boys were boisterous. Kate could hear Bradley's voice in shrill protest: "What'd I be goin' to town fr, if I had a bottle?" he was demanding angrily. But, while she looked and listened, Van Horn slipped quickly from his saddle and caught her bridle rein: "Come on," he said, at her horse's head. "let's walk down to the creek, girlie, and talk it all over."

Kate was indignant: "I won't walk anywhere——"

"I'll carry you."

She suppressed an angry word: "I'm on my way to town," she exclaimed. "Let go my bridle!" She struck her horse. The beast jumped ahead. Van Horn, laughing, held on. But the shock jerked him almost from his feet. As he staggered forward, clinging to the rearing animal, the half muffled report of a revolver was heard. Almost like a thunderbolt, it changed the situation. One of the Texas men had fired in the air, but no one had seen him fire and the other Texans jumped like longhorns. Stone, clapping his hand to his holster, whirled from the wagon wheel. Kate, frightened more than ever, struck her horse again; the bridle was jerked from Van Horn's hand and he turned sharply. Quickest to grasp what he saw as his eye swept the road, he yelled: "Look out, boys! There's Laramie!"

The words were not out of his mouth when Kate caught sight of a man down the road leaping from a horse. As the rider touched the ground he slapped his pony's shoulder and the beast dropped flat. The man, rifle in hand, threw himself behind the prostrate animal and Kate heard his brusque yell to Van Horn and the Texans: "Pitch up!"

It would have been hard to say who was most astonished. Laramie evidently was not expecting an encounter. To dash on horseback into any five men on foot, of the enemy's camp, was the last thing he would be likely to attempt. If he did attempt it, he would never choose Van Horn or Stone to be of the party. The ground about the scene was flat, or only slightly rolling, with the branch road and its old ruts running across it. Caught squarely in the open and without a sagebrush for cover, he had been forced to drop behind his horse for shelter. Lying flat and covering Van Horn and the men with his rifle, he awaited the unpleasant odds against him.

The situation of the five men in front was even worse. Their rifles were stacked against the gate hardly a dozen feet away. But to run a gantlet of a dozen feet against Laramie's rifle fire was a feat none had stomach for, nor were they ready at a hundred yards to pit revolvers against it. One of them might get him, but they knew it would be after some of the others had practically ceased to be interested in the result.

The minds of the Texas men were perfectly clear; their hands shot up like rockets. Stone had taken one big step toward the gate post—he changed his mind, halted, and his hands went up at the very instant Laramie changed his mind, and did not press the trigger against the burly outline darkening the field of his sights. Van Horn, caught, stood helpless and enraged—humiliated in circumstances he least relished for humiliation. Everybody's hands were up. His one chance, Van Horn realized, was to use his Colt's against the Winchester behind the prostrate horse—it was not a living chance and no one knew it better than he; his hands moved grudgingly up to his shoulders and he sang out savagely: "What the blazes do you want?"

There was no answer from Laramie. To add to a difficult situation, Kate's horse, nervous from the shouting and catching its mistress' own fright, jumped and bucked till she was halfway down the road toward Laramie before she could check him. To add to her confusion, words came from ahead just loud enough for her to hear: "Pull the blamed brute to one side, will you?" It was Laramie speaking, she knew. "If he gets between me and that bunch," she heard him say, "I'm a goner." She jerked her horse violently out of the road; Laramie had raised his voice and kept right on talking: "Turn your back, Van Horn—you, too, Stone. Shoot up your hands, you Texans—higher!" he called to one of the Texans. And with the words not out of his mouth, he leaped as if on springs to his feet. It seemed as if his rifle covered his enemies all the time, even while he was doing it.

With his head forward, his elbows high, and the Winchester laid against his cheek; stepping like a cat, and swiftly and with his eyes fixed on the men ahead, Laramie walked toward the wagon. In doing so he approached Kate, whose horse had subsided. Laramie took no note of her. She only heard his words as he passed: "You'd better get out of this." Approaching his prisoners in such a way they could not reach either the gate or the wagon without crossing his fire, Laramie compelled Bradley, really nothing loath, to disarm the three cowboys in turn and drop their guns into the wagon-box. Stone, sullen, was gingerly approached by Bradley, under strict orders to keep out of reach of arms. But the old man knew all the tricks of the play being staged, even though he was not able to turn them. And when Stone, cursing, was ordered to lower his right arm and hand his revolver to Bradley at arm's length, the old man's feet were planted at least six feet from the foreman for a jumpaway in case Stone tried to clinch him and shoot at Laramie from behind Bradley's cover.

But after he was disarmed, Laramie was not through with Stone. Sullen and obdurate, he was ordered to face away, while Bradley from behind searched his pockets. And the crown of his abasement was reached when Bradley drew from a hip pocket a full flask of whiskey. The material advantage of the find was not great, but the tactical advantage was enormous. Behind Stone, Bradley, silently but jeeringly, held it up as an exhibit for the thirsty Texas men; and to show it was full, uncorked and with gusto sampled it. Stone was ordered back to his horse.

"How long is this joke, Laramie?" sang out Van Horn, his humor oozing: "Can't you frisk a few cowboys in less than all day?"

"Well, don't waste your valuable time on me. This is your innings—I'll wait for mine."

"Drop your gun to the ground," returned Laramie. "Pick that up, Bill," he added to Bradley as Van Horn threw his revolver contemptuously from its holster. He was searched with the same scrupulous care by old Bradley, his morale greatly strengthened by Stone's flask: "I don't give a d—n whether you get me or not," he retorted at Van Horn, in answer to a low threat from his victim.

Laramie, having told Van Horn to mount, turned to the Texas men: "Which one of you boys wants to carry the rifles over to that big cottonwood for me?" he asked, pointing toward the creek.

"I do," responded the nearest man, promptly.

"Don't you do it, Tex," called out Stone.

The Texan eyed his foreman: "Why not?" he demanded. "Ain't I been ridin' this country all day squealin' for a drink, an' you had a pocket full of it all the time? I'm through with my job."

Laramie broke in without losing the precious moment: "Who set my house on fire, Tex?" he demanded.

The Texan nodded in Stone's direction: "Ask him."

"He'd lie, Tex; I'm askin' you."

The rawboned horseman hesitated: "I'll talk that over with you when I'm rested," he drawled.

"Go get your Colt's out of the wagon, Tex." Laramie pointed the way. "Pick out the guns of the other two boys and tote them over to that tree with you. The boys'll ride over there after you. Tell Barb I'll give him twenty-four hours to get every hoof, round or split, that belong to me back to the Falling Wall—failing which I'll be over to talk to him privately. Will you do that, Tex?"

"I sure will."

"These rustlers here," he looked toward Stone and Van Horn, "won't be able to carry messages for a while. They're ridin' to town with me. Bill," he added, turning to Bradley, "dump their rifles into the wagon and follow on along."

"What's this?" snapped Van Horn with an oath. "Going to town with you! Not on your life."

"You're headed for jail tonight, Harry; that's all. You boys," he spoke to the Texans and gave no heed to the oaths and abuse from Van Horn, "ride down to the cottonwood and get your guns from Tex. There's two good trails from here to town and plenty of room on both. Today I'm riding the Double-draw bridge. If any of you are going to town, take the other trail. Lead off now, you two."

He spoke to Van Horn and Stone, both mounted, and with the two headed for town, and the Texans started up the road, Laramie climbed into his own saddle. Not until then did he look around for Kate. She had disappeared.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and separating the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up three sizes—25c, 50c and $1 per box, at Warne's Drug Store, 351 George Street, Peterborough.

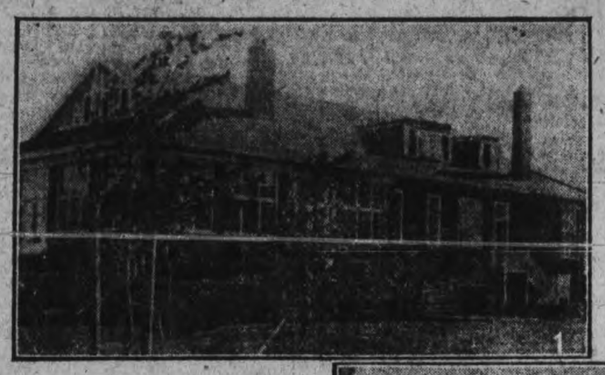
ATTRACTIONS OF CALGARY



(1) The Calgary, Can., golf and country club house.
(2) A view of the links.
(3) The Memorial to the "Riders of the Plains" who fell in the Boer war, located in Central Park, Calgary.

Calgary, the portal city to the Canadian Pacific Rockies has become an interesting point for the tourist on his journey westward. As a breezy buoyant city, it has many attractions for the summer visitor. Lying in the shadow of the Rockies with a vision of a long line of glittering peaks, called by the Indians, "The Shining Mountains," there is about the city a tone and atmosphere that is typical of the environment. It is something truly western with the charm of sunny skies, lingering twilights and cool breezes.

Calgary is one of the points to which the continent's motor highways instinctively turn. Winding trails about the city lure to interesting spots. A good motor or street car leads to Bowness Park, westward on the circuitous Bow river. This park is unique in Canada in that a net work of canals from the Bow river has transformed this section of virgin prairie into "a bit of Venice."

The Calgary Golf and Country Club, nestled among the hills on the Elbow river, has well kept links over rolling hills and is a short drive from the heart of the city. St. Andrew's Golf Club and the Municipal Golf Club have good courses among the hills.

St. George's Island, east on the Bow and a few short minutes from the centre of the city, is essentially woodland. With great shady trees and inviting paths there is offered all forms of recreation including an evening cabaret in the pavilion.

In the heart of the city is Central Park, a spot of placid dignity. The shadows lying cool and soft under the long line of green trees, this place of colorful delights with its gorgeous flower beds and restful arbors, under lacing green foliage, presents a rare setting for the Carnegie Library. The crowning feature of the Park and a magnet to Westerners is the splendid monument erected in memory of those who fell in the Boer War. A great bronze "Rider of the Plains" on a handsome and spirited horse, is typical of the West and of the valor of our own North West Mounted Police.

After enjoying the charm of a typical western city, not long since a "cow-boy town" there is the Calgary to Lake Louise road calling the motorist. It has promise of being one of the most wonderful drives in the world such as from Lucerne to Interlaken or Newport to New Haven.

Passing through rich pasture country, over the hills, the town of Cochrane appears as the mountains come ever nearer, with Devil's Head, standing forth bare and bleak against the blue sky.

The Indian Reserve is traversed, passing near the Government school, church and the town of Morley. Beyond Ghost river and old Bowfort Creek, the boundary of Rocky Mountain Park is reached. The mountains close sharply in and passing through the Gap, Exshaw, the cement centre, Canmore the mining town, to Anthracite, an old mining town where only dandelions flourish now. Then winding, turning and twisting up Anthracite hill, a glorious view of the country about Banff is unfolded.

Twenty-Five Babies Constitute Average Attendance the Clinic

Nurse Has Her Hands Full in the Follow Up Visits—Peculiar Cases Come Up Examination.

The Well Babies' Clinic has not suffered any setback during the summer season. In fact, the attendance appears to be increasing weekly, a good average during the last few months being 25 at the Tuesday afternoon clinics.

Children brought during the very hot weather were helped greatly by the free advice dispensed here, and a common remark made by the mothers to those in charge has been the reiterated statement that they get so much more rest and much better sleep when the advice received at the Clinic is followed out. Changes in diet and in clothing, in the manner of feeding and the quantity and frequency of food, help to protect the tiny sufferer from indigestion and summer complaint, advice as to all manner of children's diseases, all these things come within the circle of the activities of this busy little health centre.

Peculiar cases come for examination. One child with a constant, apparently uncheckable, bleeding from the nose was discovered to have a wad of decaying paper wedged tightly in its nostrils, and another had put a pea away safely in the same place.

The nurse, whose follow-up visits just commenced a short time ago, has her hands full, and does a great of good in this way. A tremendous field of charitable endeavour is open to any observer of this work, and it would seem like a chance for some active-minded association like the Red Cross to use some of their funds in furthering a good work of this sort, such as endowing a milk station or making it possible for a full-time nurse to carry on the work.

A baby clinic conducted by the Ontario Government will be one of the features in the Government building at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, and a baby show, for which in 1920 there were over 600 entries, will again be held at the C.N.E. on Labor Day.

With The Girls "Y" Camp

Extracts From a "Y" Camper's Diary.

Y.W.C.A. Camp, August 2, 1921.

Here we are at the Blue Triangle Camp. Enjoyed the boat trip very much and are so glad we came. The cottage is on a woody island and is big and comfortable. The first thing on the programme after getting unpacked was supper, and, oh, what joy — pancakes and syrup, and as many as you liked. In the evening we went for a paddle and explored around the island and a pretty creek near by. We landed at Burleigh and nearly lost our way, and a big playful dog came bounding over the rocks. My woeful wails alarmed all. While trying to turn from him, I fell over a boulder, and he went on (over my back). We arrived home, had toast and tea around the fire, and went to bed with good wishes for pleasant dreams.

August 3rd.

This is our work day, which consists of washing dishes. However, as a couple of others helped us, it was rather fun, at least we made it fun. I was late for breakfast. We had corn flakes, bacon, toast, marmalade and jam. Quiet morning around camp. We had a dandy dinner—lamb chops, potatoes, beans and chocolate pudding. We started to do the dishes, but had to leave them, because we went down to Juniper in a launch. Came home and had supper—soup, hot biscuits, bananas and cake. Walked down to Spenceley's for milk. Came home and had a marshmallow roast around the fire, danced for a while, told some funny stories and off to bed for a good night's rest. The main thing around here seems to be to eat and to eat lots.

August 4th.

Started the day by being late for breakfast again. We packed our lunch and started on a mile and a half hike. Oh, it was great. The snaps will reveal the story. We built a fire along the beach at Kawartha and fried bacon (to a crisp brown), and potatoes and beans—pie for dessert. The rhymes which we made up were worhy of being saved. The beach is fine and we had a good swim. The party then started for home. The gooseberries were so tempting we picked enough for a pie, and the pickers were the lucky ones, getting a ride home. We had a wonderful supper, tomatoes, salmon and cucumbers, apple sauce and cake. Fortune-telling was the order of the evening, which ended up in hilarious laughter. Went to see Burleigh Falls, came home and met some new arrivals at camp.

APPLIED TO HIGH TOWER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20. — Scientific instruments were used here in an effort to determine what William A. Hightower knows of the murder of Father Heslin, the crime with which he is charged.

Hightower was subjetced to a severe cross examination while delicate recording instruments indicated changes in his heart action and respiration as he answered leading questions.

When he was asked point blank if he murdered Father Heslin, Hightower's blood pressure went up to 32 milimeters, according to August Vollmer, chief, and Dr. J. A. Larsen, medical adviser, to the Berkeley Police Department, who conducted the examination.

An "open verdict" that Father Heslin came to his death either by blows on the head which factured his skull or by two gunshot wounds, was returned by the coroner's jury.

The police to-day advanced the belief that no such person as Dolly Mason, who Hightower said told him where the grave could be found, is in existence.

Milk Fed Children Excel

This baby boy was 12 months old when this picture was taken. He then weighed 24 pounds. Since he was four months old, he has been fed nothing but Pasteurized Milk from the Peterborough Milk Products Limited, Hunter Street.

MILK—the Food from Birth to Old Age. Drink a "toast" to the wise Mother—a Milk toast. Fathers and Children bless the Wives and Mothers who guide them along the Milky Way. See the picture of the Peterborough Baby fed on our PASTEURIZED MILK.

SAFE MILK is easy to get, and we should have it. While Raw Milk is as Unsafe as Raw Meat, properly PASTEURIZED MILK is as Safe and Satisfactory as Properly Cooked Meat. See that the Family gets properly PASTEURIZED, SAFE MILK.

SAFE MILK is the best source of certain Food substances, necessary for the growth of Children and the health of Adults. We should use at least a Quart of SAFE MILK per Person per Day.

USE MORE SAFE MILK, because SAFE MILK is the Cheapest Form of Animal Food. We get twice as much Food for a Dollar in properly PASTEURIZED MILK as in Meat and Eggs, and the Milk is ready to serve while the Meat and Eggs still require the Added Expense of Cooking.

NEGOTIATIONS BETWTEN JAPS AND EASTERN REPUBLIC.

TOKIO, Aug. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Negotiations between representatives of the Japanese Government and the Far Eastern Republic will be opened at Dairen tomorrow, it is said in newspaper despatches received here from Siberia.

THE WORLD'S NEED.

The Rev. Geo. Yule, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Oshawa, is firmly convinced that the greatest need of Canada and the world is "the reality of God, a vision of the human need, and a determination to serve." "We are living in perilous times," he added, "and this is Canada's day of testing."

Kiddies at Jackson Park Have Great Summer at the Park Camp

The kiddies at Jackson Park have had a great summer. It is an object lesson in the art of giving where giving is appreciated and where it does a great deal of good to see these little youngsters clustered in the van which takes them to the park on fine mornings, happy, little browned faces peering over the side, and to see them playing under the pines in the park or paddling in the creek is another pleasant moment. They may come thin and pale, but two months of outdoor life and fun, two months of play and frolic, with all the milk they can drink and plenty of good, wholesome food, cannot fail to leave them with strong bodies and cheerful minds.

The applications were so numerous at the beginning of the season, that the ladies of the Peterborough Health Association, under whose auspices it flourishes, devised a plan to take care of them all and still not unduly stretch the limits of accommodation afforded, so the roster of games was divided in alphabetical order from A to M, and from M to Z, and the children accomodated daily in turn to the number of from 35 to 38.

Numerous gifts have been made to the camp during the season by kind friends. Fruit, vegetables supplies of many sorts, rope for swings, a water trip down the river and an afternoon on the street cars added to their enjoyment from time to time, and they certainly do enjoy any treat of this sort with whole-hearted enthusiasm.

Different ladies have helped with the conduct of the camp during the summer months including Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Mrs. A. W. Turner, Mrs. Jas. V. Gallivan, Miss B. Gardiner, Miss Archer, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. J. S. Cameron and Mrs. R. R. Hall.

During the month of August, Miss M. Montgomery of London street, is giving excellent service as camp nurse.

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE

ONLY IN RARE CASES DOES BACKACHE MEAN KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Every muscle in the body needs constantly a supply of rich, red blood in proportion to the work it does. The muscles of the back are under a heavy strain and have but little rest. When the blood is thin they lack nourishment, and the result is a sensation of pain in those muscles. Some people think pain in the back means kidney trouble, but the best medical authorities agree that backache seldom or never has anything to do with the kidneys. Organic kidney disease may have progressed to a critical point without developing a pain in the back. This being the case, pain in the back should always lead the sufferer to look to the condition of his blood. It will be found in most cases that the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood will stop the sensation of pain in the ill-nourished muscles of the back. How much better it is to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the blood than to give way to unreasonable alarm about your kidneys. If you suspect your kidneys, any doctor can make tests in ten minutes that will set your fears at rest, or tell you the worst. But in any event to be perfectly healthy you must keep the blood in good condition, and for this purpose no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

About Colors

"Women's Wear" the Canadian magazine for women, has the following to say about colors for fall:

"For evening the tendency is away from the vivid shaded to the pastel shades. Mauve, on the blue tone, and butterfly (citron) are best thought of.

Purples are coming in again, especially for hats, sweaters, umbrellas and other accessories. Poppy red and jade still persist—matrix (a bluish jade is the preferred one.

Grays are still to be good in the fall and the gray blues called hydro and radio on the new color card, are well thought of.

In underthings there is a tendency toward radical colors, such as poppy red, elk (green), aurora, (honeydew), and afterglow (orchid)

A new greenish blue shade called Whirlpool is expected to be a good hat and silk dress color. The copper tones are still very good, particularly the new shade called Fujiyama.

In the woolens the brown shades seem to be best thought of. Java, Mocha, Nubian (seal), and Llama are memtioned. In the lighter shades, buff is well thought of, and meadowlark, which is the same as the shade sometimes called Wren.

Navy blue is expected to be better than it was last year and grays will also be good. There is some talk of the return of green, and balsam is a good shade, but it will be rather exclusive. Bagdad blue, which has a green undertone, and Buddha, are also mentioned.

There is tendency to black and white combinations with a touch of high color. The orange season is not over and yellows are to be especially good.

In shoes, it is expected that colored evening slippers will take the place of metal ones. Combination shoes of light and dark brown or gray and black are expected to be good. A shade called mouse will be popular for shoes and gloves.

In millinery circles, there is a movement to divide the year into four seasons, and they have issued a midsummer seasonal card in which are incorporated colors selected from the color cards of the Textile Color Card Association for midsummer wear. The two shades to be especially pushed in millinery circles are azure (blue and Hyacinth.

For evening wear, the reddish brown and the royal purple especially are the new shades.

The Gladioli

No soft, yielding grace is theirs, these superb blooms, with their stiffly unyielding green standards and bursts of colored radiance. Like soldiers they stand, on one side, straight green lances held firmly beside unyielding green backs, and on the other, a petticoat brigade of lovely ladies, gathered together with soft outspread skirts all ready for an old-fashioned curtsey. In severe, formal dignity they tower on long stalks, with a soft, radiant luminous glow that gives the appearance of flashing light. With three large and three small satin petals, with five large and a single tongue of ruby red, or four large and twin smaller segments, they glow in faint yellowish pink, in yellow and orange, lemon, crimson, scarlet, vermilion, pale rose madder, salmon pink, blush rose, carmine, mauve, cream, orange, flame, orchid, heliotrope, purple, canary yellow, faintly sprinkled with pollen from triple-tongued stamens, and over all the smooth texture of the opening petals, just a faint iridiscent golden dust. One thinks of a calla lily in looking at the folding inner petals; of the Canterbury bell in the manner of their curious blossoming; of the tiger lily in the orange blooms; the crimson flower has the velvet petals of the rose, the mauve-white the exotic appearance of the orchid, and there is the suggestion of the spring-time narcissus in the clear yellow variety.

In dignified silence they stand, gorgeous bursts of soft and luminous hues, with tiny, close-folded buds and softly-curving fluted edges, splashed with a fringe of deeper color, erect and stately, dreams of rainbow-shaded flowers, wonderful blossoms of living light, with a faint, sweet fragrance all their own.

THE C.G.E. BALL TEAM PUT KEENE OUT OF THE RUNNING

BEAT EAST PETERBORO WINNERS 10 TO 0 LAST NIGHT AND GO INTO THE NEXT ROUND OF THE INTERMEDIATE O.B.A.A. SERIES.

The C.G.E. team, intermediate city champions, eliminated Keene, the East Peterborough League winners, from the intermediate series of the O.B.A.A. last evening when they whitewashed the Keene outfit on ther own grounds by 10 runs to 0. In spite of the one-sided score, the game was a much better exhibition than the fixture played between the two teams here on Civic Holiday. The Keene crew could not hit the offerings of Bun Frost, and were therefore rarely dangerous, but their fielding showed a big improvement, in fact the losers contributed all the feature plays. Hugh Renwick in right field, came over at top speed and gathered in a drive from Barrie's bat with his gloved hand in big league style. Joe O'Dette cashed in with three beautiful catches in centre field, and Fletcher cut Barrie and Corrin out of hits by sparkling plays.

Frost drew the pitching assignment for the C.G.E. and turned in a fine performance, holding Keene to three hits, two of them of the scratch variety and whiffing nine of the East Peterborough crew. His support was good all through the engagement, while the C.G.E. bunch hit in timely style, interjecting their hits where they counted the most and all but two of their twelve safeties figured in the run-getting.

The C.G.E. team having triumphed over the Mercantile and East Peterborough League winners, will likely clash with the Madoc team, champions of the Trent Valley League in the next round.

C. G. E. scored in the first. Rutherford led off with a single to centre and after Barrie had fanned and Corrin had hoisted one to G. O'Dette. Frost slashed a triple to deep centre, scoring Rutherford. Helson rolled to G. O'Dette.

For Keene G. O'Dette rolled to Frost, Fletcher walked and stole second and third, but H. Renwick and J. O'Dette fanned.

In the second Dugan lined to Fletcher. Foley struck out. Primeau singled through short and McCarney was safe on Fletcher's miss. Rutherford popped to third, retiring the side.

For the East Peterborough winners, Nelson got a cheap hit when Barrie and Frost let his pop fly drop untouched between them. Hawkins struck out. Paudash was hit. M. Renwick bunted a fly to Foley and Robertson missed three.

Barrie led off for the C.G.E. in the third and was robbed of at least a double by Hugh Renwick's one-handed catch. Corrin singled past second and stole second. Hawkins' throw hitting Umpire Mickey Murray where he usually wears his hat. Joe O'Dette made a fine catch of Frost's long drive to deep centre. Helson hoisted one to G. O'Dette, by Fletcher and Frost's hard smash to Corrin. Foley tossed out Fletcher, and H. Renwick bounced one to Rutherford.

C.G.E. got two in the fourth. After Dugan fouled to Hawkins and Foley was thrown out by Nelson, Primeau was safe when Nelson's throw pulled Robertson off the bag. Primeau stole second. McCarney singled to left, scoring Primeau, and going to second on the throw to the plate. Rutherford's safety to left sent McCarney in, Barrie flied to J. O'Dette.

Keene were easy in their half, J. O'Dette rolling to Frost and Nelson and Hawkins to Corrin.

The winners got another pair of counters after two were out. Corrin was robbed of a hit by a nice stop by FFletcher and Frost's hard smash to deep centre was taken nicely by Joe O'Dette. Then Helson lined to left for two bases and Dugan cracked a single past O'Dette to score the catcher. Foley promptly doubled to right centre for a triple, scoring Dugan. Primeau was thrown out by M. Renwick.

In Keene's half Paudash scratched a hit on a tap along the third base line, which Foley knocked down with his bare hand. He was out stealing, Helson to Rutherford. M. Renwick fanned. Robertson got a life when Barrie missed his roller, but Foley made a nice catch of G. O'Dette's fly.

In the sixth, for C.G.E. McCarney singled to second, stole second, going on to third on Hawkins' low throw and scoring when M. Renwick mussed up Rutherford's tap. Rutherford stole second and third, registering while Fletcher was throwing out Barrie. Corrin fanned and Fletcher bagged Frost's fly back of second in good style.

Fletcher opened Keene's half with a clean double to centre, but H. Renwick fanned. J. O'Dette popped to Frost and Barrie tossed out Nelson.

C.G.E. got three in the seventh. Helson singled to start with, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and registered on Dugan's infield out, Fletcher to Robertson. Foley bounced a single over short and stole second and third, counting on Nelson's error on Primeau's tap. Primeau advanced on a wild pitch and scored on M. Renwick's wild heave to first on McCarney's roller. Rutherford was safe on M. Renwick's error. McCarney died stealing third and Rutherford went out the same way.

Frost struck out Hawkins, Paudash and M. Renwick with ten pitched balls in Keene's half, and Umpire Kay then called the game on account of darkness.

The score:

NOTES ON THE GAME.

C. G. E. are well hooked up for pitchers with McCarney, Frost, Johnston and Foley all in good shape.

You've got to hand it to the Keene rooters. They never stopped yelling, no matter what the score is.

"Micky" Murray saw more stars than he ever imagined there were in the heavens when Hawkins' throw to second hit him on the head.

Frost uncorked a triple in the first innings and the Keene outfielders took no chances after that. O'Dette was a mile deep when he grabbed two flies from Frost's bat.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR.

Cincinnati hit three Brooklyn pitchers for 19 safeties and won easily.

Second game of double header between White Sox and Athletics had to be stopped on account of crowd on the field.

DRUG ADDICTION IS TREBLED SINCE PROHIBITION LAW.

New York Reports Cases Treated 493 As Against 116 Two Years Ago.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Cases of drug addiction handled by the department of public welfare have more than trebled since prohibition was put into force, according to figures made public to-day by Commissioner Bird S. Coler.

The total for 1918 was 116; for 1919, 339, and for 1920, 493. In the first six months of 1921, 377 were treated. These figures, it was pointed out, represent but a small percentage of the number of addicts treated in the city.

Mr. Coler's report showed there had been little decrease in the number of alcoholics treated by city hospitals since prohibtion became effective. The total in 1918 was 1,145. In 1920 the total was 1,024 The number for the first six months of 1921 was 567.

SHAW SHUNS U. S.

Won't Go to Jail with Debs or Let Wife be Tarred.

NEW YORK, August 20. — Geo. Bernard Shaw is "not" coming to the United States.

Shaw has, he states in a letter to Osald Garrison Villard, of the "Nation," no intention of either going to jail with Eugene Debs or having his wife tarred by alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan.

Villard recently wrote Shaw as follows:

"I understand that a number of friends are writing to you and urging you to come to the United States. May I say how grateful we of the "Nation" should be if you should come."

Shaw replied:

"This conspiracy has been going on for years; but in vain the net has been spread in sight of the bird.

"I have no intention of going to prison with Debs or taking my wife to Texas where the Ku Klux Klan snatches white women from out of hotel verandahs and tars and feathers them.

"If I were dependent upon martyrdom for a reputation—which, happily I am not —I could go to Ireland. It is a less dangerous place: but then the voyage is shorter and much cheaper.

"You are right in your impressions that a number of persons are urging me to come to the United States. But why on earth do you call them my friends?"

HE KNEW HOW

There was an old geezer
And he had a lot of sense,
He started up a business
On a dollar eighty cents.
The dollar for stock,
And the eighty for an ad,
Brought him three lovely dollars
In a day, by dad!
Well, he bought more goods
And a little more space,
And he played that system
With a smile on his face.
The customers flocked
To his two-by-four
And soon he had to hustle
For a regular store.
Up on the square
Where the people pass,
He gobbled up a corner
That was all plate-glass.
He fixed up the windows
Hith the best that he had,
And told them all about it
In a half-page ad.
He soon had 'em coming
And he never, never quit,
And he wouldn't cut down
On his ads, one jit,
And he's kept things humping
In the town ever since,
And everybody calls him
The Merchant Prince.
Some say it's luck
But that's all bunk—
Why, he was doing business
When times were punk.
People have to purchase
And the geezer was wise—
For he knew the way to get 'em
Was to advertise.—Exchange.

Ouch! Lame Back

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

PAULINE FREDERICK IN APPEALING DRAMA.

Film Star Seen in "The Mistress of Shenstone," An R-C Super-Special.

A story adapted from one of the most widely read and popular novels of the day, enacted by the screen's greatest emotional actress, and made under the supervision of the foremost producing organization in the film industry. A rare combination indeed, but that is just what is offered the public in the super-special production, "The Mistress of Shenstone," starring Pauline Frederick.

From the pen of Florence L. Barclay, famous English writer who has given to the world such works as "The Rosary," "Wheels of Time," "Through the Postern Gate," "The Upas Tree," and "The Broken Halo," "The Mistress of Shenstone," needs no further recommendation. Told in a vein that is peculiarly Mrs. Barclay's own, "The Mistress of Shenstone," unfolds a gripping tale of human appeal, which has not lost, but rather gained through its adaptation for the screen.

It is as a vehicle for Pauline Frederick however, that "The Mistress of Shenstone" takes on its finest significance. With that splendid artistry which has made her one of the most dominant figures in the screen world, she brings to life vividly and with realism a beloved figure of fiction. Her interpretation of Lady Myra Ingleby, will be considered by many her finest effort. Certain it is that seldom has a motion-picture camera recorded such delicacy, such fineness in lighter moments, such depth of feeling and such powerful force as displayed by Miss Frederick in this role.

From an artistic angle, the production is just as noteworthy. Directed by Henry King, whose name has been identified with many of the finest of recent screen offerings, "The Mistress of Shenstone" has received the utmost of his talent.

Art directors too have given of their genius in creating atmosphere for this production, which in every way reflects the spirit of the book. Interiors of stately English mansions were faithfully reproduced, miles of country roads were travelled to obtain just one scene. That one a perfect illusion of the English countryside where the story is laid.

Neither time, effort nor expense was spared in making this a production, worthy of the standard of Robertson-Cole and of the ability, versatility and dramatic prowess of Pauline Frederick. "The Mistress of Shenstone" opens at the Capitol Monday night.—Fan Fan.

MOTHERS!

WATCH YOUR TEETHING BABIES

THOUSANDS OF THEM DIE EVERY SUMMER

When the baby stars to cut its teeth, then is the time the poor mother is under the stress of great anxiety. The child's bowels become loose, and diarrhoea, dysentry, colic, cramps and many other bowel complaints manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, cankers form in the mouth, and in many cases the child wastes to a shadow, and very often the termination is fatal.

On the first indication of any looseness of the bowels, give a few doses of and thus, perhaps, save your baby's life.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

For the past 76 years "Dr. Fowler's" has been used by mothers for teething babies so you do not experiment with a new and untried remedy which might be dangerous to your darling's health.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE FILMS NOTED PLAY

Douglas Murray's famous stage play, "The Man from Toronto," has been transferred to the screen as "Lessons in Love," under which title it will be presented at the Allen Theatre next week, beginning Monday with captivating Constance Talmadge as the star. Henry Miller acted in the Murray play in this country under the title of "Perkins," and it is still playing in England, as "The Man from Toronto." Grant Carpenter adapted it for the screen, and Chet Withey directed Miss Talmadge in "Lessons of Love." Kenneth Harlan is Miss Talmadge's leading man in this production, which is her latest release through Associated First National Pictures. Advance reports indicate that it is the best Constance Talmadge picture yet turned out.

THIS IS TOO MUCH FOR FATE; RIOT OF LAUGHER THE RESULT

It is tempting fate to the nth degree when a colleg youth takes his secret bride, disguised in male attire, back home to meet the girl that his father has picked out for him as a wife. But on such dangerous ground is the plot of "The Reckless Sex," lates tof the two-reel Christie Comedies, at Allen Theater Monday, founded, and there follow a series of complications which are said to make the fastest moving picture that Al Christie has ever made. He directed it himself, Dorothy Devore and Earl Rodney are the featured players.

LIFE-SIZED CLAY STATUE PLAYS PROMINENT PART IN "BLIND YOUTH"

Touch of Realism Given New National Picture When Carlo Romanelli, Noted Western Sculptor, Models Perfect Likeness of Leatrice Joy

The title "Blind Youth", while applying to persons who have not yet reached the age of discretion, also refers, in the photoplay by that name, which will re-open the Grand for 3 days beginning Thursday to a statue which plays a prominent part in the development of the plot.

This statue is a realistic as well as an artistic piece of work. It was made by Carlo Romanelli, a well-known Western sculptor, especially for the production of "Blind Youth". In the story, which was adapted for the screen from the famous stage success written by Lon Tellegen and Willard Mack, the artist hero, Maurie, Monier, goes through many viciss tudes in New York and Paris until he meets a beautiful girl who serves as his inspiration and model for the statue, "Blind Youth," which brings him fortune and renown.

A Life-Like Resemblance

Of course, Walter McGrail, who plays the hero, is no sculptor, so extraneous aid was called upon to produce the statue. Leatrice Joy, the girl in the story, posed for Romanelli several evenings so that the figure might be an exact portrayal. After working before the camera all day, she posed for the sculptor as a diversion.

The statue is life size and of clay, and represents Miss Joy at her bouyant, graceful best. It is characterized by a life-like resemblance to the model which can deceive even the elect. They do say—rather jocularly—that Walter McGrail, after playing with Miss Joy during several weeks of filming, one day addressed some of his choicest bits of conversation to it, thinking it was Miss Joy.

Romanelli also worked with McGrail for several days showing him just how to use his thumb and tools in clay modelling. As a consequence he has all the outward technique of a sculptor, if not his art, and this lends a touch of reality to the picture which is only one indication of the steps Director Ted Sloman undertook to make "Blind Youth" a top-notch attraction. "THREE LIVE GHOSTS."

Frederic S. Isham, who in the days before he becam a regular author, used to "cover a beat" on the Free Press, is responsible for "Three Live Ghosts," a comedy that Philip Klein will present at the Grand Aug. 23.

The complications that provide most of the meat in "Three Live Ghosts," come through the return from a German prison camp of three soldiers all reported as "dead" and mourned accordingly by their respective relatives. One of the heros is a cockney, whose mother is collecting his life insurance, the American is being sought by the police because of an escapade in which he was involved at home, and the third member of the trio has not only lost his memory through shell shock, but has acquired a troublesome habit of annexing everything that comes within his grasp. All of which, according to the New York reviewers, is productive of a considerable amount of comedy before the mystery is finally cleared up.

BERGDOLL TO TELL.

Writing Book to Expose Alleged Grafters in Escape.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, millionaire draft dodger, now supposed to be in Germany, is writing a book about his escape from the American military authorities.

This was revealed to-day in the report of the house committee which investigated his escape. Excerpts from a letter from Bergdoll to his mother in Philadelphia, which was intercepted, are included in the report. These contain Bergdoll's charges that there were several grafters involved in his case who should be exposed.

"We are writing a book which gives away the whole swindle from beginning to end," Bergdoll wrote from Eberbach, Germany, "and the American public will wake up when they read it in the near future. We made the Americans look like a bunch of boobs before the whole world."

Do Your Bit to Prevent Bush Fires

YOUR co-operation—the co-operation of all the citizens of Ontario—is the biggest need in Ontario Forestry to-day.

History shows that impoverishment and national decline follows from the destruction of a country's forests.

Most of the area of this Province is non-agricultural, suited by Nature only for growing trees. This land remains yours but the Government sells the trees.

Every summer in Ontario an average area of 425,000 acres of forest land is burnt over, equal to a strip 130 miles long by 5 miles wide. This yearly desolation at the hands of her own people is gradually turning the northern part of the Province into a rocky desert. On thousands of acres, even the soil has been destroyed by fire!

Save Ontario's Forests

They're Yours

The average yearly number of forest fires in Ontario is about 1,275. The vigilance of the Fire Rangers keep two-thirds of Ontario's forest fires down to an average size of less than five acres. But the others are big enough to raise the total average to 350 acres.

Forest fires in Ontario are destroying provincial assets of timber and pulp wood upon which the Province relies to help pay her share of Canada's War Debt. Forest fires destroy fish and game, decrease the regularity of stream flow, cause spring floods, land erosion and the crippling of water powers; turn revenue-producing areas into rock deserts.

Out of every 100 fires in Ontario's forests only three are caused by lightning, while ninety or more are due to man's carelessness. One thousand men scattered over 100,000,000 acres, have little chance of preventing fires. All they can hope to do is to see the smoke in time to check them and put them out before they spread beyond control.

The problem of adequate protection of Ontario's Forests from fire is almost entirely a moral one involving the whole public of Ontario. The vast majority of forest fires are caused by human carelessness due to lack of civic responsibility. The tendency is to leave all the responsibility to the Government for protecting the forests from fire. The Government cannot protect the forests belonging to the people of Ontario unless the people of Ontario co-operate. Forestry needs your patriotism, your public spirit, your regard for the general welfare of Canada.

IN MEMORIAM.

BOATE.—In loving memory of George Boate, who was called to his rest, August 21, 1920.

"Relentless death, how swift it comes,
And bitter grief imparts;
It took our loved one from our home,
But never from our hearts.
Just when his days seemed brightest,
Just when his hopes seemed best,
God called him from among us,
To that home of eternal rest.

The bride was Miss Annie Gertrude Gilpin, youngest daughter of the late Mr. David and Mrs. Gilpin, of 46 Abbey Lane, Woodseats, and sister of Mrs. Walter Thorpe, St. James Street, Peterborough, and the bridegroom, Mr. Joseph Edward Inman, son of the late Mr. Richard and Mrs. Inman, of Westbourne Road, Lancaster. The Rev. Kydd Cuthbert (Vicar of St. Chad's) officiated, and Mr. John Windle presided at the organ.

Given away by her brother, Mr. Tom Gilpin, the bride was charmingly attired in a gown of deepest ivory satin grenadine, the skirt being draped with a flounce of old Tambour lace, with small gold crystals outlining the corsage. Her embroidered veil of tulle, of the same deep tint as her dress, was held in place by a coronet of orange blossom and white heather, and she carried a bouquet of cream and pink tea roses.

The little bridesmaids, Miss Winnie Gilpin (niece of the bride) and Miss Joyce Inman (niece of the bridegroom), wore flounced taffeta frocks in shades of rose pink and pale blue respectively, with pink and blue flowers at the waist. Each small attendant was also wearing a tulle veil to match her frock, this dainty head-dress being confined by a floral wreath. They carried baskets of shaded sweet peas.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Dick Inman.

After the ceremony a reception was held at St. Chad's Church House. The wedding presents included a silver jardiniere and bowl from the members of St. Chad's Choir.

When Mr. and Mrs. Inman left later for Scotland, where the honeymoon is being spent, the latter was wearing a black braided cloak over a coat dress of pale grey suiting and a hat of grey georgette.

Chiropractic and Children

The most valuable asset of our National Vitality is the Health of our Children, and one of our most solemn duties is the Preservation of this Health for our Future National Welfare.

Statistics show that a large percentage of our School Children need attention for Physical Defects, which, if taken in time and properly treated, could be Eliminated.

Included in these are:

Heart, Eyes, Ear and Kidney defects, Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Spinal Curvature Effects of Rickets, Infantile Paralysis, Etc. The tendency of the majority of these is to go worse with time.

The Chiropractor, by his Spinal Adjustment, advice as to diet, exercise and careful attention to the general health of the patient, produces wonderful results, the growing body of the child responding rapidly to proper adjustment.

If your Child is affected in any way, do not delay. Bring it to your Chiropractor for consultation and advice. Delays are dangerous. Cases of short duration respond much more rapidly than chronic ones.

NEXT WAR WILL BE WITH JAPAN, M'LEAN THINKS

ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION GREAT DANGER TO CANADA, SAYS MAN WHO OPPOSED RENEWING JAPANESE PACT.

CANADA SHOULD HAVE VOICE IN TREATIES

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Aug. 22.—The next war, if there is another war, will not be between two white races, it will be between white and yellow, and it will be staged on the Pacific Ocean. This is the opinion expressed by Mr. Neil McLean, Labor member in the British House of Commons for the Govan division of Glasgow, Scotland, who is here to attend the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada as spokesman of the labor organizations of the British Isles.

Mr. McLean is deeply interested in the question of Oriental relationships and recently took an active part in blocking a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

Explaining his views on that question he stated that the time has come when the great Dominions of the Empire should have their say in the formation of Imperial treaties. "The Dominions won that right in the war," said Mr. McLean, "They had nothing to say in making the series of treaties and alliances which opposed great European groups, yet they contributed to the last man in the world war which followed. They are now entitled to voice their opinions before any more such treaties are signed."

Canada's position in the Anglo-Japanese question, Mr. McLean believes, is of first importance because the problem of Oriental immigration is interlocked. "Canada does not want Oriental immigration," said Mr. McLean, "not only for economic and social reasons, but for national reasons. The Japanese is not a colonizer. He crowds into the cities which are already too large of the area of the Dominion, and does nothing to help settle the agricultural districts. If there is an alliance between Britain and Japan, Japan will make requests to the home authorities that Canadian immigration restrictions be raised. Canada will refuse and then there will be dissension in the Empire and the essential harmony of our British family will be shattered. Such an alliance is bound to lead to disaster and we cannot afford it, because— and then the opinion first stated—"the next war, if there is another war, will not be between two white races, it will be between white and yellow, and it will be staged on the Pacific Ocean."

"Hands Off," Is Fruitmen's Cry

THEIR PROFESSIONAL AMIABILITY VANISHES WHEN CUSTOMERS BRUISE FRUIT.

"Handes off." This is the commandment of the fruit dealers of this city, directed to fruit purchasers who cannot keep from fingering the fruit they may, or may not, purchase. Every dealer is at the mercy of the public. A fruit man must be amiable; it doesn't pay to be cranky, but they state that they are nearly driven to desperation by people who callously pinch this peach and that plum, taste a pear or smell a melon. One of the local fruit dealers said his loss from fruit bruised by handling ran into some dollars a week.

Doubtless this handling is done without thought of damage, but the effect is the same if bruised intentionally. Fruit men want the publice to stop handling their stuff without permission of the proprietor.

POLITICS ARE STILL IN AIR

PREMIER DELUGED WITH ADVICE AND TIDE OF OPINION SWINGS BACK AND FORTH.

OTTAWA, Aug. 22 — (Canadian Press).—The political situation is still "up in the air." The Prime Minister's office, from whence must come the official pronouncement as to what the Government proposes to do to meet the present situation, is the mecca of a host of callers, including members of Parliament from various sections of the country and others who have no interest in developments. The Prime Minister apparently is hearing all advice which is offered, and is reserving judgment until all suggestions are in hand and have been given consideration.

That there will be a decision within the next few days is expected, but at the present time the tide continued to swing back and forward between election and a decision to carry on through another session. Several Ontario members have been in Ottawa during the last week or so, and have seen Premier Meighen. While there has been a strong element inside and outside of the Cabinet in favor of immediate dissolution and appeal to the people, private members generally speak against that idea and say they see no reason why the Government should not continue in office through another session and then go to the country as it had planned to do.

UNION OF U.F.O. AND LABOR PARTY IN NORTH EXFORD

HOMUTS BELIEVES THIS WOULD CARRY RIDING FOR DRURY.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—That North Oxford will return a Government supporter to the Provincial Legislature by a big majority, provided that the U. F. O. and Labor give their united support to one candidate, was the opinion expressed to-day by Earl K. Homuts, Labor member for the adjoining riding of South Waterloo.

He was also strongly of the opinion that, in view of the fact that the Conservatives have practically decided to put no man in the field, the logical standard-bearer for the Government forces should be a Labor man. He claimed that in the urban centres, including Woodstock, such a choice would get the support of many Conservatives, who, if a U.F.O. man was chosen, would cast their ballots for the Liberal nominee.

G. A. CUNNINGHAM GROWS GIANT TOMATO

The summer seems to have been unusually favorable for tomato growing, as evidenced in the many huge specimens of this delicious fruit being shown daily by proud local growers. The latest giant tomato brought into the Examiner is one cultivated by George A. Cunningham, 331 Heid street, measuring sixteen and a half inches in circumference and weighing one pound, ten ounces. The tomato is really a native plant of the tropical parts of America, and thus the extreme heat here in July would account for their prodigious growth in quantity and size in Canada this season. "Tomato" means "love apple," and the name is peculiarly appropriate, for most people love a tomato either raw or cooked.

TRADES UNIONS ABLE TO FIGHT THEIR ENEMIES

REPOBT OF EXECUTIVE AT OPENING OF LABOR CONVENTION CONDEMNS RADICAL PROPAGANDA UNDERMINING THE UNIONS.

ORIENT IMIGRATION IS STRONGLY OPPOSED

WINNIPEG, August 22 (Canadian Press).—2"We do not feel that we are unduly optimistic in expressing our utmost confidence in the ability of the Congress to successfully meet the present crucial condition and continue to function successfully in guarding the interests of its affiliated membership."

In this way does the report of the executive committee of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada express its opinion of the situation confronting that body, which opened its thirty-seventh annual convention here to-day with delegates in attendance from all parts of the Dominion.

The report of the executive committee was signed by Tom Moore president, Arthur Martel, H. J. Halford, and Alex. McAndrew, vice-presidents, and P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer.

"In Canada, as in practically all other countries, the Trades Union movement has suffered from those who, 'boring from within," aim to bring about the disruption and destruction of the Trades Union movement, and throughout the Dominion these tactics are being carried on insidiously and persistently," read the executive report.

"There has been no let-up in the campaign (dictated by Third Internationale of Moscow) of belittling, 'slandering,' and in every way possible undermining confidence and respect for all who hold office in our movement whether local, national, or international. This has brought about in many places a temporary weakening of the morale and the self-discipline of our members, with the result that the efforts of greedy employers and entrenched interests to bring about reduction in the standards of the wage-earners, and to destroy the growing power and influence of the Trades Union movement, have been far more successful than otherwise would have been the case.

"In spite of this discouraging condition, it is more than pleasing to report that though some affiliated organisations have suffered slight losses in their Canadian membership, yet this has been more than offset by the new affiliations secured during the year, which leaves our aggregate membership no less in number, and the Congress in as strong a position as a year ago."

The executive committee expresse the sincere hope that the results of the convention would be to clear away any doubts or misunderstandings that exist; re-establish full confidence one in another, and enunciate policies of benefit to all. This, said the committee, must result in the combined growth in membership and power of the congress.

After describing at considerable length the work of the congress in connection with the Parliamentary legislation at Ottawa, the committee said: "It will be noted that the session resulted in very little legislation designed to improve the social and industrial conditions of the workers. When the Trade Union movement was under attack, the absence of men from the ranks of the workers, who had knowledge of its principles and platform, was particularly noticeable, its defence being left, with few exceptions, to the good will and such information as they possessed of corporation lawyers, employers and representatives of financial institutions."

Dealing with immigration, the executive committee report said: "The past policies of the congress relative to Oriental immigration and the institution of the British Central Immigration Board have been drawn to the attention of the Government and public authorities whenever opportunity presented. The number of Orientals at present in Canada and still coming to this country remains a serious menace, especially in British Columbia, but so far efforts to have this matter officially dealt with by the Government have been unsuccessful.

"The question of immigration is of the utmost importance at this time, because of the serious conditions existing in this country, and whilst the workers of Canada have no desire to debar any worker from another country, and especially from the British Isles, from securing the opportunity to improve his position, yet we realise that at the present time these opportunities do not exist in the Dominion of Canada."

The committee announced the preparation of a special memorandum on unemployment.

'It is our desire," said the committee, 'that this memorandum along with any resolutions that may be submitted dealing with this question should be considered by a special committee of this convention, and declarations be forthcoming, clearly enunciating the policies that

Conservatives Draft Program

"QUEBEC FOR THE FRENCH-CANADIANS" FIRST PLANK OF PARTY IN QUEBEC.

(Special despatch to the Examiner)

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—The programme of the Conservative party in Quebec has been outlined by Messrs. Sauve and Patenaude. It has been summoned as follows:—

1. Canada should belong to the Canadians who found it and to those who conquered or adopted it. The Province of Quebec, "should remain the province of the FrenchCanadians, directed, conducted, administered and developed by us according to our own interests without injustice for others and without prejudice to our country."

2.—"We should recognize with courage the duties which our constitution imposes, our allegiance, our position, we should always be loyal and generous.'

3.—"We should be protectionists in all things. We should not only protect the manufacturers and the capitalists but the whole country and all classes. We should be the protectors of Canada against all those who wish to use the country to its own detriment."

4.—"The Government should constantly demonstrate to the people its concern for justice, for impartiality, for respect, for the laws."

5.—"The credit of the province should rest on the principle of sound political economy and on the equilibrium of finances of its administration, of the receipts and of the expenditures."

6—"The government should not increase the liabilities of the province, the taxes on the people and the obligations of municipalities in order to create surpluses. The present policy should be modified, in a manner to make more equitable and less burdensome the obligations of municipalities in the building and maintenance of highways and also in the manner of the government in dealing with the municipalities."

7.—"The Lands Department" should be organized not to exploit the lumber merchant, but in the interests of the province. Its forest industry and its colonization, should be carried on with more prudence and wisdom in the interests of the Province."

8.—"There should be "A system of roads classification such as exists for water course, and bridges, each district should be classified and given the roads which best suit the general needs and the requirements of is traffic.'

9—"Generous grants are being made to large schools but the small schools do not get the assistance which they need the result is that the teaching staffs of the old days are no longer to be found and the schools are not filling the role for which they were founded. It is the duty of the government to bring those schools up to the proper standard."

10.—The government should not permit the municipalities to obtain from the Legislature, without the authorizaion of the ratepayers all kinds of borrowing and other powers."

11.—The government, as its means permit should "pay reasonable salaries to its employees, with out favoritism or discrimination."

12—The government should not run the native wine industry by becoming a profiteering dealer, at the expense of a solidly-established commerce.

WORK OVERLAPPING CAUSE OF FRICTION.

Mrs. Harrington Says Need for Nursing Services Great.

OTTAWA, August 22. — Returning from a six weeks' tour in the Western Provinces, Mrs. J. Charlotte Hanington, chief superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses, says overlapping in even the smallest degree should be prevented by all health organisations at a time when Canada has great need of the best public health service.

"There never was such a need of nursing service in Canada as there is to-day," Mrs. Hanington remarked. 'Every city has settled down to the fact that a hard winter is coming. The less fortunate of our people have come through two hard winters, and this autumn finds them in a state of depression that in some borders on despair.

"It means that nursing service is more than ever important. It must be given whether people can pay for it or not.

"One way to alleviate the hardship of unemployment is to care for the health of the women and the children.

"The various organisations doing district nursing are overlapping. In places where the Victorian Order has been established for years other organisations such as Provincial nurses and the Red Cross are coming to start work. The situation has reached the stage of actual friction in some of our Canadian cities. A conference of the various health organisations would result in co-operation and co-ordination of activities. There should be a definite understanding of what work each will do.

FREIGHT RATE CUT WILL NOT BE THIS YEAR

INCREASES WERE MADE ON BASIS OF WAGE AWARDS AND QUESTION OF WAGE REDUCTIONS STILL HANGS FIRE.

PLEBISCITE MAY BE HELD ON WAGE SLASH

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—A decrease in freight rates is in contemplation, but such a decrease is not anticipated before the new year. The basis of the increases ordered by the Railway Board during the past two years were the wage awards made in the United States and adoped by the Canadian roads. Decreases in rates would be based upon reductions in wages and such reductions have not yet actually been made.

The Chicago Board recently ordered a twelve per cent. reduction in railway wages on United States' roads. Following this the Canadian Railway Association proposed a similar decrease. Opposition to this was offered by the unions and a board of arbitration was demanded under the Lemieux Act by a section of the employes. The Association suggested a conference and consultation and agreed that the opposed decrease effective from July 15 should be looked upon as in the nature of a hold back of pay. Pending a decision later on, following the suggested conference, it was held that if the hold back were not made and the twelve per cent. decrease finally upheld the companies could not collect from the unions, whereas if the contrary occurred the hold back would be disbursed.

It is now suggested that a plebiscite of the railway employees both in Canada and the United States be held on the question, "Are you in favour of a decrease in wages?" and that the result be regarded as a mandate to the executive in future negotiations and conferences. It is fairly obvious that the result will be negative and the proposed negotiations may therefore end in a deadlock.

Be that as it may, the taking of the plebiscite will involve considerable time and in the meantime the Railway Commission is not likely to take any action along the lines of decreasing rates until the question of wages is finally settled. The rates, the Board will claim, were increased incident upon wage increases, they will not be decreased until wages definitely decrease.

The twelve per cent. hold back involves a total of about a million a month or thirty millions a year in the pay rolls of the Canadian railways.

LOCAL FRUIT MEN SAY PEACHES ARE IN GOOD DEMAND

LAST OF THE PLUM CROP IN SIGHT—PEARS PLENTIFUL.

Of 350 baskets of peaches, one dealer's share of a carload bought cooperatively on Saturday over 300 baskets were disposed of befor midnight and the remnants were being cleaned out to-day. They were fine large Crawford and the dealer said he had no trouble selling them at $1.50 and $1.75. Wholesalers are quoting Crawfords at $1.20 a single basket, $1.15 in ton baskets lots and $1.10 in 20 basket lots. These are No 1's; No. 2's; are 25 cents cheaper in each case. Wholesalers advise fruit men that the peaches are as ripe as they should be and this is the week to preserve them. Leno baskets are popular dealers say wholealer want about $1.20 a six quart basket to $1.75 an 11 qt., baskt. While these baskets are more expensive there is more fruit in them and dealers say many housewives will buy no other kind.

The dregs of the plum crop are now on the market and Toronto fruit houses say there will be none after this week. Bartlett pears are in good demand, selling at $1.25 and $.150. Seckel a lower grade are worth $1.25. There are many canteloupe lovers in Peterboro. Last week one of the fruit men sold 100 baskets, on Thursday alone disposing of 50. These baskets contain eight or nine and go at $1 or $1.25.

SANDY ANGRY AT "DISCRIMINATING AGAINST A SCOTCHMAN, ND WITH WHISKEY, TOO."

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. — Sandy Duncan, Scotch engineer of a tramp steamer, landed here to-day after a four years' absence; during which time he had not heard of prohibition in the United Sttaes.

Sandy leaned one elbow on the bar, placed one foot comfortably on the rail and ordered confidently.

"And why not?" demanded the amazed Scot.

"It's against the law."

Sandy began slowly to get very angry. I've heard of discrimination against negroes in some places," he declared hotly, "and I remember in Shanghai a coolie could not get everything a white man could, but this is the first time I've ever known a Scotchman to be discriminated against. With whiskey, too."

Sandy fumed incredulously while the bartender tried to explain prohibition. Finally he proceeded to the nearest police station to complain. He can't believe it yet.

SIX DEATHS FROM TYPHOID FEVER AT LONDON HOSPITAL

CONTAMINATION OF WATER SUPPLY RESULT OF FLOOD.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Six deaths have occurred in the last few days at the Ontario Hospital for the Insane as a result of the typhoid fever epidemic. The latest was reported on Sunday. At the present times there are 79 patients suffering from the fever.

Dr. W. J. Robinson, superintendent, stated that although epidemic had been serious, the majority of the patients are now on the verge of convalescence and that no danger of a further outbreak is feared. Contamination of the water supply as result of the recent flood is held responsible.

APPOINT REPORTER FOR LOCAL COURTS

Miss M. E. Moore was appointed Court reporter on Saturday by the joint committee of the County Council and Law Association, composed of Reeves Nicholls and McIntosh and Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., and G. N. Gordon.

The county and city pay $900.00 of the salary of the new reporter, and the Law Association will contribute the rest in remuneration for additional duties as law librarian. There have also been certain fees paid to the reporter for transcriptions which, it is understood, are not covered by the permanent salary.

NEW ALEXANDRIA BISHOP ARRIVES.

Rt. Rev. Courtier Has Distinguished Military Record.

MONTREAL, August 22. Canadian Press—Right Rev. Felix Courtier, O. B., E.M.C., the newly appointed Archbishop of Alexandria, Ont., was among the passengers on the steamship Canada, which arrived here last night.

In addition to long service in England, where as a member of the Dominican Order, he preached in missions for 25 years, Bishop Courtier also has a distinguished record of military service.

During the war he served with the British Expeditionary Force in Egypt, where he did such good work that he was four times mentioned in despatches by Lord Allenby, the commander-in-chief, and later decorated by His Majesty the King.

From 1919 to 1920 Bishop Courtier served as Visitor Apostolic to Egypt, since when he has been the guest of English Dominicans in England.

Bishop Courtier said that this was his first visit to Canada and that he was looking forward greatly to making his home here. He had very much enjoyed the voyage, he said, and especially the beautiful scenery of the St. Lawrence River.

DAIL EIREANN DRAFTING ITS REPLY TO GOV'T

PRESENCE OF HARRY J. BOLAND VIEWED AS IMPORTANT—HE MAY OUTLINE ATTITUDE OF AMERICAN PUBLIC.

DENY THE REPORTS OF OVERTURES TO ULSTER

DUBLIN, Aug. 22. — (Canadian Press.)—Secret sessions of the Irish Republican "Parliament" for the purpose of drafting the Sinn Fein repl yto Great Britain's peace proposals began here to-day. The public meetings of that body last Tuesday and Wednesday and the conferences between Eamonn De Valera and his colleagues since that time were believed to have laid the ground for the work of Parliament, and it seemed probable that the leaders of the Sinn Fein would submit early in the secret sessions the draft of the reply they would send to London.

The presence of Harry J. Boland, who represented Mr. De Valera in the United States after the Sinn Fein chief had returned to Ireland, was considered as important as it was believed he would submit to Parliament a report outlining his views on the state of public opinion on the other side of the Atlantic.

It has been understood since the initial meeting that a decision might be delayed until Mr. Boland reached the city, and his arrival yesterday was looked upon as the significant event of a day marked by activity among Republican leaders.

No Overtures to Ulster.

BELFAST, Aug. 22.— (Canadian Press.)—Reports that have been in circulation here to the effect that overtures had been made to Ulster, either by the "Sinn Fein or on their behalf," was emphatically contradicted to-day by Col. Spencer, secretary of the Ulster Cabinet.

Sir James Craig, Premier, returned to Belfast this morning from a holiday outing in Scotland. A meeting of the Cabinet will be held to-morrow.

BIG CROP OF CORN READY FOR CUTTING

Peterborough farmers have begun the cutting of one of the biggest crops of corn in the history of this county, according to reports reaching the city. August weather was ideal for the ripening of this crop, which is said to be uniformly abundant in all the adjoining townships. Some farmers began the harvesting of corn a few days ago, and operations will be general this week. A plentiful supply of corn means bulging silos and adequate fodder for wintering the stock. Late roots are also doing well.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take Salts for Backache or Bladder trouble.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's poisonous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

OFFERS TO SELL SUITS FOR THIRTY SHILLINGS.

Occupies More Space in the Vienna Papers Than Political Situation.

VIENNA, August 22. — The offer of a British concern to sell in Vienna 400,000 ready-made suits of men's clothes at thirty shillings each, has been occupying more space in the newspapers than the disturbed political situation.

Master tailors and ready-made clothing merchants are fighting it, and thus far successfully, as the Ministry of Trade has refused the import license.

The entire Vienna press, backed by the countless civil servants and workmen's co-operative societies, is demanding the deal be permitted, pointing out that native tailors charge at least 10,000 crowns for a suit of equal quality, while the British offer equals about 4,600 crowns.

LEAVING IT TO CHANCE.

Wheels of chance have been placed on the tables of an ice cream and soda water establishment in New York City for the benefit of those who are afflicted with indecision. The names of the drinks and confections served appear on the wheel. If you do not know precisely what you want and have trouble in choosing from among the various flavors and specialities you give the wheel a spin and let chance decide for you. The proprietor says he was led to install the wheels by the fact that so many customers were unable to make up their minds promptly as to what they would order. They vacillated between this and that; one thing would no sooner catch their fancy than they would be attracted by something else.

It is a common failing, and a deplorable one. How comfortable it would be for all such if they never had to make up their minds but could leave every decision to the caprice of chance with the assurance that its choice would be as satisfactory as that made by the soda wheel.

The persons who make their mark in the world are those who are able to decide for themselves. The ability to reach a decision promptly after all the facts are at hand is one of the conspicuous characteristics of those who achieve greatness.

If several courses of action are open, weigh the merits and demerits of each, and even if two or three seem to be equally attractive pick out one and go ahead. Your choice may not be the best that can be made, but you are likely to accomplish more in the long run than he who dallies, unable to make up his mind and waiting for someone else or for chance to point the way.

PROBLEMS

A business woman, who was making a brilliant success of a difficult and exacting position, said in reply to a friendly question:

"Yes, it is work that calls for about all the courage and wisdom and tact that I possess. Of course, these all increase with use; that fact is all that enables me to cope with the new problems that are constantly coming up to be solved."

She paused, then went on with a little whimsical air and tone that did not hide her real earnestness:

"But my greatest problem—I think Wightman said it first—is myself. To keep cool and calm and sweet-tempered under the irritating things that crop out; to handle successfully other people who often forget to be any of these things; to make myself see and do the right thing when everything seems determined to go wrong; to be what the Lord meant me to be when He gave me this job and the chance of making good in it—this is the real problem."

This is everybody's real problem, no matter what their work or circumstances. For it is not, after all, the outward happenings that determine what life shall be for us. It is how we meet them, what we make of them, what we allow them to make of us, that constitutes the greater problem for every one of God's children.

IF I WERE A BOSS.

Have you ever noticed, when clouds appear
And pleasure has gone astray,
How a word of praise from the boss brings cheer
To brighten a cheerless day?

The office boy or the gray, old clerk,
In secret may bear a cross,
But he finds that pleasure is in his work
When he knows he has pleased the boss.

Think of the many who toil and sweat,
Hopeless and weary and wan,
Dreading the notice that they may get
From the bosses who drive them on.

They know the cost when mistakes are made,
They have warnings against neglect,
But little attention is ever paid
While the records are all correct.

I think if I were a boss, I'd pause
Sometimes where the work was done
And look around for a handy cause
To encourage some eager one.

I think I could shorten the trying day.
For myself and for all concerned
By learning how to be giving praise
Where I knew it was fairly earned.

Don't you feel as if you could beat the lark
In warbling a song of joy
When you hear the boss, meaning you, remark:
"You're doing good work, my boy!"

—S. E. Kiser.

CONSIDER THE ACORN

It is a nut, yet when it falls from the tree it has wrapped up in its shell an unalterable resolution to produce an oak tree.

It is a nut, but it needs only the environment of earth, warmth and moisture to accomplish its job.

It is a nut, but it never produces a string bean vine, a lemon tree or a huckleberry bush.

It is a nut, but it specializes on oak trees and never fails.

You, too, may be a nut, but if you have the acorn's same high purpose, the same firm resolve, no human power can stop you.

Consider the acorn; it, too, is a nut.

During the hearing of a summons at North London against a contractor for cruelty to two horses, a police constable stated that the man's wife, on being told her husband was in custody, died of shock.

THE VAGRANT.

Should the gods of unrest but fling at my feet
A day and a life to travel this earth
By ways where rivers and hills have birth,
And outland, and ocean, and sky-line meet!—

For O to be idle, and careless, and free,
Where the foam swings white and the world lies wide,
And the heart that aches turns out with the tide,
Where the will of the wanderer greets its sea!—

If the gods should grant but a life and a day,
To wander and watch, to journey and rest,
Each beat of that life—as the gods know best—
Well, glad of it all, I should idle away!

And, Love, for the last gift to me,
Should turn where life and the roadway part—
O, one fixed home of this wandering heart—
And kneel, at the end, for a day with thee!

—Arthur Stringer.

TOO MANY INTERESTS.

Many a blossom reaches perfection because there are ony a few on the bush. The others were cut off, allowing the energy of the plant to go into producing a few fine blossoms, instead of many mediocre ones. People with several gifts sometimes make the mistake of trying to cultivate them all. While it is true that an occasional man makes a success of more than one thing, the great majority of us can succeed only by concentration, by focussing our energy on the thing for which we are best fitted. Too many pursuits, too many interests is frequently the explanation of a promising life that comes to nothing.

GATES OF GOLD.

If you are tempted to reveal
A tale someone has told
About another, make it pass,
Before you speak, three gates of gold.

Three narrow gates: First, "Is it true?"
This, "Is it needful?" In your mind
Give truthful answer. And the next
Is last and narrowest, "Is it kind?"

And if to reach your lips at last
It passes through these gateways three,
Then you may tell the tale, nor fear
What the result of speech may be.

Relief Brings New Hopes for Many Russians

NEWS THAT FOOD IS ON WAY ENCOURAGES WAR-WEARY PEOPLE — CONDITIONS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED.

Editor's Note: The following vivid description of present day conditions in Moscow, was cabled to the United Press by J. Graundenz, correspondent of the United Press and the United News, and the first press association man to enter Russia with formal credentials from the Soviet Government.

BY JOHN GRAUDENZ

(United Press Staff Corespondent.) Copyright, 1921, by the United Press.

MOSCOW, August 22. — News that American relief was on its way spread like wild fire through famine-stricken Russia. Starving thousands, reduced to the last extremity, have taken on new hope of life.

Here in Moscow, where life is vastly easier than in the famine-stricken regions, the reports that food from America was soon to come brought encouragement to a war-weary population.

Conditions in Moscow were to-day said by my informants, to be greatly improved since 1920. If there were no famine in the Volga, they said, 1922 would undoubtedly have seen still further improvement. Nevertheless I found life here terribly hard. We got paper tickets for everything here, for food, and shoes and clothes.

"We cannot eat paper, we cannot wear paper," the citizens complain. Salaries and wages in Moscow are at the lowest ebb. Many people are selling everything they have in order to exist. Families crowd together in small hotels or rooms. One kitchen serves a half dozen families that fuel may be conserved.

There are more than two million people here in Moscow and not nearly enough houses for them in the poorer sections of the city. The overcrowding is a spectacle terrible to contemplate, yet with it all, and the dread famine ravaging the country, the people of Moscow that I have met are not too pessimistic.

"Things are not so bad here," said a Russian doctor, who had returned from the famine area.

He and his wife were convinced that things would improve. They had been engaged in relief work and had horrible tales of famine suffering and disease to tell. They themselves, formerly prosperous, were reduced to their last extremity financially.

"But why do you remain in Russia? Why do you not go to Latvia?" I asked. I had heard that this heroic woman who had risked her life and had given her private fortune to help the famine sufferers, had parents living in the border state. "I shall be glad to visit Latvia some day," she replied, with a proud lift of her head, "but I would not live in Latvia for anything. We love our country."

BRITISH CABINET AWAITING REPLY ANXIOUSLY AND ON TONE OF MESSAGE DEPENDS FATE OF SINN FEIN.

'SLAMMING OF DOOR" MEANS EXTERMINATION

BY ED. L. KEEN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, August 22. — The Sinn Fein is certain to reject the British proposals in their present form, all reports from Dublin to-day agreed.

A new Cabinet committee, especially appointed to deal with the Irish emergency, was in session to await the Dail Eireann's reply.

The Sinn Fein Parliament, when it met to-day in secret session, chose not only between peace and war—it determined the question of the existence or extermination of the Sinn Fein. This was the British view.

Upon the tone of conciliation adopted by the Dail in its reply and upon the margin by which the "door is still left open," depended, according to the British belief, the fate of the Sinn Fein.

It was agreed here that the "slamming of the door" would mean a British march through Ireland until the last vestige of Republicanism had been stamped out.

Dublin correspondents of British papers were unanimous in their agreement to-day that the Dail's reply would reject the British offer in its present form, and believed that it would be couched in a conciliatory spirit, possibly inviting the Government to elucidate certain points.

The British press was demanding an early reply.

The Daily Chronicle, frequently referred to as "Lloyd-George's unofficial mouthpiece," to-day said: "Procrastination is tantamount to playing with fire. If the fire breaks out again, Britain will doubtless burn her fingers, but Ireland will be consumed."

BOLAND MEETS WITH CABINET OF SINN FEIN

DAIL WAS AWAITING BOLAND'S MESSAGE

DUBLIN, Aug. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Harry Boland, secretary to Eamonn De Valera, arrived here yesterday morning from America. Boland, when interviewed, declined to comment on the Irish peace negotiations or the direction they are taking, but said he found every one concerned with the Dail Eireann in a happy mood.

He shelved the host of questions showered on him by newspapermen, but added, "We hope everything comes out all right.' Boland reached the Mansion House just one hour ahead of President De Valera and the Sinn Fein Cabinet. They immediately entered into secret conference.

There is no gainsaying that the Dail has been awaiting this message before making any definite reply to the peace offers of Lloyd George. The conference lasted many hours.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION.

Apparently the Federal government has no other solution for the unemployment problem than the establishment of relief doles along the same lines as last winter. At least it is believed that the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment will resume in a short time the distribution of relief to disabled returned men who are in need of assistance. This form of helping the unemployed did not meet with general favour last winter, and among leaders of returned soldier organizations the feeling is still strong against such a method, the majority preferring the opening up of public works on a scale that would provide employment for those at present idle. Secretary Turley of the G.W.V.A., declares that the unemployment situation is becoming so alarming that "nothing but the concentration of the Federal, Provincial and Municipal governments on the opening up of public works will affect a remedy." And his opinion will be shared by a good many other people.

BUY IN CANADA.

For some time the Dominion Government, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the newspapers have been endeavoring to drive home the necessity of buying as largely as possible Canadian-made goods. The effort is a praiseworthy one, in view of the exchange situation and the unemployment crisis, but the trouble has been that the campaign has been rather too indefinite. The Canadian Restriction Association, however, has recently made an announcement that indicates a practical appreciation of the situation. The Association offers that through its investigation department it will advise any merchant or wholesale buyer as to where they can purchase certain classes and grades of Canadian goods, while in the case of goods not yet manufactured in this country the Association will endeavour to interest manufacturers in such production, when it is found that the Canadian demand for such goods is sufficiently great to make their manufacture economically feasible. That is a business like plan that should prove a very helpful factor in making the Buy-in-Canada campaign a success.

"Motoring, now general and popular, cannot remain as an accepted recreation if it is to be burdened with a dark tradition of ghastly tragedies. If necessary a way will be found to protect the public, all in good time."—Toronto Telegram.

The Telegram, if our memory does not betray us, was one of the papers which ridiculed the bill emanating from Peterborough, to reduce the legal speed limit in cities and towns when the measure was introduced into the Legislature. It is now, however, beginning to realize that some drastic measure must be taken to put an end to the toll of human lives the motor car is collecting. The reduction of the speed limit, and the prosecution of motorists who exceed the legal rate of speed, are logical steps in a campaign to make safer conditions on our streets. And motorists who ignore the traffic regulations should be made to understand that the offence is a serious one. There has been too much leniency in the past, too great an indication to regard violations of the traffic regulations as a trifling offence. There will have to be a change, for accidents are becoming too frequent to permit safety regulations to be treated as something of no account.

THANKS, GENERAL SMUTS.

It is a good thing for the prestige of General Smuts, South Africa's able Premier, that the matter of his interposition into the Irish question has been cleared up by the plain speaking of Lloyd-George. The good name of a political leader and the admiration in which the is held determine the measure of his influence and the power of his leadership and this good opinion was—to some extent—impaired while General Smuts rested under the imputation of having meddled, unsought, in Irish affairs. Those who know Smuts would hardly have credited him with interfering in such a delicate question as the future of Ireland "off his own bat," but it clears the air to have the explanation of the British Premier in House of Commons that General Smuts "did nothing without informing the British authorities beforehand," and "whatever he did, he did with the full assent of his Sovereign and the Ministers of this country."

It did not need the assurance of Premier Lloyd-George that General Smuts acted a "perfectly straightforward and honourable part." Not even the most radical of his Nationalist antagonists would have dreamed of imputing a devious course of dishonourable motive or method to him. But it is conceivable that not only in his own country but in the Motherland there would be many people who would resent the interference of even so popular and respected a statesman as Christian Smuts in what Britain rightly regards as the domestic issue. The thinly veiled sarcasm of certain questions in the House of Commons regarding the attitude of Congress and of American public bodies on a recent occasion on this very question clearly shows the British temper in this regard.

Smuts did a service to the Empire, as a citizen of the Empire; and as such he deserves our fullest thanks. He went to Ireland, not as Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, but as a plain servant of the Sovereign and of the Empire, who acquiesced in his going. Few men are better qualified to carry such a mission to a successful issue. He is recognised as one of the clearest thinkers among the public men of to-day. He is an acknowledged authority on international law. In manner firm and conciliatory, he enjoys to an exceptional degree, by reason of his past history and his present conduct, the confidence and the goodwill of the Irish people. He was the ideal man for the task, and his high sense of duty would have urged him to its accomplishment, even if his personal desires held him back.

Having performed a service to the Empire and tackled the thorniest problem in the Empire to-day at a time when, according to the British Premier, the visiting statesmen who "had their own difficulties were not particularly anxious to take up the Irish question of their own free will," tiwo aesedlu mbbfb shrdlu cmfwyp it would be base ingratitude either to minimise the splendid work which he did or to picture him as a busybody, eager to poke his nose into other people's business.

The bubble of his meddlesomeness has been pricked, and we may well double our meed of gratitude to General Smuts for adding one more service to the brilliant roster of golden deeds done in the cause of the Empire of which he is so able and devoted a servant. The answer of the "had their wn difficulties were not inquiry whether or not the late Imperial Conference assumed or even accepted the task of arbiter and judge between Great Britain and Ireland. It did nothing so silly, so presumptuous or so dangerous.—Montreal Star.

LITERARY GEMS

IN SINCERITY

The pungent fragrance of the floweris its evidence of sincerity. One knows at once that it is real.

Men and women carry about them an invisible atmosphere which either attracts or repels builds or destroys sweetens or sours.

Instinctively one feels realness—sincerity.

There is no way in the world whereby falseness may be concealed. Sincerity looms like day and radiates as do the rays of the sun.

In sincerity are all the precious treasures of life warmly and securely drapped..

And through sincerity our hearts made like pure gold— a thousand fine!

We know sincerity because we see if so often. In eyes that look right into ours, in the strength and fineness of the handshake, and by the very mode and method of the words that reach our sight and hearing from the heart-rooms of those we trust.

With sincerity ruling the one we love, we can go a million miles or more in the forgiving line. For sincerity, somehow, seems to pivot all else.

It is impossible to be insincere and people not know it.

No one has ever been able to conceal character. Words, deeds, fame, money, social standing — character walks at the head and precedes them all.

Strive—in sincerity.

—George Matthew Adams.

BATTLESHIPS YET COMMAND THE SEA.

WASHINGTON, Aug .20.—(By United Press).—Battleships still command the seas.

This is the conclusion that was reached by the joint Army and Navy board after thorough investigation of data on airship bombing tests carried on off Hampton Roads from June 21 to July 21. The report states that the manoeuvers prove the imperative need for airplane carriers and more facilities for protecting the battleship against aerial attacks. Aerial activities on the seas have simply added to the complexities of naval warfare, the report reads, but has not furnished an "enconomical instrument of war leading to the abolition of battleships."

Germany Refuses to Admit Guilt in Starting War.

BY CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, August 20. — Germany may appeal many of the issues contained in the German-American peace treaty to international arbitration.

The treaty, it was learned, does not contain a declaration of Germany's guilt in starting the war.

Germany would have flatly refused to sign had such an admission been included.

EXPECT TO PASS U. S. TAX REVISION BILL

WASHINGTON, August 20 (United Press). — Reductions in taxation are to be brought a step nearer reality to-day with the passage by the House of the Republican Tax Revision Bill.

Democratic leaders admitted there is little hope of making any radical change in the measure.

It was predicted that twenty to forty Democrats would bolt the party leadership and support the Bill.

The final vote is scheduled for 3 o'clock under a special rule.

WHEN you require a roof, the measurement will be in squares (100 square feet). A basis for analysis of the costs of Brantford Asphalt Slates is given below:

1—INITIAL COSTS OF MATERIALS—Brantford Asphalt Slates are sometimes higher in initial cost for the material.

2—NAILS REQUIRED—Brantford Asphalt Slates require ONLY 624 nails to lay a square. Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates require ONLY 480 nails.

3—COST OF LAYING—Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates are four on one strip—require only one operation in handling, one operation in spacing—Individual slates are 8 x 12½ inches—Cut easily, fit easily, fit on angles and bend over round surfaces. You save 30 to 50 per cent. in laying.

4—NO PAINT OR STAIN REQUIRED—The surface of Brantford Asphalt Slates is in nature's permanent colors, green and red, unfadeable, always attractive,—requiring no stain to produce artistic effects, no liquid coats to make them fire-resistant.

5—SAVING OF INSURANCE—Brantford Asphalt Slates are classed as non-combustible by fire insurance companies—a direct saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. on premiums is effected. In certain localities fire regulations demand asbested paper under some roof materials, but Brantford Asphalt Slates are fire-resistant and are immune from special regulations.

6—COST OF REPAIRS—From the day they are laid Brantford Asphalt Slate roofs show almost 100 per cent. of the original roof untouched. Brantford Asphalt Slates do not curl, split, crack or rot. Complete protection and permanent protection are built into Brantford Asphalt Slate Roofs.

Compare these roof costs with those of any other roofing material; it is your money you are spending and you want value for it—then buy

I DO A LITTLE SUBTLE PLEADING.

Chapter 43.

All that had happened between Tom Barney and me would have to be kept a secret from Kent. Telling him would be absolutely out of the question.

I did not want to deceive Kent, but in this case I felt I was justified. It was one of those strange, beautiful experiences which, when they come into a woman's life, belong to her alone, and should be locked tenderly within the depths of her own soul. There are some sacred things in life which we can never tell to anyone.

And also I realized that Kent would be very unhappy if he knew. Men are supposed to be more honest and just with each other in material things, but I have not found it so in matters of sentiment and love. A man always thinks lightly of another's affairs d'amour. I knew that Kent could not look upon my affair with Tom Barney in the same light that I perceived it. He would not blame me, but he would surely be skeptical of Tom.

And Kent would not be happy. It would take from him all the peace and faith that had gradually come back into his soul since the return of the Lachman rose-diamond. He would be always fearful of being found out, and having Tom renounce his promise.

But my faith in Tom Barney was strong. He had shown me his honest, better self as a man will only show a woman.

Poor Tom, I wanted so to help him! I determined to see what I could do to bring about a happier state of affairs between he and his wife. I was going to try and get Kent to help me, but my dear, blind Kent was going to be more difficult to persuade than I had bargained for.

"Kent dear, do you ever see anything of Tom Barney?" I asked, a few nights after Tom's last eventful visit to my apartment.

"No, thank goodness," Kent returned forcefully.

"Don't be foolish dear," I admonished. "Tom means all right, I'm sure. I really feel sorry for him."

Kent jabbed his fork into a piece of steak and severed it fiercely with one stroke of the knife.

"Sorry? What makes you feel sorry for him? I can't see that he needs our sympathy."

"It's his wife—she's rather impossible, sort of a light-weight," I suggested, peeking out at Kent over the top of my tea cup.

"I don't see anything wrong with Lillian—in fact, I rather like her," Kent declared. He was certainly wet-blanketing my endeavors. I thought a minute.

"I supposed you feel more sorry for Lillian?" I sparred. Kent took a long drink of tea. I waited for his answer, smiling a little to myself.

"Decidedly so," he declared. "Lillian is popular. Everybody likes her, and that's more than you can say of Tom, isn't it?" he demanded.

"She may be popular with the men," I answered meaningly, but apparently Kent did not get my insinuation. He did not answer.

"Well, I'll make a bargain with you, Kent," I said, my cheeks flushing as I suddenly thought of an idea. "You know Tom and Lillian don't get along awfully well—everybody knows that—and you say you feel sorry for Lillian, and I do for Tom, so let's see if we can't help them," I finished rapidly, and watched Kent's face eagerly to see what the effect of my words would be.

"Um!" Kent grunted, a little nonplussed at my sudden suggestion.

"Please, Kent," I cried, jumping up from the table, and going around to the arm of his chair.

CHURCH SERVICES IN MARK STREET

Splendid congregations greeted the pastor, the choir was in good form, and sang well, while about sixty persons remained for fellowship meeting.

"The Divine Potter and the Broken Vase"

was the subject of the morning sermon, and was a development of Jer. xviii., 4: "And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter, so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it." An outline of the sermon follows:

The Art of Pottery One of the Most Ancient.

One of the most ancient and common of all manufactures was the art of pottery. It is abundantly evident, both that the Hebrews used earthenware vessels in the wilderness, and that the potter's trade was afterwards carried on in Palestine. They had themselves been concerned in the potter's trade in Egypt, and the wall paintings minutely illustrate the Egyptian process.

The Clay on the Potter's Wheel.

The clay, when dug, was trodden by men's feet so as to form a paste. It was then placed by the potter on the wheel, or horizontal disk, beside which he sat, and shaped by him with his hands. How early the wheel came in use in Palestine, we know not, but it seems likely that it was adopted from Egypt. However, when God has one of His great lessons to teach His people, He sends Jeremiah to watch the potter. Go down to the potter's house, says God, and find the analogy between the Divine Artist and the human, between the clay in the potter's hands and human character in the hands of the mighty Jehovah.

Every Work of God is Perfect.

Nothing imperfect has ever come from the hand of God. All his works are without a flaw. How do we know? Oh, He would cease to be God if He once failed. "No Jar," "No Hitch," "No Mistake," "No Blunder," "Eternal and Universal Harmony," we find written on all His mighty works. The plan of the world, of the human family, of the nations of the earth, and of the eternal salvation of mankind, slumbered in the mind of God from eternity. When God put the clay on the wheel, His Divine plan was a perfect universe, a holy, happy hierarchy of celestial intelligences, and a world of human beings bearing in their character, undimed, the image of their God.

God Has a Divine Ideal for Every Man.

Just as the human artist had a plan in his mind of what the vase was to be when he placed the clay on the wheel, so the divine Artist has a plan for every human life. Yes, we find this plan demonstrated throughout the universe, in the heavens, in the earth, and in the sea; "Cause and Effect," "Adaptation," and "Design," everywhere. What beauty of form, color, design and symmetry awoke in the mind of the human artist as he placed the plastic and unconscious clay upon the wheel by his side; and oh, my friend, what a picture of potential love, and joy, and peace, and purity, and moral strength, and spiritual passion and energy the mighty Divine Artist sees in your character and mine. Shall we, by some inherent hardness in the clay, frustrate God's plan for our life? Michel Angelo saw a filthy and shapeless block of marble among the debris in a back yard. He bought it, paid a man a shilling to cart it to his studio; washed it, began with hammer and chisel on the block, then said to an enquirer, "I see an angel in the stone." God may see an angel in the life that some poor fellow is throwing away. Arise sir, God's image is in thy soul.

Could An Ideal Man Live in This World?

Oh, yes, God does not ask the impossible. "Be ye perfect, even as your Father, which is in heaven is perfect," are the words of Him Who lived the ideal life in this world for thirty-three years. Can a man live in this world without sin? Certainly. What is sin? It is a "wilful transgression of a known law." Surely I can live in this world without wilfully transgressing a law known to me; if God tells me to do it, and He promises me His grace. No sin, strictly speaking, was ever committed without the sanction of the human will. But you say, "I am a poor, weak creature." But God intended you and me to be big, strong, robust men in Christ Jesus. "I am a poor, weak creature" is a kind of a devil's stone-pile, where we have all tried to hide; let us come out and play the game.

The Use of the Vessel Governed Its Shape.

When the potter put the clay upon the wheel, he began to rapidly turn the disk and fashion the coming vase of honor. But suddenly some inherent hardness in the clay comes in contact with the fashioning instrument in the artist's hand, and the clay is shattered to pieces. He cannot now make the vessel he would have made, so he gathers up the pieces and makes it again, but this vase is not the one the artist had planned. Nor are we the men, perhaps, that the Divine Artist intended us to be; but the clay is not lost.

Lives Marred in the Potter's Hand Made Again.

Have you "missed your calling?" The inherent hardness in the human clay was the human will. "What I might have been," you say. Yes, you might have been a heroe in the world's broad field of battle. You might have been a great reformer, or philanthropist, or general, or scientist, or philosopher, or teacher, or preacher, or merchant-prince; had it not been for the stubbornness of your will. That is true. But we might have been great tramps, and thieves, and adulterers, and murderers, only for the grace of God. May the mighty Artist take the broken bits of clay, then, and put them again on the wheel.

A GENTLE WAY TO END CORNS

The Modern Method, Scientific, Easy, Quick and Sure

The old corn enders were harsh, crude and uncertain. They came into disrepute.

Then a world-famed laboratory created a new method, and millions have adopted it.

The new way is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. One applies it by a touch. The pain stops instantly, and soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

To pare a corn and keep it now is folly. Stop it the moment it appears. Remove it in this gentle way.

Watch one corn go when Blue-jay is applied. You will let it deal with all corns after that.

Send to the drug store now.

ITALY MAY SAVE TURKEY IN EUROPE

Italian Foreign Expert Urges Anglo-Italian Union.

ROME. (By Mail to United Press.)—England and Italy must unite to preserve the integrity of Turkey and to resurrect Ottoman nationality.

This opinion was expressed in an interview by Senator Artom, president of the Italian Colonial Institute, and an expert in foreign politics, which he studied at the Foreign Office before he became first a deputy and then a senator.

"The terms of a particular agreement between England and Italy for the Near East could not be discussed by the press before its conclusion," said Artom, "because not even the most modest commercial convention could be concluded, if its terms were discussed beforehand.

All that can be said is that a return to the principle of the integrity of the Ottoman Empire, which for long formed an important part of European public law, would seem advisable, and should form the base of an agreement with Italy.

Certainly, the conduct of Turkey during the war has aroused legitimate rancour in European public opinion; certainly, the passage of the Straits can no longer remain the monopoly of Turkey, nor of any other power. But, with this reservation, rancour cannot be the base of a wise policy; Europe will help herself and the great cause of human liberty by assisting the resurrection of the Ottoman nationality, on condition that it gives all the necessary guarantees for the protection of the rights of the other Oriental races and of legitimate European interests.

"The strengthening of the agreement already existing between the governments of London, Paris and Rome, and the concusion also of special arrangements for most urgent questions, such as that of the Near East, constitutes a real and vital necessity for Europe."

"The agreement before all else should be based upon the interest and the need of unity between the three Great Powers for the defense of the system of order against the prevalence of the revolutionary or Bolshevist tendencies which have for some time threatened Europe."

TECHNICAL FORCES OF GERMANY READY

Representatives of 300,000 Industrial Experts Call for Increased Production

Mobilization of the host of German technical men for the purpose of increasing production and making it possible for Germany to bear the burden laid upon it by the World War was called for by numerous speakers at the fifth general meeting of the National League of German Technicians held in Essen the first week in June. Herr Dahl, President of the league and a member of the National Economic Council, as quoted in the Kolnische Zeitung, said that while the league already embraced 220 technical bodies and some 300,000 individual members, it aimed to take in everybody occupying an important post in industry, from the general manager to the foreman, and from the locomotive engineer to the technical Secretary of State.

Among the special objects of the league, which disclaims any idea of being a political organization, are the promotion of technical training in both the public schools and the colleges, education of the masses of the people regarding the importance of technical work, co-operation of talented technicians with public bodies, abolishment of the monopoly of public administration held by lawyers and ending of the domination of the merchants in economic life.

General approval seemed to be accorded to the sentiments voiced by Herr Beuster, a former city building commissioner of Berlin, who declared that there was no use wasting any more time on discussing the possibility of fulfilling the reparation terms, but that Germany must get down to hard work and do its best to make good by increasing the productivity of both its public and private industries and institutions. Even the eight-hour working day, which was very nice as a social achievement, must not be adhered to too strictly if it stood in the way of increased production. In the general discussion following Herr Beuster's talk, some speakers asserted that systematic development of Germany's available farm lands would result in an increase of from 50 to 80 per cent. in the agricultural output. A representative of the railroad employes warned the technicians against any attempt to do away with the eight-hour day.

Ministerial Councilor Schultze, representing the Ministry of Reconstruction, explained that while the matter of making good the destruction wrought in the devastated region of France was really an economic question, it was a political one for France, which made it difficult to reach an agreement upon the use of German men and materials. Nevertheless, it seemed probable that German co-operation would ultimately be accepted.

WITCHCRAFT PRACTICED IN WALES.

Superstitions of the country folk of Wales are discussed in a report of Dr. Arthur Hughes, medical health officer of the county of Carmarthenshire. Despite the fact that fortune telling and witchcraft are prohibited under the English law, large numbers of the Welsh peasants bring their ailing children to the witch doctors rather than to medical practitioners.

One fetish that appeals to these superstitious people is that a witch doctor can cure a child of backwardness by means of making a slight incision in the cartilage of the child's ear. The operation must be performed during the waxing of the moon, and the art is handed down from generation to generation, the "doctor" usually being a woman. If a cure does not result the operation is repeated until the child is cured. It is said that many women practice this art, and that the people pay large sums to have dull children so treated.

Uncle Sam needn't be concerned about the poison gas that is being manufactured by the other nations. In the course of time, prohibition will fortify us against any kind of poison. —Akron Beacon Journal.

ONE LEAGUE OF NATIONS FUNCTIONING.

There have been a number of leagues of nations in the past, but few people realize that one organized in 1905 has been successful and is now functioning.

This league was formed by a Californian named Lubin, and has representatives from 39 countries. The King of Italy has always been interested in it and has donated large sums of money.

It has many functions, the most important of which is the issuance of reports on food products, three times a month in many different languages. Figures are also transcribed into the currency of the different countries, so that the farmer in France, to whom a price of $1.73 a bushel might mean nothing, would know at how many francs per quintal wheat might be bought. Likewise the American farmer would understand the franc value per quintal.

THE PORT OF VANCOUVER

It is hardly possible to conceive of a subject which is of greater vital interest to the people of Canada, than that of the recent activities and the measures being taken for the development of its great western port of Vancouver. Since the removal of Government control over some of our principal products, it is becoming increasingly apparent to everyone to what a great extent the channels of our trade have become disrupted. The old routes of trade, with their well ordered and regular demand are only partially in existence to-day; the beneficial effects which those routes had on the prosperity of Canada are no longer so clearly apparent. New sources of demand and supplementary outlets of our natural and manufactured produce are an immediate necessity, and the pressure of strong economic forces are gradually accumulating, which will direct the commercial outlook of Canada, in a lessening degree to the East and South, and to a greater extent towards Vancouver and the great countries with which it trades. This article will try to bring to the conception of Canada, east of the Rockies, the tremendous and courageous efforts which are being made to bring the port of Vancouver into the front rank of Pacific harbors; to increase its attractiveness for the world's shipping; to build up a permanent service of vessels to the rich markets of the Pacific; to make it in every way worthy of the Dominion, whose foreign trade it so strongly desires to foster.

The Port of Vancouver, if only on account of the phenomenal rapidity of its growth, is a remarkable tribute to western enterprise. Its evolution in the short space of about thirty years from a natural coastal inlet to a centre of shipping industry with world-wide ramifications is one of the outstanding romances of modern commerce. It can claim to offer facilities of transportation, together with expeditious methods and appliances for handling merchandise, which if considered as a whole, are fully equal to other Pacific ports established long before it. Numerous important works which are now in course of construction will, in the ensuing two years, not only place the port far ahead of its Pacific competitors, but will bring it into the forefront of the leading and modern equipped ports of the world. Its strategical position for advancing the foreign trade of Canada is all that could be desired, while the city itself is peopled with merchants and shippers' agents who know the requirements of these far off markets and their potentialities for trade. They hear of the success which has followed the exploitation of the markets of the East by the business men of the States, and they look forward to the time when Canadian interests will take their full share of the trade to be obtained through these hitherto only partly developed channels.

Up to the year 1913, all development work of the port was entirely the result of private enterprise only, and such facilities as were available for deep-sea shipping, had, up to then, been provided to a large extent by the constructions erected by the C. P. R. The Harbor Board of Vancouver was then created by a Government measure and strong financial support has been forthcoming from the Government ever since, not only to further the development of the harbor, but also in connection with its shipbuilding programme. It is this combination of effort on the part of the Government, the Harbor Commissioners, the C. P. R. and other important private interests, which is bringing Vancouver so rapidly to the forefront of shipping affairs.

The numerous important new undertakings are worthy of consideration in detail. The C. P. R. is erecting a new pier of the double deck type, which will be 1,100 feet long and 330 feet wide, and on it will be two sheds, each 110 feet wide and running the full length of the pier. Along the outside of each shed there will be two surface tracks, and four lines of depressed tracks in the centre. This pier will be fitted with the most modern and powerful cargo handling equipment, and this together with the excellent facilities for clearing freight on the railway will enable a ship to be "turned" in record time. The dredging and filling for this pier are now completed, so constructional work should be well advanced by the end of 1921. Messrs. J. Coughlan & Sons have secured a contract, and work has already commenced on the new Government Dry Dock which will be 750 feet long, sufficiently large to accommodate the "Empress of Canada," the latest addition to the magnificent fleet of vessels operated by the C. P. O. S., which is 644 feet in length and has a displacement of 22,000 tons.

The Harbor Commission with the help of a Government appropriation of $6,000,000, have commenced work on the new Ballantyne pier, and expect to obtain completion within two years. This pier will be 1,200 feet in length, and 340 feet wide, and will carry three sheds 500 feet long and one shed 400 feet long, all of which will be 110 feet wide. In addition to a roadway for vehicles there will be three railroad tracks in the centre, and two tracks on each of the outer sides. The plans call for fireproof steel and concrete construction throughout, and the installation of powerful travelling electric cranes. The Harbor Board are also now inviting tenders for a tugboat wharf, for which the necessity has long been felt. They have also under immediate consideration the provision of tanks for storing vegetable oils; the addition of a fireboat, and the construction of coal bunkers.

Since the port of Vancouver has been able, up to now, to cope successfully with its increasing deep-sea trade, and the large coastal business coming to and going from the port, it is obvious that these new docks, huge warehouses, powerful lifting devices and multiple tracks for rolling stock, are capable of promoting a trade of a far greater volume than can be looked for from established resources. The picture which appeals most to the mind is that of an excess of business, rather than just enough; the prospect of too little business is not to be thought of. In the near future it will require the whole-hearted and united endeavors of our factories, farms, forests, mines and fisheries to produce the mildest form of congestion in the port of Vancouver.

The port of Vancouver is already well equipped to handle grain shipments and not very long ago the first cargo of wheat passed through the Government elevator into the S.S. "Effingham" consigned to a European port. This marked a momentous day in the history of the port and great hopes are entertained that a considerable trade will, in the future, be obtained from the Western Prairie Provinces.

The possibility of building up a foreign export trade in manufactured goods as well as raw material is gaining more attention in Canadian business circles daily; the attractiveness of the markets which are served by the port of Vancouver must ultimately bring about a considerable increase in the merchandise freighted through this harbor. Up to the outbreak of war our foreign export trade was a negligible item of about $50,000,000, the trade of Canada, consisting principally of an exchange of commodities with the American States. We are large buyers from the States of such necessities as coal, cotton, iron and steel and vehicles; their requirements from us are not so heavy. An adverse trade balance is just at present a disquieting feature of our commercial relations with other countries and it becomes obvious that a more strenuous effort must be made to introduce the produce and manufactured goods of Canada into other markets, so that our purchasing powers may be maintained and increased on a firm basis.

The producers of this country, by consigning their goods via Vancouver, can obtain ready shipment to Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand and all the ports of Australia by the Canadian Australasian Royal Mail Line and the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Ltd. To China, Japan, Straits Settlements and Philippines there are, in addition to the regular sailings of the C. P. O. S., four other lines giving a monthly service of freight steamers, and two giving a fortnightly service. There are five distinct companies trading via Panama Canal, between Vancouver and Great Britain and Europe.

The trade of the port for 1920 shows a gratifying increase over previous years, there being 2,456,000 tons of cargo handled over the wharves, as compared with 2,380,000 tons in 1919. The outgoing cargoes, both deep-sea and coastwise, totalled 795,000 tons; the incoming cargoes totalled 1,670,000 tons, roughly two-thirds of the gross weight.

It has been shown that the Port of Vancouver will, in the next two years, arrive by gradual stages to a considerably increased pitch of efficiency, whereby it will be enabled to load and discharge cargoes of probably three times the volume of its present trade; the question presents itself as to the length of time it will take to build up the complicated machinery of commerce, which is necessary if these intricate markets are to become more closely related with the future trade of Canada.

BASEBALL

Port Hope Guide: We read quite frequently of paint being delivered to Belleville by aeroplane. The Belleville authorities should arrange for the carrying of their mail by the same conveyance. A registered letter containing notice of protest of the Belleville-Port Hope game mailed in Belleville on Monday did not reach Cobourg until Thursday or later. According to President Kimmell it was not in his possession on Thursday morning. Wonder if by any chance Belleville delayed sending the notice until after Wednesday's game with Lindsay. Had Belleville lost to Lindsay they were practically out of the running. However, the fact remains that the protest was not in the hands of any of the League officials within the specified time, forty-eight hours. If the Executive in the dying hours of this season accept Belleville's notice they will establish a precedent which will cause no end of trouble and will give baseball a set back in this district.

Speaking of the Lindsay-Belleville game, the Lindsay Post says:

It appears that in the 13th innings Oulette struck out the first batter up. Weir was next up and had two strikes and two balls. The next ball cut clean across the heart of the plate, a strike to all who beheld it, and Weir dropped his bat and turned to the dugout, believing he was out. Umpire Kay, however, called it a ball. The next pitched was again across the plate and a strike and once more Weir, thinking he was out, turned and started to walk to the Belleville bench but Umpire Kay called four balls and ordered him to first base. That statred the fireworks, and took the heart out of the game, for a few minutes after the runner scored on a single hit. Why not protest? Your claim is equally as good as Belleville's against Port Hope, and evidently time is no object in this League.

Secretary Nott of the Central Ontario League, has called a meeting of the Executive to be held in Cobourg next Thursday afternoon to consider the protest entered by Belleville against Port Hope.

Mr. Kay, of Peterborough, said in talking to the staff correspondent, that the game at Port Hope was stolen from Belleville, and he knows because he was there.—Belleville Intelligencer. Mr. Kay as an official umpire of the League, exceeded his authority in making such a statement to the Belleville press. If Mr. Kay was of the opinion that Belleville was unfairly treated in Port Hope, it was his business to report the same to the secretary of the League and it was then the duty of the League to deal with the report. —Port Hope Guide.

Must is a hard nut to crack, but it has a sweet kernel.—Spurgeon.

STILL IMPROVING THE LOCAL MARKET

HAY PRICES FORCED UP BY SCARCITY OF THE CROP.

Completing the improvements made to the headquarters of the Market Clerk is a new pig and cattle run leading to the weigh scales. It is a substantial hemlock affair, a board higher than its predecessor, and is a vast improvement over the old one. It is practically complete, except for painting.

The city's attention to the building has been commended by the farmers who come in to have live stock or produce weighed, and by the hundreds who attend Saturday market.

Market Clerk Maloney stated this morning that there is only a minimum of hay coming in, and the price has been forced up again to $30.00 a ton. The lowest the price went was $25.00, but there was so little being brought in because of harvesting operations that the price went up automatically.

JOHN G. KENT, Managing Director — ROBT. FLEMING, President

AT THE CAPITOL TO-DAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

MAYOR SAMUEL A. CARLSON OF JAMESTOWN VISITOR TO THE CITY

HAS MADE JAMESTOWN A "PUBLIC UTILITY" CITY—FREE BAND CONCERTS—TOO MUCH LOAFING IN FIREHALLS—BELIEVES IN PUBICITY.

Since he assumed the municipal helm of Jamestown, N. Y., 14 years ago, Mayor Samuel A. Carlson has had some trying seas to traverse but he has had the satisfaction of seeing the population in that time advance from 20,000 to 50,000. He has seen the city become the second leading furniture manufacturing cetre of the United States and he has (and in this he believes he has rendered his greatest public service) made Jamestown a "Public utility City," where every citizen is an interested shareholder in the city's business. Mayor Carlson has fought for public ownership. He has made a fight Ontarians might understand best if described as a "Beck" fight. No project has been too great for the city to handle if he believed they should and while he was called a "Socialist" he made Jamestown flourish and successfully operated municipal utilities in this city have made it famous not only in the State but in the Union.

Long Service

Mayor Carlson is now serving his seventh term as Mayor. Fourteen years ago he was elected on an Independent Progressive ticket and in seven contests since when the private ownership interests have pitted all their forces against him he has come out victorious. For over 25 years he has been prominent in the public life of Jamestown. Born and raised there, he was, when he had hardly attained his majority, elected city alderman and while in his second term made Public Works Commissioner serving ten years of unremunerative work in the public interest and then became Mayor. He has received no emolument in this field in fact he admits he would have been farther ahead financially had he never sat in the Mayor's chair but he has taken his pay in satisfaction in the progress of his home town.

Water System

In the Empress Hotel today he outlined what Jamestown possess. The city operates its water system, getting its supply from artesian wells which is an ideal and natural way, for Chautauqua Lake, on which the city is situated, is fed by underground springs. The water is sold to factories and householders alike by meter at approximately one-half cent a barrel, the cost of water for a seven-roomed home for one year being about $6.00.

The city's lighting plant has been owned 25 years. Current is sold for domestic use at six and three-quarter cents a kilowatt, the average monthly bill for householders being about $1.50. "When you consider that the electricity is generated from coal you can see Jamestown is doing something few other cities are," he said.

Electric Lighting

Previous to the increase in coal, electricity was sold at 4½ cents a Kilowatt, Mayor Carlson said. While they are only 100 miles from the mines coal is only a few dollars cheaper than in Peterboro.

Jamestown owns a public market erected at a cost of $40,000 but self-supporting. Farmers, hucksters and dealers have stalls here and it has been estimated 8,000 people deal there.

"We believe in Jamestown, it is just as necessary to protect the lives of our citizens from disease as from fire," said Mayor Carlson in mentioning the city-owned hospital which is maintained at a cost of one cent per week per capita.

Permanent Paving

Forty miles of brick and concrete pavement tell of a policy of good roads continually advocated by Mayor Carlson. The city has its own concreting plant and does all its own paving at a saving of 25 per cent of contractor's costs, affirmed the Mayor. Mayor Carlson says it is incumbent on every municipality to se that its residents get pure water and clean milk and both as cheaply as possible. Other commodities are hard to regulate but he contends that a city can and should give pure water and unadulterated 100 per cent milk. Jamestown, he stated, is now planning a municipal milk distributing system. The people have voted $150,000 for its establishment. The milk vendors are fighting this last move of Mayor Carlson's to the last ditch. The milk men in the courts are raising the constitutional legality of the city going in the milk business. The issuance of the bonds is being temporarily held up although the city has been given permission by the state legislature to embark on public ownership in this direction.

Will Sell Milk

According to his plan, Mayor Carlson said, the milk will be purchased on quality and farmers will get as good a price as their milk standard is high. The milk will be tested, pasteurized, bottled and distributed by the city on a systematized plan whereby costly duplications will be eliminated. Seventy-five dealers are bidding for business on the same streets now, he declared and only through systematization of routes will the price be cut.

Better milk will be sold cheaper than at present, he stated.

Laws Enforced

Jamestown has solved the problem of disposing of is garbage in an unique way. A man operating a piggery takes all the city's garbage for fattening his 500 hogs and without any expense to them he disposes of it all. Over in Jamestown Mayor Carlson declared, the garbage by-laws are stringently enforced. All garbage must be wrapped in paper. Collections are weekly in winter and semi-weekly in summer and the collectors go into backyards for the garbage. No unsightly garbage receptacles mar the beauty of the streets. Statisticians have figured the cost of the garbage collection at 50 cents a year per capita.

Free Concerts

Free band concerts are given each Sunday in one of five city parks. During the week these are used as playgrounds and are equipped for this purpose.

The city is governed by a mayor and 12 aldermen, two elected from each ward. Each April the elections take place and in April next Mayor Carlson will again submit his name to the electors. The city's business is looked after by Commissioners. Regardless of politics men of knowledge have been chosen. Mayor Carlson said, for the public duties and this he believed was responsible for their success in business ventures. For the different commissions the Mayor nominates one member and the people elect two.

Light of Publicity

"Publicity is the one remedy for municipal error or inefficiency." This is Mayor Carlson's candid belief as expressed to the Examiner. In their assessment department they have depended on entire publicity of the assessment rolls to eliminate error and have succeeded. The entire assessment roll is printed and each taxpayer gets a copy. Such relentless publicity at first aroused widespread opposition, he said, but it was firmly proceeded with. "This publicity has tended to equalize and do away with discrimination." If any taxpayer wants a revision he waits on the Board of Assessors.

The Police Department

Amalgamation of police and fire duties is advocated by Mayor Carlson and he contends that firemen and policemen could double-up. There is too much loafing in Fire Halls in his opinion and th doing police duty vremen would be more content. He is studying this question now and also the use of motor buses in smaller cities.

Maintaining that tax rates and assessment figures are poor gages of a city's financia position Mayor Carlson stated that the taxes in Jamestown worked out at 3 cents per day per capita, in other words the average per capita tax is $10.50 a year.

President of Company

Mayor Carlson is President of the Birmingham Motors of Jamestown, N. Y. While his visit to the city is primarily in the interests of this company establishing a Canadian branch here he is also studying public utilities. He is particularly interested in Peterboro's water supply and in the Hydro gas plant. The latter is of interest as Jamestown depends on natural gas wells in Pennsylvania ad these are not being operated now.

ATTEMPT TO INDUCE FINLAND TO ENTER THE BALTIC UNION.

Forming Strong Military Front Against Russia Along Baltic.

RIGA, Latavia, Aug. 22.—Efforts are now under way to induct Finland to join the Baltic Union, which became an accomplished fact with the signing of various conventions leading to a triple alliance of Esthonia, Latavia and Lithuania.

In diplomatic circles here the signing of these conventions is considered as a great step toward the potential formation of a united military front from the Arctic to the Black Sea against any aggression from Soviet Russia.

Latavia and Esthonia are understood to have signed already a military convention. Lithuania has not yet been included in this but is expected to to shortly. Fear that Poland, which is expected to be in the union later, might object to any immediate inclusion of Lithuania in the military convention, until the Vilna dispute between Lithuania and Poland is settled, deterred Latavia and Esthonia from admitting Lithuania at this time. The latter country, however, through her foreign minister, Doctor Puritsky, is understood to have given assurances with Lithuanian, will stand with the other two nations on any political question of importance.

Trade, railway and other conventions already signed or about to be signed include all three countries.

None of these Baltic states fears any immediate aggression from Russia. Their statesmen, however, consider the Russian situation so full of possibilities that they desire to take no chances, some of them admitted privately to the correspondent.

In their fight for political and economic stability, toward which they are making rapid progress, these little republics constantly have before them the spectre of danger were Lenine's regime in Russia either to crumble into anarchy or be succeeded by some government determined to include in a united Russia all of the little peoples who have broken away and formed independent governments.

These statesmen consider the formation of the triple alliance a fairly adequate safeguard against any of these eventualities. The protection would be stronger, they say, were Finland and Poland and possibly Rumania included, but they declare they have at least made a splendid start.

One of the participants in the conferences of the three nations said: "It is natural that this union can have no offensive aim, but the cordial relations of the union's members prove and testify its safety and security. The great powers will now have to reckon seriously with this entente."

One of the Riga newspapers characterizes the Baltic ntente as "a chain of states standing between the two main revolutionary countries—Germany and Russia—destined to play the role of frontier guards between Europe and Asia."

LOW NECK DRESS CAUSES ZION MATRON'S ARREST.

ZION, Ill., August 22. — Mrs. Elizabeth Naden, of Zion ,was arrested by Policeman Isaac Parry, for wearing a dress, the neck of which was cut so low ,according to the complainant, as "partially to show or expose the neck and shoulders of the wearer lower than the juncture of the pit of the neck with the clavicle or collar bones."

She is the second woman to be arested since Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, issued his law against immodest dress.

The ordinance declares such clothing "if worn in public or places within public view, shall be deemed immodest, vulgar, indecent and suggestive of low and vicious morals, and tending to debauch innocence ond purity and degrade the best interests of society."

MODEL APARTMENT BEING CONSTRUCTED AS HOME FOR RATS.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22 (United Press.)—A pilgrimage of the rats of the United States to the Wistar Institute here where a $30,-000 home for rats for experimental purposes is being built, would not be surprising should the news get to the ears of the country's rodents.

The new home for rats will be complete in every detail—as complete as if it were made for human beings, for it is from experiments with these rats that scientists learn of many ways to save lives of humans.

The home will include a gymnasium, where the rodents can take daily exercise; a hospital with a specialist and nurses; an isolation department for diseased and "nutty" rats; lights and ventilating system; a dance floor; phonographs; choicest food, including French pastry; indirect steam heating; sanitary kitchen and dietary department; every room leading into the open, and other sanitary provisions.

Some of the observations made in the study and experimentation with rats, according to Dr. Milton H. Greenman director of the institute, are:

Rats are fond of music and the story of the "Pied Piper of Hamlet" might easiy be true.

Contrary to general belief, rats like light and air and live in dark, filthy places only because of necessity.

It takes about three generations to develop the aristocratic rat from the rough-neck variety found in alleys and filthy places.

"The female of the species is more deadly than the male." They are harder to handle.

The male rat is a good family man. He has to be, for if he as much as looks at a female other than his wife the latter makes it hot for him.

Much benefit is expected to be derived from exhaustive experiments which will be carried on at the institute.

TAMPICO EXPORT OF OIL IS DECREASING

TAMPICO, Mexico, Aug. 22.—Petroleum exportations from this port totalled during the month of July approximately 5,500,000 barrels, or one-fourth the amount shipped during the month of June, according to information given out by oil companies here.

It was stated that August exportations will show a decrease over those of July, despite the fact that drilling is almost as active as early in the year. This is attributed to the low price of oil in the world's markets coupled with a recently imposed Mexican tax on petroleum exports.

Forge "Dull Times" Into Good Business

Lloyd George said recently that he was not afraid of dull times.

He said: "I condsider they have merit.

"They stimulate men's minds to greater activity. Real progress is never achieved when all business is prosperous. It takes the impetus of a dull period and of terrific competition to stimulate man's finer energies."

Business men are thinking harder about their sales costs today and putting the axe to all doubtful timber. Competition is far keener.

CRITICISM AND REMINISCENCE

(By PATERFAMILIAS)

THE O'BRIEN CLAN

Some fifteen years ago there was recorded a wedding in Canandaigua, N. Y., at which the O'Brien family seemed to have dominated throughout, from the principals themselves down to the very carriage driver who drove the happy couple to the railway station on the first stage of their honeymoon.

Talk about a gathering of the clans, it would be difficult indeed to crowd more persons of the same inherent name into so simple a function as an ordinary every day wedding as reported at this remarkable occasion. For Daniel O'Brien was the groom and Nellie O'Brien the bride. Elizabeth O'Brien, the bride's cousin, officiated as bridesmaid, while Mr. O'Brien, a brother of the groom, was best man. Then the ushers were M. C. and J. B. O'Brien, the officiating clergyman rejoiced in the appelation of Rev. John O'Brien, and, as if that were not enough more O'Briens figured as guests, and the caterer happened to have been christened Florence J. O'Brien. When the newly-married O'Briens left for the station to start on their wedding tour a pair of O'Brien slippers adorned the rear of the carriage, which carried on the driver's seat a perfectly typical Irishman in the person of Dennis O'Brien, and I'm blessed if he wasn't star driver for the livery firm of O'Brien Bros.

52 In Peterboro

Peterborough might some day duplicate this extraordinary feat—why not?—for there are many O'Briens in city and county. Out of sheer curiosity I hunted them up in the latest directory, and find that Peterborough city can boast of exacty fifty-two, and goodness knows how many children not listed therein. Their given names—regearing the same cognomens where they occur—are as follows:

Ada, Agnes, Agnes, Alex., Ambrose, Bernadine, Bridget, Daniel, Dennis, Edmund, Ellen, Frederick, —Geoffrey, grocer, Charlotte St.—Gerald, Gerald, Helen, Helen, James, James, James—Jas. F., dentist, 370 George street—John, John, John—Rev. John J., recto of the Sacred Heart Church, south city—John P., Joseph—Joseph A. (Gordon & O'Brien, barristers, etc.)—Josephine, Julia, Laura, Margaret, Margaret, Margaret., Margaret, Margaret, Margaret, Margaret, Mary, Mary, Mary, May, Melville, Michael, Michael, Michael, Susanna, Thomas, Thomas, William E., William H.

Some Prominent Men

The name of O'Brien has distinguished the personalities of many prominent men, chief of whom, so far as this community is concerned, is Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D. D., Lord Bishop of Peterborough, a Christian gentleman held in the highest esteem and respect, not only by his own extensive flock, but also in the opinion of citizens generally for his strong sterling character and exemplary citizenship.

The First O'Briens

It might here be interesting to note that the first O'Briens came to the County of Peterborough from Ireland, in the autumn of 1825, when Hon. Peter Robinson conducted the immigration of no less than four hundred and fifteen families who accepted the offer of free grants of land to settle in Upper Canada. Among those who carved homes for themselves in the then wilds of this county and contributed to the rising prosperity of Peterborough town and adjacent townships were the following O'Briens and the homesteads they settled on:

In Douro Township—Dennis O'Brien, aged 35, wife and two children, west half lot 3, 5th concession; Michael O'Brien, aged 33, wife and five children, east half lot 3, 5th concession; Maurice O'Brien, aged 37, wife and six children, east half lot 4, 5th concession.

In the Township of Asphodel—John O'Brien, aged 40, wife and four children, east half lot 13, 10th concession.

Treasurer of Douro

Of course, more O'Briens followed these early settlers from the Emerald Isle, among them Maurice and Catharine (O'Leary) O'Brien, who came to Canada in 1832, with twelve children, locating in Douro on lot 3, Concession 3, where the father took up a brush farm he cleared and resided thereon until his death.

This Maurice O'Brien was born in Ireland in 1816. His son Michael on reaching his majority visited the chief cities in the United States, returning home in 1839, when he married Anne, daughter of Patrick O'Brien, of Otonabee. His father then gave him a portion of the old farm, upon which he lived for twenty-four years. In 1862 he located in the Township of Chandos on lot 5, concession 12, where he took up 300 acres of land. Michael was an industrious and successful farmer, and interested himself in both educational and religious matters, being instrumental in erecting the then only Roman Catholic Church in his municipality, situated on lot 8, concession 13, a neat, comfortable building, 24 x 36 feet, where Father Keating held divine service every month. Father O'Connel was the first priest in charge of the spiritual welfare of Chandos people, followed by Father Lynch. Michael O'Brien, during his residence in Douro held the office of municipal treasurer for many years.

A Political O'Brien

Before leaving the O'Brien family let us look up another member of that name who gained notoriety in the old land, William Smith O'Brien a learned and clever politician. Born in Ireland in 1803, he was the second son of Sir Edward O'Brien, Bart., of Dromoland, County Claire, and uncle of Lord Inchiquin. The ancient barony passed into the hands of the Dromoland O'Briens on the failure of the elder branch. Wm. Smith O'Brien was educated at Harrow, whence he passed to Trinity College, Cambridge (England). He entered Parliament for Ennisborough in 1826, and was a warm supporter of Catholic emancipation. In 1835, he was returned on advanced Liberal principles for County of Limerick, Ireland, and for many years strongly advocated Ireland's claims to strictly equal justice with England in legislative as well as Executive measures. Subsequently, embroiling himself with the speaker of the House of Commons by refusing to serve on Committees, he was committed to prison in the House; he withdrew from attendance at parliament in 1841, and joined actively with Daniel O'Connell in agitation for a repeal of the legislative union between England and Ireland. In progress of that agitation, a division having arisen on the question of moral as against physical force between O'Connell and the party known as "Young Ireland," O'Brien sided with the latter; and when the political crisis of 1848 eventuated in a recourse to arms, he took part in an attempt at rebellion in the South of Ireland, which in a few days came to a ludicrous conclusion. O'Brien was arrested, convicted and sentenced to death, which sentence, however, was committed to life-transportation. After restoration of tranquility in the public mind in Ireland, he, with other political exiles, was permitted to return to his native country. From that date (1856) O'Brien spent much time in foreign travel and abstained from all active share in the political proceedings of any Irish party. He died in June, 1864.

AT THE GRAND.

"THREE LIVE GHOSTS."

Miss Eleanor Masters, who plays the American girl in "Three Live Ghosts," which comes to the Grand to-morrow night, is a girl athlete, fond of "roughing it" and a few years ago accomplished a record feat in both pedestrian and dancing endurance. One day while playing with "His Bridal Night" at Boulder, Colorado, Miss Masters accepted an invitation to accompany a party up the precipitate sides of Boulder Mountain. The climb and walk is seven miles in length. The other women of the party soon dropped out from exhaustion, but Miss Masters demonstrated her pluck and endurance by keeping abreast of the sturdy men until the summit was reached.

Instead of pleading weariness, Miss Masters returned to Boulder by stage, and that evening participated in the frenzied dances which her role required with more than ordinary strenuousness and enthusiasm. But the next day "soreness prevailed," Miss Masters relates, and the rest of her performances for that week were stilted and prim in execution.

REMOVE TACK FROM LUNG; NO ANESTHETIC IS USED.

Philadelphia, August 22. — Morris Keiser, 9 years old, of Monticello, Ark., recently swallowed a brass tack to win the admiration of his playmates. The tack went into his windpipe and lodged deeply in his lungs, treatening to puncture it. The boy was rushed to a hospital here. An instrument was inserted and a forceps applied to remove the tack. No anesthetic was administered and later on the boy was declared perfectly well.

DETROIT, August 22. — Convinced that Detroit was a wicked city and determined to protect the dollar bill in his pocket, Kenneth Martin, 17 years old, stepped of a Grand Rapids train late on Wednesday night wit ha 45 calbre revolver, nearly as large as himself, strapped to his belt. He ran afoul of Patrolman Luther Hamlin of Scotten Station, however, and was arrested for carrying concealed weapons. Martin was sent to the Juvenile Detention Home. Two youths that were with him were not held. The prisoner told Lieutenant William Fitzpatrick that he came heer to find work and was not going to take any chances with bandits.

U. S. MARINES ARE SENT TO PANAMA.

To Carry Out Verdict of U. S. in Costa Rican-Panama Dispute.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.— (By United Press.)— American marines aboard the dreadnought Pennsylvania, are on the high seas to-day hastening to Central America, to see that the verdict of the United States is carried out in the dispute between Panama and Costa Rica. The United States has served notice on Panama that the United States' government believes that Costa Rica should have the disputed territory of Cote, which is at present held by Panaman troops. The despatch of a battalion of marines, it was said in official circles here, is merely a precautionary measure. They will land at the Pacific end of the Panama canal, and may be sent up the coast to the Costa Rican boundary.

CONTROVERT STATEMENT THAT SERVANTS SCARCE

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press.)—French housekeepers, like those of other countries, are complaining that there are no servants to be had these days and that those there are are good for very little and refuse to stay long in the same household.

Their pessimistic declarations are somewhat controverted by a list of 624 names that appear in the Official Journal of men and women (far more women than men) to whom silver-gilt and silver medals have been awarded by the Ministry of Labor, in recognition of their long services in the same household. Thirty years is the minimum time to qualify for one of these medals which gives the wearer the right to decorate his or her buttonhole with a ribbon red, white and blue in horizontal stripes.

The record holder on this list is Mademoiselle Levasseur who has been 71 years with the same employer. Silver-gilt medals are awarded to 44 and silver to 580. Typical entries may be quoted, taken at random:

Mademoiselle Andrieux (Marie), Paris, 50 years with the family Delaporte.

M. Lelpove, (Michel Joseph), Paris, 54 years with M. Cassel.

Madame Geiger (Colette), Paris, 50 years with Madame Ray.

There are many instances where husband and wife have served together in the same family, as for instance:

M. Mosnier (Jean), 33 years with Madame Escot.

GRAPES TO DEMAND NEW HIGH PRICE

PAW PAW, Mich., Aug. 22. (United Press.)—Despite the fact that we are turning our back on their national drink—grape juice—Michigan farmers will receive the highest prices in history for their grapes this fall.

Leo E. Prater, treasurer of the National Grape Growers' Association, predicted today that Michigan grapes would bring an average price of $150 a ton, with a maximum of at least $200, compared with a $90 average last year and a maximum of $114. Ten years ago they brought $20 a ton.

The reason for the increased prices was a late spring sleet storm, which reduced the crop to about 25 per cent of normal. Southwestern Michigan will ship not more than 1,500 carloads of grapes this year, averaging perhaps 20 tons to the car.

Grape juince factories, which ordinarily take about a third of the output, will not buy a pound of grapes this year. They have an enormous surplus on hand as a result of the public's refusal to pay the high price for grape juice at soda fountains, in comparison with other soft drinks, because of the extra ad valorem tax on the beverage. An effort will be made to induce Congress to eliminate this tax.

SERVANTS OF JAPAN LIKE MOVIES BEST

TOKYO. (By Mail to United Press.)—A change is slowly coming about in Japan, where the servants are beginning to clamor for betterment of their lot, but the modesty of the demands may be appreciated from the result of a questionaire which was recently sent out by the Households Affairs Reform Societ, when some 2,000 answers were received, the questions and answers being as follows:

Question 1. Tell us your greatest trial. Answers—Unreasonable scolding, 1,625; Kept up too late at night, 156; Lack of sympathy when ill, 128.

Question 2. Tell us the experience that gives you the greatest pleasure. Answers—Heartfelt thanks from our empoyers, 1,858; Our moments of freedom, 105; A special gift of money, 105.

Question 3. Tell us your favorite amusement. Answers—Motion picture shows, 1,876; Japanese theater, 250; Some form of work, 1.

Question 4. Have you any requests to make? If so, tell us what it is. Answers—Desire to be treated as a member of the family, 1073; desire to be treated with love and kindness, 723; desire for one day of rest each month, 260.

AUSTRIAN LABOR UNIONS INCREASE MEMBERSHIP

VIENNA, Aug. 22.—The labor unions of Austria have multiplied their membership since the war. The total of all the unions in the republic now amounts to 940,000 members, as against 253,137 in 1914. The number of women members is 223,000 as against only 26,700 before the war.

The labor leaders say capital will have to reckon with this reinforced army when demands for higher wages are prefered this autumn as a result of the wave of high prices now sweeping over the country in the train of the depreciating currency.

Scranton, Pa., ranks first among coal mining cities of the world.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Owen Sound, Ont.—"I suffered for ten years with female organic trouble, neuralgia and indigestion, and was weak and had such bad pains I could hardly walk or stand up at times. When I would sweep I would have to go and lie down. I could not sleep at night, and would wander around the house half the time. I tried everything but nothing did me any good, and the last doctor I had told me he never expected me to be on my feet again or able to do a day's work. One day one of your little books was left at my door and my husband said I should try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I thank God I did, for it relieved me, and I am now well and strong. I think there is no remedy like the Vegetable Compound for anyone who has my troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors. You can publish my letter for the benefit of those I can't reach." —Mrs. HENRY A. MITCHELL, 1767 7th Ave., East, Owen Sound, Ont.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE TO INTRODUCE STYLES

In addition to appearing in the chic costume of a French maid, Constance Talmadge will be seen in some very smart and up-to-mintue styles in her latest Associated First National release "Lessons in Love" which comes to the Allen Theatre on Monday for an engagement of three days. Constance and her sister Norma recently signed a contract with Lucien Lelong, one of the best known couturiers in Paris, whereby they agree to have Lelong furnish them with twelve models per year. These day and evening gowns will be the very last word in ultra-chic advance styles, and will be introduced into America exclusively by the Talmadges. By the terms of the contract, water color sketches and samples of material are submitted to the Talmadges of every unique style or novel design as soon as it is brought out by Lelong, and in this way the Talmadge sisters will be able to show on the screen the very newest changes in style long before they become generally adopted by the Canadian public.

LESSONS IN LOVE ARE GIVEN BY STAR

Constance Talmadge gives some very interesting lessons in love to two doting old bachelors and a young Westerner in her latest First National starring vehicle, which is very appropriately entitled "Lessons in Love." The two elderly gentlemen are very anxious to see her married to a chap she has never seen. Constance disguises herself as a housemaid to foil both together with the young fellow in question. Kenneth Harlan plays the male lead in "Lessons in Love," which is coming to the Allen Theatre on to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday.

PAULINE FREDERICK IN A STRONG ROLE.

Screen Star Gives Great Dramatic Portrayal in R-C Film, "The Mistress of Shenstone."

In "The Mistress of Shenstone," her second Robertson-Cole super-special production, adapted from the novel of the same name by Florence Barclay, Pauline Frederick, popular emotional star, has a role vastly different from anything which she has ever before done for the screen. The picture will begin a run of 3 days at the Capitol Theatre to-night.

As Lady Myra Ingleby, Pauline Frederick has every opportunity for the expression of her rare dramatic ability, but she portrays a sweet, womanly character, rather than the more worldly type in which she has heretofore been seen.

Lady Ingleby is the wife of a man much older than herself, who although very kind, regards her more as a pretty toy than a helpmate and companion. When through an accident Lord Ingleby is reported killed, and Myra, after many months of loneliness, meets a man who makes of her a confidant and companion; who regards her as the most wonderful being in the world, she is supremely happy. But like a bolt out of a clear sky, shattering their happiness, and making the way dark before them, comes the news that the report of Lord Ingleby's death is false.

How Myra meets the situation which then arises, how she succeeds in keeping pure the wonderful love of the man who has come into her life, and at last is enabled to meet her heart's desire, furnish the many dramatic moments in the screen version of this famous novel.

Miss Frederick is supported by a cast of unusual merit including such players as Roy Stewart, a star in his own right, in the role of Jim Airth, the man whom Myra loves; Emmett King, well-known character actor, as Dr. Burton, Myra's friend and advisor; Helen Wright, as Mrs. O'Mara, and Arthur Clayton as Reginald Ingram.

Balance of this big programme will include a funny two-reel comedy, "Spirits," and many other good pictures, combined with the excellent musical programmes furnished by Mrs. Foster and her splendid 6-piece orchestra. — Fan Fan.

WORLD'S GREATEST AIRSHIP REQUIRES VERY LARGE CREW

ZR-2 Which Sails This Week "Nursed" Constantly.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 22.—(The Associated Press.)—The daily routine in the handling of the giant American dirigible ZR-2, which starts this week on its trans-atlantic flight from England, requires the combined services of a large crew of expert mechanics, riggers, clerks and navigators.

Both on the ground and in flight the ZR-2 is "nursed" constantly, for thousands of the minute details in her construction require constant inspection.

Taking "lift" and "trimming" is the first thing done in daily routine. This means calculation of the ship's total lift by adding the amount of ballast (water, gasoline, oil, etc., on board) and noting its location on a chart.

In this manner the total lift of the ship from day to day is noted and, if there is a decrease and no gas has been valved, an inspection is made for leaks. By noting the location of ballast, any tendency for uneven distribution may be seen and remedied—it is desirable to keep weights distributed as evenly as possible along the length of the ship to avoid stresses on the hull structure.

The ship is thoroughly policed, cleansed, then the engineers test and repair engines, the riggers inspect controls, gas bags, valves, the outer cover and the fin surface.

There always is a considerable amount of breakage of small braces and wires, necessitating a constant hull inspection. The outer cover fabric gets torn or blown loose at joints and repairs are made immediately to prevent the holes from becoming larger. Gas bags are inspected by going over them with a leak detector which registers any trace of escaping hydrogen. Fabric in the bags is very thin and light and often chafes through, consequently, there is loss of gas, lowered purity and lift reduction.

Once a week the purity of each bag in the ship is taken, this serving as a check on the general condition of gas tightness. Other routine work consists of weekly checking of the tensions of the various wires and correcting any discrepancies, cleaning and reseating water ballast discharge valves and a general inspection of all controls.

In preparing for flight it is necessary to learn how large a crew will be carried and the length and nature of the flight. It is then possible to determine how much gas will be needed to give the necessary lift, how much fuel will be needed and how to distribute the weight.

Having determined these things the commanding officer directs the gassing. He is assisted by the gassing coxswain and a number of men who station themselves at the valves and note the flow. Riggers are detailed to put water ballast and gasoline aboard as they are needed when lift increases with the incoming gas.

When the ship is gassed, fuelled and ballasted, a careful "lift and trim" is taken and charted. The charts are placed in the control car so that the navigating officers may refer to them during figh. The crew is then taen aboard, sufficient ballast to compensate their weight is discharged,, the engineers make a final test and the flight command is given.

The ground party mans the handling guys and, under the direction of an experienced officer, tows the ship to the taking off point. Here the ship is again weighed off to make a final check of lift and trim and, if satisfactory, the release order is given.

In flight the ship is operated so far as possible along the lines of seagoing operation, orders being given and watches maintained in a similar manner. Normally, on duty in the control car are the captain or the first lieutenant, he senior navigating officer and his assistant and an officer of the watch who relieves the commanding officer when requested. He is required to make frequent tours of inspection along the keel to see that the gas bags are in proper position, valves are functioning and that the riggers on watch are on the alert.

An operator is always on duty in the radio cabin and one engineer on duty in each power car. Two or three men are always on duty in the keel to keep the supply tanks to the cars filled with gasoline. The gasoline supply is checked hourly and charted for the control car. The engineering officer circulates constantly between the power units watching their operation. Orders from the control car to the power units are transmitted by engine telegraph.

Meals are served at regular hours. Two cookers are attached to two of the power units. Hot coffee or chocolate and a certain amount of hot food can be served.

TRADE UNIONS ABLE TO FIGHT

the organised workers desire to see adopted."

As to international relationships, the committee states that the American Federation of Labour has maintained its staff of four organisers in the Dominion of Canada, one covering Western Canada, one the Province of Ontario, one the Province of Quebec, and the fourth one being assigned to the Maritime Provinces. In addition, the various international unions maintained their full staff of organisers, with few exceptions, and some of the international unions placed Canadian organisers in the field for the first time.

The executive committee report said that the Province of Nova Scotia had not returned the charter of the Provincial Federation of Labour granted by the congress in 1918. Neither had the Provincial Federation held any convention, nor had its executive attempted to undertake any active legislative work in the Province. In view of these circumstances, the executive asked the convention to take the necessary action for the cancellation of the charter of the Nova Scotia Federation of Labour, and the election of a Provincial executive.

On the question of disarmament, the committee said that Canada had taken a leading part in this question, and the organised workers of this country express their appreciation of the steps already taken, and pledge their support towards any measures that would bring about the reduction of military and naval armaments.

The committee dealt at some length with the question of the National Catholic Union in Quebec Province. The report said:

"Reference has been made in another section of our report to the attempts in Parliament to secure the recognition of the National Catholic Union as a representative organisation of workers. Senator Robertson has displayed much courage in combatting this pernicious propaganda, and has made it clear to the country, through his statements that the formation of labour unions in Dominion of Canada, which would divide the workers on religious lines, should not be encouraged or tolerated.

"The International Trade Unions have likewise made their position clear, that they do not interfere with any person's religion, welcoming into their ranks workers of all religious beliefs, and realising fully that the unity of the workers would be destroyed if they allowed themselves to be divided in their Trade Unions according to religious beliefs.

"Every reasonable effort is being made to bring about a proper understanding in this matter. The position is very difficult, however, as the principles and policies of the National Catholic Unions are so opposite to those of the International Trades Union movement, and their efforts up to the present time seem to have entirely been confined to breaking down the working conditions established by members of the International Trade Unions and opposing progressive measures instituted by our organisations."

About 500 delegates, representing organized labor in all parts of Canada, were on hand this morning when the convention was opened.

Hon. T. C. Norris, Premier of Manitoba, opened the proceedings with an address of welcome. He Mayor of Winnipeg.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE EASY.

Scant Ceremony in Either Case in Russia.

Desire Expressed All That is Necessary.

There appears to be only one thing as easy as getting married in Russia, and that is gettin a divorce. In fact, after looking over some sections of the Soviet code dealing with these matters, one wonders why there are such institutions as marriage and divorce under Lenine. Certainly they mean very little when a couple can be married by merely informing a clerk of their desire to do so, and can be divorced on the request of either. They can be married again in three days. There is no marriage ration. One can be married as frequently as he desires, and unmarried just as frequently. If there is any particular difference between this system and what is called the "nationalization of women" it is not at once apparent. Yet commenting upon the Soviet code, the Russian soviet bureau in New York city says: "The code is a superb rebuke to those psychopathically afflicted persons who spread the sickly tattle about the nationaliaztion of women." If that is true, it also rebukes persons of ordinary common sense.

The first thing the Soviet government did when it began to reform the existing marriage laws was to declare that all ecclesiastical and religious marriages contracted prior to December 20, 1917, should be deemed void. Millions of Russian marriages, we presume, belong to this class. But those married were permitted to appear before a Ragistrar of marriages and regularize their position. All they suffered, therefore, was a cruel insult. Henceforth, there are to be no religious or ecclesiastical marriages. They are to be exclusively in the hands of the Soviets. The conditions necessary to marriage among Russians is that the female shall be sixteen years old and the male eighteen. Both must be of what passes for a sound mind in Russia, and at the time of the marriage neither must be living in a state of registered or unregistered marriage with anyone else. The couple notify the registrar that they desire to be married. He enters their names in a book and they are married.

The provision that neither applicant shall be living in a state of unregistered marriage with another person at the time of the marriage calls attention to another phase of family relationship under the Soviet. Unregistered marriage and registered marriage appear to be the same thing. Thus we read that "Actual descent shall be the basis of the family. No distinction shall be made between the relationship established through marriage and that established by union outside of marriage. Children descending from parents who are not married have equal rights with those descending from parents living in registered marriage." If a woman is consorting with a man to whom she is not married and is in expectation of a child she is obliged to notify a Soviet official three months before the expectated birth, and the government will see to it that she is cared for until she has passed through the ordeal, afterward the father of the illegitimate child will have to perform the same dutie duties for it as though it had been born in wedlock. If the woman has been consorting with more than one man, each of them will be required to contribute to the maintenance of the child and its mother.

Another paragraph sets forth negatively the impediments to marriage. They appear to be few. Vows of celibacy are not recognized. The monastic priests are relieved of these vows. Religious differences do not constitute a bar. Once married the couple shall decide whether they shall use the name of the husband, or that of the wife, or joint names. If they become divorced they can take new names. Once married, the husband and wife become jointly responsible for their support. If the husband falls ill it will be the duty of the wife to support him until he returns to an earning basis. Nor can a married person shirk this duty by applying for a divorce while one of the partners is ill, unless the sick person is willing. In that case when the divorce is granted the Soviet court will decide what the hale partner is to pay to the other while the illness last. Since illegitimacy is to be considered no disgrace, and since marriage can be ended by a mere application, it would seem that the Russiand would see no particular benefits accruing to those who get married and would tend to enter what is called unregistered marriage.

One of the paragraphs concerning divorce is as follows:

"The mutual consent of the husband and wife or the desire of either of them to obtain a divorce shall be considered a ground for divorce. A petition for the dissolution of marriage may be presented orally or be drawn thereon. Upon rendering in writing and an official report shall a decision for the dissolution of marriage the judge shall issue to the parties upon their application a certificate of divorce, and shall transmit not later than three days thereafter a copy of his decision to the local bureau of vital statistics or any other institution where the marriage so dissolved was registered." The code also provides that an application to dissolve a marriage may be made by any persons whose interests were affected by the marriage or even by the Soviet government.

A death from sunstroke has occurred at Musselburgh, where Robert Robertson, head gardener at Goshen house, was found lying in the grounds. He expired a few minutes later.

During 29 years as coroner's officer for Woolwich district, Police Constable Jefferies, metropolitan police, who is retiring, made preliminary inquiries into about 8,000 deaths.

DRASTIC HOLDUP

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug.20.—A dramatic hold-up was staged at the Hotel Broadmoor, in a Colorado Springs suburb at the base of Cheyenne Mountain, at 12.30 this morning. The protagonists were John Mitchell, a chauffeur, who came here recently from New York City and was employed by a North Cascade Avenue resident; three hotel clerks, two bell boys and the telephone operator.

Mitchel, who was unmasked, has been at the hotell most of the evening. He was wel known to the hotel employees, who had no suspicions affecting his character. Then suddenly he thrust a gun in the face of Clerk C. L. Owen.

Chief Clerk Roy S. Fairman, who was standing near, said: "Hey, Mitchell, quit your joking."

"It's no joke," was the reply. "Hands up quick, or I'll shoot."

All hands went up.

"Now, go into the elevator. You boys go, too. You, go, too." This last to the telephone operator. "I don't need you, all of you hit the top floor."

Mitchell then went behind the counter and rifled the money drawer of its contents, amounting to $300. He then deliberately departed at the main entrance.

Russel K. Daugherty, his wife and a woman friend were waiting there in a Packard coupe. The women were forced out. Daugherty was permitted to remain in until, in his attempted escape, iMtchell had driven the car at top speed to a lonely spot on the Portland Boulevard. He was then dumped.

Mitchell got through Colorado Springs and aMnitou and started up Ute Pass into the mountains. Meanwhile Sheriff Wier was notified, and calls were sent in all directions.

At Cascade, twenty miles up the pass, Deputy Sheriff Ray Brumfield manager of the Ramona Hotel, aw an auto approaching and placed a log across a bridge to stop it.

The log was immediately removed however, under the supposition that th auto was the Sheriff's. Mitchell thus escaped again.

Sheriff Wier's auto arrived ten minutes later in hot pursuit. Brumfield had jumped into another car and joined in the chase. Mitchell was soon overtaken and surrendered without resistance.

At the jail he showed his expertness as a cracksman by unlocking the safe witha touch of hi hand. He was evidently an experienced cracks man, the authaorities declared.

The hotel is owned by Spencer Penrose, brother of the Pennsylvania Senator, with Charles McNeill and other New York capitaists. It has among its present guests Senator and Mr. T. Coleman du Pont of Delaware.

Besides the Du Ponts, a number of New York society folks and Eastern capitalists are there for the Summer. None of the guests was molested.

WIRE BRIEFS

BANDS 500 DUCKS.

PORT ARTHUR, August 20 (Canadian Press). — A. W. Martin, C. N. R. agent at Port Arthur, who is on a holiday in Saskatchewan, writes that he captured 500 young wild ducks, and previous to releasing them, banded each, requesting anyone who should shoot them to communicate with him.

STRANGLED IN HAMMOCK.

BROCKVILLE, August 20 (Canadian Press). — The dead body of the two-year-old daughter of Enos Merkley, Nation Valley, was found by her mother hanging in the cords of a hammock, in which the child had been placed to sleep. It is thought that she awoke, atempted to get out of the hammock, and was strangled.

BODIES OF DEAD LITTER HIGHWAYS.

Airplane Observers Report 10,000 Spanish Dead in Morocco.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Reverses suffered by the Spanish column in Morrocco are attributed mainly to the recklessness of the Generals in operating in too far from their bases, says the Madrid correspondent of the London Times who in a lengthy despatch gives what is designated as "the first full account of the Spanish disaster in Morroco and its causes."

Recounting the Spanish strength, and telling of the actions, the correspondent asserts that some ten thousand Spaniards must be considered dead as airplane observers have reported the roads to be littered with bodies.

ELECTION AND PLOWING MATCH DATES TO CLASH.

"Cut Out the Election," Is Farmers' Sentiment.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—The rumor that a Provincial by-election in the ridiny of North Oxford may be held on October 20 is not being received with much enthusiasm in the county. One farmer, who is a possible candidate, points out that this date is that of the second day of the Ontario Plowmen's Association's annual plowing match and that it would be decidedly unfortuntae if the two events should clash. It is generally felt that in arranging the date the Provincial Cabinet should take this big plowing event into consideration.

THE BOY OFFICER.

I saw him as he stood equipped in bright new uniform,
His shining puttees, and that single gleaming bar upon his shoulder strap
Marking him—officer!

His youthful body, after weary days of march and drill,
Unblemished, fair and sweet, like those old Homer's heroes offered to their gods
For sacrifice was fit.

His boyish spirit was aflame with fiery patriotism,
Yet his speech was shy; no prating, ranting, boastful words proclaimed his purpose—
Just his life he offered.

What recked he of the greed of base and sordid profiteers?
What cared he for the sly and sneering hints of slackers? Could such vermin know
That a new world was born?

A world new born! That was the magic phrase that lured him on,
That made him one with Knights of old whose mission was redress of human wrongs,
Who lived for others' sake.

The war is won! Yet still this old world goes the same old way;
The lamb still flees the wolf. Some day our pruning hooks will change to spears again,
Our plowshares turn to swords.

Oh, my boy officer! Might we, without war's hate, without its loss and tears,
Have what war brought to thee, courage, renunciation, hope, faith, loyalty—
Then were the new world here!

AN UNUSUAL SPECIES.

A Virginia farmer, hearing suspicious sounds in his hen-coop, hurriedly seized a shotgun and proceeded to investigate.

"Who's there?" he demanded as he drew near the coop. Silence.

"Who's there?" he reiterated with greater vehemence.

A longer silence. Finally a quavering voice said with an unmistakable African accent said:

"Only us here chickens."

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES.

"Why, Robert," exclaimed the uncle of a five-year-old youngster, "what makes you cry so?"

"'Cause," replied the little fellow, "my brother has got a vacation and I ain't got none."

"That's too bad," said his uncle, "but why is it that you have no vacation?"

"'Cause I ain't started to school yet," was the reply.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Sentiment in Stock Market circles was adversely affected at the opening of to-day's session by the failure of a prominent brokerage firm. Within the first 15 minutes declines of one to 2 1-2 points were registered by Mexican and Pan-American, Petroleum, General Asphalt, Baldwin, Locomotive, Chandler, Studebaker, Sumatra Tobacco and American Sugar. Bethlehem and Crucible Steels as well as General Electric, Retail Stores, Industrial Alcohol and Famous Players also were heavy and rails sustained moderate losses.

Rails, including dividend-paying shares, finally gave way with the general list. Pacifics, Grangers and Coalers re-acted one to 2½ points in the last hour. The closing was weak.

Selling progressed steadily during the morning, involving many new low records. These included Sears Roebuck, American Sugar, Pierce Arrow, Common and Preferred, Central Leather, United States Rubber Retail Stores, Houston Oil, Royal Dtuch Westinghouse Electric and General Electric.

Pierce Arrow common and preferred also were weak, the latter dropping eight points. The urgent character of the liquidation was indicated by a transfer of one block of 3,900 shares of Sears-Roebuck at 60, a decline of 2 1-2 points.

Over Half Taxes First Instalment

IN SPITE OF UNEMPLOYMENT AND GENERAL TIGHTNESS OF MONEY

About 55 per cent. of the taxes were paid in the first instalment, despite the unemployment and the general tightness of money, W. G. Green, tax collector, stated to-day. This compares very favorably, he said, with the amount paid last year. Mr. Green said that the unemployment had not apparently affected the payment of the taxes. He believed this was because most of the workless taxpayers anticipated the payment and were ready to meet the taxes when due

Thursday, September 1, the second instalment is due, after that date 5 per cent. interest being charged on all unpaid taxes. Mr. Green asked that taxpayers be urged to pay their taxes this week and not wait till the eleventh hour. The office is open continuously from 8 a.m. till 4 p.m., and working men need not fear that the office will be closed at the noon hour. On September 1 the office will only be open for the regular hours. While the second instalment is coming in steadily, Mr. Green, to eliminate a "last-minute" rush, hopes that as many taxpayers as possible will make their payments this week.

PETES ARE BEATEN BY 5 TO 3 IN BATTLE WITH THE OSHAWA TEAM

FIELDING LAPSES AT CRITICAL MOMENTS GIVE MOTOR TOWN CREW THE EDGE IN SATURDAY'S GAME — MISJUDGED FLY IN NINTH A BIG FACTOR IN FINAL RESULT.

For the first time since the Central League was organized Oshawa succeeded on Saturday in beating the Petes on their own grounds, the Motor town crew emerging out of the affray at Riverside Park with the score of 5 to 3 in their favour. The luckless Peterborough crew, by kicking in with a couple of errors with the bases loaded in one innings, and a misjudged fly with two on and two out in the ninth, practically presented Oshawa with all five counters, and while they managed to earn three on their own account, their hitting was not robust enough to atone for their fielding lapses.

It was a battle of southpaws, Dainty twirling for Oshawa and Lefty McElroy working for the home outfit, and it was a tough game for the latter to lose. A low throw to first by Jackson and a fumble by Holyman gave Oshawa two counters in the fourth, and in the last innings, Bob Ross misjudged a long fly from Dainty's bat and two runs clattered in on the blow, and another came in a moment later. Oshawa were leading 2 to 1 at the time, and if the fly had been captured, the Petes would have won the game in their half, for they nicked Dainty for two runs in the closing session. It was a tough break in luck and a sample of the way things have been going all season for the Solomon crew. McElroy delivered a fine brand of pitching and with a fifty-fifty division of the breaks, would have turned in a victory.

Dainty held the Petes to one single in the first six innings, but from then on they had more success in solving his delivery, collecting five safeties in the last three innings and sending three runs over. He was given great support by his team mates, Rowden at second doing some particularly brilliant work. He cut off a run in the seventh when he knocked down Murray's vicious smash with the bases full. The second sacker was not able to rettire anybody on the play, and one counter registered, but if the drive had gone through the Petes would have had two runs over. Rowden also distinguished himself by dashing out into short centre and gathering in Swanston's apparently safe tap.

For the Petes, the fielding feature was supplied by Ray Rose, who pulled off a flashy catch of a low liner from Thompson's cudgel in the eighth.

As usual the Petes' hitting in the pinches was below par. They had the bases loaded with only one out in the third, and failed to score, and on several other occasions a hit would have been very fruitful.

There was no scoring until the fourth when Oshawa got two. The score remained at 2 to 0 until the seventh, when the Petes cut the deficit in two. Then the figures were unchanged until the fatal ninth.

Oshawa had a chance in the first. Murray tossed out Rowden, but Gifford drew a pass and Dobson singled to centre. Dainty, however, flied to Jackson, and Jacobi forced Gifford on a tap to Murray.

The Petes went out in order. Wilson made a great stop of Murray's hard slam and then corralled Ray Rose's foul fly. Swanston rolled to Rowden for the third out, Dainty deflecting the ball to the second baseman.

Neither team reached the runways in the second. For Oshawa, Fair rolled to Murray. Holyman tossed out Belding and Thompson grounded to Harrison.

In the Petes' half, Lornie Rose was thrown out by Rowden, Harrison's liner to left was nailed by Dobson, and Ross struck out.

In the third for Oshawa, Wilson tapped one to Ray Rose and was out. Rowden was safe on Holyman's fumble. Gifford fanned and Swanston doubled Rowden off first on a quick toss to Harrison.

The Solomon crew had a great chance in their end of the innings. Jackson opened with a clean single over second and went to the halfway station when Wilson let Dainty's throw get away. McElroy tapped to Dainty and when the pitcher threw to third, Jackson slid around Jacobi and was safe. Murray walked, filling the bases. Ray Rose lifted a high one to Fair, back of third, and Swanston flied to Thompson in centre and the innings was over.

Oshawa broke the ice in the fourth. After Dobson had flied to Murray, Dainty singled past the box and Jacobi hit to left for a one-base drive. Neither McElroy nor Murray fielded Fair's slow roller and it went for a hit, filling the bases. Belding flied to Jackson, and when the right fielder threw low to first in an attempt to double Fair, Dainty scored. Thompson rolled to Holyman, who fumbled long enough to give the batter a life, while Jacobi registered. Wilson retired the side with a grass cutter to Ray Rose.

For the Petes, Lornie Rose rolled to Rowden. Harrison whiffed and Ross flied to Dobson.

In the fifth, for Oshawa, Rowden was thrown out by Holyman. Gifford was safe on Ray Rose's fumble, but was forced at second by Dobson, Ray Rose to Holyman, Ray Rose tossed Dainty out.

Jackson and Holyman fanned to open the Petes' half, but McElroy got a life when Rowden, covering first on the pitcher's tap to Wilson, dropped the first baseman's toss. Murray forced McElroy at second. Fair to Rowden, a nice play by the shortstop.

Jacobi singled to start Oshawa's half of the sixth, a hot one which Murray knocked down. He advanced on a wild pitch. Fair fanned. Belding drew a pass. Thompson struck out, the third one being a passed ball on which the base runners advanced. Holyman pegged Wilson out.

For Peterborough, Ray Rose bounced one to Jacobi and was out. Swanston's fly back of second was taken in great style by Rowden and Lornie Rose missed three.

There was an unusual mix-up in Osahwa's half of the seventh. It started tamely enough by McElroy throwing out Rowden. Gifford rolled to Holyman and got a life on the shortstop's low throw to first. Dobson bunted for a sacrifice but was safe when Swanston fumbled the tap. Dainty lifted a fly back of second which Holyman failed to hold in an one-handed attempt. Gifford broke for third and reached the difficult corner in safety. On Murray's peg to second to nail Dobson, Gifford tried to score and was out at the plate. The Petes claimed that Dainty was out under the infield fly rule, but Umpire Rosevear decided otherwise. Jacobi flied to Ross and there was no scoring after all the excitement.

The Petes got into the run column in their half. Harrison flied to Thompson in deep centre, but Ross scratched a hit when his roller to short bounced over Fair's shoulder. Jackson bunted to Dainty, who threw Ross out at second. Holyman and McElroy walked, filling the bases, and then Murray smashed a hot one to second, which looked good to score two runs. Rowden made a great stop, however, and only Jackson scored on the hit. Ray Rose rolled to Dainty for the third out.

In the eighth, McElroy threw out Fair and Ray Rose got Belding on his roller. Then the Petes' second baseman wound up the innings with a shoe-string catch of Thompson's sizzling liner, which looked like a sure hit.

For the home talent, Swanston fanned and Lornie Rose was thrown out by Fair. Harrison gave the Petes a chance by singling to right and stealing second, but Ross was called out on strikes.

Then came the ninth, and Oshawa cinched the game by getting three counters. Wilson flied to Ross to start with, but Rowden singled to centre, and Legge, batting for Gifford, bunted safely. Dobson was easy on a pop to Holyman and there were two out. Dainty cracked a long fly to centre and Ross misjudged the drive, waiting until too late to move back for it, and the result was a double for Dainty, while Rowden and Legge scored. Jacobi promptly singled over Holyman's head to score Dainty and took second on the throw to the plate. Fair rolled to Holyman for the third out.

The Petes also staged a rally in their half, but it was not big enough to save the day. Jackson lifted to Fair to start with. Holyman walked and remained on first while McElroy fanned. Murray came through with a long triple to right, sending Holyman home, and Ray Rose cracked a single through short that provided transportation to the plate for Murray. Swanston tried hard for a hit, but only succeeded in smashing one to Fair, who tossed Ray Rose out at second and the game was over.

RUTH GREATEST FIGURE IN BALL.

So Amos Russie, One Time Idol of Diamond, Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Amos Rusie, an idol of baseball fans more than 20 years ago, sat on the sidelines at the Polo Grounds during a recent game between the Yankees and White Sox, marvelling in Babe Ruth whom he declared to be the greatest figure in baseball.

"It's been ten years since I saw a major league game," Rusie remarked. "The game surely has taken long strides. Back in my day we had some heavy hitters, but none of them could hold a candle to Ruth. I refer to Wagner, Lajoie and Ed Delehanty."

Back in the nineties, when Rusie appeared at the Polo Grounds the cheers and shouting were all for him. The Hoosier Cyclone, they called him for he was considered the greatest righ-handed hurler in the game. He dropped from the game in 1902 after trying vainly for two years to overcome the handicap of an injured arm.

When Rusie left the game he returned to his home in Muncie, Ind., and later went to Seattle, Wash., where he worked as a laborer. He is past the 50 mark in years and his hair is gray. He sat unnoticed by players and fans alike, for he was unknown to them.

Then Kid Gleason, the old manager of the White Sox, recognized him. They were rivals for pitching honors in the old days. "I'm sure glad to see you Amos," smiled Gleason, "seems like old times to see you around." The famous old twirler returned the greeting and they walked to the White Sox dugout arm-in-arm.

Although Rusie has not witnessed a major league game for so many years he said he had kept up with the game through the newspapers.

Rusie said he didn't aprove of putting a curb on the styles of pitching. "Give them a chance to develop. In my time we were not permitted to soil the ball and there were no freak deliveries. We had to depend on speed and fast breaking curves and we had a great advantage over the batters. The batter of today has the edge, however. The liveller ball and curbing of pitchers are the reasons. This can be carried too far.

"The crowds are greater today than at any time. Baseball is now a great national institution. The White Sox scandal has not hurt the game much. Judge Landis ha offset that black eye."

SCOTSMAN IN THE ULSTER GOVERNMENT

BELFAST, Ireland, Aug. 22.—A Scotsman has been chosen as head of the Educational Department of the Ulster government which is probably one of the most thorny appointments at Sir James Craig's disposal, as the Catholic hierarchy is keenly watching the developments in this direction.

Two Irishmen, both highly qualified, will organize the new Agriculture Department.

Generally no time is being lost in naming the Executive so that those interested in Irish reconstruction will be faced with a government already functioning.

Friendly Rivalry Marked Bowling Tourney—Peterborough Boys Helped in Diversion.

That visitors to the law bowling tourney, so successfully staged at Belleville last week, found the old-time game of bowls indulged in with a skill and ardour flattering to most of its participants, and accompanied by commendable hospitality, is quite evident from the testimony of Peterborough bowlers privileged to be in attendance. Then, at the presentation of trophies and prizes, in the presence of hundreds of the Bay City citizens, a happy exchange of eulogistic bouquets between both victors and vanquished marked an exemplification of real sportsmanship in which good-natured badinage and fraternal recognition of bowling skill, together with exemplary fellowship, dominated.

R. Hendry, of the Peterborough Club, presented R. J. Wray, secretary of the Belleville club, with a token of Peterborough's appreciation of his very acceptable services in confection with the tourney. The latter gentleman, in reply, emphasized the spirit of friendly rivalry and four-square competitive sport which had characterized each of the several events, and hoped for even a bigger tournament next year.

On the closing evening the Argyll Band, accompanied the proceedings with a frequently applauded concert programme; and entering into the diversion phase of the occasion, "Jake Soloon of ours," equally skilled on the bowling green as he is famed at Peterborough and district baseball diamonds, proved himself a jolly entertainer in organizing an ocorina band which provoked fun and merriment measure full. "Robert" Hendry, also of Peterborough, sang and recited his way into the hearts of all present with perfectly irresistible Harry Lauder humor in the refreshment tent and on the green, just before the breaking up of this memorable event, in which sport skill, delightful amity, unalloyed pleasure and charmingly varied entertainment combined to make of Belleville's bowling tournament an occasion worthy of emulation.

INTEREST IN BOXING AROUSED IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANIERO, Aug. 22. (United Press.)—The tremendous interest in boxing, aroused by the Carpentier-Dempsey match, has brought forth a new brand of fakir in Brazil—nearly every newspaper carrying advertisements of "professors de box", who offer instruction in the art of self defense and apparently are finding plenty of students.

Boxing is practically an unknown sport in Brazil, the only exhibitions being those held in the so-called "American circuses" that occasionally pitch tents in the coast cities.

On Virgin Land in British Columbia land.

A couple of returned soldier brothers took up a block of such land last year, bottom land with no heavy timber on it except perhaps a few cottonwoods which they left for shade; the other trees were willow, birch, poplar, alder and maple, all of which indicate sweet soil with humus in it.

They made such short work of clearing it during the winter that by March they had a patch ready for the plough and the following month it was seeded down to grain.

The accompanying photographs will show the land being broken in the early spring and

(2) The same piece of ground in late summer of the same year.

Clearing virgin land ready for the plough is by no means the tough problem all over the Province of British Columbia that it is down at the coast. There are still untold miles of fertile land unexploited and untouched in the rich valleys along the big rivers and their smaller tributaries on the main- the standing crop as it looked in the late summer of the same year, showing what may be accomplished by energy on the right soil.—H. $ Dollar Day $

Dollar Day! Dollar Day! Dollar Day!

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 21st, 1921

Patrons who have been accustomed to buying at Fair's on past DOLLAR DAYS look forward to this semi-annual event with much and eager expectation. And there is good reason for it, when they recall the quality and low price of the merchandise placed on sale for these occasions, and how fortunate some of our customers were in drawing many of the generous cash prizes offered in connection with DOLLAR DAY.

Robert Fair & Co., Limited, have determined for this August Dollar Day to not only place before the thousands of people who will visit their store a collection of seasonable merchandise from every department, considering quality, at prices that will prove a decided surprise.

MORE GENEROUS Cash Prizes are provided this time, the highest being $50.00 cash and the lowest $5.00—16 in all. People who bought from us have been among the fortunate winners, and we venture the opinion they will be equally lucky this time. For every dollar's worth of goods bought from us on Wednesday (Dollar Day) will entitle you to an estimate of how many coupons will be placed in the box at the EXAMINER OFFICE.

Particulars of our offerings for Wednesday (DOLLAR DAY) will appear in to-morrow's (Tuesday's) Daily Examiner, and when you read it, make out a list of anything you will be interested in for present or future needs and come early to the store and get first choice and secure your Guessing Coupons. Our staff of obliging salespeople has been largely increased to give the best possible service.

Customers who have open accounts on our books will receive the Guessing Coupons for their purchases the same as if they paid cash. Owing to the low prices we have marked our goods for Dollar Day, no goods will be allowed out on approbation or exchanged afterwards.

The winning numbers on the past three DOLLAR DAYS were:—

January, 1920	15,628
August, 1920	22,880
January, 1921	21,573

GOSPEL HALL NOTES.

Last night in the above hall Brother A. B. Miller spoke on the universality of the Bible. The Bible is the one book which has the universal appeal, and that because of its author being God. He who made the world and man certainly knows all about His own creative work. We are more or less puzzles to ourselves. There are problems in the world that have and still baffle the brightest brains. Man at the best is limited, narrow and contracted. God is unlimited, all-wise, and all-powerful. God has been pleased to make a clear declaration of that which is of supreme importance to man, that is the way of salvation. This declaration is wide enough to take in all; it is universal. 1—The universality of guilt is seen in Romans 3, 19, "All the world guilty before God." Isaiah 53, 6, first clause, says, "All we like sheep have gone astray." No one is exempted. All are lost; and all alike need salvation. 2—The provision is as wide as the guilt. The same verse Isaiah 53, 6, which asserts man's guilt reveals the provision that can alone meet that need, "the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." 3—The universality of God's love is taught in John 3, 16, "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." God's love is as wide as the world. All the world is not benefited by God's salvation. Why? The provision, while for all, is only effective when it is received. Human responsibility comes in here. What will you do with God's son? Will you believe on the Son of God? Will you accept Him as your Saviour? If so, then notice, "Whosoever believeth . . . hath everlasting life." The hall was well filled. A large crowd listened attentively to the messages delivered in the park. Tonight at 8, Brother Miller speaks on "Is the coming of the Lord a practical truth?"

IN MEMORIAM.

MEHEW.—In loving memory of Walter John Mehew, who died Aug. 22, 1920.

One year has passed, our heart's still sore,
As time flies by we miss him more.
His loving smile, his welcome face,
No one can fill his vacant place.
Forget him—no, we never will,
We loved him then, we love him still,
His memory is as fresh today,
As in the hour he passed away.
Oh, how oft our thoughts do wander,
To the grave wet far away
Where they laid our dear loved one,
Just one year ago to-day.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a vacant place,
The world can never fill.
His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are past,
His ever-patient worn-out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.

Census Returns Are Questioned

NIAGARA FALLS MAY PROTEST TO GOVERNMENT AND ASK NEW COUNT IN CITY.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 23. — At a public meeting held here last night to protest against the recent returns of the Dominion census for this city, which is shown to be 11,789 instead of 15,940, as given by the Assessment Commissioner, one resolution was passed that a strong protest be made to the Dominion Government on the inaccuracy and that the city request a new census be taken and another resolution that the chief enumerator for this county meet a committee here and give facts and figures relative to omissions being made.

Three enumerators present at the meeting stated that they were not supplied with enough forms and were told to make their returns long before the work could be finished, and many names were thus omitted.

TORONTO "EX" IS MAKING A RECORD BEFORE OPENING

LIVE STOCK ENTRIES LARGEST IN ITS HISTORY.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 23. — Already the Canadian National Exhibition has established a new record for 1921—even before the Fair is open. A total of 6,500 birds have been entered for judging in the poultry building, exceeding even the total of 6,000 which was rolled up a couple of years ago when the poultry show rose to its high water-mark.

The entries in all the sections of the live stock show are larger this year than ever before, say the officials, and it is now a question of accommodation for all the animals. There are over 150 more horses than ever before. In order to provide for the extra accommodation needed, the Board of Directors has decided to erect two new barns near the Strachan Avenue entrance. It is hoped that these big structures will hold the surplus of stock. The directors did not think it fair to ask the owners of the show animals to house them in tents for two weeks. In previous years the live stock accommodation with the Fair has been more or less elastic, but this year over eight acres are taken for the new arena in course of construction, and the room is therefore limited.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE OF HUSBAND SOON TO DIE IN CHAIR.

Claims to Have Alibi For Condemned Man, But Efforts Vain Thus Far.

(By United Press).

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 23.—The electric chair in the State's prison here was prepared to-day for the execution of George Brandon. While the condemned man's wife went from one official to another, insisting that she had discovered an absolute alibi for her husband, electricians threw the current into the chair, attendants tested the strips and Brandon's head was shaved where the deadly electric rod is applied.

Mrs. Brandon, still calm and determined, fought to save her husband while every tick of the clock brought the hour of his death nearer. She intended to make a last effort to see Governor Edwards, although his position is that the alibi Mrs. Brandon says she has discovered is insufficient to warrant a reprieve that would only prolong the doomed man's agony.

Mrs. Brandon went to the penitentiary and demanded to see Chas. Perchand, convict, and the man who accused Brandon of murdering Arthur L. Kupfer and Miss Edith Janney near Rahway in 1918. She declared that if she could confront him with a priest as witness, he would be forced to retract his charge, but Perchand refused to see her. Mrs. Brandon asserts her husband was working in a garage in New York at the time the murder was committed.

Fur collars will be worn on many suit jackets and coat dresses, and white caracul, gray astrakhan and black fox will lead as favorites for this purpose.

NEW EDUCATION BILL SWEEPING IN ITS SCOPE

EFFECTIVE NEXT MONTH, EVERY CHILD BETWEEN AGES OF 14 AND 16 MUST ATTEND SCHOOL UNLESS EXCUSED.

TRUANT OFFICER EXPECTS CONFUSION

On Sept 1, comes into effect the most sweeping change in years in Ontario education when the Adolescent Act becomes law. Every adolescent between the ages of 14 and 16 is required by this new legislation passed in 1919 to attend school for full time unless excused on the grounds of ill health or infirmity, or employed on the authority of a home permit or an employment certificate or unless, he has passed his matriculation or equivalent course of study or is in attendance at some other education institution approved by the Minister of Education:

Parents or guardians of such adolescents must obtain home permits or employment certificates before they will be allowed to keep them from attending school. In connection with these Section 4, (1) reads.

"Where, in the opinion, of the school attendance officer, the services of an adolescent between fourteen and sixteen years of age are requird in any permitted occupations in or about the home of his parents or guardian, he may be granted by an attendance officer on the written application of his parent or guardian, a home permit to engage in such services.

(2) Where, in the opinion of the school attendance officer, the services of an adolescent between fourteen and sixteen years of age are required in some permitted gainful occupation for the necessary maintenance of such adolescent or some person dependent upon him, he may be granted by an attendance officer on the written application of his parent or guardian, an employment certificate to engage in such services

5. No adolescent between fourteen and sixteen years of age shall be employed by an person during the hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. unless he holds a home permit, or an employment certificate, as provided for in section 4 of this Act.

Proof of age is necessary in each case to get permits or certificates. Persons who employ adolescents without the necessary certificate are liable to prosecution under the Act.

Truant Officer F. W. Miller anticipates the most busy period of his career the first two weeks in September. Hundreds of parents and guardians will want permits and certificates and for some time, in his opinion, confusion, which should later disappear is sure to exist. Mr. Miller has been supplied with forms by the Department to fill in when application in writing has been made by parent or guardian or employer.

Only part of the Act comes into force this year. It enacts that on and after a date fixed by the Lieut-Governor (Sept 1, 1922) every urban municipality over 5,000 population shall establish and maintain part-time courses of instruction for the education of adolescents between 14 and 18 years of age.

On September 1, 1923 the final educational enactment becomes law. Every adolescent between 16 and 18 unless excused shall attend part-time courses of instruction, approved by the Minister for an aggregate of at least 320 hours each year. This last section will be as unpopular as any.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Prospects of an early settlement of the Mexican oil situation strengthened that group at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Mexican Petroleum made an initial gain of 1 5-8 points, this soon being extended to 3 points. General Asphalt, Houston and Texas Company also improved. Famous Players rose 2¼ points on the declaration of the regular dividend.

Oils extended their gains for a time. Fresh re-actions occurred, however, when some of the leaders among Steel Equipment, Copper, Shipping, Motor, Food, Chemical and allied shares fell to new low records. Moderate receivers before noon were led by Oils and Studebaker. On the exchange call money opened at 5½ per cent., but was offered at 5 per cent. outside.

Spanish River closed the morning at 48 1-4, a quarter above last night. This stock proved to be most active during the morning, with 275 shares changing hands with 1-4 at the opening to a low of 47 1-2 and the close of 48 1-4. Winnipeg Railway was off half a point at 31.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat opened ¼ cent higher on the Chicago Board of Trade to-day, advanced to a full cent over yesterday's finish, and then eased off. Initial prices were 1.17 to 1.17¼ for September, and 1.18 to 1.18 3-4 for December.

NO FRAUDS IN EXCHANGE, THE PROBE FINDS

IN ONE CASE COUNSEL ARRANGES FOR REFUND OF $250, AND IN ANOTHER REFUND BY INSTALMENTS MAY BE ARRANGED.

CONFIRMS THRIFT OF MANY DURING THE WAR

TORONTO, Aug. 23.— (Special Despatch to the Examiner).—More than a dozen Toronto war veterans satisfied G. T. larkson, sitting as a Royal Commissioner, and Messrs. J. M, Godfrey, K. C., government counsel and Col. Orde, Judge Advocate General, that there was no fraud committed in connection with the soldiers' "cashing in" on English money at par after the war ended. In one case counsel arranged for a refund of $250 and in another where $90 is involved an adjustment is to be made, probably calling for refund by instalments.

The probe has so far been a confirmation of the fact that many people saved money during the war and many married women who had never earned money before had their own bank accounts. It was thus possible for a large number of married men to assign their pay, either in whole or in part to their wives and find this money practically intact upon their return from overseas. Married men particularly were thus in a position to claim exchange at par on a large sum after the armistice was signed.

The men were caught as they were about to board the Soo train, and were en route to Massey, Ont. The men taken into custody are Joseph Harmond, Emile Richaud and Leo Lacroix, all belonging in Hull.

IN FAVOR OF TORONTO ACQUIRING THE WHOLE SUBURBAN RY. SYSTEM

BECK OUTLINES METHODS BY WHICH THIS SHOULD BE DONE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 23.— In speaking of the negotiations now in progress for the acquisition by the city of that portion of the Toronto suburban railway lying within the city limits, Sir Adam Beck pointed out to-day that while his official authority to negotiate on behalf of the city was confined entirely to this clearly defined deal he was by no means unfavorable to the larger proposition of acquiring the whole system, including the lines to Guelph and to Woodbridge and Weston. It is understood that Mayor Church, and the Board of Control, are considering the latter proposal.

Should they decide to proceed with it, Sir Adam said, that they could obtain the whole system by taking over from the Canadian National Railways four and a half per cent. bonds amounting to $2,628,000 and with 40 years yet to run.

The only bonds which would have to be floated would be those required to provide for betterments and improvements. These the city itself could guarantee after obtaining the necessary permissive legislation, as it did in the case of the Metropolitan.

PROHIBITION AGENT AND ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER SHOT DEAD IN BATTLE NEAR DULUTH.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Frank Hicks, Duluth Federal prohibition agent, and an unidentified man were killed in a gun fight between a band of alleged liquor runners and government agents near the International Falls on the Canadian border, according to a report received by the local authorities to-day. Hicks is said to have been killed by a bootleger, who an instant later was slain by George King, a Federal agent.

BREAD SELLS HERE FOR TWENTY CENTS

ONE LOCAL BAKERY REDUCES THE PRICE.

While one Peterborough bakery is selling bread at 22 cents a large loaf, all the other local bakeries are getting 24 cents, and according to the Peterborough Bread Co. there is no hope of any reduction till flour and wages come down. "As soon as flour comes down we will reduce the price. Flour is higher now than it has been in six months and there seems little hope for a reduction in flour till the new wheat is millled," the manager stated. Wages in the baking business have not been reduced one iota, the Examiner was informed, and the bakers declared they were not paying excessive wages and did not care to reduce them. Until flour recedes in price, the manager of the Peterborough Bread Co. emphatically stated, there could not possibly be a reduction. The bakery which is selling bread at 22 cents a loaf, it was stated, does not have to maintain the plant the others have to and with less overhead expense, can sell bread more cheaply.

H. Boyle, proprietor of the Self-Serve Grocery, Charlotte street, and W. J. Byers, Brownton, are selling Port Hope bread at 20 cents a loaf, the cheapest bread in the city. Both stores report a steady demand for this article. Mr. Byers was unable to obtain any for some time because of the great demand on the Port Hope bakery, but now is able to supply his customers again. Mr. Boyle states that the bread is very popular and large quantities are sold each Saturday.

"Better luck. How's that?"

"Why, my row of new houses blew down in last week's wind, you know, while yours weren't harmed. All were built the same—same woodwork same mortar, same everything."

"Yes," said the other, "but you forgot that mine had been papered."

ISSUE DENIAL OF VATICAN'S INTERVENTION

SINN FEIN CABINET OFFICIALLY BRANDS REPORTS OF SUCH UNTRUE—CHURCH MESSAGE WAS NOT FROM ROME.

DE VALERA ADDRESSES NATIONAL CONVENTION

BY CLYDE C. BEALS,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, Aug. 23.—The Vatican has not intervened in the Irish negotiations, according to an official announcement by the Sinn Fein Cabinet this afternoon. A message which was delivered to President De Valera by Bishop Mulhar, of Dromore, was not from Rome, it was declared.

President De Valera addressed the members of the Sinn Fein National Convention when it met this afternoon. Members of the Dail Eireann weer present.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press.)— Irish Republican leaders, gathered here to frame a reply to the British Government's offer of Dominion status for Ireland, divided their actiivties to-day between secret sessions of the Dail Eireann and a meeting of the executive lommittee of the Sinn Fein.

The meetings of the two bodies were held in Mansion House and it was believed that both would concern themselves with the attitude taken by the Irish Republicans toward the terms laid down by Prime Minister Lloyd George as a basis of settlement of the Irish controversy. Meetings of the Sinn Fein executive committee were placed under the ban long ago by the British government, but up until this morning no intimation had been given that the British authorities frowned on the proposed assembly.

Considerable speculation was caused here last night by the delivery of a message to Mr. De Valera by Monsignor Edward Mulhern, Bishop of Dromore. It was asserted that the message had not come from Cardinal Logue, head of the Catholic church in Ireland, but there was no further intimation relative to the origin of the message, except that it came "from the highest authority."

Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, planned to meet his Cabinet at Belfast to-day, and it was believed probable that relations between Belfast and Dublin would be considered.

DRAMATIC CHAPTER OF RECENT AND PRESENT HISTORY BEHIND GREEK STRUGGLE WITH TURK

(By Frederick Cunliffe-Owen, C.B.E., in the New York Times.)

There are two points in connection with the Turko-Greek war now in progress in Asia Minor that do not appear to be known in the United States, and yet which have a very important bearing upon the situation.

The first is that the entire Hellenic nation, the foes as well as the friends of King Constantine, are united in their refusal to withdraw from Smyrna, and to abandon the millions of Greeks long settled in Asia Minor, to their fate at the cruel hands of Kemal Pasha and of his Bolshevist allies. Indeed, all the efforts of ex-Premier Venizelos during his recent stays in London and Paris were directed toward securing for the Greek armies now operating against Kemal in Asia Minor the backing and the support of Great Britain and France. Greece's cause has in the past been to such an extent obscured—especially in foreign eyes—by the bitter rivalries between the adherents of Constantine and those of Venizelos that there has been a tendency, here as well as in Europe, to overlook the interests of Greece as a nation. The latter has for the nonce abandoned factional strife and political bickerings in order to present a united front in its determination to assure the protection of the members of its race in Asia Minor, and also to retain in the full measure the territorial advantages secured for Greece by her former Premier, Elentherios Venizelos, from the great powers of the Entente at Paris in 1919-1920, under the terms of the so-called Treaty of Sevres.

The second point is the fact, generally ignored, that if Greece's armies are at Smyrna, and in Asia Minor, it is at the instance of Great Britain, of France and of the United States. Several of the London newspapers have stated editorially that Greece has "no commission to vindicate single-handed the common decisions of the Allies, which the Turks are trying to evade," and thus convey the inference that she is in Asia Minor without any mandate, and solely on her own account, engaged in a costly military adventure that has no other object than to bolster up the dynasty of King Constantine. Now, while it is perfectly true that Greece has turned a deaf ear to a suggestion from Great Britain, France and Italy, that she should abandon her operations against Kemal Pasha, and withdraw from Smyrna, and from all her positions in Asia Minor as the prelude to an Entente agreement with Kemal, whereby the life and property of the Hellenic population in that part of the world would be safeguarded (the past has shown that no treaty with the Turks is even worth the paper on which it is written) it is impossible to get away from the fact that the Greeks went to Smyrna and to Asia Minor at our instance and request, in the Spring of 1919, and that they have remained there since at their own expense, though where they found the money to do so it is difficult to say. They are today in a position of military advantage, with some prospects of victory, that is to say, of crushing Kemal. That they should decline to withdraw, to surrender everything they have gained, and to leave the people of their race in Asia Minor to the sorry fate which would be theirs under any Entente treaty with either Kemal or with the Sublime Porte, is quite natural. Indeed, any Hellenic Government, no matter whether Constantinist or Venezelist, that lent itself to such a scheme, would be overwhelmed by a revolution at Athens.

Now the mandate which the Greeks received for the seizure and occupation of Smyrna, and for the landing of their troops in Asia Minor was given to them in the Spring of 1919, at Paris, by Great Britain, France and the United States. It was at the time when the Italian plenipotentiaries, Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino, finding President Wilson so unalterably opposed to the incorporation of Fiume in the Kingdom of Italy, that he had actually issued a public appeal to the Italian people in the matter, over their heads, considered it necessary formally to withdraw from the Peace Congress. It seems to have thereupon occurred to Woodrow Wilson or to Georges Clemenceau, or to Lloyd George, that Orlando and Sonnino might endeavor to save their face in the eyes of their countrymen, by a successful coup elsewhere, which would assuage the bitterness of the loss of Fiume. It was opined by one or another of the three statesmen in question that the coup would probably be directed against Smyrna, where Italy has long had extensive interests, and where she would thus secure a foothold and base for her territorial designs upon some of the richest mineral regions of Asia Minor. It was further assumed that Italy anticipated that when the other Entente powers found themselves confronted by her military occupation of Smyrna as a fait accompli, they would accept the situation thus created, so as to reconcile her to the loss of Fiume, and to win back her presence at the Peace Congress.

President Wilson, Lloyd George and Clemenceau, taking into account the profound resentment of Premier Orlando and Barron Sonnino, at once took steps to avert the possibility of any such coup, and Premier Venizelos received the mandate to effect without any delay a military occupation of Smyrna, which is barely five hours steam from Athens. At the same time, certain instructions were sent to the commanders of the American, French and Entlish naval forces in the Mediterranean, in pursuence of which a squadron of warships, flying the Stars and Stripes, held up an Italian convoy of transports, heavily laden with Italian troops, bound for Smyrna, and compelled it to turn in its tracks, and to return to its ports of departure.

If so little was said about it at the time, it was in order to avoid any additional embitterment of popular sentiment in Italy against her allies of the Entente. Woodrow Wilson, Lloyd George and Clemenceau all three appreciated the necessity of having her adhesion ot the Treaty of Versailles, which brought the Congress of Peace to a close, and hoped that Italy, in the person of other representatives, would resume her place at the Conference board. These hopes were realized, when Premier Nitti and Foreign Minister Tittoni arrived in Paris late in May, or in the beginning of June—I forget which—to take the places of Orlando and Sonnino, who, after their defeat in the Chamber at Rome, had been driven to resign.

It must be borne in mind that at the time when Greece was commissioned to seize Smyrna from the Turks, and to take military possession of that most important seaport and city of the Ottoman Empire, Venizelos was the all-powerful Premier of the Hellenic nation, one of the dominant figures of the Paris Congress, and in the enjoyment of the confidence and favor of Premier Lloyd George, of Clemenceau, and also of President Wilson to an extraordinary degree. They relied upon the stability of his Government. They never dreamt that it would be shipwrecked overnight by means of a purely local political manoeuvre which would have the result of bringing back Constantine to Greece, to resume the throne from which they had removed him. They felt in the Spring of 1919 that they could depend upon the loyal co-operation of Venizelos. It goes without saying that they have been unable to entertain any such sentiments with regard to Constantine, who openly sided with Germany and the Central Powers in the great war. They have, indeed, refused until now to accord any recognition to the King and his Government, and Professor Edward Capps of Princeton, President Wilson's particularly level-headed, tactful and experienced envoy to Greece, returned to the United States the other day without having a single word with any member of the reigning family at Athens. The United States, Great Britain and France cannot therefore regard King Constantine as their mandatary in Asia Minor, and have recommended his withdrawal. But this does not alter the fact that if the Greeks, as a nation, are now at Smyrna and in Asia Minor, they went there at the instance and at the behest of President Wilson, of England and of France.

Since the day when King Constantine's Government expressed its inability to comply with the recommendations of Italy, France and Great Britain, for the retirement of its troops from its advanced position at Kutaia and from Smyrna, Kemal Pasha has furnished ample justification for Hellenic disbelief in his sincerity, and in the fulfillment of any agreement that he might make with the great powers of the Entente. For, emboldened by the apparent eagerness of the Allies to come to terms with him, even at the cost of some sacrifices, and by their manifest anxiety to avoid being dragged into another war in the Near East, he has put forth demands of the most outrageous and extravagant description, demands to the effect that the Ottoman Empire shall be restored to its frontiers as they existed before the Balkan wars, for absolute control of Constantinople, and of the straits extending from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean free from all foreign control and interference; and further for freedom from all restrictions or intervention by foreign powers in the political, judicial, administrative and financial affairs of Turkey. Kemal, moreover, makes it a sine qua non of any agreement, that the Allies should consent to the abolition of those so-called capitulations, by means of which the Christian powers have for hundreds of years past enjoyed immunity from the jurisdiction of the Turkish and other Oriental courts, Judges and authorities, subject only to that of their own Consular officials.

Then, too, it has become known that Kemal has at length completed his negotiations for an open defensive but more especially offensive alliance between Nationalist Turkey, the Bolshevist Government at Moscow and Afghanistan, directed against Great Britain and France. Indeed, Kemal has definitely thrown in his lot with the Bolsheviki and the Soviet plenipotentiaries played a leading part in the celebration the other day at Angora of his treaty of alliance with Moscow.

There can be no reliable arrangement by the powers of the Entente with Nationalist Turkey, which means the entire Turkish Nation. Greece, in fighting Kemal today in Asia Minor, is fighting the battle of the entire Western world against the destructive forces of Bolshevism and Pan-Islamism. As such regardless of our leanings toward Venizelos or to Constantine, she deserves the sympathy and the backing of the people of the United States and of all nations professing Christianity and living up to its resultant Western civilization.

HAMBURG WOMEN FOR BOLSHEVISM

WOMAN'S UNION AND COMMITTEE MAGAZINE LATEST ACTIVITIES.

HAMBURG, Aug. 23.—(By United Press.)—A woman's union and a committee magazine were new activities of the denizens of Hamburg's "half world" made public to-day. The magazine, edited by women, whose names are of common repute in the city, appeared with a great mass of advertising from dealers in dress goods and from theatrical agencies. The leading editorial was radical in tone and preached Bolshevism as the doctrine to eliminate the social evil. The union, it was announced, will not deal with financial matters, but will exert itself to free the residents of the district from strict police supervision.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agricultural:—

The splendid condiion of corn, both for the ear and for silage, is the crop feature of the season. Two representatives in Eastern Ontario report that silo-filling has been started —an unusually early record. The work will be common next week.

Halidmand reports the presence of the corn-borer, but says that the damage to the crop this season will be small.

Perth states that some millers in that county are refusing wheat on account of smut.

Baled hay in Haldimand is quoted at $18 a ton.

The second cut of alfalfa is proving to be one of best for years. One farmer in Waterloo reports two tons to the acre.

Huron claims that a field of wheat in the county averaging 52 1-2 bushels to the acre.

Lincoln says that Early St. John peaches, Bartlett pears, and plums are now on the market at prices which are keeping fairly firm as yields are rather light.

A good deal of well prepared summer fallowing is being done. Fall plowing generally is much ahead of former years.

From present appearances a considerably enlarged acreage of fall wheat is likely. Huron is of opinion that most of the crop will be sown between Sept. 1st and the 10th but Peel says that some patches will be sown early to feed the Hessian fly.

Manitoulin reports that while a number of beef cattle have been shipped from the Island recently, many farmers are anxious to get rid of more as feed is likely to be scarce. Huron also reports considerable marketing of cattle, and Middlesex speaks of some consignments to England.

Grade milking cows are selling in Oxford at from $75 to $125, but dairy cattle are being disposed of more cheaply in the eastern part of the Province.

Leeds says: 'Animals that will not be of economic value during the coming winter are being disposed of rapidly now at a very low price, dairy bulls selling at 3 cents a lb."

Frontenac quotes milk prices as ranging from $1.40 to $1.50 a cwt.

Hogs are relatively scarce, and are selling at from $13.25 to $13.75 a cwt. One representative remarks that some farmers now regret that they disposed of their brood sows.

Wentworth, Prescott and Russell, speaking of apiary conditions, says: "Bees are doing very little on dark honey. In most cases they are just about living. The golden rod and buckwheat do not seem to 'contain much nectar due probably to a heavy drought in the early part of their blossoming."

The Princess said she came here six weeks ago to have the casket made, as it was not possible to get one of that kind in Europe.

The Princess said her home at present was in the royal palace in Naples and that on her birthday, Oct. 21, she intended to have the casket containing the body of her husband placed on an Italian warship. She will then accompany it to Lisbon, where it will be placed next to that of Don Carlos, the brother of the Prince was heir to the throne after February, 1920, after they had been married seven years, she added. The Prince was heeir to the throne after King Manuel, who is an exile and has no issue.

WIRELESS 'PHONE IN USE BY HYDRO

TORONTO, August 23. — Canadian Press. — The use of wireless telephones in train despatching, which forms such an important part of Henry Ford's views of the future in railroading, may be an accomplished fact in Ontario long before the motor car king of Detroit, gets his "revolutionary" ideas applied to his railroad.

Within the next week or two, the Hydro-Electric Commission will commence experiments in wireless telephony between Toronto and Dundas, and, according to present plans, will as soon as possible, extend the experiment to London and on to Windsor, with a view to ultimately applying it to the whole Hydro Electric power system in Ontario.

REPORTS OF INTERVENTION BY HIGH AUTHORITIES OF THE CHURCH HEIGHTEN OPTIMISM OVER OUTCOME, THINK CABINET HAVE DRAFTED THEIR REPLY

BY CLYDE C. BEALS.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, August 23. — The Sinn Fein Council, a gathering of the leaders of the local organizations throughout Ireland, which had been forbidden by the British Government, met here to-day to consider the reply to the British peace offer.

There was no interference with the gathering on the part of the military authorities.

The secret of the message from the "highest authority" of the Roman Catholic Church, delivered to President De Valera yesterday by the Lord Bishop of Dromore, was jealously guarded in inner Sinn Fein circles to-day. No hint of its contents or its source could be gathered from those who had seen it, but the belief was that the Vatican had intervened and urged a peaceful settlement.

Throughout Ireland to-day the popular belief was that the Sinn Fein cabinet had already in secret conferences over the week-end, determined upon its reply to Lloyd George's proposals and that the Dail Eireann, which met again in secret session to-day, was being asked to approve the Irish answer. The reported intervention of the "Hierachy," heightened the hopes that the decision had been for peace.

Secrecy continued to be the order to-day. No indication of the way things were going could be gathered from the Sinn Fein leaders before they entered the Mansion House for the day's sessions.

A general impression was gathered that they were optimistic of a peaceful outcome,outside of the national convention, whih is what the Sinn Fein Council Meeting really constituted, and the Dail.

Ireland was forced to assume the role of spectator, waiting for the curtain to go up. Prominent per-

THE WAGE QUESTION.

Sam Gompers and other officials of the American Federation of Labour declare that wage reductions will be fought to the last ditch by organized labour. The inclination to stand out against a cut in the remuneration of the workers is natural; the wisdom of doing so, however, is a debatable question. Mr. Gompers declared a year ago that there would be no reduction in wages. It was a rather broad statement, and many newspapers pointed out at the time that the law of supply and demand would make the prediction of the head of organized labour an empty boast. They knew that a cut in wages in many trades was inevitable, that it was folly to imagine the inflated scales that had to be paid during the war years could be maintained in the period of depression that must inevitably follow the false prosperity created by war conditions. And the newspapers were right. Wage reductions have been accepted as necessary in many occupations, and in spite of Mr. Gompers' prediction there will have to be still further cuts before normal conditions can be arrived at. It is idle to think that with hundreds of thousands of men out of work, and many industries closed, or only operating on half time, the abnormal wages paid in the boom period can be successfully demanded now.

THE VALUE OF THE FALL FAIR.

Somebody wrote a long letter to the Toronto Star the other day criticizing the usefulness of fall fairs, and decuaring that the modern fair bears little resemblance to the exhibitions of a couple of decades ago. The complainant declares that the farmers nowadays take little interest in the annual event except as spectators, that they motor in with their families, look at what is to be seen for an hour or two and then depart. The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition should invite this frank critic to spend a day at Peterborough's big fair and possibly he would have reason to change his mind concerning the willingness of the farmer to make exhibits. He makes a mistake, for instance, if he imagines the advent of the motor car has killed off the interest in good horses. If he is in Peterborough next month he will see scores of splendid roadsters and carriage horses, drawing handsome outfits, and handled by expert drivers. He will find, too, hundreds of people following with interest the work of the judges and awaiting eagerly the verdict as to the winning of the coveted rosettes. In cattle, poultry, sheep and swine exhibits, he will find plenty of competition, and while it may be true that certain breeders send their live stock from fair to fair, and in this way win many prizes, the educational value of the exhibition of such notable stock is in itself evidence that the fall fair has a mission to fulfill.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

Perhaps the most successful feature of Canada's efforts to repatriate the men who fought for her overseas has been the work of the Soldiers' Settlement Board. There has not been enough publicity given to this branch of the soldiers' civil re-establishment work for the people of Canada to grasp the magnitude of the undertaking or to appreciate what has been accomplished. Figures given out on the operation of the Board to the end of June afford an opportunity to visualize the extent of this great work on behalf of the ex-service men. Up to that time no fewer than 26,4445 returned soldiers, nearly as many as formed Canada's first contingent, have been settled on the land, the total area held by these soldier farmers being 4,854,792 acres, of which about half is free land. An area of 600,000 acres of new land has been broken. Nearly 6,000 of the soldiers who decided to adopt farming as an occupation, did not require a loan from the government, while in the case of 20,465 soldiers, loans amounting to $83,884,210 have been made.

They were made for the following purposes:

To purchase land, $46,339,141.97.

To remove encumbrances, $1,972,481.99.

For permanent improvements, $9,538,937.89.

For stock and equipment $26,033,648.76.

The loans are, it is reported, being promptly met by the farmer veterans, 390 of whom have already repaid the assistance given by the Government in full, while thousands of others have their payments well in hand.

The Soldier Settlement Board is to be congratulated upon the showing they are able to report. The record that has been accomplished overshadows any repatriation scheme of any of the other nations engaged in the war.

LUXURY-LOVING WIVES.

The psychology of life is a strange things and even though many people give little thought to such psychology, there are times when it is brought home forcibly. This strange psychology was recalled to citizens through the recent address to the Kiwanis Club of Mr. Frederick N. Withey of the National Surety Co., New York. In his address, Mr. Withey ,among other things, stated that very often a "luxury-loving wife is the cause of a man becoming a defaulter or an embezzler." To many, who have not had occasion to know of specific cases, this may not make much of an impression, but it is a significant thing to say the least, that two days after Mr. Withey spoke here, news comes that Alfred Lussier, an Ottawa lawyer, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for defaulting. In the report of the sentencing of Lussier, we read

"Lussier's liabilities amount to $60,000, said Gauvreau, who alleged that Lussier's wife, who was several year's senior, to his client, was one of the causes leading to Lussier's final downfall."

Here we have a specific case, coming after the statement of Mr. Withey to the same effect—a case that brings home the fact that while wives may be a necessity, the kind that cannot live within a man's income are not the kind to be cultivated and increased in the country.

Right here is the advice to women to take a deeper interest in their husbands and their businesses. A man may to all appearances be well to do. He may be prosperous and have a good business, and his wife, perhaps blissfully ignorant of his affairs, goes on, living luxuriously as she desires. It may be that at the start the husband can afford the luxuries, but when and if business falls off, the luxury-loving wife becomes a problem. Very often the husband may decide not to question her ways and actions, but, instead, strives to afford her the luxuries she craves. In this endeavor the husband often—too often, in fact—cannot honestly make both ends meet, and in the stress of business and money affairs becomes a defaulter. And yet this man at the start of his married life had not the slightest idea of wrong-doing, nor had the wife any thought or desire to urge him to the wrong. Indeed, quite probably, her only desire was to make her husband happy, but being supplied with abundance of money, she gradually and unconsciously acquiring a luxury-loving habit which later she found difficult to overcome. Certainly, whatever the original intention, the upshot in the Ottawa case—and it is not exceptional—is that the husband became a defaulter in order to gratify the wishes and desires of his wife, and is now in the Penitentiary as a consequence.

Such psychology does not alone apply to men of wealth, but applies equally to the ordinary day laborer, as to the millionaire If the wife of a laborer acquires, even in a small way, a luxury-loving habit, and lives beyond the means of her husband, only trouble and sorrow can ensue.

It will be well for everyone to heed the words of Mr. Withey. Happiness dwells not in the accumulation of riches, fine clothes and luxury, but is to be found in a peaceful, contented, honest and clean family, whether they live on $1000 a year or on $1,000,000. — Kingston Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One feature about an election now is that it would relieve the unemployment situation for a lot of people.

The people who complain that the census enumerators fail to call upon them wouldn't say a word if the assessor neglected to pay them a visit.

Everybody is giving the Federal government advice. But it needs other things much more than what is being offered.

The American Federation of Labour has decided to oppose the wage reductions. In doing so it is tackling a condition that is stronger than any organization of workers could possibly be.

MENACE OF HOUSING SHORTAGE.

We are in danger at this moment of throwing away the whole of the work done in the thirty years before the war to raise the standard of life and housing. The irony of it is that vast numbers returned from the war with new ideas of cleanliness and decency, and that if decent homes had been available there would have been a chance of a great move forward all along the line. But new houses unavailable and old houses overcrowded, these people are compelled to accept slum conditions, and in lack of new accommodation the old must rapidly deteriorate.—Westminster Gazette, London.

MEDAL FOR PLUCKY BELLEVILLE BOY SCOUT

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 23. — For a gallant rescue recently at Moira Lake, when a young woman, Miss Naylor, was saved from drowning, Charles Hayes, assistant Scoutmaster, is to be recommended for a boy Scout life saving medal.

Miss Naylor was going down for the third time, when young Hayes reached her. She had apparently stepped into a deep hole and could not swim. Hayes, who was in a boat, after a gallant struggle, was able to get the young lady to the shore. She had fainted but was quickly revived by the kindly administrations of the boys, many of whom are experts and hold certificates in first aid and resuscitation work.

Give This to a Constipated Baby

Why Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is the Favorite Constipation Remedy with so Many Mothers

YOUNG Mothers in the midst of bringing up a family of small children should consider it a duty to investigate the action of the various remedies for constipation. This is the ailment most common among children, and it often leads to serious diseases. It is important for the mother to know the right remedy to give, for they differ widely in action.

Children do not take kindly to drastic drugs, salt waters, calomel, physics, castor oil, carthartics, mercurials and such things, and they find difficulty in swallowing these harsh medicines even when disguised in sugar-coated tablets or pills. It is not only that the child doesn't like the taste, but these drugs are so violent that they wrench the little system. They should not be given to children.

Thousands of wise mothers, after having tried many things, give only a combination of simple herbs with pepsin, known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

The formula is on the package. It is a mild, gentle remedy, free from all narcotics, that relieves constipation and its symptoms, such as headache, biliousness, colds, fever, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, and it does it without griping or weakening. A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for sixty cents and is enough to last an average family many months.

Last year over eight million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin were sold in drug stores, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, and as the preparation has been on the market over thirty years the second generation of mothers are now giving it to their babies. No careful, well-regulated home will be without a bottle for a mild, safe constipation remedy like this may be needed by someone in the family any minute. Every bottle is guaranteed to do exactly as claimed for the ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels or your money will be refunded.

There are heads of families who will want to prove to their own satisfaction that my Laxative Syrup Pepsin is as effective in constipation, as mild and gentle in action, as pleasant-tasting and safe, as I claim. Let such write me for a free sample. It will be sent postpaid. Simply say "Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front Street, Bridgeburg, Ont.: Send a free trial bottle of your Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to—" and give your name and address. I will see that the rest is attended to promptly.

Chapter 44.

"Please, help me in this, dear," I pleaded, my arm around Kent's neck.

Kent smiled in spite of himself. I leaned over and kissed the tip of his ear, teasingly.

"What do you want to do, Babs?" he questioned, squeezing me gently. "Better be careful how you meddle with other people's matrimonial difficulties. It's dangerous business."

"But we are so happy, dearest, you and I, and it makes me long to help other people who are making dreadful, foolish mistakes."

"What can we do, Babs?" Kent asked a little skeptically.

"Oh, just have them here once in a while. Let them see how happy we are," I mused.

"Better be careful. How do you know they want to be happy together? Maybe they wouldn't thank us, Babs, for our trouble," Kent reasoned philosophically.

"Everybody wants to be happy, darling. It's just that sometimes they don't know how, are sort of afraid to try. It's so hard to get out and start over again once you've gotten into a dreadful rut like Tom and Lillian. We might help them out a little, just a little, and then everything would be all right," I reasoned.

"You always want to help everybody, Babs. I can't refuse you even though I'm not so very sure Tom Barney is worth helping," he added a trifle caustically.

"Let's try anyway, Kent. It will be our little bit of helpful service to someone else and we'll get lots out of it, too," I said softly.

"All right, precious. You'll be making me sprout wings soon if you don't look out," he said with a smile.

I patted his strong, broad shoulders.

"No, dearest boy, I can't make you grow wings—it's just your own wonderful self," I cried half laughingly, and hugging him up to me tightly.

"I believe we can help them, Barbara. Somehow you make me think all things are possible," he declared earnestly.

"You say I help you, dear—and I know I do; I try hard to—but do you think things would be so easy for either of us if I were like Lillian?" I asked.

Kent caught me fiercely in his arms.

"Heavens no! You know they wouldn't. It's you, just you that's so wonderful. You give me strength and faith in myself," he cried passionately.

"Then don't let's be too hard on Tom," I suggested carefully. "Maybe he does need our help, and Lillian too. I'm sure the fault is not all on one side. Let's try to help them both, Kent."

Kent caught me up bodily in his strong arms and carried me like a child into the living room. I clung to him with my arms around his neck, and laughed happily.

"I should wash up the dishes, dear. You must not carry me away from duty like this," I said, as he put me down gently in one of the big deep cushioned chairs.

"Not just now, Babs—later," he pleaded. "I'll help you with it after a while—but now I want to talk to you, and just sit here near you for a while."

He pulled the little leather stool over and sat down in front of me, resting his arms on my knees.

"There—are you comfortable?" he asked, slipping his arms about me.

"I'm so very comfortable, dear and my heart is the most comfortable, happiest thing of all," I answered tenderly.

CONTRACT LIKELY EXCEED ESTIMATE OF CONTRACTORS

FILTRATION PLANT THREATENS TO EAT UP PROFITS.

When the Ramsay & Wilde Company tendered on the 2,000,000-gallon reservoir in connection with the filtration plant, in the first, their tender was for $65,800. This tender was subsequently reduced by $2,500 by the company at their own instance, and it was at this reduced tender that the contract was entered into. At the meeting of the Utilities Commissioners last night there was a letter from J. C. Wilde, one of the partners, asking if the commission could not allow them the original reduction. The reduction, he stated, had not been warranted by the saving in labor and material, and the way costs were running it seemed likely the tender would be exceeded by several thousand dollars.

The letter was received. A copy, it is understood, has been forwarded to William Kennedy, the commission's engineer in Montreal.

A recommendation of H. O. Fisk, manager of the Electrical Department, that a line be extended on Sherbrooke street west of the Gravel road to give current to six petitioners was endorsed. Those petitioning for light were F. O. Goodfellow, W. Hopkins, A. Vass, John Goodwin, Samuel Abbott, J. Henderson. The cost of the extension Mr. Fisk estimated at $272.40.

Mr. Fisk advised the commission that he was purchasing for the Fire Department 36 red lamp outfits to mark each fire alarm box, and he wanted the commissioners to fix a rate. A flat rate of $2.50 a year per lamp was suggested, also $2, but no definite rate was decided on last night. The manager stated that the lights would be simple, consisting only of a pole bracket, red globe and socket connected to secondary wire similar to a street lamp. The outfits were costing the department about five dollars each, he said. He expected delivery shortly. Mr. Fisk had in mind a 25 watt lamp, although, he said, they might want a larger lamp. The department will make the installation.

Electrical Goods.

To Commissioner E. F. Mason and Manager Fisk power was given to engage a man to make sales of electrical appliances and give service as well if desired. This action was taken after considerable discussion of the retailing of electrical appliances. It was remarked that the trade in this line is slack in the summer, but with the approach of autumn more business was in sight. Mr. Fisk advised getting an energetic salesman. Mr. Mason advocated a man with enough electrical experience to make repairs and give real service. He felt if the commission had a man armed with the knowledge he would have the "open sesame" into houses by asking if there was any electrical machines out of order. Mr. Fisk said they had a man like that in Oshawa and he was a good salegetter. Mr. Fisk, when asked if he had any man in mind who could do the work, replied in the affirmative. He advised a salary paid, at least to start. Mr. Mason and he were given full power to act in the matter.

Chairman R. Hicks and the manager will go into the matter of a showcase, which, Mr. Fisk said, was essential for not only the display, but also the protection of the smaller articles.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Colour, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn grey, streaked, and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked, or grey. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft, and luxuriant.

JERSEY CHURCHES TO FIGHT PUGILISM.

State Federation Adopts a Programme of Six Points in War Against the Prize Ring.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Aug. 23.—About 2,000 persons attending the joint conference of the New Jersey State Federation of Churches and the International Reform Bureau, voted tonight in the Temple to follow a program of six points in the organization's war on prize-fighting. They also adopted a resolution asking President Harding to see that William Jennings Bryan got into the world's disarmament congress to be held in Washington.

While the churchmen were laying their plans to cross prize-fighting off the sports calendar, prominent members of the exclusive Spring Lake colony were issuing announcements that a bout would be the feature of the benefit to be held Aug. 26 to raise funds for the Ann May Memorial Hospital. According to the announcements, Harry Ertle, who refereed the Dempsey-Carpentier battle, will officiate at the benefit; Jack Dempsey has been invited to display his wares and Governor Edwards is listed as Honorary Chairman of the benefit.

The six points of the Ocean Grove conference were:

1.—Intensive efforts to prevent fights on Labor Day, Columbus Day and other holidays of the near future.

2. Institution of legal proceedings to prohibit the blocking of streets near any fight arenas.

3.—Application to the Chancery Court of New Jersey for an injunction against prize-fighting, the application to be based on the precedent of the Arkansas injunction issued in 1896, which blocked the Fitzsimmons-Corbett fight.

4.—Institution of legal proceedings against Tex Rickard and others "for conspiracy."

5.—A plea to New Jersey voters to support only those candidates pledged to a revision of the State's boxing laws.

6.—A campaign to increase the membership of the New Jersey State Federation of Churches, so as to include representatives of all denominations.

Dr. Robert Watson, New York pastor, criticised Governor Edwards and Dempsey. Dr. Watson said he was an amateur boxing champion himself in the days when he was an undergraduate of the University of New Brunswick, Canada. He was described as one who "packed a pretty good punch." The preacher told the meeting that "Dempsey-Carpentier fight was the most brutal since 1866 and Governor Edwards, the man who promoted it, was worse than the slacker, Dempsey."

Other speakers were Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, Superintendent of the International Reform Bureau; Clinton N. Howard, Secretary, and the Rev. H. B. MacCauley, Executive Secretary of the New Jersey State Federation of Churches.

Judge Richard Doherty of the Court of Common Peas, in Jersey City, refused to issue a warrant for the arrest of Jack Dempsey, Georges Carpentier, their managers and Tex Rickard, promoter of the fight of July 2 in Jersey City. The warrant was applied for by Herbert Clark Gilson of the International Reform Bureau. Judge Doherty held that the Hurley boxing law of 1918 superseded the anti-prize-fighting law of 1808.

In refusing the warrant Judge Doherty said:

"If I issued the warrant I would have to go to jail with Dempsey. I attended the fight with Judge John A. Blair of the Court of Common Pleas. I am just as much a violator of the law as the boxers."

"DEAD" GIRL FOUND ALIVE.

Serena Morris Proves an Alibi for Prisoner Held in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio, August 23.—Serena Morris, whose body was believed to have been found in a shallow grave in a wheat field near Granite City, Ill., and was buried as such by the girl's grandmother, is alive here.

She was recovered by the police on request of Thomas Gilliland, held in jail in Granite City pending investigation. He said he was with the Morris girl in Cincinnati at the time the body was found. The police verified this fact to-day, thus securing an alibi for Gilliland, and when Chief of Police Clarke of Granite City, and the girl's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Hull, of East St. Louis, arrived, the girl was found living in Avondale. She will go back to Illinois to clear Gilliland.

An insuarnce policy of $400 had been paid to the grandmother. Chief of Police Clark said the dead woman bore a remarkable resemblance to Miss Morris, who is 20 years old, even to dental peculiarities scars and clothing.

The girl said she knew nothing about the finding of a slain girl nor of the arrest of Gilliland until informed of it to-day.

JEALOUS HUSBAND SHOOTS WIFE DEAD

Underworld Character, With Long Police Record, Accused Slain Woman of Intidelity.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. — Hugo Neugebauer, well known in the underworld and who has been tried for everything from burglary to murder, the police say, yesterday shot and killed his wife, Rose, after the last of many bitter quarrels by his jealousy.

The killing took place at the home of Mrs. Mary Crawford, mother of Mrs. Neugebauer, at 163 West Tenth Street, whither the slain woman had fled last Wednesday with one of her two little children, following a separation from Neugebauer, also the last of many.

Neugebauer married Rose Crawford three years ago, when she was only 17. She knew his record, but, aside from his profession, Neugebauer knew how to be kind, and the underworld of romance was a happy one for a time. Then he feared that she was being too friendly with other men and frequently upbraided her for it.

BOSTON VETERANS IDLE.

Twenty Thousand Unemployed, and Situation is Declared Growing Worse.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.— Twenty thousand former soldiers and sailors in Greater Boston are out of work. The approach of colder weather finds the situation growing slowly worse instead of better. Soldier relief organizations are almost at the end of their tethers, financially. Employers, in most instances, have "lost interest" in ex-service men, he preference rule in civil service examinations, which former doughboys supposed gave them an advantage in applying for positions, is in many cases disregarded. These statements were made by heads of the American Legion and the State Free Employment Agency.

Officials at the Legion's Employment Bureau, at the State House, are pessimistic over the prospect for the Winter. There is not the slightest indication, they declare, that conditions will improve materially during the next few months. State Commander James T. Duane said the demand for a remedy for the unemployment situation among veterans was "second only to the case of the wounded and disabled."

Bank Clerk Who Stole $78,000 and Ran Off With Girl, Posed as Single Man.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 23.—Edwin F. Morse, 32 years old, for three years head teller of the International Trust Company, in thia city, who disappeared with Miss Mabel Penfold, 22 years old, an employee of the bank, took $78,166 in cash, all the currency that was in sight in the bank.

The couple, it is believed, fled to Mexico, leaving last Saturday when the bank closed. J. S. Penfold, father of the girl, said he received a telegram from his daughter dated Sunday and addressed to him at Fort Lupton, saying that she had married Morse. The latter has a wife with whom he lived at 2,046 Welton street.

John Evans, president of the band, said the condition of the bank would not be affected, as it was fully covered by insurance.

A reward of $1,500 for the arrest of Morse and an additional 5 per cent. of all the money recovered has been offered by the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland.

Officials said Morse went to the bank well recommended. Miss Penfold's employment began on May 18, 1920, as a comptometer operator. Soon after she became an employee, Morse, it is said, began paying her marked attention. The two were seen together frequently in an automobile which Morse bought last year, despite the fact that he was blocks of the bank living with his wife within two

No suspicion of the theft occurred to the bank's officers until Morse failed to report for work, and his wife stated that she had not seen him since Saturday. An examination of the books revealed the defalcation.

Morse is said to have told his wife that he purchased the automobile last winter in order to engage in the taxi business as a side venture. Miss Penfold's father said Morse always represented himself as unmarried.

"Had I known he was married, I probably would have used a shotgun on him," said Mr. Penfold.

NEVER WANTED TO GET UP MORNINGS

HAD BEEN GOING DOWN HILL FOR A YEAR BUT TANLAC SOON BUILDS HIM UP AGAIN.

"I was in a badly run-down condition and needed something to build me up, and Tanlac certainly proved to be the right medicine for me," said Mrs. W. H. Allison, 68 Melbourne avenue, Toronto.

"I was in miserable health for a whole year and felt tired and drowsy all the time. I never felt like getting up in the morning, and my appetite was so poor I barely managed to eat enough to keep me up. Many days I couldn't do my housework, and the least exertion left me comiche Curate of Lindsay preached the normal weight and my wretched health worried me no little.

"Well, it surely was a delight to me when I noticed a great improvement in my appetite after taking my first two bottles of Tanlac, and I saw then that it was a wonderful medicine. I am perfectly well now, can eat anything I want, nothing hurts me and I feel strong and well all the time. I can do my housework without a bit of trouble. Tanlac is simply grand."

DIVORCEE, THEN BRIDE, ALL WITHIN 10 MINUTES

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—And so, after grief and heartache and tragedy, the life of Mary Arsluckas was made happy by action of a divorce court.

Mary and Athony Arsluckas became husband and wife May 30, 1918, Mary told Judge Harry J. Dingeman to-day in a contested divorce case against Anthony. He promptly slapped her nose and deserted her, she said. Some time later she met him on the streets and he showed her a paper which he said was his divorce decree. Thereupon she was married to Leo Jacosky, and they now have a child. Then Mary found out that Anthony really had not divorced her. So she started to remedy matters by getting a divorce herself.

Under the law, Judge Dingeman was compelled to grant Anthony the divorce, and as soon as it was signed Mary and Jacosky, the father of her child, hurried to the Marriage License Bureau, two floors down, got their license, and were married in about 10 minutes after the divorce was granted.

48 NATIONS WILL BE REPRESENTED GENEVA ASSEMBLY

Nearest Approach to World-Wide Conference Ever Held.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the first of a series of advance articles on the coming session of the League of Nations Assembly.

By HENRY WOOD

GENEVA, Aug. 22.—The Second (United Press Staff Correspondent) General Assembly of the League of Nations, which will begin a month's session here on September 5, will constitute the nearest approach to a world-wide congress that has ever taken place.

Official advices recieved by the Secretariat from the forty-eight states now members of the league, announce that all will have delegations present. Among the forty-eight delegations there will be representatives from at least two former enemy states, namely, Austria, and Bulgaria. These were admitted to membership during the closing hours of the first assembly in December of last year.

In addition it is practically certain that Hungary's application for membership which has already been received will be accepted in time to permit of her participation in at least a portion of the assembly's work.

In the event Germany applies for membership, there is little doubt but she will also be admitted, although a fight might possibly be put up to delay her admission until towards the close of the Assembly so that she could not begin full active participation in the league until the 1922 assembly.

With the certain admission of Hungary and the very probable admission of Germany, only four great states will then remain out of the league, namely, the United States, Russia, Mexico and Turkey.

This year there will be little if any question of organization to be disposed of, as the league is already functioning fully, and there will be very little new business.

One of the new items that must be passed upon, however and which promises a sharp conflict is the request of Bolivia to revise her treaty of 1904 with Chili, under the terms of which she is cut off from access to the sea.

The assembly will also be called upon to pass upon the report of the work done by the Council since the last assembly and which will include the settlement of the Aalands island dispute between Finland and Sweden; the settlement of the Dantzig and Polish controversy and the progress made towards the final settlement of he Polish-Lithuanian-Vilna affair.

The assembly must also give final decision on the famous Argentine amendment which resulted in the withdrawal of the Argentine delegation ast year. This amendment would entitle every state to admission in the league except those who did not wish to join.

In addition the assembly will pass upon the progress made by its various commissions for disarmament, the supression of opium and the white slave traffic; the establishment of the league's economic blockade; the establishment of an international health organization; the progress of hte International Bureau and the establishment of the league's International Court of Justice at the Hague.

WHEN WILL YOU DIE?

A POISONED SYSTEM SOON DECAYS.

Ninety per cent. of us die 20 years before we should; we neglect ourselves by forgetting we have a Liver. When the Liver is not working our system becomes glogged with all sorts of poisons, causing Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, etc. There is only one drug known that acts directly upon the Liver and that is Tanated Calomel. Doctors say you should take one before meals and at bedtime, and in one to five days you will feel 100 per cent. better. You cannot expect to live long or feel well if you do not take care of your Liver. When your Liver does not exeret bile into the intestines, the waste collects in the bowels and is carried away by the blood causing all sorts of aches and pains.

Tanated Calomel is sold by F. C. Webber, Charlotte street.

DRY AGENTS WIPE OUT A MOONSHINE VILLAGE

SAVANNAH, Aug. 23.—A moonshine village on a canal bank, deep in a swamp along the Ogeechee River, was destroyed by prohibition officers. The inhabitants fled into the swamp. The village had every appearance of having been in existence for at least a year, the raiders said. Ten big stills were in operation along the canal banks. There were 211 fermenters, 1,500 gallons of beer made of black-strap and meal, 65 10-gallon kegs of whiskey. All the paraphernalia was destroyed.

31 CIGAR STORES ROBBED SINCE JAN. 1.

Increasing Number Alarming United Co. Employees —Surety Concerns May Act.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The increasing number of robberies in the stores of the United Cigar Stores Company is causing widespread alarm among its employes, William Bernstein, chief of the company's detective staff, said yesterday after two more hold-ups in branches in Manhattan and Brooklyn had been reported. Mr. Bernstein said the number of robberies in the 400 retail branches of the company in this city since Jan. 1 totalled thirty-one.

Not only have the clerks been terrorized, Mr. Bernstein said, but the surety companies are threatening to raise the rates for insurance. Comparatively, he said, Chicago stores have suffered more than those in New York—the total number of hold-ups of United stores there has been twenty among 148 stores.

Robbers entered a United Cigar store at 81 Eighth avenue, near Fifty-third street, yesterday morning, and at the point of a revolver forced John Barry, the clerk to open a safe and hand over the contents, about $90. Entrance of a customer while the robbery was going on did not disturb the hold-up men, Barry said. One of them, he told, held him crouched behind the counter, with the revolver pressed against him, while the other cooly "waited on" the customer.

Later in the day robbers entered another United Cigar store at 331 Livingston St, Brooklyn, and took $160 by similar methods.

Total Money Loss Slight.

Police Inspector Coughlin and his men have co-operated effectively with the company's detectives in running down the thieves, Mr. Bernstein said. Nine men have been caught and twelve hold-ups cleared up through the arrests. The courts have been drastic in imposing penalties on the hold-up men, the sentences running from five to ten years. The total money loss has not been large, according to Mr. Bernstein. It was less than $4,000 for the thirty-one hold-ups, he estimated. New gangs are being organized constantly, and these, for the most part, operate in quiet sections, where there is only one clerk in the store, Mr. Bernstein said.

An outside shelf that may or may not be let down when not in use, and placed near the back door, is of the greatest convenience when vegetables are gathered from the garden.

Small handbags are bullletined for the coming season.

ECONOMIES IN FARM OPERATION.

Silo Makes Dairying More Productive—Forage Crops Yield Cheaper Hogs.

By THE COUNTRYMAN.

It is better to give the lawn or garden a thorough soaking once a week than to sprinkle lightly every day or two. Wetting the surface of the ground tends to draw the plant roots upward, where they are likely to suffer most during a dry spell.

A silo provides the cheapest winter feed for cattle and keeps the milk flowing when prices are highest. Cows like silage for the same reason that most persons like canned fruit better than dried apples. A corn crop is worth one-fourth more when put in a silo than when fed in the form of fodder. When early frosts threaten, the silo will save the soft corn and prevent a feed shortage. No progressive dairy farmer can afford to carry on his business without a silo.

Pasture crops when combined with fattening feeds will produce the cheapest rations for both breeding and fattening hogs. The cost of grains will range from one-sixth to one-fourth cheaper than when the grain is fed in a dry lot.

As no single pasture crop fulfills the forage requirements for an entire season, it is best to count on supplying several kinds of crops. Change of pasture is good for the hogs and the pasture as well, for it gives variety.

An implement shed for housing the farm machinery is one of the best paying investments. It adds many years to the life of the machines and saves constant annoyance and delay occasioned by breakdowns which are due to exposure. No machine can stand out in the weather and dust and then operate efficiently a week or a month or a season hence.

Expensive construction need not enter into the machine shed. It is little more than a framework to carry a roof and walls that will keep out the weather. Avoid interior posts as much as possible, for they obstruct and reduce the storage space to a great extent. By all means equip the shed with plenty of doors. It is a good plan to have the least exposed side of the building all doors, which can be made to slide, so that any part of the shed is readily entered.

The waste of woman-power is one of the greatest menaces to the rural life of the Nation, according to the investigations of specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The working day of the average farm woman, as shown by surveys, is 11.3 hours the year round. In summer it is 13.12 hours. And eighty-seven out of each 100 women have no regular vacation.

The installation of running water, a bathroom, a modern heating system, a lighting system, power to run the washing machine, churn and other labor-saving implements would release these women from most of the drudgery. In other words, the farm home should be as well equipped as the up-to-date barn, which the practical farmer has now come to believe is a necessity.

Apples intended for cider and vinegar should be well ripened. In this state they contain the greatest amount of juice and the sugar and flavor are fully matured. A reliable guide as to the value of an apple for cider is the quality of the fruit when eaten. If it is pleasant to the taste and juicy it will make an agreeable cider.

Use clean fruit. It pays to wash the apples before grinding, because if there is earth clinging to them and frequently this earth is scarcely visible, it will impart an earthy flavor to the cider. If possible, do the cider making in a clean room, free from flies, and be sure that the press and everything having to do with the work have been washed. Cleanliness is an important element.

Only sound fruit makes good cider. There is no objections to cutting away unsound portions if the labor of so doing will permit. A bushel of apples, weighing about forty pounds, should make from two to three gallons of cider. Much depends upon the juiciness of the fruit and how well it has been ground and pressed. For use as sweet cider there is nothing further to be done except to strain the liquid into a cask or other receptacle.

Cabbages that are likely to burst can be saved by partly removing from the soil. Bursting is usually caused by over-development, due to excessive moisture. Go through the patch when the cabbages are about mature and note those which are apt to burst if the heads become much larger.

Pull the roots of such heads partly out of the soil, the idea being to break off some roots, leaving merely enough to sustain life. Growth is checked in this way, as there will not be much moisture carried up from the roots to the center of the head. A great deal of damage can be prevented by this trick.

All vegetables should be picked before they become too mature. Not only will they have a better flavor, but the producing period of many plants can be prolonged in this way. Once let a plant go to seed and growth ceases.

HELD FOR UNTRUE GOSSIP.

Man Arrested When Guaranty Trust Employes Overhear His Talk.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.— Action was brought yesterday by the Guaranty Trust Company against William E. Bell, 40 years old, of 971 Summit Avenue, the Bronx, charged with circulating "derogatory and untrue statements affecting the solvency of a bank.' The complainant was Matthew T. Murray Jr., Secretary of the trust company.

Bell, who once managed a travel bureau, was standing in front of he Guaranty Trust Company at Nassau and Liberty Streets when two bank employes heard him say something which they construed as tending to injure the bank. They caused his arrest.

Arraigned in the Toombs Court before Magistrate Corrigan, Bell said that his "present financial and physical condition was caused by a statement issued by the trust company." Later he asserted that when he was a depositor with the company while managing travel bureau the trust company issued a statement regarding his financial condition, which ruined him.

Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company, said last night that he knew nothing about Bell, although he had heard of his arrest.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Clerk Accused of Impersonating Business Men at Banks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Arthur E. Ollson, clerk in the auditing department of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, started his vacation last Saturday. Early that morning he put his wife and the two young Ollsons into the new touring car he had just acquired and headed over the highways of Stamford, N. L., for two weeks of rest and recreation.

Last night he was locked up in Police Headquarters charged with forgery, the complaint being sworn to by officials of the Metropolitan. According to the accusations, Ollson since July 26 had forged drafts for about $100,000, manipulating his books to cover the alleged embezzlements and impersonating prominent business men in opening accounts in various banks. Since July 26, according to the police, Ollson had established accounts in ten savings banks, and had generally begun to look up in the world.

According to Detective Dunphy of the Old Slip Station, and Detective Wagner of the Pinkertons, who brought Ollson from Stamford to Police Headquarters last night, the 26-year-old clerk, who earned $50 a week, began to make admissions as he walked down Center Street, with the big gray headquarters looming up ahead.

As the detectives told the story, officials of the Metropolitan first became aware of the alleged irregularities early on Monday morning. Ollson had written up his books to date before he left at noon on Saturday, but the customary precautionary audit was undertaken when several of the company's drafts of warrants were presented for clearing by messengers of various banks. Officials who had scanned the signatures to them were said to have become suspicious and called in the Pinkertons.

Investigation, according to the police, revealed that Ollson, representing himself to be "C. Fred Johnson," described as a Boston manufacturer, had established an account in the Chatham and Phenix National Bank, 149 Broadway. Further investigation, the detectives added, located more bank accounts which the clerk was alleged to have opened under the names of "Morrison," "Thompson" and other aliases.

According to their allegations, Ollson learned that on July 25 last Johnson went to the Metropolitan offices at 1 Madison Avenue, and obtained a company check for $18,000, which was to be delivered to him. Later an official of the insurance company signed the check and it was sent out. According to the charges in the insurance company's complaint, Ollson forged another check, a duplicate of the one issued to Mr. Johnson, and deposited it on July 26 in the Chatham and Phenix National Bank.

At various dates since then the charge was that Ollson had repeated his performance on other checks. One was for $37,000 and another for $45,000.

The detectives said that Ollson, after depositing the forged checks would redeposit, either under his own name or an assumed one. The police said they had found one such account in the Bank for Savings, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-second Street. This account, they said, was for $4,500, while amounts averaging this were in nine other savings institutions. Ollson told them, they added, that the bank books for these accounts were in a downtown safety deposit box.

CANNING VEGETABLES AT HOME

By G. R. FUNK

If you have a son and a daughter, or a pair of twins, and I were to ask you which you thought the more of, the boy or the girl, this twin or that, you couldn't possibly tel me. Nether can I tell you which I like better—glass jarring or tin canning.

First, I looked at my shelves of jarred foods ready for instant use and say jarred foods have my preference. Then I look at the shelves of tinned foods and say tinned foods have their advantages. And I hope I'm duly thankful for both jars and tins and all that is in them.

Never will I part with my glass jars, some of every kind that's made, and never will I remove my tin-can sealer from the end of my kitchen table. It is a part of my kitchen furniture, just as much as is the table itself. The sole object of both is to expediate my work.

Tin canning at home is no experiment. Our grandmothers used tin cans and laboriously and uncertainly sealed them with wax. The wax served its day and purpose. Our mothers and we have glass-jarred foods successfully, swiftly, savingly, these many years. We've just begun to measure the saving it is, to vision the larger responsibilities of glass jars as labor saver.

Then here and there an inventive mind turned out a successful mechanical tin sealer that we could fasten to the kitchen table and reel tinned food through at the rate of about two cans a minute.

I don't believe that any other generation of women has had the fun out of kitchen performances that this one has. Every season brings us an implement that will take the place of two or three that we've been using. Out the old ones go.

I didn't adopt tin canning as a part of my present kitchenry till I had tried it out on many foods.

I tinned baked beans, macaroni and cheese, macaroni and ham, macaroni and fish, macaroni and sausage, noodles and hamburg steak, noodles and mutton, cranberries, dried prunes peaches, pears, peas and several plum puddings before I decided that a tin-can sealer should hereafter be a permanent part of my apparatus, ready to hem on a few lids at a moment's notice. In tin canning all you need is a supply of tins, foodstuffs, a sealer and something to sterilize in—a wash boiler, steam cooker or pressure cooker.

One decidedly convenient and pleasing feature of tin-canning foods is that scalloped dishes, jellied meats and puddings may be turned out whole, thus preserving the scallop. Add crumb or chacker crust, seasoned and moistened, and brown in oven. In opening the tins, use the can opener below the top him—the seal—instead of on the top of the lid. This ensures clean emptying and the contents coming out unbroken. One mechanical sealer has an opener and reflanger so that tins may be used a second and third time by getting new lids. When the cost of tins and extra lids is trifling, it is worth while to work this saving in to the general plan of thrift which every American housewife must bestir herself to work out in order to get living conditions righted. Who has not passed a pile of tin cans, once used and discarded, and wondered if they might not be used again? In many thousand homes, hotels, school dormitories and hospitals, tins are being used three times and have been for several years past.

Blanching and Sterilizing

Whether tinning or jarring I never blanch anything except greens, asparagus, peas, Brussels sprouts, to bring out bright color; beets tomatoe and peaches, to loosen skins; corn to set milk; dry or shell beans, to remove acrid flavor and swell; macaroni, noodles, spaghetti and vermicelli, to prevent pieces sticking together. For eight years I've bleached these, except the first year, when I blanched everything.

It takes a heroine to handle blanched carrots, parsnips, sweet potatoes, and so forth. It doubles the time and work of canning. I can each vegetable by the hundred pounds. I'm - well, strong woman, not often overtired when my family comes home, but when I blanched everything they left a steaming house in he morning and came back to the same scene at night—except that I looked brave in the morning and very wilted and disgusted at night.

The next year I took the bit in my teeth. The principle on which food is put into containers and kept indefinitely, till some part of the contained deteriorates, is: Sterile food in sterile, air-tight jars or tins.

I determined to cut out blanching but to stress the sterilizing. I scrubbed vegetables thoroughly and rinsed well; packed jars and tins snugly; added a teaspoonful of salt to each quart; filled up with boiling water to within half an inch of the top; put lids on glass jars almost tight and put into the cooker. Then I steriized — about 20 minutes longer than the schedule in a boiler or a steam cooker, five minutes longer in the pressure cooker.

My stuff kept. I've always gone on the theory that unless you violate a principle you can map out your own course to a goal. Each woman has only about so much strength and so much sweetness. She should figure to turn off her work so that she may have a little of both left. (Sometimesc she has to break away from other peoples methods and adopt shorter cuts for herself.

In tin-canning, I prefer enamel-lined tins. They cost a trifle more a hundred, but are worth it for the sense of greater safety alone. The sanitary or rim-seal can requires one implement only, a mechanical sealer, while cap-and hole tins require a soldering set, any item of which, if missing, makes the set useless.

Fill the cans with any fruit, any vegetable, soup, meat, pudding, macaroni or noodle combination spaghetti, vermicelli, or any food your family may like.

In case of fruits, pour over hot syrup; in case of vegetables, hot water. Don't fill the can quite full

DRUG ADDICTS IN SING SING.

Prison Records Show 800 Per Cent. Increase Since Prohibition.

OSSINING, Aug. 23.—Statistics prepared by r. Amos O. Squire, head physician of Sing Sing, and made public to-day show a great increase in the number of drug addicts received at the prison since prohibition has been in force.

For five years previous to the enactment of war-time prohibition the number of drug-users coming to the prison had steadily dwindled. In the last three years, however, the increase has eben 800 per cent.

Sor the year ending June 30, 1919, eleven drug addicts were received. In the next fiscal year thirty were admitted and in the fiscal year ending June 30 last ninety-three drug users came to prison.

Salvation Army Bandsman's Testimonial in Favour of Dr. Henddrson's Herb Tablets

Mr. Russell Reeve, 23 Cornhill St, Chatham, Ont., says:

Gentlemen: Just a few lines to thank you for the wonderful benefit I have received from Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment. For 25 years or more I have suffered from Catatrh of the head, brought on by going under the water too much. I had a very disagreeable discharge from my ear, which was very annoying as well as loathsome. I had tried several different treatments that were recommended to me, but they did not appear to help me. I purchased a box of your Herb Treatment and after using it for a time the discharge had ceased and it has never bothered me for over a year. I am certainly grateful to your agent for ever selling them to me. You can use this letter in any way that you choose for the benefit of others.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are not a "Cure all." It is simply a combination of herbs, roots, barks and juice of fruits that act directly upon the important internal organs, aiding them to perform their functions properly and thus to expel wastes and poisons from the system. In this natural way the body is given a thorough internal cleansing and then the forces of Nature can act vigorously and freely in rebuilding and restoring the affected parts. Try a box and watch the results. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per box at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough.

CORNCOBS MAY SOON GIVE GAS FOR THE MOTOR.

Even Sewer Gas is Now Being Used to Propel Automobiles.

(By HERBERT COREY.)

WASHINGTON.—One of these days the up-to-date farmer will say to his son John:

"Johnny, let's throw a handful of corncobs into the Big Eight and go to town. Whassay?"

Whereupon the boy will fire up the large red automobile that in the days to come will stand in the farmer's lane, just as the mowing machine and the threshing machine and last year's model of patent churn do now. And they will flit away to the county seat and flit back again when the night comes, when men do chores. And the total cost of fuel for the flitting will be about a nickel. Less than that, in fact. For today a corncob has no known value. Pity young John D. Rockefeller. Think of the depreciation in those billions of dollars of tanks and pipe lines his aged father has so carefully piled together for him.

Think Cheaper Fuel Possible.

Maybe this sounds like a dream. "Run an automobile on a handful of corncobs? The man's nutty. The house is haunted. There are hair trunks in his attic." But it isn't that way at all. It may be true that the Bureau of Chemistry doesn't precisely stand for the story as yet, one reason being that until the Bureau of Chemistry gets a lot more money for experimenting than it has been able to pry out of a reluctant Congress it cannot prove that this forecast is fairly reasonable and sane. But the Bureau of Chemistry wants money for the express purpose of proving this. It is safe to say that the bureau thinks a better and cheaper fuel than gasoline is easily possible from waste.

"Good old sewer gas will do it," said one enthusiastic chemist. "Marsh gas, you know. The sort that blows up a cellar every now and then."

Every one knows that sewer gas is highly explosive. If it could be easily handled it could drive a gas engine just as easily as it does a manhole cover now and then. It is the product of decaying waste, to be as simpe and non-technical as possibe. For years chemists have had the thought of making use of this sewer gas.

Much Power Going to Waste.

Some one once said that there is more power going to waste in the decaying stalks of the cotton in the south than is being piped in all our gasoline. Some one up in Canada is making a gas out of straw decomposed in a retort with which threshing engines and the like are being driven. But the new idea for handling sewer gas seems to have come from the Philippides.

In 1917, Otis Warren Barrett, one of the field men for the Department of Agriculture, was in the East Indian islands at work. Barrett has a score or more of big-time discoveries to his credit in his work for the Government. He was engaged in trying to get badly wanted material and was so successful that an effort was male by a German agent to assassinate him. During his spare time he thought the marsh gas problem over and finally did some experimenting in a small way and with some crude borrowed apparatus. Then his work called him away and he dropped the matter.

No Storage Tank Needed.

"But I produced a gas that would run an engine," he said to a chemically inclined acquaintance.

Possibly it is only a coincidence, but not long ago a report came to the Bureau of Chemistry from the Philippines that a process had been devised by which a small tractor hauled a plough for two days at a fuel cost of 18 cents. Neither gasoline nor coal oil nor benzine nor any of the other known fuels was used. Instead gas was made from waste in a little retort on the machine and was burned as it was produced. No heavy storage tank was needed to weight down the machine and possibly blow up the engineer.

"We'd better look into this," said the Bureau of Chemistry. But, having no penny they're not getting any, as the old rhyme has it. When it gets an appropriation it will try to find out what it is the inventor in Manila has discovered. Meanwhile the theory is that the Barrett plan to run superheated steam over a bed of live charcoal is being used. In this way a mechanically produced sewer gas is created, piped into the motor, and burned precisely the same as gasoline gas is burned. If a tractor can haul a plough for two days at a cost of 18 cents a handful of corncobs, made into charcoal should haul an automobile for a good many miles.

FRENCH WOMEN BLAMED AS SMOKING INCREASE

They and the War Are Held Responsible for Growing use of Tobacco in France.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—France is smoking nearly 9,000 tons of tobacco a year more than before the war. The biggest increase is in pipe tobacco, though the increase in the number of cigarettes consumed is about 2,000,000 kilograms.

The war is blamed for the increase and women are given a share of blame, if any is attached.

Even middle-class French women—among the most conservative and properly behaved in the world—seem to be fast succumbing to the smoking habit, in which English and American women have set the example. So far, however, their smoking is a very private affair in the seclusion of their own homes. In restaurants and public places only American and English women smoke, and those French women who do not belong to any social world. No well-bred French woman of the same class as those English and American women who thus transgress would think of doing so, though how long her manners in the matter are going to resist the increase in the habit is a question which a few years will answer.

Meanwhile protests are coming from the men. Many have been shocked by the number of American and English women who in the last season have indulged in the cigarette smoking in public with a freedom which a Frenchman associates only with Bohemia and the demi-monde. M. Alexandre Duval, a famous restaurateur and one of the last of the "dandies" declares:

"To smoke in public is always bad taste in a woman. In private she may be pardonel if she does it with sufficient elegance."

CHECK YOUR BOWEL TROUBLES BY USING DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

When you are troubled with diarrhoea, dysentery, colic cramps and pains in the stomach, cholera, cholera morbus, summer complaint, bloody fluxes, or any looseness of the bowels be sure and obtain a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's" and see how quickly it gives you relief. This wonderful remedy has been on the market for the past 76 years and we wish to warn you against accepting a substitute which may be dangerous to your health.

Mr. Samuel Buckler, Tatamagouche, N. S., writes:—"While visiting in Western Canada I had a severe attack of diarrhoea. After trying many proprietary medicines I got no relief, but kept getting worse. I was advised to take Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I lost no time in doing so. I cannot hesitate in recommending it most highly, for when I had not yet taken half the bottle I was relieved. I must say that if "Dr. Fowler's" is given a fair trial it will show its good qualities."

BACK FROM AFRICA; SAW VICIOUS GAIVEL

It's Like a Crocodile, Only More So, and Likes White Meat.

NEW YORK, August 23. — Edward Barclay, a mining engineer ot India, returned on the Red Star liner Lapland, after spending two and a half years at Tsikafa on the head waters of the Belgian Congo, where he had been prospecting for oil. He brought back four elephant tusks, each ten feet long.

Apart from being bitten by an unfriendly lion or trodden by a wandering gaivel, Mr. Barclay said the Kassai country was a good place to sojourn. The natives he said, had been cannibals before he went to live at Tsikafa, but kindness combined with firmness, had cured them of the habit.

"The Belgian authorities will not allow hunting of elephants in the district under their control except by special permission," he said. "We had lions, leopards, and all kinds of deer and antelope, but the chief supply of food was sheep and goats.

"While bathing in the Kassai River, we found that it was inhabited by the gaivel which is a cross between the Egyptian crocodile and the South American alligator. It has four web feet and two tusks, which turn upward through the snout. The reptile will attack a man in the water and prefers white meat to dark. The younger species are very good eating."

Mr. Barclay brought with him a fine specimen of the gaivel, 11 feet 6 inches long, which he shot and stuffed. It had been generally supposed that this particular member of the saurian tribe was only to be found in the unfrequented rivers of Bhootani, India.

The lions do not give any trouble to the white inhabitants in that part of the country, except that in their snoring on the veranda at night disturbed the children.

He said that he did not find any oil or gold but said that he had enjoyed his stay in the interior of Africa and was looking forward to going back again.

Other passengers on the Lapland, were Mrs. Mary Fels, widow of Jos. Fels, a well known American soap manufacturer, who had been in Palestine for six months buying land for Zionists, and Israel Blumenthal, 21 years old, a Palestinian, who had come to America to study agriculture.

The Red Star Line agents wanted to land Blumenthal at Cherbourg because they said the quota for Palestine at Ellis Island for August was full but the French authorities would not permit Blumenthal to go ashore. There was no delay here in admitting him.

LAKE ORION STIRRED BY VISIONS ON BEACH

Midnight Bathers Forget to Dress After Dip, is Report.

PONTIAC, August 23. — September Morn has a rival in August Eyes at Lake Orion.

Since the full of the moon, according to reports to A. Floyd Blakeslee, prosecuting attorney, residents of the resort town have been shocked almost nightly by the visions on the beach. After their midnight swim, it is reported, the young sirens emerge from the lake, and clad only in their flowing and sparkling tresses ,trip lightly back and forth along the beach or bask in the moonlight while reclining on the sand.

It was stated that the "back to nature" parties are not mixed.

YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE NO TIME FOR STUDIES?

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 22.—Jazz, short skirts, bobbed hair, freakish styles and automobile parties are partly responsible for the fact that modern young folks study less intensively than their parents, says Edward T. Downer, registrar of Adelbert College, Western Reserve University.

Downer says this is due to the great after effects of the war. He cited the fact that of 1,500 graduates of Cleveland high schools who applied for entrance to Adelbert College, only 40 per cent., or 600, have been accepted.

Downer, however, does not say the moral standards of the boys and girls of to-day have declined with the educational standards. "I am a supporter of the present tendency of more liberties for girls and women. But it has had a distracting effect. As soon as young people become adjusted to the new conditions and these customs are accepted as being normal, the student again will reach the pre-war standard."

PETERBORO'S FISH AND GAME YIELDS REVENUE OF $250,000

AND THIS IS MINIMUM ESTIMATE OF THE ANNUAL VALUE OF NATURAL RESOURCES WHICH THE FISH AND GAME PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION ARE STRIVING TO CONSERVE.

LAWS ARE VIOLATED

Confirmation of the reports of illegal fishing on a large scale at Rice Lake last spring and first-hand evidence that wild ducks are being shot, or at least shot at, on the Otonabee River between Hales and Bensfort Bridges, and also at some points on the lake, were laid before the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association at their meeting last night in the Chamber of Commerce Board Room.

One informant told the members of having seen shipments of fish, aggregating approxmiately three tons, in transit from Gore's Landing to Buffalo. Another stated that illegal fishing at Rice Lake had never been carried on so openly and extensively as this year.

Inspectors Too Few.

"There is only one inspector from Campbellford to the head of Rice Lake," he said, "so how can you expect the law to be enforced. I never saw so many and such pretty jacklights as they used at the lake this year."

Corroborative evidence proving the truth of the rumours of the "night riding" automobiles from Peterborough to Rice Lake and back during the closed season last spring was also given, and the general impression left was that the worst conditions imagined from the reports that reached the city of this flouting of the law were all too true.

On the other hand were related the recent experience of several tourists who had come back from the Kawartha Lakes practically empty-handed, whereas in other seasons they had invariably had some fish to take home with them.

Here was the causes and the results of a condition which the Fish and Game Protective Association have set out to remedy both by persuasion and by the enforcement of the law.

$250,000 Yearly Asset.

R. J. Soden, president, pointed out that the association is concerned about the depletion of game in Peterborough County not solely for selfish reasons, although these weigh with the individual member, but also from the standpoint of the revenue which the fish, feather, and fur game bring to West Peterborough.

Estimating that total at its lowest figure, Mr. Soden said that fishermen and hunters, tourists in general, spent $250,000 annually in this district. Hence, he contended, the association was justified in appealing to all residents of the city and county who desired the conservation of the game resources, and especially to the business men, for their active interest and support.

Will Plant Wild Rice.

Mr. Soden gave the members a report of the meeting of the Provincial Association, and of an interview with Deputy-Minister McDonald, who promised, among other improvements, to plant wild rice and wild celery in those parts of the local waters where these plants once abounded.

Mr. C. G. Graham, secretary of the association, made a list of the places mentioned by members, at Rice Lake, Pigeon Creek, the Trent, and sections of the Kawarthas, and will forward it to the Department.

It was understood from the promises made that the rice would be sown this fall, and celery would be put out next spring.

Rights of Indians.

Last night's meeting attracted a large representation of the members in spite of the fact that many of them are holidaying. One of the questions quite freely discussed was how the Indians in this district might be made to realise the folly of fishing and shooting in the closed seasons.

Mr. Soden said that from infonmation he had received, the Indians had no more right to fish than had white men. Their rights were identical. He believed the Indians were permitted to take what black rice they needed, but he questioned whether they could reap the entire harvest just as they willed. It was understood that white men were not perted to gather rice, but it seemed strange to the members that the Indians could export as much as five tons, as reported of last year's crop, thereby requiring the Government to seed in places where the rice beds should be renewed by the natural process of reproduction.

Mr. Soden stated that Dan Whetung, of Curve Lake, realised the importance of protecting the fish and wild ducks, and was willing to join the association and use all his influence in promoting the ends for which it was organised.

Will Invite Minister.

To enlist the fullest co-operation of the Fish and Game Department in the work of the local association, it was decided, on a motion by Mr. T. Brightman, seconded by Mr. W. Ackerman, to invite the Minister and Deputy-Minister of Lands, Forests, and Mines to a dinner to be held here at their convenience, probably in October, and the following committee was appointed, on the motion of Mr. J. J. Howden, seconded by Mr. Harry Evans, to make the arrangements for the dinner—Messrs. W. C. Ackerman, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, C. Coones, and G. G. Graham.

While the Minister is here, it is expected that time will permit to take him on a visit to the head of Mud Lake, where Mr. Brightman recommends the establishment of a fish hatchery. He and Mr. Soden recently examined it, and both were convinced that at a small cost a hatchery could be built sufficient to supply this entire district with bass and maskalonge fry.

Game Laws Revised.

Mr. Soden advised the members to procure copies of the revised game laws. Five of the seven recommendations made by the Provincial association had been adopted by the Governmnt and incorporated in this year's regulations. One of them permits deer hunters to obtain a club license if they wish it. The cost shall be borne by the members of the club, and will permit them to shoot one deer for the club's use while in camp.

Another amendment allows the shooting of deer in the water, and a third provides that a hunter with a deer license may shoot a bear, fox, or other specified animal on condition that he goes to a game warden as soon as possible and pays a royalty, the royalty not to exceed 50 cents for a bear pelt.

Hunters' Referendum.

When deer licenses are issued this year, a ballot will be given with each one, which Mr. Soden urged every hunter to use. It entitled him to a vote on the question as to whether dogs should be run or not. This year the old practice of using dogs during the hunting season will be continued, but permission for next year will depend upon the result of the hunters' referendum.

In the local association, at a previous meeting, only one member, when a show of hands was called for, was in favour of banning dogs from the chase, a proposal which is being urged upon the Government by certain propagandists throughout the Province.

The Government will discover the opinion of the hunters by the vote which they will take this season by means of the ballots or coupons which will be distributed with the licenses, and Mr. Soden reminded the members that they should not overlook this means of expressing their wishes.

BRITISH COLUMBIA TO KEEP TOURISTS IN PROVINCE

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 22.—Capitalizing the scenic beauties of British Columbia by building government hotels at attractive points in the province, improvement of roads and motor facilities, and opening of government tourists bureaus in the most important cities at which tourits could buy strip tickets to points of interest and thus be kept within the province, is being considered by the provincial government, following representations made by prominent citizens.

One member of the Dail informed the United Press to-day that the situation had changed recently and that its delicacy demanded the most cautious handling to avoid its being upset. This statement was typical of the information the correspondents are getting to-day.

BILL EMPOWERS U. S. TO CANCEL ALLIES' DEBTS

Finance Committee Reports Favorably to Senate—Secretary Given Free Hand.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.— The administration bill providing for refunding the $11,000,000,000 allied debts to the United States was favorably reported to the Senate by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, chairman of the finance committee. The measure has been amended to provide for the refunding to be completed in five years.

Senator Lafollette, Wisconsin, at the same time submitted a minority report.

The bill gives the secretary of the treasury sweeping authority to refund and to extend the time of payment of the principal or interest of any obligation of any foreign government owing to the United States arising out of the European war. He is authorized to convert these obligations into bonds of debtor nations or of any other foreign government, and to receive bonds of any foreign government in substitution for those now or hereafter held by the United States.

"The indebtedness of the foreign countries to the United States, actually exists," the report states, "and it is necessary that some one be authorized promptly to deal with the situation it presents. After carefully considering the committee approved the proposed bill as amended as affording the best and most practicable method of handling the matter."

RICKARD TO FIGHT FILM BAN CASE

Says Law Will Not Hold; Women Caused Arrest.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Tex Rickard, promoter of the Dempsey-Carpentier boxing bout, has departed for New York, after having been arrested by federal officials and held in $10,000 bonds, on a charge of violating the law prohibiting interstate transportation of fight films. The maximum penalty is a $1,000 fine and a year imprisonment.

Rickard exhibited the films of the Dempsey-Carpentier match Wednesday night before an audience of wounded soldiers. A complaint was made by a woman's club. Before departing Rickard said he had left instructions that the films be shown to the soldiers and marines in the Marine Hospital and at Camp Grant.

"It is the poor man that is hit by the ban on these pitcures," he said. "The rich man can pay the price of seats at the fight itself, but the poor man is not even permitted to see the films."

Rickard declares that he would fight the case to a finish and expressed the belief that the law he was said to have violated would not hold.

CENSUS RETURNS DO INJUSTICE TO PETERBORO CITY

W. J. HENRY, ASSESSOR, CONFIDENT MANY RESIDENTS WERE MISSED.

The census returns for Peterborough, showing a population of 20,989, may be accepted as the official enumeration, but citizens are confident that it is inaccurate and consequently unjust to this city. Last year's count by the assessment department credited Peterborough with 21,790 souls, and no one will believe that there has been a loss of 1,000 in the last twelve months.

"I wouldn't say that we have more people than last year," Mr. W. J. Henry, city assessor, remarked today; "in fact we might show a little decline, but certainly we have more than 20,989. It is claimed that the census covered everybody, but only those who know the city as I do can realize how many families and boarders were probably missed. In the centre of the city there are quite a few flats over stores that can be reached only through lanes and entrances off back yards. Then I know of families that were away on holidays, some at Chemong, others down the river. These, I feel sure, were missed, and they are only a few of the class of citizens whom the assessor must know and does know, but were more than likely unknown to the census takers.

"The Examiner had an editorial to the effect that our growth in population for ten years was less than during the preceding ten years. In that earlier decade we took in Ashburnham, but now we have a community from Lansdowne Street and the River extending around to Charlotte Street in North Monaghan that has a population say of 5,000. Those people work in the city, do their business here, and are virtually citizens, but Peterborough doesn't get credit for them in the census figures because they reside in the township. Consider them as residents and you will find that our growth has been sustained and as progressive as ever."

Mr. Henry's report to the Council of the assessment figures, including population, will be presented in September.

CHATHAM, Aug. 23.—Romania, 14-months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lucier, Dover township, was drowned in a tub of water yesterday afternoon. The child was missed only a few minutes and when a search was made the body was found in the tub at the rear of the yard.

MOTOR CAR DITCHED; OCCUPANTS LITTLE HURT

WELLAND, Aug. 23. — While travelling at a rapid rate an automobile driven by J. J. Reutex of Niagara Falls, when coming into Humberstone, was unable to make the turn near the canal bank and went into the ditch. It hit two new telegraph poles lying there, breaking both in several places. Part of one pole entered the side of the car, a new five-passenger McLaughlin which was badly battered and twisted. Neither the driver nor the man with him was seriously hurt, though it is a marvel they were not killed.

REPLACING POUND BY DOLLAR WON'T AFFECT THE EXCHANGE RATE

So Bankers Say of Italy's Action on Lire Basis.

LONDON, Aug. 23. —(Canadian Press.) —Replacement of the pound sterling by the gold dolllar as the standard upon which the Italian lire is based, announced reecntly from Rome, is not likely to affect international exchanges, according to Italian bankers here, who explained that it simply means a change of basis for the calculation of debts payable in gold and similar transactions. The dollar standard has been adpted, it was stated, because the United States is Italy's largest creditor and because New York has become the principal gold market of the world since the war.

ZANA VAUGHN, Leading Lady with the Rex Stock Company coming to the Grand for three days commencing Monday, Aug. 29th.

"The Public will always support a real attraction", is the motto of the of The Rex Company attractions. So managers, Mr. Rex, Says, sell nothing but advertising. The comp any comes along with an attractive line of advertising, a New York run to its credit and the people go to see it. It matters not that the poor play, poor at best perhaps, but put over in New York by a company of real acors, is not the same cast that the public review outside of the Matropolis, they are not allowed to find that out till after they have paid in their two and three dollars. It is not by any means the fault of the local manager, he does all in his power to secure the right Attractions but in his position he is helpless. The Rex Company know from past experiences that the people will heartily support a nice clean clever acting company that present popular plays at popular prices. Rex Snelgrove is a manager who wanders through the show world, putting on plays that he likes, mounting them regardless of expense, and sits back with a look of blank amazement at the wonderful success he has had.

HYDRO POLITICAL PARTY NEXT MOVE

SOME EXPECT THAT SUCH WILL BE LAUNCHED IN FEW WEEKS.

Special Despatch to the Examiner.

ST. THOMAS, August 23. — There is a growing belief in this city that the present controversy over the Hydro Radial question will lead to the formation of a strong new political group known as the 'Hydro-Electrics,' or 'Hydro Radials,' with Sir Adam Beck as leader.

Many persons doubt the sincerity of the government's announced approval of Sir Adam's power development plans and look for attempted set-backs in this direction.

Also, men who have carefully watched events shaping during the past few months predict that the new party will be launched within a few weeks, and will divide many of the O.F.U.-I.L.P. alliances.

DRIVERLESS CAR RAN INTO LAKE ONTARIO

At the botton of Lake Ontario is a Ford coupe, owned by Mrs. Averill, of Hylan Park, Henderson Harbor, Watertown, which ran driverless over a 300 foot cliff near her cottage into Lake Ontario. While charging the batter, after applying the brake, Mrs. Averill left the motor running ,and it is believed that the constant jar loosened the emergency and allowed the car to run down the incline. Before it had reached the bank it had gained considerable momentum. Hopping off at the edge of the precipitous bankw, it sailed merrily downward, making a forced landing in the transparent waters of the lake. The owner carries insurance.

GARLIC MUNCHING HELPS ARTERIES.

So French Physicians Claim After Investigation.

PARIS, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press.)— Garlic munching may become a habit of elderly people who are threatened with hardening of the artries, if there is any virtue in a discovery just made by three famous French physicians.

The report by the doctors to the Biological Society declares that garlic supplies a valuable remedy for arterial tension. The root can be either chewed, eaten with salads or steeped in spirits .If used with spirits it is allowed to steep for three weeks and then injected intravenously at the rate of thirty drops daily.

Many experiments have shown that a week's treatment reduces the blood pressure to practically normal.

THREE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED BPITISH CEMETRIES

Somewhere in France there is a white garden graveyard of British warriors which stands complete, as it will stand through the centuries to come. Its wealth of flowers and wreaths will change and be renewed; its grassed pathways will become smoother still; and cypress trees will grow beside its great Stone of Remembrance. But for the rest it stands as a permanent memorial—one of many—of successive battles of the Somme.

It is a pity it is seen of so few, this garden which is "for ever England." The way to it leads through the abomination of desolation, once the fair valley of the Ancre, through the winding streets of shattered Albert, and out along a lane full of tragi-pleasant memories to Forceville.

Forceville is a cemetery of some three hundred graves—small in comparison with the huge graveyards marking the sites of base hospitals and casualty clearing stations. But it is, indeed, a finished and magnificent monument. Its wide headstones, each bearing a soldier's name, his regimental badge, and his date of death, stand in rows of plants linked by pathways smooth as an English lawn. Wallflowers, narcissi, forget-me-nots, pansies abound—one is dumb before the sweetness of it all. Gunners and Sappers, Inniskillings and Dorsets, men who stumbled through muddy lakes to attack at Serre, and men who perished in the Y-ravine, lie side by side eternally. Their tombs face a tall white Cross of Sacrifice, with a bronze sword laid upon its face, and above their heads, backed by rising moorland and flanked by the dark firs of an old French communal burial-place, an altar like the Stone of Remembrance bears the inscription:

"Their Name Liveth For Evermore."

This little sanctuary at Forceville is just one of 3,500 British cemeteries maintained in France and Flanders. It represents the finished achievement of the imperial commission into whose keeping the Empire intrusted the graves of sons who fell in France and Flanders fields. It is an oasis which many mourners have approached with outstretched arms and left reluctantly a retreat where many have found peace and contentment after troubled search, a temple fuller of the spirit of reverence than great cathedrals. To some travelers, entering it from dusty roads in Artois, from battered streets in northern mining cities, from devastated towns astride the Somme, it has been like a homecoming.

The 3,500 garden graveyards in the area through which ran the British front vary greatly in size, from the vast base cemeteries, and such as record the toll of incessant fighting in the Salient—Poelcappelle has 15,000, and 11,000 lie together near what used to be Remy Siding at Poperinghe—down to the little burying-places dotted about the battlefields, each sheltering a minimum of 40 comrades. At intervals throughout the area one finds a chain of concentral cemeteries where up to two or three or four thousand of our men are buried—Vermelles, Dud Corner at Loos, the Guards interred at Guinchy, the Fauborg d'Amiens at Arras, Windmill Cemetery near Monchy Hill, the terrible Butte de Warlencourt, Grevillers, the Anzac Heath of Villers Bretonneux. The whole front is being transformed into a line of worthy permanent memorials. In the countryside around Ypres, ast of Arras, and in the dead wilderness between Albert and Bapaume, they lie thick upon the ground, remote, but tenderly guarded by those who were once their comrades-in-arms.

ZR-2 MAKES A TRIAL FLIGHT FROM HOWDEN.

Giant Dirigible Has Not Suffered Accident as Reported.

BY CHARLES McCANN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOWDEN, England Aug. 23.—The ZR-2, America's giant dirigible, which will attempt the Atlantic filght next week if weather permits, left its hangar here at 7 a.m. to-day on a trial trip.

Reports that accidents had hampered the construction of the ZR-2 and that her flight might be postponed until next year were emphatically denied here and in London by United States air force officers.

JUMP INTO LAKE ERIE FROM BURNING YACHT

Party of Six Rescued By Lighthouse Keeper.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—William L. Urschell of Toledo, with five others aboard the yacht Lucille, were rescued by a lighthouse keeper late yesterday when the boat took fire and the passengers were forced to jump into Lake Erie, near the mouth of the Detroit river. The party included: Mrs. Urshchell, a young guest, the engineer and his wife and the captain of the yacht. They were picked up later by the excursion steamer Greyhound and brought to Detroit.

SISTERS WHO ESCAPED FROM REDS SAY BOLSHEVISM RULE OF CARNAGE

WARNED OF SOVIET VENGEANCE ANYWHERE IN WORLD IF THEY TOLD TRUTH ABOUT RUSSIA, GIRLS DESCRIBE HORRORS AND ATROCITIES OF "KILLERS" WHO BECAME LEADERS.

NANAIMO, B. C., Aug. 23.—Millions of Russians pray for the return of the days of Nicholas, who, although autocratic, at least gave food and a measure of protection, according to two girls who recently escaped from the country now ruled by Lenin and Trotzky. The dynasty of the Czars was once hated, but it is now loved, they assert, adding that all true Russians despise Bolshevism and what it stands for. Even the better class of Russian Socialists, these young women say want their dreaded national malady stamped out for all time because, as they say, it is not typical socialism in sense or essence.

These two sisters, whose names are withheld for reasons, because Red vengeance was threatened if they described conditions, are Russian young women of the better class. They are on their way to the home of a brother in Los Angeles after nearly three years of the most harrowing experiences in Southeastern Russia. Their home was in Moghiev, a day by train from Odessa in normal times and five days at the present.

Although a cruel death is feared by all those attempting to escape from Bolshevism, these girls risked their lives and suffered tortures by fleeing across the Dneister by night to Bessarabia and safety. When their small boat was half way across the river the elder sister lost her balance and fell overboard. A brother who helped them escape swam to her assistance and got her into the boat again.

Both girls reached Rumania with neither money nor sufficient clothes. They were cared for by charitable Rumanians until money reached them from the brother in Los Angeles with which to defray their passage to America.

"Under the Bolshevist regime men, women and children have been ruthlessly killed or given long terms in prison for the slightest offenses," one of the girls said in an interview. "Starvation stalks everywhere. Religion is dead. Thousands upon thousands of children are starving so that their tongues swell to an enormous size until they are choked to death. It has been a veritable nightmare, the past two and a half years—never knowing but what the next day will usher in death or something unspeakably worse.

"Americans can have no real conception of the terrible trials that decent Russians have been put to under the despotic rue of the Bolshevist leaders and their irresponsible followers. Americans may go into Russia to attempt to discover the truth about the situation but this they can hardly hope to do as long as there are crafty Bolshevist leaders present to mislead them.

"Hundreds have attempted to escape over the Dneester in the same manner that we did, but they have either been shot or sentenced to long terms in prison. Yet the Bolsheviki live on the fat of the land, and gaze apathetically at the misery about them.

"They are for themselves, not for Russia. They have depleted the households of all who would not profess themselves good Bolsheviki. They claim that all property belongs to the people, yet they themselves are the ones who confiscate it. Great trains go forth every day to Moscow filled with the belongings of people, and these possessions are sorted and kept by Lenin and Trotzky and their lieutenants.

SOVIET SPREADING PROPAGANDA AMONG WOMEN AND YOUNG.

Efforts Already Made Outlined to Third Internationale.

RIGA, Lativa, Aug. 23.—(Associated Press).—Efforts to spread Communistic revolutionary ideas among the women and young people of the world were outlined recently at Moscow at two congresses, the first that of Women Communists of the World and the second the Young People's Communist Internationale, meeting in connection with the Third Internationale Congress.

At the Women Communists' congress, in which Clara Zetkin, a Communist member of the German Reichstag, and Madam Krupskaya, the wife of Lenin, participated in the leadership, work already done along these lines were outlined.

Madam Kollantai, one of the leaders of the Russian Bolshevik revolution, told the women's congress that the movement had had very little success in America, where, she said, the movement must be developed in the existing trade unions including many thousands of women workers.

Along with propaganda of Communistic ideas, the conference advocated spreading intelligence on the ideas of birth control and other advanced sociological theories.

According to the Moscow newspapers, great importance was attached to the Young People's Communist Internationale congress. Leon Trotzky, the War Minister, speaking to this congress, said that the largest part of the youths among the workers and peasants took part in the Russian revolution and aidtd the Red army.

NAMES PIGSTIES AFTER IDOLS OF BRITISH PUBLIC.

ESSEX, England, August 23. — A farmer here seems to have solved the problem as to who are the three idols of the British public.

He has three big pigsties, bearing the names of Mary Pickford, Lloyd George and Gladys Cooper.

Explaining these appellations, he said: "Well, obviously, they are the three idols of the world. 'Mary' is the world's sweetheart. Gladys Cooper is the flappers' idol, and Lloyd George is the man who sees us through all these strikes and muddles."

Gladys Cooper is a London actress renowned for her beauty.

NATURALISTS LOST, SAYS BIRD MESSAGE

Carrier Pigeon Takes Note From Yellowstone to N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Friends of Prof. Edmund Heler, distinguished naturalist and collaborator with Theodore Roosevelt, were to-day anxiously awaiting word from the Yellowstone National Park guides who were instructed by telegraph to search for the professor, following the arrival of a carrier pigeon in New York bearing an S. O. S. message purporting to be from him. According to the message, Prof. Heller is lost on the slopes of Hoodoo Mountain, in Yellowstone Park.

The carrier pigeon was discovered exhausted, by a policeman on Broad way. Attached to its leg was a message addressed to Dan Singer, Hotel Belleclaire, reading:

'I am last on Hoodoo Mountain, Yellowstone. Send help, provisions and pack horses. — Heller."

Singer was notified at once and telegraphed to friends to institute immediate search for Heller.

The note was dated Aug. 13 which means that the bird traveled 2,000 miles in four days. Pigeon fanciers said this was an extraordinary feat for a bird to perform.

INTOXICATED IN CAR SEVEN DAYS IN JAIL

KINGSTON, Aug. 23.—For driving his motor car while in an intoxicated condition, Magistrate Farrell sentenced a young Kingstonian to seven days in jail. Delinquent's counsel says he will appeal the case, and in the meantime accused is on bail. Defence is that the young man, while not under the influence of liquor, resisted arrest when being taken to the police station.

GOOD PICTURE AT THE CAPITOL

A film version of one of Florence Barclay's "best sellers," produced by Robertson-Cole, with Pauline Frederick as the star, should prove an irresistible attraction to movie lovers. It there were any vacant seats at the Capitol last night there should be none during the following showing of this picture. Aside from the fact that Pauline Frederick is the screen's greatest emotional actress she possesses those qualities which endear her to men and women alike. Without over-emphasizing sex attraction she appeals to a masculine audience by the strength of physique, her splendid carriage, and bearing. Her marvellous climbing up an almost perpendicular cliff stamps her as a "good sport," and in spite of her director's wish to provide a double for these strenuous scenes in the "Mistress of Shenstone," Pauline Frederick insisted on taking a chance, proving herself "game" in the face of tremendous dangers and difficulties. Her leading man, Roy Stewart, was an able assistant, however, as one glance at his magnificent figure shows, and one can readily believe the stories of his prowess on the gridiron when he was at college. The very presence of these two splendid people on the lonely Cornish coast, surrounded by romantic scenery, bluffs, dashing surf, in everything, each desiring to secure solitude and shun society, is enough to suggest a great love story, but the details of the "Mistress of Shenstone" provide a plot that is quite unusual and always interesting.

A lovely California estate, never before used for moving pictures, was put at Miss Frederick's disposal and here with faithful mimicry was reproduced a well nigh perfect version of English life. A noble historic mansion, set in charming scenery, grounds suggesting centuries of cultivation, correct, butler, maids, servants and visitors—all providing a background for the beautiful star who wears 17 different gowns, all with suitable hats, gloves and shoes. What more could the feminine heart want? And Pauline designs all these clothes herself. Is she not worthy the title, a great actress, a versatile woman? It will be more interesting to see this picture than to read the plot. Let me just say a word for "Peter," that dear little brindle pup, which was more beloved by his master than the ardent vital woman he called "wife." The theme of this play is surely love—love in its noblest best form—the woman who remained faithful to the absent husband who never returned her affection in kind—love that renounced the heart's greatest desire when it was no longer lawful, and it was love that caused poor little Peter's death, when the household mourned for the death of their absent master.

A pleasant surprise, contrary to the comedy marked on the programme, was an unusually funny comedy called "Spirits," featuring Mr. and Mrs. Carterde-Haven--hire l and real burglars, home-made spirits and ouija board spooks, together with the clever stars, caused many laughs, combining fun and subjects much to the fore at the present moment.

The beginning of a new serial, "The Yellow Arm," gives promise of many interesting episodes. Anything Oriental possesses a fascination, while the names of Juanita Hansen and Warner Oland are attractions in themselves. Last night's episodes called "The House of Alarms," was packed full of thrills. There were three inscrutable deadly looking Chinamen; the fear racked father Warner, Oland his daughter, pretty little Marguerite Courtol for whom he dreads much, the irrepressible jazzing actress portrayed by Juanita Hansen, and terrific thunder, lightning, rain and many hair-raising features. You'll certainly love it—I did.

Mrs. Foster has added a bass-viol to her orchestra, improving it very much. It now numbers six pieces. The rendition of "Norma" was excellent and all the other incidental music very good.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weaver, of Ennismore, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding on August 12th, at the home of their daughter, Mrs. E. Jewell, 115 Hilliard street. The family were all present except one daughter, Mrs. Henry. There were five sons and five daughters, besides 35 grandchildren and many friends and acquaintances.

After refreshments were served Mr and Mrs. Weaver were presented with a pair of brown leather easy chairs and a sum of money from their family. An enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent.

THE MIDDLE NAME.

A study of a record of recent baptisms given in a parish magazine showed that not one child out of twenty was given only one Christian name. Yet it may not be generally known that at one time in Great Britain middle names were illegal. English statutes were most definite as to the naming of children. Coke stated that "a man cannot have two names at baptism." So late in the year 1660 there were only four persons in the kingdom who possessed two given names. Even 150 years ago double names were extremely uncommon. Now it is the exception to find a child who has not two Christian names.

The record attendance for the C. N. E. 1,201,000 was reached in the Prince's year, 1919.

FIREMEN STOP FIRE BY QUICK WORK

Montreal Firemen Fight Fires From Ladders.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—By their quick response to the alarm and their efficient work firemen under District Chief Doolan were able to prevent a quickly spreading fire from consuming the whole building of the Union Engine and Machine Works, Ltd., 346 Delorimier avenue yesterday afternoon.

It is not known what caused the fire, but when the firemen arrived they found the rear portion of a shop in a mass of flames. Two streams of water were directed from ladders and it was not until twenty minutes later that the fire had been got under control. Much damage was done especially by the water, which percolated down through the different storeys and damaged machinery on the bottom floor.

PRISONERS GET RIGHT TO WEAR SILK SHIRTS.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 22.— Then that has 'em can wear 'em. This word, referring to silk shirts, was passed along the corridors in Sing Sing Prison, bringing joy to some inmates and gloom to others. The radiant garments worn previously by those who could afford them were tabooed recently when the poorer inmates grumbled at the unequal display and requested "cotton for all." The state's short cotton shirt supply interfered with the programme, however, and a few weeks' grace was granted to the lovers of brilliant hues.

A standing pompon of black moire ribbon may trim a smartly tailored hat of panne velvet.

D'ANNUNZIO'S ARDITI HUNT HIS MUNITIONS

But Italian Naval Craft Stop Expedtion.

FIUME, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press.) — The Arditi, formerly belonging to the forces of Gabriele D'Annunzio, made an expedition to the Island of San Marco, off the Croation coast, where large quantities of war materials were hidden by D'Annunzio's followers for a future emergency. The expedition was discovered by Italian naval craft operating in the waters near Fiume. They held up the Arditi, who said they would return whence they came.

REWARD OFFERED FOR OIL DISCOVERY.

Australia and New South Wales Wales Hang Up Big Inducements.

WASHINGTON, August 23. — The Australian Government has offered a reward of $125,000 and the Government of New South Wales has offered $50,000 to anyone who discovers petroleum in paying quantities ,acoording to advices received here from Sydney.

Hundreds of thousands of pounds sterling have been expended by the Government and by private firms in an endeavor to find oil in Australia but so far the discoveries have been practically negligible.

Interest has been distracted from Australia to the neighboring territory of Papua, where oil seepages of rich promise are said to have been found. Thus far however engineers have been unable to discover petroleum in paying quantities. Australia is now compelled to import all her crude oil and petroleum derivatives, and the prevailing prices are relatively high.

Though perhaps not quite so good as last year's coon party, it was, nevertheless, a great success. The "Y" girls can be depended on to supply the pep on every occasion and they did not fail on this occasion. They were aided and abetted by the young folks nearby. Last week was a big week at the camp and there was something doing every minute.

HURLS PLANT'S ROOF INTO HUDSON RIVER

Explosion at Mechanicsville Pulp Mills Takes Toll of Five Lives.

MECHANICSVILLE, N.Y., Aug. 23.—Five men were killed and a sixth injured, probably fatally, by the explosion yesterday afternoon of a battery of three high pressure boilers in the plant of the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. The force of the explosion, the origin of which is not known, tore the roof from the building and hurled it into the Hudson River, 100 feet away.

The dead, all of whom were employed in or near the boiler-room, were literally blown to pieces. They are Joe Gereonsky, Adam Geresco, Harrison Dredent and Steven Bofinski, all of Saratoga Springs, and Joe Decota, of Stillwater. Wilbur Brown, of this town, was seriously injured.

The accident hapened 20 minutes after the plant had resumed operations after the noon hour. The boilers were used in the process of cooking wood into pulp and each carried 125 pounds of steam.

TRIES TO END LIFE BY BURNING HIMSELF

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Sylvester Crockett, a negro, yesterday attempted suicide in Tombs Prison by setting fire to his clothing, which he had first saturated with kerosene. Before touching the match he bathed his face and head in the oil and tied a handkerchief tightly about his throat. The act occurred in a room used to house prisoners about to be finger-printed.

The kerosene was left in the room to remove blacking used in the process. The other prisoners raised the alarm by shouting and beating on the door, but the negro was so badly burned before the flames were extinguished that there was believed to be little chance of his recovery.

He was to have been sent to Sing Sing to-day to begin a five-year term for beating a patrolman.

KEEP ADVERTISING OFF THE HIGHWAYS

Enquiries have been made by some local dealers with regard to advertising along the highway of the County Road System. This will not be permitted within the limits of the road allowance, and notices are to be sent out to all the Maintenance foremen to see that the practice is discontinued and to remove all signs after a certain date. The Department is very particular about this along the Provincial Highways and the Toronto and York Roads Commission of York County have provided special racks for paid advertisements and direction signs, but that those are being discontinued for suitable concrete posts, which will carry direction and mileage signs only.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF EXPRESS MESSENGER.

Norman Wilson Fell From Fast Moving Train Just South of Boyce's Bridge.

PORT HOPE, Ont. August 23.—Norman Wilson, Express Messenger on the train due here on the Midland Division at 10.15 p.m. had a thrilling experience on Saturday night and one which he would not care to repeat.

After leaving Garden Hill, Wilson went to one of the other cars to wash. The door of the mail car instead of being in the centre the same as the passenger coaches, is situated at the extreme side, there being only a narrow passage through the car, thus giving all the available space for the sorting of the mail. When returning to the express car Wilson stepped too close to the edge of the platform of the mail car and before he could catch the knob of the door he fell off. This happened between Boyce's bridge and Choate's crossing, a section of the Division where the train travels at quite a lively pace. Fortunately Wilson fell clear of the train, but he was badly bruised about the face and head and numerous pieces of small gravel were imbedded in his cheeks and forehead

He was not missed by the train crew until the Port Hope station was reached, but nothwithstanding the fact that Wilson was not aware of what happened until he had been in the hospital for several hours, he walked from the point where the accident occurred to the G.T.R. station here, where he collapsed.

DOOMED ESKIMO AIDS EXECUTIONERS

Supplies Deer Skin Throng with which he is Strangled.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23. — Two Eskimos are being held by the R.C.M.P., at Herschel Island for acting as executioners on behalf of their community of a tribesman accused of murdering another Eskimo. Their names are Kasabovi and Amokuk. They will be brought out next spring for trial.

The scene of summary justice was at village of Konghermuet, Prince Albert Sound, in Victoria Island, N. W. T. The story of the crime is that Ahkah murdered Agluetuk, for which the villagers adjudged him a dangerous member of the community and by general consent sentenced him to death. Both men and women surrounded Ahkak's hut, and took him prisoner. Ahkak knowing the fate that was in store for him, supplied Kasabovi and Amokuk with a deer skin throng, and with this they strangled him.

It is believed that the original murder involved the stealing of Agluetuk's wife, Nutingnik, and his store of furs, both of which Ahkak with his hunting partner Olepsekak.

Never allow vegetables to remain in water after they are cooked. Drain as soon as they are tender.

In using any canned meat or fish the flavor is much improved if the can is opened at least one hour before using, the contents quickly washed in cold water and the fish thoroughly drained. Then expose to the outside air for twenty minutes and chill in the ice box.

TO KEEP RECORDS OF U. S. CRIMINALS

New Director of Bureau of Investigation Will Have Tabs on Reds.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—William J. Burns, new director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, interviewed at Scarboro' to-day, said one of his first steps will be the organization of a central bureau of identification, where records of all dangerous criminals will be assembled for the aid of Government investigators and the police forces of the country.

Extradition of criminals and their subsequent trial in States other than these in which they are arrested, away from local "pull" or influence, would be materially aided by the proposed identification bureau. In particular this bureau would enable the Government to keep close tabs on Bolsheviks and other avowed enemies of the Government.

Presumably the Federal Bureau would be in close touch with the national police forces of European countries and the identification and tracing of desperate criminals would be greatly facilitated.

FIVE PARACHUTES IN 5,000-FOOT LEAP

Former U. S. Army Aviator Successful in Dangerous Experiment.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Aug 23.—A quintuple parachute jump—five chutes released one after the other in a 5,000-foot fall— was accomplished here for what was said to be the first time by W. B. Bottenfield of Nelson, Neb. Several thousand persons witnessed the feature.

Bottenfield, a former army aviator was taken up by Capt. Ray Miller. He had five chutes of varying sizes fitted into a sack-like arrangement about his head and attached to the harness.

After he had leaped from the plane and dropped 200 feet, his first parachute opened. This he cut loose with a knife and dropped rapidly until the second chute opened, which also was cut. This was repeated with two more, and the fifth carried him safely to the ground.

HAD TO DON UNDERWEAR WET FROM WASH TUB.

Squatters are Caught Unawares — Some Boiling Big Pot of "Borrowed" Corn.

NIAGARA FALLS, August 23. — Complaints of raids by a party "squatting" on Grand Trunk property near here resulted in a raid, in an engine and box car, by G. T. R. Officers Anderson and Maloney, and the bringing here of ten of the men who were occupying railway shacks.

The men were found in all states of undress. Some of them were washing their only suit of underwear, and had to don it wet.

Others were preparing a huge kettle of corn which had been "borrowed" from a nearby field.

The ten men appeared before Magistrate Fraser, and were given suspended sentence, and ordered out of the city. There was not a cent in the whole bunch.

In hot weather it is a good plan to beat the mayonnaise in the upper part of the double boiler, filling the lower part with cracked ice and brine.

FALL FASHIONS

Illustrations of articles of apparel designed and made in Canadian houses include the following:

A fall model in headgear with crown of hatter's plush, velvet, fancy and large satin bow on the front.

A dotted Swiss blouse with blue spots and blue edging on the ruffles.

A sports cape which demonstrates the progress being made in Canadian mills. It is of grey and white alpaca knitted in stripes, the grey stripe and collar having a brushed finish. There is a slash in each side for the arms.

A rose linen frock with lace motifs scattered over the skirt, with white organdie guimpe with Peter Pan collar and black ribbon tie. The midsummer hat is of organdie in pastel shade with fan pleating around the edge and a garland of wild flowers.

A luxurious negligee designed by a member of the Canadian Designers' Club is fashioned of black silk lace over a foundation of black silk with true-love knots of turquoise picot edge silk ribbon.

An evening dress of sapphire silk net over satin of the same shade has draperies edged with silk and metallic embroidered net bands and the corsage flowers are flame colored. The fan with it is made of ostrich feathers imported in the raw and dressed and dyed by a Canadian feather goods house.

A coat of Canadian tweed from a Canadian factory has a hat of brown satin with a "windmill" on the front, while a sports costume is composed of a crimson tie-at-the-neck sweater coat with grey brushed alpaca collar, buttons and balls at the end of the girdle, a real lace vestee and pleated woollen skirt, with a hat of salmon pink taffeta with long ribbon ends.

A handsome winter coat with straight front and draped sides is made of a very fine silky quality of marine blue bolivia cloth, the large sleeve cuffs and choker collar of Canadian beaver. With this is shown a taffeta ribbon hat on a sports model, silk chiffon hose and kid two-strap pumps.

A navy tricotine tailored street dress is shown with grey wool embroidery in lightening design with motifs set in the pattern. The drapery folds over and half conceals the embroidered panel and the one rever can be worn folded back or brought across the front. A rain and shine umbrella accompanying this costume has a white bakalite handle.

Chenille frocks are worn for dancing.

White kid is one of the new and interesting trimmings used on black satin and crepe frocks.

Poplin is used much in the Paris models. It rivals taffeta, which is used for the simpler dresses.

Colored bone and pyroxylin ornaments in oblong and dagger shapes are used instead of beads.

Crepe de chine and the heavier silk crepes are being used for many dressy frocks for children for next season.

Lace frocks almost ankle length, draped often over contrasting color of chiffon or softest of silks are brilliantly sashed.

Blouse styles for the coming season are varied as other lines, the waist length blouse being still with us, while the overblouse fully knee length is still approved by some designers.

Very smart dresses use loops and fringes of ribbon as trimming.

Fancy cape wraps are made of taffeta. They feature self-ruchings.

Novel sets of collar, cuffs and fancy filet are made of colored striped oilcloth.

Pure white ostrich hats are for dress wear and are the loveliest things imaginable. Such a hat, worn with a frock of white hand-made organdy, is exquisitely dainty.

Chinchilla sport coats come in platinum and beige tones, but the pure white ones are far and away the prettiest and the most fashionable.

Quite often the new sleeve is made of contrasting lace or net. To give uniformity, one may use the same sort of net to make draperies on the skirt.

Neck chains are not worn with formal frocks now unless the ornament be a string of handsome pearls or of beads that add distinction, not mere color, to the costume.

The sleeve with the deep arm's-eye is very much approved, being featured in suits and coats as well as dresses and blouses.

MECHANICAL GUIDE

When adjusting the carbureter remember to have the engine hot before finishing the adjustment. When the engine is cold the gasoline is not all evaporated and so a richer mixture is required. If this is not corrected after the engine heats up the mixture will be too rich and gasoline and power will be wasted.

The varnish on a new car is especially liable to show spots where the mud has caked on unless it is removed at the first opportunity, and this means the same day or evening. If it is allowed to dry on it will make a blemish that will need touching up with varnish later on. Many such spots will soon give the car a shabby look, even though it has only recently come from the factory. Flow water from a hose on these bits of mud and wash them away without touching them. Tend to this immediately, even though the rest of the car is left till morning for washing.

Carry an extra oil can, empty, for special occasions, squirting gasoline or kerosene into some corner to clean it, putting neatsfoot oil on the clutch leather or any other use that your ingenuity will suggest.

Remember that the interrupter points of your ignition system need occasional cleaning. A spark jumps between them every time a cylinder fires and this mounts into millions every month, causing a layer of oxide to form on the points. Push the points apart and draw a piece of very fine sandpaper between them several times. It is better to anticipate trouble than to hunt for it when it occurs.

When priming a balky engine through cups do not pour more than half a teaspoonful of gasoline into each cylinder as it cuts the oil around the pistons and drops into the oil base, where it does further damage. Indeed, some engines will not start if too much gasoline is inserted. Another bad effect is to increase the coating of carbon in the cylinders. So use moderation.

If too much oil drops from your transmission gear case it may be because you have not changed from oil to grease for the summer. The heat makes it more fluid and it finds leaks that a heavier lubricant would not. Clean out the case with kerosene and then put in a gear-case compound which will not leak out. If there is serious leakage around the shafts they should be looked at by an experienced man, as it is possible that the trouble is there and not in the oil.

Remember to clean out the water pocket and strainer on your gasoline line occasionally and not wait until the engine stalls before doing it. On some carburetors the strainer is located in the connection to the fuel line—on the Ford car it is under the gasoline tank. This only requires a few moments, and will serve to remove all foreign matter before it can clog the system. Whatever gasoline is needed for the hands, etc., draw it from the water pocket. This will automatically remove all foreign matter, which is not clinging to the screen and so reduce the danger of clogging.

Corset bags, made of silk and covered with filet lace, with lace-edged ribbon ruches, are new and are drawn with fine silk cords to match the lining.

SPORT COMMENT

The Ontario Commission has notified H. C. Woods that while he will not be allowed to second a boxer until his suspension is raised, he will still be allowed to do business for the boys under his charge. He must watch the bouts from a reserved seat, however, and not ffrom the corner.

The Hamilton Tigers will hold their first practice on Monday evening, and it looks as though a bumper bunch will be out, as there are over two score players trying to make the team for the trip West. Eighteen men will be taken, which means that over a score of athletes will be disappointed when the train pulls out for the West next month.

There may be a change in the Tigers' Western schedule, owing to the fact that Calgary has demanded that the game to be played there be staged on a Saturday. The change can be made with little trouble, and it is likely that the request will be granted.

Collyer's news bureau is the authority for the story that Tyrus Cobb will not manage the Detroit Tigers next year. This has been just about settled by Cobb himself, it says, whether President Navin makes a move toward getting a new manager or not. Cobb signed a one-year contract, and it will take a lot of persuasion on the part of Navin to induce him to continue the agreement. The Tigers must be completely rebuilt, and it is understood that Cobb does not feel equal to the task and at the same time maintain his playing ability. The team has fallen off in hitting in a year when hitting is about the cheapest thing on the market, it is weak in defence, and mediocre on the bases. The infield needs bolstering up, and the pitching staff must be improved. Without wholesale changes, Dtroit will be lucky to finish in the first division next year, and is practically domed to the second division this season.

COBOURG IS ANXIOUS TO TAKE A FALL OUT OF PETES

Dollar Day visitors to Peterborough to-morow will have a chance to see a good ball game, for the Coworth seeing. When the Petes visball are billed to meet the Petes at Riverside Park at 5.15 o'clock in a Central Ontario League fixture. Cobourg is anxious to climb out of the cellar position, and to establish a new record by beating the Petes, and they will have their strongest team in action against the Solomon crew. The game will be handled by Umpire Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, and should be an exhibition well worth seeing. When the Peteh visited Cobourg at the beginning of the second half of the League race, the clash was one of the best the Peterborough team have been in this season, and to-morrow evening's game should be equally good.

TRYING TO SELECT A LINE-UP OF ALL STARS CENTRAL LEAGUE

OSHAWA, Aug. 22.—Baseball enthusiasts here have apparently settled their own minds that either Oshawa or Belleville will win the championship of the Central Ontario League, with the Oshawa team having the brighest prospects. However, other teams such as Lindsay, Peterborough and Port Hope are not so very far behind and by pulling off a winning streak could easily draw up on a level with either Oshawa or Belleville.

Following the announcement just recently issued by President Kimmel that the new champions would meet an all-star team picked from the remaining clubs in the city the championship was claimed, many ardent fans are already lining up the stars from the standpoint of Oshawa winning the League honors and again if Belleville wins out. Providing Belleville gains the title, the Eastern fans claim the strongest team that could be selected would be: Dainty, pitcher, Oshawa; Tyson, catcher, Cobourg; Coombs, Lindsay, or Harrison, Peterborough, first base; Skitch, second base, Cobourg; Walter Fair, short stop, Oshawa; Jacobi, third base, Oshawa, while some of the outfielders suggested were: Chalk, Port Hope, and McMahon, Lindsay.

If Oshawa wins, one of the lineups suggested for the event is: Goyer, pitcher, Belleville; W. Mills, catcher, Belleville; Coombs, Lindsay, or Harrison, Peterborough, first base; Skitch, Cobourg, at second; Weir, Belleville, at short; and Murray, Peterborough, at third. Other suggestions will likely follow.

SPORT COMMENT

It is possible that Madoc, winners of the Trent Valley League, will be drawn against C.G.E., first and second round winners in the intermediate series of the O.B.A.A. It was originally arranged that the Trent Valley and Bay of Quinte loops should play off, and at that time C.G.E. were busy with the local and East Peterborough opposition. As the Quinte winner is still undecided, the Electricians face a long wait, and with this situation in prospect, an effort is now being made to bring Madoc and C.G.E. together in the usual home and home series, with the first game here next Saturday.

Oshawa intermediates will play Hamilton in Hamilton next Saturday in the first of home and home games, in the semi-final round of the intermediate Ontario amateur lacrosse association championship race. The return game will be played in Oshawa one week later.

Cressman's ball team go to Bethany on Thursday afternoon for a game with the home nine.

Guelph Tigers, an all-start eleven, were defeated at Hamilton on Saturday in a Plenty Cup game. The Hams will now take on Galt, conquerors of Oshawa.

Local admirers of Tris Speaker and his ball club are smiling again, now that the Indians are again leading the Johnson cricuit. New York is making it close.

At the age when many ball players go back to the chicken farm, Babe Ruth at thirty-nine is a whole reign of terror to the young pitchers who are trying to make the upgrade.

Bankers, winners of the juvenile series, are putting in a lot of practice in order to keep in shape for their next turn in the O.B.A.A.

Bob Ross need not lose any sleep over his failure to glue Dainty's long fly in the ninth when Oshawa visited here at the week-end. Ross has proved himself a faithful and conscientious ball player, always willing and never a trouble-maker, and the fans who stop to do a little thinking, appreciate him.

THE GRAND OPENS TO-NIGHT; A BIG SEASON IS PROMISED

FINE LIST OF ROAD SHOWS, PERMANENT STOCK COMPANY AND PICTURES AT PRE-WAR PRICES ARE FIGURED IN TRANS-CANADA'S PROGRAMME.

The Grand Opera House opens its season to-night with the remarkably successful comedy, "Three Live Ghosts" as an opening attraction and a splendid list of road shows, a programme of permanent stock and an impressive series of feature pictures at pre-war prices to offer its patrons. Everything is ready for the season. The house has been freshened and is spic and span, while a new feature in the form of a candy booth in the lobby, where first-class candies will be sold has been added. Mr. W. L. Phillips is resident manager, and the personnel of the house staff remains the same, with the exception that Mr. "Curly" Noyes is acting in his old capacity as doorman.

A feature of the Grand's policy this season will be the Rex Stock Company, which will be seen during the first three nights of each week in high class productions, such as "The Man Who Owns Broadway," "Nothing But the Truth" and other proved successes. Mr. Rex Snelgrove, who heads this stock company de luxe, has a splendid cast and elaborate scenic effects ,and the Rex Company will soon be established firmly in the affections of Peterborough playgoers. They are billed to play three nights here and three in Kingston each week, with a change of bill weekly. The prices are down to prewar scale, ten, twenty and thirty cents, with a few seats at fifty cents. The Rex Company opens its season here on Monday night next in "The Man Who Owns Broadway." During the week of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition they will play six nights in the city.

The Grand's picture season opens on Thursday of this week with the remarkable picture, "Blind Youth" as the opening feature. In its film programme, too, the Grand has decided to return to the old prices of the days before the war. The scale for night performances will be 10c., 15c. and 20c. and for matinees 5c. and 10c.

A preliminary list of road shows indicates a great season. Among the big attractions already billed are "Three Live Ghosts," Blackstone the Magician," "Ladies Night," the lively farce which made such a hit in New York last season, "The Katenjammer Kids," "The Skin Game," Ethel Barrymore, whose vehicle has not yet been announced, "Nighty Night," one of the best comedies in years, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Coburn in "French Leave," "Some Girl," a return engagement of the lilting musical comedy, "Listen Lester," Walter Hampden, famous Shakesperian actor, Albert De Courville's big English revue, "Hello Canada," featuring Harry Tait and Shirley Kellog, the Dumbells for two nights, the Winnipeg Kiddies for two nights, "Mutt and Jeff," "Abie Martin," the Blue Pierrots, who are the opening attraction in Toronto this week, "Kissing Time," Marie Lohr, the great English actress, "Irene," one of last season's most successful musical comedies, "The Bat," the most exciting offering of a decade, Walter Scanlon, the Irish comedian and "Josephine." There will be many others added later on.

TRACK AND FIELD ATHLETICS IN FOR BOOM IN PETERBOROUGH

When the city championships are held in Peterboro this year, they will have had the benefit of the field day of sports which the Canadian Woollens Athletic Association are arranging for Saturday, Sept. 10th. This athletic meet should give quite an impetus to track and field events in the city and district, with the cumulative effect of producing more and possibly better material for the city championships.

Field and track sports, including middle and long distance races, have had their periods of popularity in Peterboro, but there has been nothing sustained or continuous to the effort except the annual contests held under the auspices of the Y.M. C. A. This year their management has been transferred to the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association, according to the information given the Examiner by Mr Douglas Loomis, the Physical Director of the Y.M. C.A.

The Canadian Woollens' Association feel confident that their field day will bring out the best athletic talent in Peterboro ,and their prizes which may reach a value of $500, should prove a big inducement. In that event there should be a kindling of keener interest in track and field sports leading up to the city championships. The Woollens' Committee have announced their programme sufficiently early to enable all intending entrants to get into condition ,and the variety of sports in their list challenges every man in the city who has any special athletic ability.

Any movement that will lessen the number of spectators and increase the list of contestants, that will induce able bodied youths, even their elders, to get into the game, and out of the grandstand, deserves the fullest encouragement. This is one of the problems that confront the governing bodies of most of the big colleges. They, however, may impose certain regulations which the student body must comply with. Athletics of some form or other may be made compulsory instead of optional. Unorganized society has no such means, in times of peace, at any rate, of forcing its members into athletic activities.

The only inducement is the appeal to the spirit of contest that is inherent in most youths, and to their sense of pride in their physical proficiencies, in the sprints, jumps and other standard athletic categories. It is probable, therefore, that if the city championships are kept in mind, there will be greater attention focussed upon the Canadian Woollens' meet, and that a larger class of entries will be brought out for both events. It may be taken for granted that the Peterboro Athletic Association will avail themselves of the opportunity the Canadian Woollens' Athletic Association are providing, and that they will improve it for the betterment of track and field sports in Peterboro this fall.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"Mother Goose-to-Date" is not a moving picture but it is a clever and laughable skit on to-day's styles in dress, prohibition and current items of interest, with a few local touches thrown in, that would move the laughter of a graven image. It is a distinct contradiction of the old saying "that a prophet has no honor in his own country" as this merry jingle of verses is the composition of a well known local man by whom they will be presented Thursday night at the Grand. This skit might be termed a "homebrew" with lots of pep and kick but without any evil after affects.

UNUSUAL APPEAL OF "BLIND YOUTH."

In "Blind Youth," the special picture which opens the new policy at the Grand for three days starting on Thursday, the National Picture Theatres, Inc., has produced a picture that will at once and effectually appeal to all classes of humanity. The subject matter as dealt with in'Blind Youth' tells the old, old story, but in a new and more impressive manner, that there are none so blind as those who will not see.

The wholesome sentimentality and the human, sympathetic treatment acorded this subject makes a strong apepal to the more matured of mind, who from their personal experiences and worldly wisdom can look back upon their blinded youth with cool compassion or regretful retrospection, as the case may be, and speculate with themselves as to the possible strata of their lives to-day if during their tender age they had had the bandage of ignorance removed from their youthful lives.

The youthful will take another view. The average youth of to-day, despite his lack of experience and knowledge of worldly affairs, believes himself thoroughly steeped in the ways of the world and its requirements and he will be agreeably surprised to learn that there are some deep crevices in the book of knowledge into which he as yet has not gazed.

With this in mind 'Blind Youth' was conceived with a view to pointing out just how blind youth is in the more momentous matters of life. Though the picture is instructive, it by no means is a sermon but beneath the rich, thick layer of entertainment that forms its surface matter there is a deep underlying lesson from which any man, woman or child may profit.

The balance of the programme and the Special Music furnished by the Grand's New Orchestra, maintains the exceptionally high standard of the Feature Picture throughout, and the exceptionally low scale of prices for pictures for this season, will not doubt find favor with all movie fans in the city.

Evening prices are 10, 15 and 20c, with daily matinees at 5 and 10c. Tax extra.

Philip Klein will present at the Grand to-night an amusing piece, "Three Live Ghosts," by Frederick S. Isham, from a novel he wrote.

Although the three soldiers back from the war and on their uppers, form the body of the play, it is "Old Sweetheart," the stepmother of a cockney supposed to have been killed, who is the heart and soul of the piece. Poor old soul that she is, she has been having an easy time of it for once in her life with the insurance money the government is paying her.

Finding her stepson alive, she implores him to remain officially dead, until the final payment on his life insurance is made. "Old Sweetheart," is an old soak, with a bottle of gin always within reach, and a sense of values when she discovers that the American pal of her stepson has no less a price of one thousand pounds set on his head because of a bond theft in New York.

In "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," Barrie's heartrending glimpse of the war, Ruby Hallier was pathetic. This time he is comic as an old woman with a keen eye for the insurance money and another eye on the jewels brought to her frumble dwelling by a shell-shocked kleptomaniac who wonders into her home with gifts of pearls and a baby in a carriage decorated with toy balloons. "Old Sweetheart" is bullied first by her stepson and then by a Scotland Yard man, but she is patient up to the point of asking: "Is this Russia, or merry h'England?" Costly ornaments are stripped from her head and her chest by the Scotland Yard man, who doesn't know quite what to make of her.

AT THE ALLEN.

Married life isn't going to interfere with Constance Talmadge's screen career. So cheer up, fans! There is no reason to be downhearted. The Talmadge studio points out that only recently Constance and Norma Talmadge entered into a $20,000,000 contract to make photoplays for Associated First National Pictures, Inc., for an additional three years. And we don't believe she's going to pass this up. As proof that she means business, Constance completed "Lessons in Love," which was temporarily interrupted by her marriage, and this picture will be the choice offering at the Allen Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

CONSTANCE GETS NORMA'S DIRECTOR

"Lessons in Love" is the first of the Constance Talmadge productions to be directed by Chet Withey, who formerly directed Norma Talmadge in several of her most successful vehicles. Mr. Withey recently signed a contract with Joseph M. Schenck to direct two or more pictures for Constance under her Associated First National contract. "Wedding Bells" was selected as the production for Mr. Withey to direct following "Lessons in Love," which has been booked for an engagement of two days at the Allen Theatre, commencing to-day. "Lessons in Love" is a screen version of Douglas Murray's play, "The Man from Toronto," which enjoyed success on the spoken stage of both America and England. In it Kenneth Harlan will be seen as Miss Talmadge's leading man. Important in the cast are George Fawcett, James Harrison, Flora Finch, W. R. Webb and Florence Short.

WORLD'S "BADDEST BOY" IS COMING TO TOWN

Hooray, kids; The baddest boy in the world is coming to town. On Thursday you and Skinney can learn a bunch of new tricks from "Peck's Bad Boy," when this First National release is shown at the Allen Theatre.

Little Jackie Coogan was a good youngster in "The Kid," thereby endearing himself to millions of theatregoers; but, oh my, how he has changed! They say you'll like him just as much, however.

Irving Lesser 'phoned clear from bourg team, who are playing snappy tell motion picture folk out there that everyone in New York turned out to see the opening of "Peck's Bad Boy" at the Strand Theatre.

Irving Cobb wrote the subtitles for "Peck's Bad Boy" and it is said to be one of the best motion pictures of the age.

(By United Press).

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Final and peaceful settlement of the dispute between Panama and Costa Rica appeared imminent to-day, following the despatch of a second note to Panama by this Government, insisting that Coto be turned over to Costa Rica. This note was sent by the State Department yesterday in answer to an informal inquiry from Panama.

WATER TURNED INTO CHIPPEWA DECEMBER

SO BECK PREDICTS—100,000 H.P. DEVELOPED THEN.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—The water will be turned into the "big ditch" at Chippawa early in December and two of the nine generating units will then be ready to produce a total of 100,000 horse power. This was the date set to-day by Sir Adam Beck, who based his estimate upon the works now being done and upon the assumption that it would be possible to make similar progress during the next three months. Somewhat over 3,000 men are now working on the Chippawa job, and the work is going ahead satisfactorily.

SHOW CANCELLED

THE DOG AND PONY SHOW HAD TO BE GIVEN UP.

On account of the shortness of time, the merchants were unable to complete arrangement sfor the Dog and Pony Show, which was to have been given free on the Market Square, on Dollar Day.

The show is reported to be a very good one, and the cancellation of the arrangements is to be regretted as it would undoubtedly have added materially to the interest of Dollar Day.

GOSPEL HALL NOTES

Last night Brother A. B. Miller spoke on "The Lord's Coming: Is it a Practical Truth?"

Truth of any kind is practical, for the truths in God's Word, when believed, produce results. There are some deep truths which at first sight do not appear practical, but, judged by results, they are practical. For example, take the truths concerning the Trinity, the three persons in the Godhead, Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Now it is marvellous that there are three persons in the Godhead, and all are Eternal. Certainly the truth of the Trinity is practical, for all who know God in salvation, gladly, confess that their blessings come from the Triune God. It is practical, if judged by results.

The coming of the Lord is not a peculiar idea or theory of a few fanatical enthusiasts. No, it is a doctrine clearly taught in the New Testament. Judged by results, it is an eminently practical doctrine. Today the coming of the Lord is being studied and taught more widely than ever it has been before. The best and most successful preacher, evangelists and teachers hold and preach the pre-millenial coming of the Lord.

That the pre-millenial coming of the Lord is practical is proved by the effects or results of this doctrine as set forth by Paul.

1. The pre-millenial coming of the Lord is a fit subject for those recently converted. Read 1st Thessalonians i., 5-10, where we observe that "waiting for His Son from heaven," was the proper attitude of the believer. This did not mean star-gazing; for those who were waiting for God's Son from heaven were practical, Christian people, doing practical Christian work. They believed the gospel, and then (1) became followers (verse 6); (2) they were example to all that believe (verse 7); (3) they sounded out the word (verse 8). And meanwhile, although so busily engaged, "they were waiting for God's Son."

2. The coming of the Lord is a stimulous to service. Read 1st Thes. ii., 19-20. Paul's stimulous in service was the knowledge that when our Lord comes, He and the Thessalonian believers would be in the presence of the Lord. They were his crown and glory. We are told in verse 18, "Satan hindered." That which offset the hindrances of Satan and encouraged Paul to go resolutely on was the knowledge that his Lord might come at any time. It is a very helpful, practical thing to have something to encourage us in Christian service.

3. The coming of the Lord is connected with holy living. Read 1st Thes. iii., 12-13. Two things are here stated as the result of the Lord's coming: (1) Christian love abounds. (2) Holiness is produced by the truth of the Lord's coming. What more practical and comforting to God's people than divine love and holiness.

Finally, when our Lord comes our salvation shall be complete. We know our souls are saved, but when He comes our bodies shall be saved. See Philippians iii., 21.

The hall was filled last night. Subject to-night: "His Coming: When Does it Take Place? Pre or Post Millenial?"

BRITAIN ACCEPTS U.S. INVITATION TO ARMS MEETING

FIRST OF FORMAL ACCEPTANCES MADE YET.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—A formal acceptance by the British Government of the invitation to participate in the Washington conference on limitation of armament and Far Eastern questions was received to-day by Secretary Hughes. The note of acceptance was transmitted by Ambassador Harvey and was delivered to him by Lord Curzon, British Foreign Minister.

The British acceptance was the first of a formal nature to be received from the great Powers in reply to the formal invitation of the American Government. China, several days ago, notified the United States that she would be glad to participate in the Far Eastern conference with France, in what is regarded in some quarters as amounting to formal acceptance, notified the United States that Premier Briand would participate in the armament and Far Eastern discussion. Formal replies are yet to be received from Italy and Japan.

POOR BERRY CROP SENDS BEARS FAR TO OBTAIN FOOD

OFTEN SEEN ON RAILWAY TRACKS NORTH OF SUDBURY.

SUDBURY, Ont., Aug. 22.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner)—Owing to the failure of the blueberry crop in certain parts of the district, due to the intense heat last month, bears are very numerous in the outlying districts, being often seen on the railway tracks in search of food, Bruin is quite harmless but hunger draws him to the outskirts of settlements. Several have been reported from Munroe Siding.

Frank Payment, who runs a mill on Sugar Island, below the Sault, killed a black bear single handed recently, armed only with a long pike pole. Tom Parr, and old resident of East Koreah Township, last week shot and killed his first bear. It weighed 400 pounds and was the biggest he ever killed.

MINE OF CRIME IN EAST RIVER.

"Automobile Graveyard" May Yield Explanation of Many Mysteries.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(By United Press.)—Police who to-day began dredging an "automobile" graveyard in the East River here, were convinced they had tapped a mine of crime. Discoveries already made showed that the grave of many a stolen auto had been located.

The police believed they would dispel many a mystery which has baffled them heretofore. They indicated they would not be surprised if the dripping machines to be lifted from the slimy bottom of the river would bring with them the bodies of murder victims, possibly loot from robberies and perhaps the explanation of a number of strange "disappearances."

GIANT DIRIGIBLE ZR-2 WRECKED BY EXPLOSION OVER THE HUMBER; NEARLY FIFTY MEN LOSE LIVES

WAS JUST COMPLETING TRIAL TRIP PREPARATORY TO TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT WHEN EXPLOSION SPLIT IT IN HALF AND IT FELL INTO THE HUMBER—ONLY TWO KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN SAVED—BRITAIN'S FOREMOST AIRMAN THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN ABOARD.

BY UNITED PRESS.

LONDON, August 24. — The new American Dirigible ZR-2 exploded over Hull to-day at 2:45 p.m., broke in half, and fell wrecked into the Humber River.

The ZR-2 was near the conclusion of a trial trip undertaken late yesterday in preparation for the trans-atlantic trip to America. The explosion occurred after the machine had been in the air for many hours. It had just signalled that a speed trial would be attempted before descending at about 3:30 p.m.

The machine was carrying about 50 men, some Britishers, under whose directions it had been built. The others were Americans who were being trained in her management for the trip to the United States.

There had been vague rumors that the airship was not behaving in an altogether satisfactory manner and that there were some defects in her fabric.

Only two men were known to have been saved. The two jumped from the blazing bags in parachutes, and came down safely.

GENERAL MAITLAND ABOARD.

General Maitland, believed to have been on board, was England's foremost air officer. He left his regiment, the First Essex, in 1909, to start the first British Flying Squadron, composed of five Maurice Farman airplanes. In 1910, he flew on a balloon trip in company with another officer, and was blown out of his course, landing in Russia.

During the war, Maitland led the first bombing raids across the German lines, later being recalled to the War Office, where he took over the duties of superintendent of Britain's naval air service.

He was 40 years of age. His friends called him "Geegee," after the slow flying types which he used in his pioneer days.

It was reported at the air station at Hamden that only two men were saved. They were said to have descended in parachutes. The rest were reported to have been killed.

Thousands of the people of Hull watched the disaster. As the explosion occurred they dashed panic stricken in all directions for fear of being enveloped by the wreckage, which fell just over the Victoria Pier.

DENBY SHOCKED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. — Secretary of the Navy Denby, was deeply shocked when he read the press despatch on the wreck of the ZR-2. "This is the first word we have had of it," he said.

The ZR-2 was the greatest lighter than air dirigible ever constructed. Built for the United States at a cost of over $2,000,000, she was originally the R-38, an improvement on the famous British R-34, which crossed the Atlantic in 1919.

She was 695 feet in length.

Her other dimensions were, diameter, 85 feet 4 inches; capacity, 2,700,000 cubic feet; total lift 83 tons; engines, 6 Sunbeam "Cossack," totaling 2100 horsepower; normal crew, officers and men, 30.

She had six propellers. Her structure contained 14 compartments in each of which was a giant gold-beaters-skin gas bag, and she could easily cruise 6500 miles.

Aluminum petrol tanks, water water tanks and bomb magazines lined the long steel corridors of the ship and here in the corridors were the living and sleeping quarters of the crew.

The hangar at the United States Naval air station at Lakehurst, N. Y., which was to have housed her, cost $2,000,000.

The ZR-1 was to have been her sister ship but the economy exercised by the United States Congress on the navy appropriations resulted in cancelling the order for her construction.

Commander Maxwell, U.S.N., was to have commanded the dirigible on her flight to the United States.

PETERBORO EXHIBITORS NO LONGER FEAR BIG OUTSIDE COMPETITION

SECRETARY FRED HALL HAS OBSERVED STEADY IMPROVEMENT IN LOCAL STOCK WITH INCREASING CONFIDENCE OF PETERBORO FARMERS—CLAIMS CREDIT FOR THE EXHIBITION IN PROGRESS BREEDERS HAVE MADE.

That the Peterborough Exhibition has been a definite and direct influence in improving farm stock in this district is the sum of Secretary F. J. A. Hall's observations during the fifteen years of his connection with the Fair Board.

"When we first increased the prize-list," he said, "there were farmers who left their cattle at home in the belief that exhibits from a distance would carry off the prize money. I remember one dairyman, who had been showing his herd for years. When the money was increased, he said it would attract a big producer from near Tweed, who was sure to sweep up the prizes. It turned out that neither of them exhibited, and that class was vacant at the Exhibition. That is an example of the mood of quite a number of the farmers who had been old exhibitors. Gradually, however, they began to pick up courage, and especially to improve their herds and their horses, sheep, and swine, until to-day we have right around Peterborough many farmers whose live stock is among the best in the country. The feeling of diffidence, of unconfidence in their own production, has passed, and they are keen to compete not only with each other, but also with outsiders who bring in exhibits from a distance. It seems to me that the Peterborough Exhibition can claim a large share of the credit for this improvement with its resultant effects upon the dairy industry and agriculture in general.

"All this has been accomplished in fifteen years, and the movement is now at its height. Instead of hesitant exhibitors afraid of outside competition, we have quite a number who put the chip on their shoulders and go after the prize money at other fairs and shows, including the biggest in the country."

Mr. Hall's recollections were elicited by the flood of mail that is daily pouring into his office from prospective exhibitors all over this district. Many of them are unfamiliar names to the secretary, an indication that this year's entries will set up another record.

COUNTY COURT CASE DISMISSED

After hearing considerable evidence in a juvenile case in the County Police Court to-day, Magistrate O. A. Langley dismissed the charge against an eleven-year-old boy of having assaulted, with intent to do bodily harm, a seven-year-old girl in Otonabee Township in March, 1920.

Dr. Harrison, who was called for the Crown, gave evidence to disprove that the little girl had been kicked by the boy as she testified, and the boy's story that he had never struck or kicked the little girl was accepted by His Worship.

The school teacher at Keene gave evidence that the girl had told her she had fallen and hurt herself, and also said that she had asked the class as a whole if they knew how she was hurt, and none of them, including the boy, knew anything of it. As a result of the injury to her leg, alleged to have been done by the boy kicking her with heavy boots, but according to Dr. Harrison probably caused by a fall, the little girl was nine weeks in bed at home and ten weeks in Nicholls Hospital.

Magistrate Langley, in dismissing the charge of assault against the young boy, who was defended by V. J. McElderry, said the case should never have been brought into Court.

WIRELESS TRANSMITS BURIAL SERVICE ON SEA

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—During a recent voyage of the Carmania from America, a request was received in the ship's wireless room from another vessel asking for the transmission to her by wireless of the words of the burial service.

The reason for this unusual request was that a fireman on board the Canadian Government steamer, Canadian Trapper, had been taken ill on the voyage and had died and the captain discovered that there was no copy of the prayer-book on board.

The carmania operator telegraphed by wireless the whole of the burial service.

HUNT MISSING MAN IN PROBE INTO MYSTERY

ON WHEREABOUTS OF PAUL JODOIN MAY DEPEND SOLUTION OF FINDING OF BULLET-PIERCED SKELETON.

JODOIN'S DIMENSIONS SAME AS SKELETON'S

(Secial Despatch to The Examiner)

KELSO, Ont., Aug. 24.—On the whereabouts of Paul Jodoin, a young French-Canadian veteran of the Great War, who was last seen in this locality in the fall of 1919, depends largely the solution of a gruesome mystery which was aired at an inquest here yesterday. The inquiry was over the remains found in a berry patch three and a half miles west of here on July 21 last, and which are stated by Dr. W. J. Keefe, of Iroqouis Falls, to have been the result of a crime committed at least 20 months ago.

When found the remains were merely a mass of bones and the skull was pierced in two places. When the discoverers lifted the skull, a bullet dropped on the ground. The dead man's clothes covered the skeleton and his hat was found pierced by a bullet, about eight feet from the spot between two logs and covered by another log. Awaiting the location of several parties who are believed to have valuable evidence in the case, the inquest was adjourned yesterday with the evidence indicative of "murder by an unknown person." Before the next hearing, which will be held on Thursday, Sept. 21, the Provincial police of this district will endeavor to get in touch with their only clue to information regarding Jodoin, supposed to be a man named Philemon Jodoin, 24 Nellade street, Montreal. The dimensions of the skeleton were described at the inquest yesterday as corresponding to those of the missing man.

Sensational evidence was given by Mr. and Mrs. Schram, of Kelso, who stated that at midnight sometime during the last week of November 1919, both had heard a shot, apparently coming from the direction of a neighbor's house. Both had been startled but had heard nothing more of the incident. They had not seen Jodoin in the neighborhood after that, they stated.

FIRST GLADIOLUS SHOW IN CANADA

OPENED AT ST. THOMAS TO-DAY--BEST EXHIBITS IN HISTORY.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

ST. THOMAS, Ont. Aug. 24. — With the choicest exhibits from almost every State in the United States and hundreds from all parts of Canada, the twelfth annual show of the American Gladiolus Society opened in Alma College to-day. It is the first time in the history of the organization that a show has been staged in Canada, and the first time that a city smaller than Boston has been selected. The quality, number and variety of the exhibits far surpass any other year and the officers are sorely pushed what to do with the thousands of beautiful blooms on hand.

Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has arrived in the city and will officially open the show this afternoon and is also billed to speak this evening. The St. Thomas Kiwanis Club will have charge of the Thursday programme.

SINN FEIN MAY REPLY SHORTLY, DUBLIN THINKS

WHAT IS PROBABLY FINAL CONSIDERATION OF THE REPLY TO BRITAIN WAS BEGUN THIS MORNING.

REPLY MAY BE MADE THURSDAY OR FRIDAY

DUBLIN, August 24. Canadian Press — Eamonn De Valera and his 'cabinet' began to-day what promised to be final consideration of the Sinn Fein reply to Great Britain's terms for settlement of the Irish question. The executive committee of the Sinn Fein was also in session but the Irish Republican "Parliament" did not meet, the adjournment over to-day being taken so that the "cabinet" might be free to devote its entire attention to the note to be sent to London. It was expected that the work would be expedited and that the completed reply would be ready for submission to the Dail Eireann at to-morrow's morning's session.

The reply to the terms for settlement of the Irish Question will be delivered at Prime Minister's Lloyd George's official residence in Downing street on Thursday night or Friday morning, it is expected here. Delivery, it is thought, will precede the proposed public meeting of the Dail Eireann.

DOOR IS STILL OPEN.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(By United Press.)—The Sinn Fein reply to the British peace offer does not accept the proposals but "doesn't bang the door to peace," the Evening News' Dublin correspondent wired this afternoon. The negotiations, he reported, are largely a matter of "logic chopping."

Before coming to Kingston in 1919 Professor Watts was pastor of Westminster Church, Medicine Hat, Alberta. He is a Scotchman by birth, being a very distinguished graduate of Cambridge University England, both in Science and Theology.

THURSDAY'S DANCE AT LAKEFIELD

Mr. Lawless has made special arrangements for the Thursday dance at Riverside Park Pavilion, Lakefield, it being the evening of Father Meaghers' Picnic and a very large crowd is expected. The music will be supplied by Paul Gliddon's four piece orchestra and doubtless all roads will lead to Lakefield.

The Tuesday night's dance drew a large number of dances and was crowded to capacity. Many young people motored out from Peterboro, Lakefield, Chemong Park and the nearby cottages were also well represented. The dance was thoroughly enjoyed, the floor being in perfect condition.

The music which was provided by Paul Gliddon's Orchestra played with their usual "pep" and was all that could be desired.

Fights Hand to Hand With Bear

EX-GOVERNOR OF MICHIGAN, AGED 61, KILLS ANIMAL AFTER BATTLE IN RIVER.

SAUTE STE. MARIE, Ont., Aug. 24.— (Canadian Press.) — Former Governor Chas. E. S. Osborn, of Michigan, engaged in a desperate battle in the St. Mary's river yesterday with a black bear, which he finally stunned with a blow on the head and then choked to death with his hands.

Osborn, who is 61 years old, and an old-time bear hunter, was out in the river in a small boat when the bear appeared swimming towards him. Watchers on the shore saw the animal half capsize the craft with its paws and all while the ex-Governor battered with a small axe. Then as the bear hung determined on its prey, Osborn's blows began to tell and as its eyes glazed the old hunter seized it by the throat and held it until the breath was choked out of the great hairy beast.

What Language Is Official?

FRENCH CLAIM RIGHT TO AUTHIZATION OF THEIR TONGUE AT DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE.

BY WEBB MILLER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Aug. 24. — "The French government could not in any case participate in a conference where French was not admitted as an official language," Premier Briand said to-day in a letter to the French Academy.

His letter was in reply to the Academy's protest against reports that English would be the official language of the Washington disarmament conference. Brian assured the Academy that the government would attempt to uphold its traditional privileges, but pointed out it would be difficult, inasmuch as Woodrow Wilson at the Paris peace conference, claimed without contradiction that "English is the diplomatic language of the Pacific."

Briand's phrase, "an official language," presumably means that he will insist that French be one of the official languages of the conference. There are usually two at Washington. English and French probably will be authorized.

ARSON CHARGED, TAKES POISON; WILL RECOVER

SPRINGFORD HARNESS MAKER, IN JAIL AT WOODSTOCK, IS SUFFERING FROM EFFECTS OF PARIS GREEN.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 24.—Charles R. Veale, the Springford harness-maker who is lying in Woodstock jail awaiting trial on a charge of arson in connection with two disastrous fires at Springford recently, is ill and is under medical attention as a result of his having taken a dose of poison prior to his arrest.

It was learned today that when the investigation became hot he went to the local store and bought a supply of paris green. He mixed up a quantity of this and drank it and became violently ill. This aroused the suspicion of County Constable Hill, who immediately put the man through a stiff examination. Fearing that his act might have fatal results, Veale confessed to being the writer of the anonymous letters and was arrested. Immediate medical attention, however, saved his life and he is slowly recovering.

COMMISSIONER DEFENDS CENSUS RETURNS FOR THIS CITY; SAYS FIGURES ARE NOT COMPLETE YET

ADDITIONAL RETURNS TO BE ISSUED LATER WILL INCLUDE THOSE OUT OF CITY WHEN COUNT TAKEN, HE DECLARES.

ASSESSOR'S FIGURES INCLUDE TRANSIENTS

Mr. Joseph Mills, Census Commissioner for West Peterborough, replied strongly today to the charges of W. H. Henry, City Assessor, reported in an interview with Mr. Henry in last evening's issue of The Examiner, that the census returns for the city were not complete.

"The census returns do not do an injustice to Peterborough in any way," said Mr. Mills this morning. "The interview starts off by saying there is a difference of a thousand in population between the census figures and Mr. Henry's figures and thereby the census figures do the city a great injustice. The City Assessor's figures give the city a population of 21,700, while the first returns issued by Ottawa credit the city with 20,989 of a population. This leaves a difference of 801. The corrected return from the Census Department to be issued later will include the returns from house cards and absentee cards, which at a conservative estimate will bring the total to 21,114. Mr. Henry admits in all probability he will not show as many people in his returns this year. Had the census been taken last year we would have got several hundred more than we got in the month of June this year.

Transients Omitted.

"For census purposes everyone in the city is not taken. The idea is to get a complete census for the Dominion. We therefore did not take transients at the hotels or students temporarily here. There were 125 at the Normal School and 50 registered at the Collegiate. These were not taken because the Act explicitly states they must be taken at their permanent abode. The City Assessor for his returns takes all these. This accounts for 200 more and reduces the difference between the Assessor's figures for last year and the census figures of this year to 486.

"We will grant that 20 enumerators in the city would have missed five boarders each, bringing the difference down to 386. Mr. Henry has not tabulated his population for this year and he does not know if he will have that many or not; so the difference between the returns he will publish and these returns will be very trifling," said Mr. Mills.

"Mr. Henry also states he knows of families away on holidays, some at Chemong, others down the river. Where a family was away an absentee or house card was sent to Ottawa, and it is then their duty to trace each family. No house in the city of Peterborough was missed. I have as good a knowledge of Peterborough as almost anyone in it, and it would have been impossible for an enumerator to return to me a roll not having the proper number of houses. Of course the inhabitants of the houses was another thing. I could not vouch for them. Care was even taken to send a canoe down the river the end of June to see if anyone down there for the summer had been missed.

Paid by Name.

"There is not the slightest grounds to think there was any slackness or omission in the work of the enumerators. Each was sworn in when he started, to do his work faithfully, and when his returns were made he also took another oath that they were correct to the best of his knowledge. They were also paid by name; so it was in their own interest to secure as many names as possible.

SUBMARINE CHASERS TAKE PART IN HUNT

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 24.—(By United Press.)— The fleet of five rum-running schooners from Nassau, Bahamas, must "fight or surrender" within a few hours, according to advices received to-day from the squadron of government vessels hunting the bootleggers in Chesapeake Bay. Two divisions of government boats, including a number of coast guard cutters and submarine chasers, manned by trained fighters and marksmen, are closing in on the waters where the bootleg fleet is supposed to be.

Officers believe that the fleet is carrying a cargo of liquor valued at $250,000, part of which may have been landed. The five schooners of the fleet are manned by a crew of 50.

QUEER DOINGS

FISHERMAN REQUIRED WAGON TO CARRY CATCH

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—When thirteen-year-old Emory Eyesman, son of Julian Eyesman, General Traffic Manager of the Pennsylvania Railway, went fishing the other day friends were obliged to charter an express wagon to carry his catch home. Emory caught two sharks that measured 8 feet and 8 feet 4 inches long and weighed 450 and 490 pounds each. He battled with them for more than two hours before landing them.

BEES TURN RADICAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—The bees of the United States appear to have adopted a Bolshevist policy. Recent despatches received here show that they have committed the following atrocities:

Killed a horse and forced twenty mules to retire from work in Yolo County, California.

Held the pike against all traffic near Lexington, Kentucky, guarding a honey tree which fell across the highway.

Stung a motorist on the nose in Wisconsin, and thereby ditched an automobile party.

FISH BY ELECTROCUTION.

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—A scheme for capturing swordfish by electrocution is being worked out here by Joseph Hammond of Brooklyn, N. Y., a summer visitor. In a recent experiment off No Man's Land Mr. Hammond says he killed a 75-pound swordfish by sending an electric current along the steel harpoon. Adoption of electrical fishing, Hammond asserts, would combine humanity to the fish with less exertion to the fisherman.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS OUTBREAK IN N.Y. STATE

ALBANY, N.Y., Aug. 23. —Ten cases of infantile paralysis are reported in West Chester county, 33 in Utica and others in various parts of the State, making a total of about 100, have stirred up State Health Department authorities. In Green county there have been five cases and two deaths.

Dr. Herman M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner, said to-night that there was no need for alarm at this time. He urged parents, however, to keep their children away from large gatherings, and advises that children be not permitted to become over-fatigued.

State Health Department officials declare the epidemic is centred in Utica, where 33 cases were reported.

More than 200 women residing in cities throughout the United States have applied for admission to New York's Policewomen's School.

MOTOR BOATS AND BOBBED HAIR APPEAR AT STONEY LAKE IN LARGER NUMBERS

SUMMER ACTIVITIES AT THE LAKE POINTS DRAWING TO A CLOSE—THE REGATTAS.

STONEY, LAKE, Aug. 24.—The regatta season at Stoney Lake is over and the traffic has begun to increase on the down trips of the steamers and down trips of the trip. The holiday season is not over but the greatest rush is past and people can enjoy the lake now in a quitter way. Stoney Lake has had a gay season with lots of dancing for the younger set and it is noticeable that the dancing at Juniper has been enjoyed more by the younger set than ever before. The devotees of bridge have had a more organized season as one might say, afternoon and evening bridge parties have been more than ever popular among those who wish to take their pleasure seriously.

Afternoon tea, which were long fought against by many who regarded them as out of place at Stoney Lake where oe should "cut loose" from the tyranny of modern conventional entertaining, have won out and this season the number of fashionable teas has largely increased.

Picnic Remains.

But the good old fashioned picnic still holds its own as the really popular diversion. Shore dinners, corn roasts, marshmallow roasts, fudge parties, picnic teas, who doesn't like them? They still remain popular and always will as long as Stoney Lake is Stoney and possesses such delightful spots as Eel's Creek with its high falls, Gilchrist's Bay and Indian River with White Lake with its alluring bass beds, Perry's Creek, Fairy Lake, Jack's Creek and the numerous other attractive spots.

Hundreds have played the nimble chamois and sealed the granite peaks of Eagle Mount and feasted their eyes on the wonderful view that one can obtain from there. Perhaps more have patiently toiled up Mount Julian and many have failed to find the right place to see Mount Julian's view which is west and southwest only and includes a vista of Clear Lake lying below Stoney Lake with its numerous islands.

Community life has become even a greater feature of Stoney Lake than in any other season. This is not new but has grown gradually. Twenty years ago Juniper Island was the centre of Stoney Lake, everyone went there for mail for supplies and it was the heart of a community and a very strong heart too. Dances were given there whenever anyone could play the piano and it was the event of the day to see the boat land and its arrival meant a dock crowded with young

Closing Chapter in Summer Season Along the Banks of Otonabee River

CRAWFORD'S GROVE, Aug. 24.—The camp of Mrs. H. J. Paterson, Crawford's Grove, was the scene of much lively fun and frolic on Friday evening last, when Mr. Norman Paterson entertained quite a number of young people at a corn roast, and masquerade.

After the Grand March, which was led by Piper Lorne McDonald through the Grove, which was gaily decorated with Chinese lanterns, the merry group played games until eleven o'clock. Masks were then removed and refreshments served.

Following the refreshments, a moonlight sing song was held to the accompaniment of an impromptu orchestra.

The presence of a gypsy fortune teller contributed largely to the pleasure of the guests, as she prophesied many things to happen in the future.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close, by the singing of "For He's a jolly good fellow."

Personals

Mrs. H. J. Paterson, Miss Helen Mowry, and Mr. Norman Paterson leave shortly for Toronto.

DAIL TO LEAVE DOOR OPEN FOR MORE PARLEYS

LEARNED AUTHORITATIVELY THAT, WHILE NOT ACCEPTING BRITISH TERMS, IT WILL NOT MEAN RESUMPTION OF HOSTILITIES.

BY CLYDE C. BEALS.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, Aug. 24.—The character of the Dail Eireann's reply to the British Government's peace offer will leave the door open for further negot iations. The United Press correspondent was reliably informed today that the reply which had been determined upon, while not accepting the terms, will not mean immediate resumption of hostilities.

Sinn Fein's inner circle has decided upon its answer and submitted it to the Dail Eireann for approval.

Announcement of the Sinn Fein reply is expected to-morrow. It was possible it wuold be further delayed.

To-day the various heads of the Dail continued their discussions on "departmental business," as one of the members called it. During the secret session yesterday, President De Valera was the Mansion House for nine hours. He made at least one long speech to the assembled Dail during that time, it was learned. The negotiations yesterday were jealously guarded.

The fact leaked out, however, that the proposed reply which the Dail Eireann, representing the Sinn Fein, will make to Lloyd George, "leaves the door open."

A definite choice between war or peace, it was said, had not been made, but a reply that would assure continuation of the truce had been decided upon. This, it was pointed out, was the decision of the inner ring—men like De Valera, Collins and McNail. The Dail had the theoretical right to change it.

HALES SUCCEEDS FLAVELLE; ALSO IS PROSECUTOR

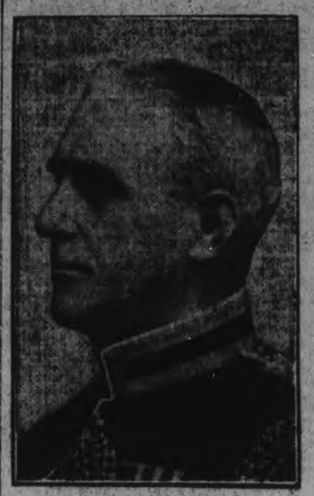
APPOINTMENT TO DO UBLE POSITION INDICATES NEW POLICY RE O. T. A.

TORONTO, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—James Hales is to succeed J. D. Flavelle as chairman of the Ontario License Board, while he is also appointed to the position of Director of Prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act.

Announcement of the double task has been entrusted to Mr. Hales, who will be given an annual salary of $6,500, shows a reversal of policy by the government in the matter of prosecution under the License Act, which were formerly diversed from the administration of the License Board.

Because of the added task which the new chariman undertakes it was essential for the appointment that he should be a lawyer.

The three-piece costume, consisting of a dress and crepe wrap, is much liked by the smart dresser. Foulard and crepe or serge combinations lend themselves admirably to this type of dress. The capes are usually simple and of original cut.



SIR SAM HUGHES,
In one of his last appearances as a Military Officer.

OUTBREAKS IN INDIA, TROOPS ARE RUSHED IN

THOUSANDS OF NATIVES, ARMED, ARE TERRORIZING MALABAR DISTRICT—RAILWAY LINES CUT—TOWNS LOOTED.

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 24.— (By United Press.)—Stirred by religious fanatics, armed mobs of thousands of natives are spreading fire and terror in the Malabar district. Desperate appeal for help have been sent out by all the inhabitants. Military reinforcements were to-day reported arriving.

A native mob, marching through several successive small towns, burned dwellings of the white inhabitants, looted the post offices and public buildings and destroyed property. Railway lines have been cut in several places.

The military garrison at Malabar fired upon the mobs. Many casualties resulted.

A. W. MALLORY IS LIBERAL CHOICE

NOMINATED TO CONTEST BY-ELECTION IN BROCKVILLE.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Liberals to the number of about three hundred, including many ladies, attended the convention here yesterday for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the riding of Brockville and Leeds for the vacant seat in the Commons, caused by the retirement of Sir Thomas White. Five names were put forward: Hon. G. P. Graham, A. C. Hardy, J. E. McGlade, Brockville; M. B. Holmes, of Athens, ex-Warden of Leeds and Grenville, and A. H. Mallory, of Mallory Town, cattle buyer, cheese and butter manufacturers. All retired with the exception of Mr. Holmes and Mr. Mallory, the latter winning by a large majority on the first ballot.

PROBABILITIES.

Fine, and not much change in temperature.

SIR SAM DEAD; THE END CAME THIS MORNING

LAST RELAPSE PROVED FATAL AND THROUGHOUT YESTERDAY PHYSICIANS ANTICIPATED HIS DEATH, WHICH CAME AT ONE A.M.

FOUGHT LONG BATTLE WITH EBBING STRENGTH

LINDSAY, Ont., Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Sir Sam Hughes died at one o'clock this moring (standard time.)

Throughout yesterday it was seen that the end was near.

Only the members of his family and his physician, Dr. McAlpine, were with him at the last. A cable was sent General Garnet Hughes, his son, in London, last night, that death was approaching.

Sir Sam Hughes had been in failing health ever since his return from the old country last winter. He made this trip despite the earnest advice of his physicians, who realized that his health needed the extremist care.

In April last, in Ottawa, he suffered a second attack of pernicious anaemia. Two physicians at many periods of his illness regarded his condition as hopeless.

That he ever lived to see out the session and return to Lindsay was in the nature of a miracle. For weeks his condition was so grave that the least thing might have turned the scale, and yet he lingered on, optimistic and interested by everything.

Blood transfusions, resorted to in Ottawa, had a temporarily beneficial effect.

Only members of Sir Sam Hughes family and one or two very intimate friends were at the bedside when the end came, including Lady Hughes, Mrs. Byron Green of Chatham, a daughter, Miss Aileen Hughes, daughter, Dr. John McAlpine of Lindsay, brother-in-law who had attended General Hughes during his last illness, Birnie McAlpine, nephew, Miss Burke of Bowmanville, a sister-in-law, and T. H. Stinson of Lindsay, an old friend of the general.

A cablegram was sent to General Garnet Hughes of London, Eng., a son of Sir Sam, conveying the word of his father's death. Burial will take place on Friday afternoon at two o'clock with military honors. The remains of the old soldier will be borne on a gun carriage to Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay, where interment will take place.

In addition to the members of the family mentioned above, Sir Sam is survived by the following brothers and sisters; Dr. James L. Hughes, Toronto, Major Gen. Sir John Hughes, Bowmanville, Brigadier General St. Pierre Hughes, Superintendent of Prisons, Ottawa, Mrs. Scott, wife of the late Professor Scott, of Toronto, Mrs. J. A. McAlpine of Lindsay, Mrs. McDonald, now in the United States, formerly Mrs. Robt. Thexton of Lindsay.

From farm lad to Minister of Militia, Sir Sam, with a providential singleness of aim, through a kaleidoscope of vocations, smashed his way. Teacher, athlete, lecturer, editor, soldier, politician, and Minister of Militia, in his 68 years he was obstreperously all of these. He was christened Sam Hughes, not Samuel Hughes, and he was born in that "logging-bee, bull-driving county of Durham," in Darlington Township, which perhaps accounted for all his forthrightness and undecorative ways.

A French Ancestor.

Teaching was endemic in the family. His father, a Tyrone Irishman, taught the school of the section; James L., too, had finally decided that pedagogy was to be his life's work, when all Sam's martial tendencies, inherited especially, perhaps, from some French ancestors on his

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 24TH, 1921.

A COMMENDABLE CAMPAIGN.

The Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association is to be congratulated upon the zeal with which it is entering upon its campaign to conserve the natural resources of this district. That there is every need of an effort of this kind is only too evident, and the co-operation of the public should be accorded the Association. The trouble has been that men who are law-abiding citizens in other respects, have had no scruples about violating the game and fishery laws. Illegal fishing has been carried on by individuals who could not be persuaded to break other laws. There is no logical reason for throwing all the blame upon the Indians of the district. Undoubtedly, some of them pay no attention to the regulations, but the fishing they do on their own account would cause little damage. It is the commercialization of their illegal angling that hurts, and were it not that many citizens of Peterborough connive at law-breaking by buying fish in and out of season, there would be no market for the fish pirates, and their operations would, from lack of financial support, soon cease. The fishing resources of this district are too valuable an asset to be tampered with. Mr. R. J. Soden, president of the local Association, estimates that the fishermen, hunters and other tourists who are attracted to the vicinity of Peterborough spend at least $250,000 a year here. Sooner or later this revenue will fall away to nothing if the waters in the district are depleted of game fish that make them a lure for anglers from far and near. From a purely commercial standpoint—having on one side the pleasure and recreation the citizens of Peterborough obtain from fishing—this district cannot afford to allow the game and fishery regulations to be openly violated.

It is complained that there is lack of inspectors. This is a matter for the Ontario Government, and if the allegation is founded on fact, the Department should be called upon to provide the necessary protection. But the support of the citizens generally on behalf of the Association would accomplish more than the activity of ten times as many inspectors as there are at present on duty.

THE "EMERGENCY" TARIFF.

That the United States' so-called "emergency" tariff has had an even greater effect upon Canada's farm exports across the border than was anticipated, is evidenced by the foreign trade returns for July, the second full month the new regulations have been in force. The dairying industry is perhaps the chief sufferer, for the exports of butter last month amounted to only 104,310 pounds as against 1,690,158 pounds in July last year, while 195,936 pounds of condensed or preserved milk were shipped to the United States as compared with 24,938,678 pounds in the same period last year. The same decline is shown in the exports of fresh and frozen meats, 966,800 pounds last month and 2,040,300 pounds twelve months ago. The shipments of Canadian cattle were reduced by two-thirds and practically no wool at all was sent out of Canada; to be exact, only 409 pounds, while in July, 1920, 178,320 pounds were sold to United States' buyers.

It is evident that if these reductions are to be continued by our neighbours, Canadian agriculture will have to relinquish the American market and compete in the overseas markets with American produce. The Canadian farmer has had to face similar situations in the past, and has always shown himself resourceful in an emergency. Before long the American farmers may find that their emergency tariff has developed strong boomerang tendencies.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

In a letter to The Examiner, which appears a little lower down in this column, Mr. C. H. Reid, of the local branch of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, takes up the cudgels on behalf of the Department's vocational training scheme, resenting some criticism which recently appeared in The Examiner.

After reading his communication, we are left unrepentant and without any change of opinion in regard to vocational training. The idea of re-training Canada's disabled soldiers so as to enable them to earn their living, in spite of their war injuries, was a noble one, and in theory left nothing to be desired. But in the manner in which it was carried out, the scheme to a considerabl extent fell to pieces. For that failure the officials in charge of the work should not be held responsible, because in many cases it was the cupidity of certain returned men that made the plan a dubious xperiment. Many men simply took advantage of the opportunity to obtain the pay and allowances offered during the period of training. They did not care what course they were given so long as it was fairly free from work—which explains the popularity of the commercial course—and as soon as it was over a lot of them promptly proceeded to forget the trade they had been coached in, and looked for something else. In other words, the vocational training scheme was exploited by a certain class of ex-service men, and millions of dollars of the people's money have been squandered in a vain atempt to re-educate men who were animated merely by the ambition to secure a little easy money.

Mr. Reid's letter is as follows:

Editor,
The Peterborough Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Your issue of Friday, 19th August, contains an editorial headed "Vocational Training" in which you refer to your criticism of the vocational training scheme inaugurated for the benefit of Canada's returned soldiers, particularly that men were being given a course in trades for which they were not fitted, and that some of those who applied for and were granted vocational training were concerned only with the pay and allowances, and had no serious intention of following up the course once it was completed. You state that these contentions have been substantiated by the testimony of Secretary F. J. Marsh, of the G.A.U.V. I have before me the statement of Mr. Marsh, as reported in the Mail and Empire, reading as follows:

"In the case of those D.S.C.R. students who have been unable to secure work at the trades for which they were trained by the Government institutions, and have been walking the streets unable even to secure work of any kind, it is the intention to cite these to the Federal Government and urge upon that body to extend the courses so that those men may brush up their previous training."

There is no suggestion in this that vocational training has been a failure, as implied in your article, but a request to the Government to continue their good work. Vocationally trained men have been in the same handicap as other labour in that there is not enough worn to go round. They have failed to secure work in the lines in which they were trained, not because their training was at fault, but because there were no openings for them to utilise their training. It is reasonable to expect that men who have recently learned a new trade and have found no opportunity for months to exercise their knowledge of that trade will be more apt to forget their recently acquired knowledge than those who have been years practising that trade.

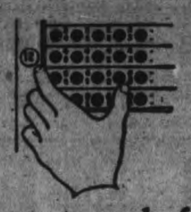
As I understand the statement of the Secretary of the G.A.U.V., it is to enable these men to compete on equal terms with others of longer standing at the same trade that the request is to be made to the Federal Government to extend further courses to vocational students who have not been able to secure work on account of the prevalent conditions since their training was completed.

You say that Mr. Marsh "declares that a large number of veterans registering as unemployed are men who have been given a course in vocational training, but have never worked at the trade in which they were educated." Also that "some of them have forgotten the little training they received."

There is no such statement made in the report of the Mail and Empire. You conclude by saying that it would be interesting information to know just what percentage of men who received a training course are at the present time engaged in the work for which they are trained. It is not possible to give the figures asked for, as thousands of men are out of work not through any fault of theirs, both among vocationally trained men and others; but figures are obtainable in the local D.S.C.R. office, which show that approximately 70 per cent. of the men trained in this district have been employed along the lines of their training since completing their course, showing that these men, whether employed or not at the present time, received sufficient training to enable them to earn their living in that branch of work for which they were trained. These figures can be examined by any member of your staff at any time.—Yours truly,

C. H. Reid.

According to these figures, 30 per cent. of the men who received vocational training did not obtain positions in the trade in which their course had been taken; 70 per cent. who completed their courses did start work along their lines of training, but we are not told how many of these failed to meet success and had to look for work in some other trade. For these conditions, however, the officials are not greatly to blame. Upon an element of the veterans who were chiefly concerned in getting as much as possible for the minimum of work, the responsibility must rest.



How to ask for a Number

When you ask for number 1263, the operator turns to section 12, and then looks for number 63. If it was 237, she would turn to section 2 and look for 37. So when you pause before the last two numbers (12-63, or 2-37) you may be sure the operator knows you are intelligently and intentionally making it easier for her.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A contemporary wants to know what is the matter with the weather, seeing that no one is complaining about it.

The Saskatchewan crop reports show that the yield in all grains is upwards of 20 per cent. above the average for the past ten years. That is cheerful news.

With Peterborough's Public schools opening on Sept. 1st, thousands of little folks will indulge in September mourning.

There is no argument about the Winnipeg Free Press declaration that the cost of the Hydro-radial inquiry in Ontario would have built a good many blocks of houses.

From the inquiry into the exchange rates it is evident that some soldiers did not find it difficult to secure money from the Government.

OPPORTUNITY.

We should more fully appreciate our opportunities could we realize what a blind person with a love of the beautiful would give for just a glimpse of the marvelous world, which is all shut out from him and free to us.

What would he not give if he could just have his eyes opened for a few months and be allowed to travel over this beautiful earth and drink in the world's beauties? Just to be able to see the flower, to get one glimpse of the landscape which we see so often that it makes almost no impression upon us, what would it not mean to him?

Very striking are the flowing sleeves of crimson crepe recently introduced into black frocks.

STILL, MASH, MOONSHINE, IN DUGOUT AT THEATRE

WELLAND, Aug. 23.—One of the main arteries for moonshine was discovered in Crowland, when, acting on information received in St. Catharines, five Provincial officers raided the Temple Theatre and came across a very complete still in operation. The mash had just been run off and 25 gallons of moonshine was the result. About 300 pounds of prunes was also found. The still was situated in a sort of dugout in the back basement of the theatre, and only by someone "spilling the beans" could it have been located. It is stated that it has been in operation for three months. Five foreigners are under arrest, including the owner of the theatre.

GIVES ONLY HER NAME; THEN KNEELS IN PRAYER

QUEBEC, Aug. 23.—Unable or unwilling to give any information concerning herself except her name, Alice Alain, French, about 24 years old, and well dressed, was arrested when trying to board a C. P. R. train for Montreal by a special C.P.R. constable. She had no railway ticket, but the sum of $47 was found in her purse.

Appearing in the Recorder's Court she gave her name and then sank to her knees in prayer. When spoken to she made strange signs with her hands, as though giving the password to some secret order. She carried a prayer-book in her hand.

The police think she belongs to Montreal.

Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.

We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

Chapter 45.

"Now that I'm here, dearest, what do you want to talk to me about?" I asked, snuggling down into the soft upholstery of the big, comfortable chair.

"Oh, just everything, Babs," Kent returned, as he stretched his long legs out beyond the little stool and leaned over with his arms against my knees.

I took my hand and brushed back his thick, black hair from his broad forehead. Kent's handsome head and splendid features made me look ahead into the future and my thoughts wandered far away into a precious little dream.

"All right, dear, talk to me," I urged, coming back suddenly from my little revery.

"I want to tell you about those studio apartments over beyond Washington Square that I told you about a few months ago," he began.

"I don't remember, dear," I said, thinking carefully for a minute.

"Surely you do. Listen a minute—I told you about some old ramshackle places south of Washington Square that I had sold to a fellow, and how he was planning to remodel them into up-to-the-minute studios. Remember, I told you how they were to have dandy big open fireplaces in every apartment," he went on to explain.

"Oh, yes, now I remember, dear," I said quickly, "and I told you I didn't see how anyone could ever make those places liveable," I laughed.

"That's it, sure. But say, you ought to see them now—what he has done to them! They are great! I want to take you over some afternoon to look them over." Kent contemplated a minute. "There is a swell studio that I think you might like, and all you have to do is say the word, Babs."

"Tell me about it, dear. How many rooms has it?" I interrogated.

"Would you want to move, Babs?" he asked suddenly, watching my face.

"Yes, I have been thinking about it myself," I said musingly.

"Good! We'll look it over together, Babs. It has a hanging porch at the back and the living room is a wonder. There are two good sized bedrooms, a rather small dining room and a tiny little kitchen, sort of a kitchenette, but just as complete as can be. You'd adore it," he enthused. His dark brown eyes snapped with happiness and interest.

"Aren't there any with more rooms—more bedrooms, dear?" I asked. My face flushed perceptibly.

"No, they are all small studios. One has three bedrooms, but the owner is reserving that for himself—but what do you want it any larger for, Babs? We can each have a room of our own, and that's enough. There is no sense having a big place and making more work for you, dear. Please! Come look at them with me tomorrow and I'm sure you'll fall in love with the place," he pleaded.

"Well, Kent," pressing his hand, "you see I'm afraid we will have to have a place with more room—we ought to have another bedroom—we—we are going to need it pretty soon. I'm afraid that apartment would be a little too small."

Kent looked at me with his dear eyes grown suddenly large and questioning.

"Yes, don't you understand, my dear, wonderful man?" I whispered, slipping forward into his arms.

Kent tried to hold me off at arm's length for a minute while his eager brown eyes searched mine. Then a beautiful light of understanding filled his eyes with tears.

"Oh, my dear, precious little mother," Kent cried, and there was a catch in his deep voice as he folded his arms about me.

REMINISCENCES OF SIR SAM BY A FORMER NEWSPAPER CO-WORKER

(By F. H. DOBBIN)

Editor's Note: Mr. F. H. Dobbin, the author of the following article, worked with Sir Sam Hughes for a number of years on The Lindsay Warder, the paper which Sir Sam owned and edited.

Sir Sam Hughes has been before the public, interested and taking part in the political activities of the Dominion, since 1892, when he successfully contested and was returned for North Victoria, Ont., and afterwards as the sitting member for Victoria and Haliburton. Preceding his entry into political life he had made himself conspicuously active in several fields of endeavor. His early years of manhood were spent as a public school teacher, and he had taught at Belleville, Lifford and at Bowmanville. For ten years following he was lecturer in English literature and history at the Toronto Collegiate Institute.

It was during these years that he became identified with athletics and was a most worthy exponent of the advantages of physical culture as essential to a sound mind in a sound body. His earnest advocacy and his practical example brought around him the youth with whom he came in contact ,and they respected him for the wise and practical counsel he gave, and the encouragement he ever instilled.

Those were the palmy days of lacrosse, and in Sam Hughes the game and the art found a vigorous exponent. He was more than active; he became renowned on the lacrosse field, a player of infinite resource, and a tower of strength to his team and team-mates. The wins of the Toronto clubs with which he was associated, are of the best in the annals of the game. He encouraged the sport in a practical way, sharing the exertions of the field and inculcating a fine spirit of

Lacrosse was fast drifting into the realm of professionalism, and Sam Hughes combatted this tendency for all he was worth.

In other fields of athletics he was conspicuously successful. His sturdy manhood and vigorous frame and temperate habits gave him the energy to contest where he found opponents worthy of his mettle. In 1872 he entered the field of amateur atheltics' and contested for the championship of America in the mile race, winning hands down. Cricket, curling and field sports found in him an ardent advocate and in several of these he distinguished himself. All over the province are "Old Boys" who remember with gratification and pride that they were tutored in the good ways of decent sports by Sam Hughes.

In the meantime brothers of Sam. Hughes were making each his way in the world and coming under the public eye. Newspaper work and such influence as printing in public afforded appealed to him. He left the field of teaching and secured the Lindsay Warder, taking it over from the Newton Bros. His brother-in-law, Dr. McAlpine, lived at Lindsay, and to Lindsay Sam. Hughes would go. No man has asked what his political convictions were before he reached Lindsay, but one thing for sure, he was unflinchingly a Conservative while there and ever afterwards.

While in some ways it seems to be a natural graduation from teaching what others had written to writing what others might teach, so from school teacher to editor did not trouble Sam. Hughes. He attacked the change of life and work with unflagging zeal. His pen wrote as he thought, his views often original if not displayed as the practiced writer for the press would lay such down. This was in 1885. He carried on the paper until his political engagements grew onerous, and then disposed of it and put on the harness of political life as a profession, culminating in his becoming Minister of Militia in 1911.

Early in his years as a young man the Volunteer Militia appealed to him. Enlisting, he at once displayed over the average earnestness and ability. He was gazetted as Lieutenant in the 45th Regiment in 1873, became Captain and Adjutant in 1878, Brevet-Major in 1883, Major the year following, and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment in 1897. With this rank he took part in the military display, London, England, in connection with the celebration of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, 1897. Acting Brigade Major in M. D. No. 3, 1886, Brigadier at Niagara, 1899. Visited New Zealand, Australia, in the interest of Colonial assistance in Imperial wars. His efforts to be realized when the call to arms came in 1914.

He served in the Fenian Raid of 1870 and took part in the South African War, 1899-90. In South Africa his energy and capabilities were recognized, and he rose to be assistant to Colonel Wynter on transport to Modder River, also Chief of Intelligence Staff to Lieut.-Gen. Sir Chas. Warren. He was further concerned in operations in South Africa until the close of the war, making for himself friends and admirers, who respected Sam. Hughes for his energy and resolve to do things off hand. This characteristic is remembered and noted and will remain a part of the historical records of the Dominion, when public opinion joined in one burst of approval when he was so largely instrumental as Minister of Militia, in cutting the strands of red tape and hustling overseas the famous First Contingent from Canada to the assistance of the Mother Country.

Lady Hughes.

Even the most virulent enemies that Sam. Hughes made acclaim him for his national work at that time and juncture.

The three years following the outbreak of the war taxed his energy very vitally. It was no mean thing to conceive, direct and approve the habiliment of a National Volunteer Army, such as no Colonial dependency has as yet organized and sent forward. He shared the perplexities that grey up and abounded. Not only in Canada but in England he made himself conspicuous in pushing forward the needs and interests of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. Credit is due to Sir Sam. Hughes. Future years will recognize and acclaim. His activities may well be enshrined in the testimony of one of his political opponents, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he said that Sam. Hughes "had done more in his day and generation for the uplifting of the Militia in Canada and the Empire than any other man."

ANOTHER VICTIM OF MURDER RING

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(United Press).—Another Italian has been slain here and Mulberry street's millionaire bootlegger has fled to Italy while the police expect to effect seven arrests in connection with the murder gang of "Good Killers."

Patsy Aurto, proprietor of a notorious hotel known as the "House of All Nations," was shot down by Ignazio Marto, believed by the police to be a member of the "Good Killers," who has escaped and is in hiding.

At the same time, one of the murder ring's prospective victims has fled to Italy, accompanied by armed bodyguards. Salvatore Esposito, known to the police as a millionaire bootlegger, was threatened by members of an Italian gang, believed to be the "Good Killers" with death because he was alleged to have "double-crossed" them. In fear of his life, he employed a squad of police to escort him to a steamer on which he sailed for Naples.

According to the police, it has been decided to forward a request to the Italian Government, through the consulate here, for Italy's co-operation in running down the "Good Killers." It is considered certain here that the brains of the international murder syndicate are largely centred in Italy, only the tools of the organization remaining in this country.

MAXWELL

Tired and Nervous—from the Lack of Sleep? Do You Know the Reason Why?

Sleep time is the time when the reconstructive processes in your body are busiest—turning food into blood, and nerve tissue, and living cells.

That's the reason why lack of sleep makes you irritable, inefficient and nervous; and why you lack "punch" when you don't get a proper amount of the right kind of sleep.

It has been the experience of many that the cup of tea or coffee, taken at meal-time, robs them of sleep.

In Gould and Pyle's Cyclopedia of Medicine and Surgery you'll find that "caffein is a rapidly acting stimulant to the brain and spinal cord, quickens the action of the heart, and raises blood pressure."

This makes it a very good medicine if prescribed by a doctor for cases of collapse, when a patient needs to have his system abnormally forced into activity. But caffeine is not good for people whose systems don't need to be drugged.

So if you don't get your proper sleep at night, it may be because you are being kept awake by tea or coffee.

Stop tea and coffee for awhile and drink Postum—the delicious cereal beverage.

Postum is a pure cereal product, and contains no harmful element whatsoever. Your first taste of Postum will surprise and please you. Many people prefer the flavor of Postum to that of coffee.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this hot, refreshing beverage in place of tea or coffee for ten days, and see what a wonderful difference it will make in the way you feel.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

STATUS OF ARMS MEET DELEGATES PUZZLING U. S.

May Follow Precedent Established at Peace Conference.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The status of the various international delegations to the forthcoming conference on the limitation of armaments and Far Eastern questions to begin in Washington on Armistice Day, November 11th, is a subject now engaging the attention of the Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes, and officials of the Department of State. As President Harding is inviting the various nations to send representatives to Washington it has been assumed that those appointed to come will be the guests of the Government of the United Stats. In view of the probable large number of members of the combined delegations, however, the Department of State, endeavoring to be economical under the stress of the Director of the Budget, Mr. Dawes, the man recently given unlimited authority over the expenditures of the United States Treasury in an effort to cut expenses to a minimum, views this prospect with dismay and is trying to find a way to do the proper thing without incurring too great expense. One official, who was charged with preparing estimates of the approximate cost of the conference, has calculated that if the delegations are to be anywhere near size of those which attended the Paris Peace Conference, it would cost about $2,500,000 to take care of them while they are in Washington. That is merely a rough estimate as it is not known how many delegates will be in attendance nor how long the sessions of the conference will continue.

It is by no means settled that the Department of State will accept the view that it is bound to regard the delegations as its guests, and, in fact, it is now considering a plan of rating as the guests of the Government of the United States only the heads of the various delegations. That would be following the precedent established at the Paris Peace Confrence, it is said, when the Government of France provided a house in Paris for Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, and another for President Wilson, the head of the United States delegation, but left the remainder of their numerous staffs to provide for themselves, which they did by leasing several of the finest hotels in the French capital.

Washington, though a beautiful and picturesque city, is in no degree comparable to Paris or London in the matter of hotel accomodations. They are perhaps not more than half a dozen hostelries which are of large proportions or considered as first-class. Therefore, it is likely that some of the visitors will be compelled to put up in smaller and not so well equipped hotels. Great Britain and France have large and commodious Embassy buildings, but it is not likely these will be used by other than the regularly accredited resident Ambassadors.

As for the heads of the delegations, if it is decided to regard them as the guests of the Government of the United States, it is expected that the offers of the owners of some of the fine private mansions in the city will be accepted for their accommodation, just as was done when the Government entertained as its guests the Balfour Mission of Great Britain, the Viviani and Joffre Mission of France and the Ishii Mission of Japan during the days of the World War.

Generally good and pleasant weather may be expected by the visiting delegations as the month of November, which has been selected for the opening of the conference, usually is warm and pleasant at Washington. While November is considered generally as a gloomy and sour month, it is not thus in the American capital as a rule. November in Washington usually is fine, with warm noontides, splendid sunsets over the Virginia hills and cool evenings, requiring extra outer garments. November finds the country-side about the city in a ruddy glow with autumn leaves. Altogether it is much pleasanter in Washington at that time than earlier in the fall or later in the winter. It will be possible for the members of the delegations to spend their time out of doors with pleasure during almost the whole month, according to the Weather Bureau's records.

Those of the delegates interested in outdoor sports during the leisure moments allowed for their recreation will find plenty to occupy their attention. Washington's beautiful parks and nearby country provide excellent automobile roads and bridle paths, splendid golf links abound at numerous country clubs where the delegates will be welcomed and various other diversions will be found available. The capital city is only a five-hour railway journey from New York City.

PATIENT HOUSEWIFE IN U.S. HAS TURNED ON BUTCHER AND GONE ON STRIKE AGAINST HIGH MEAT PRICE

ADVICES REACHING CHICAGO SHOW THAT WAREHOUSES ARE FILLED WITH MEAT FOR WHICH THERE ARE NO PURCHASERS AND PRICES HAVE TOUCHED LOWEST LEVEL IN FIVE YEARS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(United Press.)—The patient housewife has turned on the butcher and struck against the high prices of meat, according to advices reaching the world's meat centre today. Wholesale meat prices have touched the lowest point in five years, but the family meat bill has not been noticeably trimmed.

The buyers' meat strike has demoralized the market, judging from statements of conditions issued by the Institute of American Meat Packers and the National Livestock Exchange.

Warehouses all over the country are filled with meat for which there are no purchasers. Farmers, hard pressed for cash, flooded the markets with their stock, thereby beating down the prices they receive and enabling the packers to slash wholesale quotations.

"The condition would be remedied if the retailers would give consumers the advantage of lower prices," said Everett C. Brown, President of the National Livestock Exchange.

"The packers do not directly blame the retailers, but:

"We feel that any explanation of retail prices should come from those who retail and not from wholesalers," said W. W. Woods in the Institute of American Meat-packers.

Chicago retailers in admitting meat prices are high, pass the blame to the purchaser. Sol Westerfield, representative retailer, said prices are high because the public will not buy the cheaper cuts of meat which are equally nourishing. Inability to sell the cheaper cuts causes the high prices on the more desirable pieces," he said.

TRUCE FINDS IRELAND GLAD TO BE AT PEACE; COMPLETE METAMORPHOSIS IN IRISH CAPITAL

By CHARLES McCANN,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, Aug. 24.—When the truce in the Irish fighting was declared, Dublin became metamorphosed in a day from a war capital to an ordinary friendly city in which soldiers of the rival armies fraternized immediately and completely overnight, without any sign of self-consciousness of curiosity, but with the easy friendliness of mutually congenial people.

Since the day truce was declared, there has not been a hostile shot fired in Ireland outside of Ulster.

Constables of the Royal Irish Constabulary, cadets of the Black and Tans, soldiers of the British army and the "Irish Republican Army" and the ordinary civilian are about the streets, chaffing each other, talking, laughing, having a good time in the ordinary easy-going fashion of Irish cities.

Everyone shows signs of a relief from the terrible nervous strain of the constant menace of death. The war was conducted among the civilian population? Streets, roads and farms were battlegrounds, and there was never time properly to evacuate the non-combatants.

But everyone in Dublin looks younger and happier since the truce. No one jumps much any more when an automobile back-fires; there is no frightened, last-minute scurry for trams and home just before the curfew hour—except in peaceful Belfast, where post-truce riots forced a reimposition of curfew.

The fakirs and itinerant musicians have returned to the streets of Dublin. The beggars, men, women and children were always there, with their "May the blessing of God always follow you," and the muttered, "and may it never catch up with you," in case coppers were not forthcoming.

British soldiers and the R. I. C. constables are usually in uniform; the Black and Tans usually, though not necessarily, in civilian clothes. They are an impressive-looking lot of young men, most of them known by sight anyway in the towns in which they are stationed. The men of the I. R. A., of course, are in civilian clothes also, as they do not attempt to wear uniforms during the truce.

At night, when the boat pulls out for Holyhead, a company of young British soldiers on leave goes aboard, makes itself comfortable in the forepart of the ship, pulls out the ever-present mouthorgan and begins singing "Tipperary;" a crowd of Black and Tans rushes, laughing, up the gangplank, and begins asking itself loudly if it wants to go back to dear old Dublin any more, and answers itself unhesitatingly, "NO!" pausing to exchange repartee and laughs with the crowd ashore.

As the boat moves out toward the Irish Sea and England, there come shouts from the boat of "Up the R. I. C." and answering shouts from the crowd for the mile or so along the docks before the voice is lost across the water of "Up Dublin," 'Up the I. R. A." all boisterously, gesticulatingly, laughingly; while the civilians aboard watch impartially but interestedly, and the Tommies up in the bow, oblivious, wrap their overcoats about them and listen to the plaintive "Tipperary."

COMPROMISES WITH CAPITAL JUSTIFIED, LENINE TELLS REDS

But While This is so in Russia, He Denies it is Elsewhere.

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik War Minister in Russia, attempted to explain to the delegates composing the recent congress of Third Internationale at Moscow the seeming contradiction in the acts of the Soviet leaders who are restoring a limited measure of capitalism in Russian while advocating, in speeches to the Internationale, the abolition of capital elsewhere.

The Pravda quotes Trotzky as saying that compromises with capitalism were justifiable in Russia as the dictatorship of the proletariat has been firmly established there, but that no compromises were allowable to Reds attempting to bring about revolution elsewhere.

The official Bolshevik viewpoint, as expressed in speeches by Lenine and in their various newspapers, is that all changes being made in Russia, all concessions being granted to capital and all seeming digressions from a strict Communist policy are either made necessary by the poor economic condition of the country or are essential to permit Communism to exist in the future.

The disastrous economic condition in Russio was frankly admitted in speeches at the congress by various Russian delegates. Trotzky is quoted as having told the delegates that "it is easy to be a Communist if one looks only at the cheering picture of Red flags at the Internationale, but the true Communist is he who can still be one and look upon Moscow's starving children."

Zinovieff in his closing speech to the conference, as reported in the Isvestia, said that in 1917 everybody "laughed at us, considered us dreamers." The first Internationale congress, he said, was attended by only a handful. The second was more important. The third, he said, has shown that despite all difficulties, the Third Internationale will be most powerful even in America.

While permitting of some exceptions, such as temporarily at least allowing the American I.W.W. to continue as an independant organization, the Internationale Congress decided that the revolutionary idea must be fought for through existing trade unions, such as the American Federation of Labor. All small organizations not affiliated with the large trade unions were requested to "liquidate themselves," their members being instructed to unite with labor unions and win them over to Communism.

The conference decided upon undying warfare against the so-called Amsterdam Internationale, which includes trade unions working for socialism, but not for the dictatorship of the proletariat.

PERILS OF SEA AND AIR FACE THE ZR-2.

Improvements, However, Will Make Hardships Less Than on R-34.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—Perils of the sea and of the air will be faced by the officers and crew of the ZN-2, which is about to cross the Atlantic from England to America, just as they were faced by the dauntless men of the R-23, but by reason of the increased size of the more modern airship, its great speed and more comfortable arrangements, many of the hardships of the pioneer flyers, it is hoped, will be avoided.

The British R-34, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, started from East Fortune, Scotland, on July 1, 1919, and landed at Roosevelt Field, Mineola, L. I., on the morning of July 6, covering the 3,200 miles in 108 hours and 12 minutes. She left New York on the return trip to Scotland on July 9 and reached her home port a few days later. On January 20, 1921, the historic craft which had cost more than $1,000,000 to build, was cut almost in two by a violent wind and left a wreck outside her aerodrome near Edinburgh.

While every precaution is being taken to safeguard the ZR-2, it is recalled that despite elaborate arrangements two years ago, the men of the R-34 passed through harrowing hours when the leviathan of the clouds ran into a shallow atmospheric depression off the coast of Newfoundland. They were then within a few hundred miles of their goal.

"The weather was terrible," said Major G. H. Cooke, the navigating officer of the R-34. "It seemed as though the atmosphere was haunted by 5,000 devils. We were shaken to the core. That night we hit everything—heavy rain, thick fog and low visibility. The ship seemed as though she was going to break into bits, rising and falling like a cork on a heavy sea. At times she seemed to stand up 30 degrees into the air.

"All had been fine sailing up to that time. The most unusual thing about the entire trip was the extreme violence of the 'bumps' in regions where they were totally unexpected. I considered it almost a miracle that we completed the trip successfully after what we went through. The weather situation on the Atlantic must be investigated thoroughly before air travel between England and America can be made safe and practicable. With the limited information we have now, trans-Atlantic travel is highly dangerous."

The ZR-2, however, will be protected all the way across by six weather vessels, each carrying a special staff of forecasters who will radio to the dirigible all the atmospheric and barometric data necessary to assure her of the easiest possible sailing route.

Certain defects of the R-34 also have been avoided in the new craft, which is 41 feet longer than the earlier ship and seven feet greater in diameter. It also has a gas capacity of 2,700,000 cubic feet as against the R-34's 2,000,000; total horse-power of 2,100, as compared with the R-34's 1,250, and a cruising "endurance" of 6,000 miles at 60 miles an hour. The R-34 at full speed had a cruising radius of a little more than 4,900 miles.

	R-34.	ZR-2.
Length (ft.)	654	695
Diameter (ft.)	78	85
Capacity (cu. ft.)	2,000,000	2,700,000
Total lift (tons)	59½	83
Engines	5	5
"Ceiling" or maximum altitude (ft.)	13,800	25,000
Cruising radius at 60 miles per hour	4,900	6,000
Officers and crew (men)	30	42
Gasoline supply (gals.)	7,500	10,400
Time in crossing Atlantic (hrs.)	108	72 (Estimated)

Aboard the R-34's gondolas, the five cars suspended from the airship's framework, the living conditions were not so comfortable as provided on the ZR-2. The R-34, however, had sleeping accommodations for the officers and crew and an electrical apparatus whereby meals could be cooked. Hot water was obtained from the radiators on the motors. All the gondolas were enclosed and the men were able to keep warmer than if they had been flying in an airplane. A wireless set in the forward car with a range of about 1,500 miles enabled the R-34 to keep in touch with the shore almost the entire way across. A still stronger apparatus has been installed in the ZR-2.

Seen in flight the ZR-2 closely resembles her sister ship, the R-34, but her improvements are concealed amid a bewildering confusion of aluminum girders, rows of gasoline and water tanks, acres of fabric gas bags and a miscellany of guy wires, control valves, pipes, swivels and hinges.

A telephone system connects up the entire ship so that Commander Maxfield, standing at the wheel in his cabin, has every part under his direct and immediate control. Comfortable bunks are provided for the off-shift of the 30 officers and men, instead of hammocks, as provided on the R-34. Warm meals are also made possible by a system of cooking over engine exhaust heat.

Electric lights are freely provided and the ZR-2 has been equipped with a device that will enable her to "anchor" at a mooring mast and replenish her gas, oil, water and fuel containers through huge feed pipes. In addition to the foregoing equipment, the ZR-2 is built to carry the biggest armament of a dreadnaught of the air, 14 Lewis guns, a one-pound automatic gun, four bombs of 250 pounds each and eight bombs of 230 pounds each. The ZR-2 and its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., cost $4,000,000.

In Denmark girls are taught to swim as little children and are as much at home in the water as on land.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE IN GREATEST USE AT ARMS MEETING

No Intimation, However, That It Will Be Official Tongue.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The impending international conference on the limitation of armaments and Far Eastern questions in this city in November likely will undertake a more general use of the English language than any previous international official gathering. There has been no intimation, thus far, that English is to be made the official language of the conference, and it is very unlikely that any such action will be taken.

As at the Paris Peace Conference, both French and English probably will be used, but English the more generally. It seems certain that the use of English, however, will be more marked at the Washington conference than at any conference since English first was used in such international gatherings by Benjamin Disraeli, the British Premier, at the international congress in Berlin in 1878 when his was the only address in any language other than the French. Ever since Latin was abandoned as the time-honored and accepted language of diplomacy in 1713 at the international congress at Utrecht, when French first was adopted, French has generally been employed.

English played an important role for the first time in the Paris Peace Conference in 1919. Its use then was mainly as a complimentary concession to President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George. In view of the probable more extensive use of English at the forthcoming disarmament conference it is considered the powers will select as their delegates statesmen who have mastered English, as they will enjoy a distinct advantage with such knowledge. The interchange of opinions and views always is handicapped and even obstructed when it has to pass through the slow, clumsy and wholly unsatisfactory process of translation by interpreters.

Naturally the delegation of Great Britain and the United States will be at ease with thir own language. Among statesmen mentioned for membership in the foreign delegations there have been a number who are entirely familiar with the English language. The Ambassador of France, resident in Washington, M. Jules Jusserand, who undoubtedly will take a prominent part in the deliberations, has splendid command of the English language and extraordinary knowledge of English and American literature. At present M. Jusserand is in France on leave of absence conferring with French leaders on subjects to be taken up at the disarmament and Far Eastern conference. He will return to Washington in October. As former Premier Viviani and Premier Briand of France have but slight knowledge of English it is unlikely they will be designated to come to the Washington conference. It has been stated that M. Loucheur, Minister of Reparations and a dominant force in the French Government and in the business world, is to come to the conference and that Eugene Schneider, the great ironmaster of Grenset, is to accompany him. Both of them understand and speak the English language perfectly.

Former Premier Tomas Tittoni, President of the Italian Senate and former Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, who at present is in the United States, has been spoken of as one of Italy's principal delegates. He received his education at Oxford and is a master of English.

Japan has a number of leading statesmen who are graduates of American and English universities and therefore entirely familiar with the English language. One or more of these undoubtedly will come to represent that nation, which has so much at stake in the impending confernce.

China, too, has a number of English or American educated statesmen on whom she could depend to undertake her mission at the conference.

It can thus be seen that there will be less probability of difficulties in the way of misunderstandings because of language as is credited with having to some extent marred the conferences at Paris and Versailles two years ago through President Wilson's and Premier Lloyd George's slight knowledge of French, Premier Orlando's ignorance of English, and the inability of all the French delegates, excepting Premier Clemenceau and M. Jules Cambon, to understand a word of English or Italian.

The German Reichstag has voted down the proposal to allow women to sit on juries in that country.

Dear ga ak,

You're a funny old man, aren't you?! There I'm just wearing my little life away wanting to see you so badly — and you disdainfully stick in the dark old city and deal with such uninteresting things as bonds!!

But never mind dearie, for I saw a wonderful man the other day! And he has the most marvellous goods you ever could imagine! Sure I did! — and when we got back again one of the girls in the party was so sunburned she screamed if you touched her. So real stealthily-like I pulled out my sample bottle of Campana's Italian Balm (which I always carry with me!) and rubbed on some of its soothing contents. And now that girl would go through fire and water for me (metaphorically speaking, of course!)

Yours as ever,

Peggy.

A NOTEWORTHY EXHIBIT

A magnificent collection of mounted birds, fish and animals native to the Dominion of Canada will be a feature of the exhibit which the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways are installing in the Railway Building at the Toronto Exhibition this year. The specimens of fur and feather have been gathered in the Highlands of Ontario and include loons, wild geese, ducks, plover, woodcock, hawks, owls, ravens, flickers, partridge, woodchuck, porcupine, raccoon, muskrat, otter, fox, mink, skunk, fisher, ermine, with caribou, wolf, lynx, deer and moose. The lakes of Algonquin Park have given up some of their finest of sporty fish —speckled trout, black bass and salmon trout—for the exhibit. The collection has been arranged in a handsome booth and should attract great attention, as it is seldom that a complete collection of native birds and animals has been gathered together. The collection illustrates in a striking way the diversity of wild life that is found in the Highlands of Ontario. 1d-45 mother's side, flared up during the Fenian invasion of 1866. In his memory was the story of his great-grandfather, General Saint-Pierre, a Brigadier of Cuirassiers in Napoleon's army, who, with two of his sons, was killed in the onslaughts against Adam's and the Guards Brigades at Waterloo. Of this ancestor he was always proud to tell. He was only a fourteen-year-old lad, but under the influence of his governing emotion, he enlisted as a bugler in the 45th Militia, the regiment of which he was afterwards to have the command.

School teaching, however, served as a stepping stone to the ambitious lad. For one who did not care for farming, with a brother, a school teacher who was anxious to help him along, it was only natural that he should experiment with such a chance, above all in times of peace.

Won Mile Race.

When his brother was appointed to one of the masterships of the Model School, Sam came to Toronto with him, and was prepared by Dr. Carlyle for admission to the Normal School. It was here that his interest in sports, especially in football and lacrosse, gave him the strong physique of a good all-round athlete. Teaching at Belleville for two years, then at Lifford in his own county, where he founded the champion Millbrook Lacrosse Club, followed his graduation. It was at Lifford, also, when he was twenty years old, that he married Miss Preston, his first wife. The day after his marriage in Toronto, while on his honeymoon, he won against the celebrated English long distance runner, Mr. Nurse, the mile race for the championship open to all America at the Athletic Association here. Among his most valued possessions to the day of his death was this first championship cup.

A visit to Milwaukee on his way to Winnipeg resulted in his acceptance of an attractive position in one of the railway offices there. But a year after his marriage his wife died, and he returned to Bowmanville to teach.

Interlude years such as these may seem exceedingly tame in the life of the dynamic person we thought of during the war, as Hon. Sir Sam Hughes, K.C.B.

Every spare moment of an exceptionally busy life, as a matter of fact, was taken up with his deep-rooted passion for soldiering. He rejoined the 45th Regiment, rose rapidly to Senior Major, and took command when his brother John retired to become Colonel of the 46th. During his four years in Bowmanville he married his present widow, Mary E. Burke, a daughter of the late Harvey Burke, M.P. Studying law in the office of Mr. Frank Arnoldi, in Toronto, was given up in favor of an arts degree at the university, and the position afterwards of teacher of history and literature at the Toronto Collegiate, the Jarvis Collegiate now, for a period of 10 years.

Editor in Lindsay.

As owner and editor of the Lindsay Warder, a small weekly paper, for the twelve years from 1885 to 1897, a fine preparatory field for self-assertion was found, in which he tasted the real wine of combat in telling the district what his true opinions were of Liberals and anti-Orangemen. The Warder would do a great deal to get him into Parliament, in preparation for a real war that was sure to come. As he had dealt knockout blows to the biggest Irishmen his religious enemies could find to beard him in the Warder office one market day, so he knew he had that within him to deal knockout blows in the real war that would come some day. Judge Barron, of Stratford, had the temerity to defeat him for the Victoria and Haliburton riding of the Dominion House in 1891, but the next year, as insistent as his mother with the doctors, a by-election gave him the opening on which he had set his mind.

Don't Worry About Sam.

"As Sam became conscious of himself and to the things that he ought to do, he was independent enough to do them, in his own way, which way was never lacking in force," brother Jim once humorously said. "Even some of his admirers used to say to me: 'It is a great pity that he is so bumptious.' I always replied: 'I don't worry about Sam. He knows where he wants to go, and how to get there. And the fellow who gets in the way will get the bumps.'" Many did get in the way, and received their bumps, but the champion of Imperialism, like John Brown's soul, had began to move on irresistibly. He had been to Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. At that time, this was the first offer of a rural colonial regiment, the 45th, for service anywhere under the British flag. Going home energetically, by way of New Zealand, Australia, and the Fiji Islands, he had acted as the advocate of colonial assistance in Imperial wars. "Real civilization was gained by the British Bible and the British bayonet," he outspokenly told a New York club. No one but Sam Hughes would have dared the same.

In the Boer War.

The Boer war, he knew was coming, and there never had been a real soldier in the Militia Department in his belief. By the military training in vogue the Canadian militia was a pageant army, with pipe-clayed helmets and furbished bands. Nearly a year before the actual rebellion in South Africa he rose prophetically in the House, and, telling the Government exactly what would happen, demanded that a regiment should be prepared at once. "Only Canadians that had been trained in the English army could fight," answered Gen. Hutton, the borrowed English officer for Chief of Staff. So emphatic was the denunciation of the Colonel of the 45th that when the time came for the contingent to Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Frederick Borden, General Hutton would not confirm the appointment of Col. sail, in spite of the requests of Sir Hughes as Senior Major of the force. On the deck of the troopship as it left the wharf, however, Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes was noticed sitting nonchalantly on the heap of his baggage, dressed in civilian tweeds.

As Minister of Militia.

He was Minister of Militia at last in November, 1911. Someone has picturesquely said that "he took his portfolio as the Sabines took their wives." There was another war coming, and this time it seemed to him that Providence had given him the chance to help one large section of the Empire to prepare for the holocaust. In Vancouver, in 1912, he stated plainly what Germany intended to do. "Germany has to be taught a lesson," he said, "and that lesson is that Canada, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand are behind the mother country." Armories sprang up through the country like mushrooms over night. In three years the military estimates had jumped one hundred per cent.

Perennially he talked of war, and kept everybody and everything at an uncomfortable pitch. He had few vacations for body or mind. His was the locomotive habit of life. In two months and a half of the summer of 1912 he races across the continent and the Atlantic twice. The European manoeuvres were also viewed. Sir Ian Hamilton was whisked feverishly over Canada to see 50,000 men in the training camps. A hundred minor Parliamentary engagements and troubles were sandwiched in between. Never had he touched tobacco or whiskey or hesitated to swear at a General, Canadian or English, who did not satisfy him without dispute. In 1913, it was Gen. Mackenzie, another English Chief of the Canadian Staff, who was asked to resign.

Col. Hughes' famous dry canteens were established, and mothers were invited to inspect the model camps.

The War Breaks.

One story out of the mass of the apocryphal—for Sir Sam never seemed to mind what stories were told or invented about him—gives some idea of how he dominated the situation when the fateful declaration of war came at length. "When the great scrap comes I'll be in it, and you won't," he used to say to young men who would not take the trouble to prepare. From Muskoka, where he was taking a very much-needed rest, he was recalled. Now was the time for efforts on a mammoth scale, and they were meat and drink to him as Minister of Militia and Defense. Some idea of the magnitude of his plans and the finality of his orders was gained by the railway chiefs, who were summoned to hear his commands.

"How many men will we have to move?" one of them asked, the story goes.

"Anything from twenty-five to fifty thousand."

"In how long?"

"Right away. Soon as they are ready to go."

"It can't be done."

"Oh, yes, it can," said Hughes. "That is all. Good morning."

Like Monarch of Old.

Life for him was one feverish round. He was overseas three times. He visited the men at the front. Like a monarch of the old days, he even made a Major on the field. "I'm not Major, sir only Captain," said Boyer. "You're Major now," replied the Minister. Magically, it seemed he became Major-General in full charge by a commission dated back. He was made a K.C.B. by the King. His attention was drawn by Viscount Grey to the fact that it was an honor Nelson himself had worn on his coat. Even the memorial red tape around the King broke before his stentorious command when he would have an interview before hastily departing to Canada to answer the Kyte charges in the House.

"You will have to wait six days to see the King," the official blandly said, the story goes.

"Six days nothing!" Sir Sam replied. "I've got to see the King right away before I got back to Canada." At Buckingham Palace he sent in his card, and in half an hour the King is said to have granted the request.

Defends Friends to End.

But his achievement in organizing the camp at Valcartier and directing the rapidly growing army where dulled by reckless speech, which was not always understood perhaps in the spirit in which it was made, and by the selections of men as "guides, counsellors and friends," who sometimes broke their trust. His friends, as usual, he defended to the end. As for his words, well, he explained that in his farewell address to the members of the Headquarters Staff in 1916. "If at times in my recognition of the need of drive of urgency, of energy and of action, the feelings of any of you have been ruffled, permit me to express regret therefor. In cases such as this the individual should always come second to the cause." He was always frank about his faults. But rumors of scandal in the purchase of horses, boots, binoculars, the investigation after the Kyte charges launched by Hon. F. B. Carvell and the condemnation of J. Wesley Allison were the beginning of the strengthening of a wave of opposition that his brusque ways had only intensified. His defense of the site of Camp Borden and the Ross rifle, whether justified or not, only added to the flames of the insurrection in his own party and even in the Cabinet itself. On November 13, 1916, in response to a letter from Premier Borden he resigned.

A Big-Hearted Man.

If many of the volumes of the anecdotes that have been told of Canada's former War Minister were collected and analyzed, they would show, no matter what else, that he was an ardent patriot, a clean, honest man, the possessor of a big heart. In the heyday of his martial activity somebody in a curious mood ransacked the old files of the Warder, and found that in 1886 he had written verse; that it was called "Humanity"; and that it spoke of "the gentle dews of kind encouragement and love" as best fit for the cultivation of "the unsullied mind of youth." "I often wonder what kind of predictions he used to make of himself about his different pupils, as he sat at his desk, eyeing them over at their lessons, his stern jaws usually going," one of those pupils has said. "He had a curious habit of nibbling a bit of blackboard chalk in the schoolroom. The good old-fashioned custom of caning had not gone out of fashion then, and we boys certainly dreaded one from his muscular arms. 'I will not cane A—— today,' he would generally inform the class, concerning some offending student. 'I might give him more than he deserved. I'll think him over tomorrow. I do not want to punish anybody in anger.'"

Lover of Outdoors.

He could appreciate the calm, meditative verse of Wordsworth, but it was the repressed spirit of action that blazed in Henley that possessed his soul. Eagle Ranch, his beautiful summer farm of 2,500 acres, the farthest point in Victoria County to be inhabited, has all the grandeur of lake scenery that a lover of the great outdoors could desire, and Sir Sam appreciated all that to the utmost; but there was a fever of activity within his veins that drove him to the arena where blows were ever being given and received. He could not rest.

Even in the Wellesly Hospital after his breakdown a year ago his friends found him with his typewriter, his correspondence, and his books, including Lord French's "1914," evidences that strategy and achievement still engrossed the General's mind.

A Robust Canadian.

Although a great imperialist he never permitted Canada to take a second place. No Canadian, he said, with his consent would go to Bisley when they attempted to bar the Ross rifle at the meet just before the war; and his "robust Canadianism" at that time was praised by even the Liberals in the House. A confederation of the Empire, universal training of the youth in the schools, and citizen defense, these were the fundamentals of his scheme. "I have always maintained that intelligent citizens, properly directed, were ultimately better than the regulars, who are tied down by restrained routine," he always maintained.

Juniper Regatta

Juniper Regatta was the great social event of the season and it has been said that on several occasions more than a thousand people witnessed the regatta and excursions came from Peterboro, Lakefield, Sturgeon Point and Chemong to enjoy the great day. It was in fact "The Day". Why is this changed? There were probably less than four hundred people at Juniper regatta this year and more than half of them came on the excursion boats Stoney Lake is a city now, or rather a collection of small villages each with its post office, general store and in most cases its recreation Pavilion. It is harder to get people together to arrange committees and plans. McCracken's Landing, Kawartha Park and Crowe's Landing (each a community in itself) have had splendid regattas, nearly if not altogether as well attended as Juniper. The community spirit, which has contributed a great measure of success to these festivities, cannot exist in the larger community of Juniper, which still remains the "hub of the lake". The so-called Stoney Lake cottagers association is a small affair embracing a small percentage of cottagers. The smaller communities have almost every cottager in their vicinity as a live member of ther assocaton. It has been said again and again this season that Kawartha Park is the coming regatta and some one has suggested that each community have its own regatta and make Juniper the last and have only winners of the other regattas compete and thus make the winners at Juniper the champions.

A First Attempt.

Burleigh made its first attempt at a regatta this year when the "Y" girls sarted the ball rolling with able support from the cottagers. A Burleigh cottagers association is only a matter of time and will be as fine an organizaion as any on the lake.

At Mount Julian the cottagers have never made an attempt a organizaion but in years past regattas were held at "Viamede" but without any support from the cottagers Mr. W. Graham made several attempts to make it an annual affair as a Mount Julian cottager's regatta but received no encouragement.

Mr. Harris Ardiel of Toronto has made an attempt this year which promises an annual old boys' day and regatta at Mount Julian.

Boschink and Fairy Lake are both large enough communities to have associations and regattas. The committee at Juniper this year did their best but complained that it was very hard to get together as they are scattered widely over the lake.

Bobbed Hair.

Two of the most noticeable things on Stoney Lake this season is the increased number of motor craft of all descriptions and the fact that eight of every ten girls have their hair bobbed.

The season of 1921 will have passed into history in a few more weeks but it has been a year of progress. New people have come and found their place and have fitted into the happy life but old faces are missed. Each year takes its toll, from Among the old timers especially, but the vacant places or the closed cottages reminds one of those who once enjoyed the charms of Stoney Lake and took part in its numerous activities but now have gone to the eernal playground.

SPOTLIGHT ON MOTOR CAR CAUSES SERIOUS ACCIDENT

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 24—The use of a spotlight on a motor car on the Belleville-Picton branch of the Provincial highway was responsible for a serious accident, as a result of which a Hillier lady had an arm fractured. Roy Wight, a young man who resides at Hillier, left the city to return home. When about two miles beyond Rossmore, a motor approached him. It was dark, and the advancing motorist turned off the headlights of his car, according to the story told later to the police by Mr. Wight in making complaint of the occurrence. The stranger turned on a spotlight, which is forbidden by law to be carried on a motor, and Mr. Wight was so blinded by the light that he could not control his car, and it careened over into the ditch.

DOMESTICATED WILD DUCKS TO BE USED AS LIVE DECOYS

Five black mallard ducks sloshing around in a tank of water in the Kingan Hardware Company's window attracted crowds of dollar day shoppers and fired the vision of hunters with pictures of open water in marsh, decoys and flights of ducks and the sound of guns. These same birds were born in captivity, the youngest of them at any rate, and although nature destined them for freedom and fellowship with their kind, they have become as domesticated as grey geese, and will soon be used as live decoys to lead the wild flocks into ambushes.

The chief fault with the wooden decoys sold in the sporting goods stores, is that they are dumb. They may be set out in a feeding ground but they are inanimate, "as idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean," but worse than that they are inarticulate. Using the live birds, the drake is kept in the hunter's canoe, which is pushed into a nearby marsh or behind some other convenient screen, and the ducks are turned loose to feed in the open water, where they will be seen by wild birds that chance that way. To heighen the realism of the scene for the undoing of the game ducks, a gentle tap on the drake will start him squawking with answering calls from his mates on the water. If there are any wild ducks in the vicinity they are bound to hear these calls and themselves to respond to them by alighting on the water in front of the hidden canoe. This reads like a de luxe method of hunting or duck shoofing made easy, and indicates the ardour for the sport of men who take the trouble to raise decoy mallards for the fall hunt.

The birds in the Kingan window, with its setting of rushes and moss and reeds are owned by Wm. Gould and Herb. Routley. They have been wading around in the creek in the north-west end of the city all summer, as tame as the common back yard varieties that are home on the roadside and in country field. The duck shooting season opens on Thursday, September 1st. Reports from the district are encouraging. Dan Whetung says that the game birds are as numerous as usual in the Curve Lake waters, but they will be gun shy on the Otonabee river and Rice lake if the illegal shooting now going on is continued.

HARDING TO WRITE A PAPER MARKING EPOCH IN PEACE

Believes Coming Conference Will Remove Reasons For War.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—President Harding intends to take advantage of the opportunity afforded in the extension of the formal invitations to the allied and associated powers to an international conference on limitation of armaments in Washington, probably beginning on Armistice Day, November 11th, to write, it is understood, a paper which shall go down to posterity as marking an epoch in international relations and the dawn of a world peace.

The President believes the forthcoming conference will succeed in removing the reasons for war and put an end to costly armaments. The late conflict was so costly in treasure and human sacrifices that he has declared the world's people are resolved today that warfare ought to come to an end. The President's invitation to the world powers, it is believed, will be one fitting to take its place beside the famous rescript of the late Emperor Nicholas II., of Russia in calling the nations together to attend the First Peace Conference at The Hague in 1899 to initiate measures looking toward "the maintenance of the general peace, and the possible reduction of the excessive armaments which were burdening all nations."

Official and diplomatic Washington are displaying great activity in anticipation of the forthcoming international gathering. The resident Ambassadors and Ministers of the powers which are to participate in the proceedings are busily engaged in frequent conferences among themselves and in individual conversations with the Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes. These conferences and conversations take in the entire range of the gathering's activities, such as the scope of the conference the date of the assembly, the time of the meetings, the probable length of the conference's duration, the place of holding the meetings, quarters for the delegates and their staffs, and the like.

The British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, is taking a leading part in these activities. As has come to be the general practice in Washington in recent years, or to be more exact, since the outbreak of the World War, it is usually left to Great Britain's diplomatic representative to "blaze the trail" for the other diplomats in approaching the Secretary of State with the various propositions. Always he had the full and hearty support of his diplomatic colleagues in these matters. It was clearly evident that while the other diplomats were not much concerned in the fixing of the date for the international conference, though this was of interest to Great Britain because of the desire of the Dominion Premiers to attend it without sacrificing important home engagements, the diplomatic representatives of the other powers stood solidly behind Ambassador Geddes in his efforts to shape the arrangement of the programme of the conference, and in other matters of substance.

The fact that these almost daily conferences have been going on among the Entente representatives probably has lent color to the rumors that these powers are still intent upon securing a general conference in Washington or in some Pacific Coast American or Canadian city preliminary to the opening of the international gathering. As a matter of fact it can be stated that this project, originally advanced by the British Government in order to afford the Australian and New Zealand Premiers an opportunity to dip into the subject to satisfy their provincial pride, has now been completely abandoned. But the purpose of getting some uniformity of action among the Entente powers in the approaching conference will be served even more effectually than in a formal preliminary conference, in which every nation interested in the Far Eastern and Pacific questions and the limitation of Armaments would be represented, through the unofficial exchange now going on in Washington among the resident diplomatic representatives of the principal powers.

RADIO CONTROLLED CAR IS DEVELOPED BY ARMY SERVICE.

U. S. Air Service Perfecting Car Driverless Auto.

By JAMES T. KOLBERT.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Next on the program of Twentieth Century progress is the radio controlled automobile.

The air service engineers at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, have in their possession an invention which makes it possible for them to drive a three-wheeled automobile from the office. They can make the machine dart about the field, make it stop suddenly with a screeching of brakes; cause it to turn to the right or left and make it do everything that the driver at the wheel may call for.

This automobile is about eight feet long, runs on three pneumatic tired wheels and has a speed ranging from four to ten miles an hour. It has no serial or antenna system visible.

The "selector" does the work.

The "selector" is the heart of the mass of machinery under the hood, and receives and distributes the impulses wirelessed by the men at the radio controls. The "selector" operates 12 controls and can put one into action within less than a second after the push-button at the transmitter in the radio station is pressed.

The car can be controlled from the ground and from airplane, the test showed. Aside from the value of the radio controlled car in times of peace, the contrivance will be invaluable in time of war, it was pointed out.

Great tanks, filled with high explosive could be launched against the enemy without endangering members of the attacking force. Ships laden with TNT could be directed against battleships. Even airplanes could be loaded with explosives and dropped at a given point within the enemy lines.

The engineers are hard at work with the expectation of improving the apparatus to the point where its operation will be simple and practicable.

CHEAP WATER FOR SOME IN OSHAWA

The Oshawa Water Commissioners in checking up their books and drawing comparisons, found that in the early operation of the system in Oshawa, it was more or less the habit of plumbers to make connections without permits, the result being that a group of favored consumers came into existence who neither received bills for water used nor made any payment for the same. A typical case was unearthed last week when a consumer paid $60 in settlement, and it is alleged there are others.

CAPITAL MOURNS FOR GEN. HUGHES

NEWS OF HIS DEATH CAME AS A SHOCK TO FELLOW PARLIAMENTARIANS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 24.—The flag on Parliament Hill floats at half mast for the passing of one of Parliament's most stormy and strenuous yet kindly spirits.

News of the death of General Sir Sam Hughes, though long expected, came as a shock to the capital which for the past months has watched his indomitable fight for life, with admiration, coupled wtih the hope that he might ultimately overcome and prevail as he had so ofte done before.

To a caucus gathered during the later part of the session he had addressed a valedictory, the concluding words of which were "May God bless you. It may be my last, but certainly is my heartfelt wish." In the course of this he spoke of the reorganization of the "Grand old party", which he said must come in a year or two, for such reorganization he feared "some of us may not be present, save in spirit". he counselled" the young and capable leader and his colleagues to see to it that merit and faithful service do not go unnoticed." In the past there had been too much inclination to promote young men of pyrotechnic careers over the head of old and faithful stand bys.

For the chief whip, (W. S. Middleboro)and for the chairman of the caucus (J. E. Armstrong) he pleaded for recognition. For his own recovery he hoped, but if it did not so terminate he desired to say that his life had been spent, first in the cause of humanity, second for the British Empire, and third for the consolidation of the "Grand Old Party".

As indictative of hope entertained for his recovery and trust that his indomitable spirit would prevail this letter was withheld from publication at the instance of the Premier and chairman of caucus. As an indication, however, of the realization on the part of Sir Sam that the end was no far off, he himself gave consent to its being published providing the approval of the Premier and chairman of caucus could be secured. Though several months have elapsed since the letter was written it still stands out as an unselfish valedictory characterized by a quiet dignity which did not always characterize his utterances when in the heyday of his vigor and strength.

GOSPEL HALL NOTES.

The subject last night was the coming of the Lord. Is it pre-millenial? The millenium is that period of one thousand spoken of by John in the Book of Revelation. In the Old Testament this period is spoken of repeatedly by the prophets. To quote the references to the millenium would fill many pages. Some Psalms are taken up with this millenial period. Psalm 97, for example, applies to the millenial. The question before us is, "Will our Lord come before or after the millenium?" Now, those who believe He will come before the millenium are pre-millenialists. Those who believe the Lord will come after the millenium are post-millenialists. It may seem a small matter where a person takes one or other of these two sides; but it is an important matter. Scripture teaches the pre-millenial coming of the Lord, and to go against this is to go against scripture in this matter. Now the coming is pre-millenial. One difficult passage, 2nd Thess., 2, which may to some favour the post-millenial view, when clearly understood teaches that the order of events is as follows: (1) His coming for His own, and their gathering together to Him (2 Thess., 21). According to the teaching of Thess. 4, this we may expect at any time, and besides there are no signs going before this coming. (2) In the next verse the saints were warned not to be upset by any teaching that the lay of Christ had already come. The day of Christ, or properly the day of the Lord, is a period of judgment. What they were looking for, and what would take place first was coming of the Lord for them. Then afterwards, when the Church was in heaven the day of the Lord would begin; but always remember we who are saved will not be here for judgment. (3) After the Lord takes us home to heaven, the order will be—1, Total, complete apostacy; 2, The revelation of the man of sin; 3, God's judgment on anti-Christ and his system; 4, Because the Church is here and the spirit is here, anti-Christ cannot be manifest. When, however, the Church and spirit are out of the way, anti-Christ will be manifested. Finally we see that the Church is pictured as in heaven in Rev. 4. In Rev. 20, the millenium is mentioned in its proper order. Now since Rev. comes before Rev. 20, and since the Church is in heaven before the millenium, therefore the coming of the Lord must be pre-millenial. Subject of Bro. Miller's address to-night, "The Judgments of God." A large crowd was present last night.

STANDARDIZATION OF SHORTHAND IS NOW A REALITY

ADVANCE SHEETS OF PRPOOSED HANDBOOK PRESENTED TO CONVENTION.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 24.—Standardization was the feature of this morning's session of the National Shorthand Reporters' Association. Mr. Thomas Bengough read the report of the committee, and Dr. E. H. Eldridge, chairman, presented to the Association advance sheets and dummy of long promised handbook of "standardized reporting shorthand, Pitmanic."

The volume contains 96 pages, comprising an introduction and historical review of origin and work of preap ration covering a period of twelve years. A statement of the principles upon which it is based with copious engraved illustrations, lists of word signs and "contractions," selected lists of 100 words and of 10,000 of the most frequently received words taken from Captain Godfrey Dewey's analysis of one thousand words taken from various representative sources. There is also engraved short hand, illustrating principles laid down in the book.

The committee propose following up this volume with a text book, dictionary and phrase book, expounding the principles of standardization for the benefit of shorthand students. The volume will shortly be available for the public.

A pathetic incident in connection with the report was a message from Robert S. Taylor, Minneapolis, who is en route to California in broken health, the result of twelve years' strenuous work in "standardization," eight of which were as chairman.

FLEET WITH $250,000 CARGO CORNERED IN CHESAPEAKE BAY.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 24.— (By United Press.)—A rum-running armada of five vessels was believed to be bottled up in Chesapeake Bay today. Federal prohibition agents establishing a cordon of boats across the mouth of the bay, declared the capture of the five auxiliary schooners with their $250,000 cargo of liquor and three crews of 50 men, was a matter only of hours. It was believed the little vessels, slipping into crooks and coves, had unloaded much of the Bahamas' booze, but officers said they cannot escape capture and prosecution.

COMMISSIONER DEFENDS CENSUS

"Undoubtedly the city assessor has an advantage over the enumerators in doing this work. He has his last year's roll with him, and can check up his work as he goes along.

"The only trouble the enumerators had was to secure the names of the boarders or lodgers in houses. The people seemed quite ready to give the names of females, but not the names of male boarders or roomers. They would freely offer the names of Normalites, which we did not want. They seemed to want to protect the men, fearing some tax. This was done in many cases, but we got many of the names afterwards from other sources. The ones missed in this way would not amount to many.

"Mr. Henry also states that in that part of North Monaghan (extending about the city there is a population of 5,000. I am sure the officials of North Monaghan were not aware they had such a population. This such a wild statement I think you must have misquoted Mr. Henry.

"I might say, if the entire population of North Monaghan, all South Monaghan, and that portion of the East Riding bordering the city east of Armour Road and north of Smith Street, and that portion of Otonabee bordering the river and known as River Road was totalled, it would not make 5,000.

When the Department published the census of Peterborough, I wrote to Ottawa asking authority to publish the details by sub-divisions for the city. I have not received that authority, but when I do I will give the citizens of Peterborough a detailed statement of the census the have never had before. I am quite ready when Mr. Henry makes his returns for this year to discuss with him or the Council the census of Peterborough.

"The census returned by me is as complete as it is possible to give in complying with the requirements of the Department.

"In conclusion, I will say the enumerators were instructed by me to thoroughly traverse the city, and go into backyards, cellars, and attics, and I have every reason to think this has been carried out. I selected isolated cases throughout the city and checked them up when the returns came in. In all cases I found they had gone into the byways. So thoroughly was this done, one man was discovered living in a stable. I have yet to find any citizen who says he was not enumerated. Some have thought they were not, but have found on inquiry the necessary information was given.

"THE BAIT."

The Big Sensational Picture; Also Larry Semon in "Dull Care" and Other Good Reels. Usual Prices.

Tomorrow night the Capitol presents the big 6-reel production, "The Bait." The story follows:

"Joan Grainger (Hope Hampton) is salesgirl in the jewelry department of a big department store. Simpson, the floorwalker, is a member of a band of crooks, of which Bennett Barton is the master mind. Barton arranges with Simpson to frame up Joan so that she is accused of theft and and found guilty. Dolly, another salesgirl under Barton's influence, swears against Joan. On the way to prison, Barton rescues her and arranges her escape to Europe, where he later joins her.

"Barton plans to use Joan's beauty to capture a rich suitor, whom he contemplates blackmailing. Joan is in ignorance of this, thinking Barton is helping her out of kindness. In Paris, at the Follies Bergere, a lion escapes from his cage on the stage and leaps into the box occupied by Joan and Barton, John Warren, a millionaire, sitting near, rescues Joan.

"Warren returns to America on the same boat with them, as does also a gambler, John Garson, a former friend of Barton's, but now determined to aid Joan against him. Warren and Joan fall in love.

"In New York, Joan is set up in a pretentious establishment by Barton, who reveals his true character, making threats to her if she does not induce Warren to propose to her.

"Jim and Madeline, chauffeur and maid to Joan, are also pawns of Barton's. They like Joan and decide to help her. In a tenement on the East Side, they locate Dolly and tell Joan about it. She enlists the aid of John Garson, who goes to Dolly's room with the idea of forcing from her a written confession that Joan's alleged theft of jewelry was really a frame-up. This would break Barton's grip upon Joan forever. Just as he secures the confession, Barton appears from behind a curtain and a desperate fight ensues, during which a lamp is overturned and the place is set on fire.

"Joan, meantime, flees to Warren's apartment, where Garson follows with the precious confession. Joan places the paper in a drawer.

"Almost as soon as the room is dark and deserted, Barton sneaks in, determined to secure the paper. Simpson, who also knows its value and wishes to double-cross Barton, also appears. The two men clash in the dark and Simpson shoots Barton dead.

"The police appear, and one of them recognizes Joan as the ex-salesgirl. She is accused of the murder. Joan thereupon lays bare the whole story of her past to Warren and the police. But Dolly's confession is missing, and the police are about to lead her away, when the lid of one of Warren's chests is observed to be moving. Simpson is dragged forth, and the confession found on him.

"Warren takes Joan into his arms."

The balance of this big program will include a funny two-reel Larry Semon comedy, 'Dull Care," and the special music of the excellent Capitol Concert Orchestra is a feature at all performances. FAN-FAN.

AT THE GRAND.

There are good women and the "other" kind. In "Blind Youth," a National picture which comes to the Grand theatre Thursday, one of the other kind, has the wife of the hero, Maurie Monnier, at her mercy.

As the situation stood, the other kind of woman was married to the artist in his wild student days. She left him for another, but re-appeared when and where she was least expected —in New York just as the hero, having found true love at last, was planning to ask another to be his wife.

It was then that the complications commenced —and they were plentiful. A jealous, selfish brother and a society-loving mother did their best to keep the pot of trouble boiling. In the end—well, virtue has a way of triumphing finally.

Orom the drawing rooms of Fifth Avenue and the studios of Greenwich Village to the ateliers of Paris and the garrets of Montmarte—so the characters of the story travel.

"Blind Youth" was adapted fro.n the stage success of the same name, written by Lou Tellegen and Willard Mack. It was directed by Ted Sloman, and a highly capable cast, headed by Walter McGrail and Leatrice Joy, portrayed the various roles. The screen version was written by Katherine Reed.

THREE LIVE GHOSTS

"Three Live Ghosts" the stage version of Frederic Isham's most entertaining novelty of the same name provided the Grand Opera House with a pleasing and successful opening attraction last evening A large and appreciative audience helping to usher in the theatrical season by witnessing Max Marcino production "Three Live Ghosts" deals with the amusing adventures of Jimmy Gubbins, a typical London cockney and his pals "Spoofy" English aristocrat who has lost his memory through shell shock and William Foster an American boy. The three after fighting with the British army in France and falling into the hands of the enemy, eventually escape and return to London to find the war office has officially reported all three killed in action. While the red tape is being cut the three live ghosts have a series of laugh provoking episodes chiefly built around the activities of Spooty who develops an unsuspected talent for gathering in property that does not belong to him. The chief character in the play, however is not found among the three comrades. "Old Sweetheart" stepmothe r of Jimmy Gubbins monopolizes that distinction. The old cockney woman with her mercenary inclination and her fondness for a drop of gin is one of the most amusing figures that Grand audiences have seen in years and Miss Ruby Hallier who created the part in New York last year is irresistibly funny in her successful interpretation of the role. Miss Hallier's genius dwarfs the acting of the rest of the cast to some extent although her support was nevertheless consistently good. Henry Vincent made a lot out of the part of Jimmy Gubbins and Edward Martyn was very clever in his presentation of "Spoofy" a role that might easily have been converted into burlesque for less skilful hands George Duthie as a Scotland yards detective scored in the later scenes of the play and the other members of the cast contributed some excellent acting.

The work of the Grand Orchestra deserves more than passing mention not only for their fine work last night, but in consideration of the difficulties that had to be overcome to make an orchestra possible for the opening show. With the exception of the leader Mr. G. Howarth every other member of the old Grand Orchestra, had succumbed to the blandishments of newer houses and left. Mr. Howarth with what any leader might feel to be disheart ening task, that of building up an entirely new orchestra, in a town where musicians of Theatre calibre are not as plentiful as in large cities. But with quiet confidence Mr. Howarth went to work and has succeeding in bringing together an orchestra which though small in numbers bids fair as evidenced by their work last night, to be able to still claim that the Grand Opera House Orchestra, as in the past, the premier orchestra of the city.

REX SNELGROVE,

With the Rex Company at the Grand three days commencing Monday, August 29th.

For the first time in a good many years, Peterborough is to have a REAL stock company, at old-time popular prices. The Original Rex Stock Company, that comes here from the Wilson Avenue Theatre in Chicago, are the pioneers of this policy, and it is the first time in quite a number of years that this company has appeared at such a low price of admission. The opening play, "The Man Who Owned Broadway," is one of those "Happy" comedies. A comedy with a little heart tug. The entire four act production will be all mounted in special scenery. Two special vaudeville acts entertain between acts, which will insure one long continuous performance. Patrons of the Grand owe it to themselves to at least give this serious effort to reduce the H. C. L. the once over Monday night next.

AT THE ALLEN.

JACKIE COOGAN SPLENDID IN "PECK'S BAD BOY"

When Charlie Chaplin treated the world to his remarkable comedy, "The Kid," all thoughts and conjectures regarding the screen work of one Jackie Coogan, who played the title role in the picture, were set at ease with gentle, but firm reports.

In their reviews of the showing of "The Kid," the press reserved no space or words in the praise of young Mr. Coogan's portrayal. They referred to him as "the most wonderful child the screen has ever known" and as "the boy whose name will be on the lips of every movie fan in the world." Many other equally good comments were made and printed, giving paragraphs upon paragraphs of newspaper and magazine space in behalf of the newly "discovered" youngster.

And now Jackie Coogan comes forth with a subject that seals all thoughts of his screen possibilities being uncertain for future photo-production work. Jackie is bringing to the public of Peterborough a second picture. It is called "Pack's Bad Boy," a First National attraction, and will be shown at the Allen Theatre tomorrow. In "Peck's Bad Boy" Jackie, of course, portrays the title role—that of the 'bad boy." And those who have had the pleasure of seeing this second production—and Jackie's first starring one—claim him a true genius of the silent drama.

And while Jackie is the star and his work cannot be criticized, there are still other important and interesting matters pertaining to the Peck picture. First of all is the cast—an all-star cast. Heading the players, working opposite Jackie, are such personages as Doris May, Wheeler Oakman, James Corrigan, Raymond Hatton, Lillian Leighton, Gloria Wood, and others of equal note. Then comes the name of Irvin S. Cobb, America's famous author and humorist. Mr. Cobb has written all of the sub-titles for the picture and has added in this manner many laughs to those created by the action. Sam Wood directed "Peck's Bad Boy" and has made a thorough job of it. Mr. Wood is one of the best-known directors in filmland, having directed all of the new Wallace Reid and Gloria Swanson productions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—New York producers are still camping on the trail of "The Dumbells." During their recent successful run here offers were received by a number of the members of the Canadian soldier company of roles in various New York productions. The boys rejected all these proposals as they were determined to keep the Canadian organization intact. But local producers have evidently not given up hope of enticing some of them to join the casts of Broadway shows. Charles McLean, who plays one of the leading roles in "Biff! Bing! Bang!," the "Dumbells" show, has just received an offer from the Capitol Producing Corporation to play the principal comedy role in a new musical comedy, which goes into rehearsal within a few weeks. Andre de Croisset, the French composer, has supplied the musical score for this piece and he wrote from Paris suggesting that Mr. McLean be selected for the part. In his letter to Mr. McLean, Mr. Charles B. Craig of the Capitol Producing Corporation said:

"M. de Croisset, having witnessed your performance a numbers of times abroad, believes you to be the very man for the part, and after watching your work at the Ambassador Theatre in New York, I am sure we can talk business, providing that you are available for the role."

Mr. McLean has refused the offer. "Broadway looks attractive, but I am determined to stick with our own show," he said.

NO HUSBAND SHORTAGE.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—There is no scarcity of husbands, Mrs. Nettie Durham, of 503 Washington street, has discovered. Tired of keeping a rooming house, Mrs. Durham, who has been a widow for fifteen years, wrote to the Sheriff of Omaha several weeks ago asking him to find her a husband. She now has twenty-three proposals of marriage on her hands. She overcame the difficulty of making a choice by accepting the man whose proposal she received first. She sent cards of polite refusal to the second and third men heard from and ignored the other twenty.

THE DOLLAR DAY SHOPPERS SPENT BUSY DAY HERE

THE ADVANCE GUARD ARRIVED EARLY AND BUYING WAS VERY ACTIVE.

Railways, steamboats, automobiles and the old grey mare were the chief means by which to-day's dollar crowd of shoppers were transported to Peterboro. It was a large crowd and the stores were well patronized.

The advance guard arrived on the early morning trains and more came in flivvers until the city took on a Saturday morning air of bustling activity.

The steamers Rainbow and Geneva brought a large number from the Rice Lake district, and by noon the merchants began to get real busy.

Dollar Day stores report heavy sales and this afternoon some of the merchants were of the opinion that the day's business would exceed that of last year.

Keen interest was taken in the prizes that were offered through the merchants and others.

WHICH WILL YOU HAVE

in disgust and distress at the dinner table? That is because your stomach is not functioning properly.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

If your Stomach is out of order, consult a Chiropractor; he will tell WHY your Stomach is not as it should be. He will locate the point where the pinched Nerve is and ADJUST the Vertebra that produced the pressure on the Nerve. As soon as this is adjusted the Nerve will build up and be able to carry life to the Stomach. As soon as the Nerve begins to perform its normal function, the Stomach becomes stronger, and will, in a short time, become normal.

HEALTH IS WITHIN REACH

if you earnestly and sincerely desire it. Merly wishing for Health will not bring it. But to wish for it, to determine to find the CAUSE of your trouble, and then to go directly to your Chiropractor for a Spinal Analysis and Adjustments will bring you Good Health.

YOU HAVE ONLY TO DETERMINE TO BE WELL—

then see your Chiropractor. Chiropractic plus Nature will restore your Health and keep you Healthy.

THE "Y" CAMP

The Y.W.C.A. camp girls gave ther annual coon party at their camp near Burleigh Falls on Friday evening, August 19. They invited a number of cottagers and campers as their guests and had a splendid gathering. The evening was spent in having just a jolly good time.

Jane McDuffee helped entertain by favoring the party with some of her fancy dancing. The main feature of the evening was the bonfire and corn roast. All those present followed the kazoo band to a large rock, where the fire was built, seated themselves in the fire light and sang some darky songs, gave camp yells and above all, ate corn. When everybody was interested in their eating, Topsy suddenly alighted upon the scene with her kettle of fortunes and bade everybody come to light to learn about their future. The fortunes were full of enlightenment, and many of those who accepted Topsy's invitation were quite dismayed when they learned how much of the truth was known. The bonfire party closed with a coon dance around tre fire, after which all went back to the cottage, where apples and home-made candy were passed.

Some of the striking costumes were Topsy, who seemed to be every place at one time and no place at all at the same time, Samantha Allen, Uncle Si and his family, Buster Brown, who seemed never to know what to do with himself, Aunt Jen, George Washington and Wife o' Wine, Joe, the gardener and his betrothed Nora, the maid, Slippery Slam who liked climbing trees, and lots of little pickaninnies.

Before entering Darky Town each one had to take the following oath, which was administered by Uncle Si, who acted as judge:

"I hereby forswear myself in this manner that I may be naturalized as a citizen of the Darky Town during the hours between eight and eleven p.m., at the end of which time we will all embark for slumberland.

I promise that from the beginning no briny waters shall from my eyelids drop, but like the moon beams by laughter shall pour forth and like the rippling waters my heart shall sing.

Do you swear? (Ans. "I do.")

Secondly — That the corn roast shall know my justice as the law knows the justice of the judge.

Swear ye? (Ans. I do.")

Thirdly—That I at no time will refrain from making a fool of myself unless I am willing to pay the forfeit. Swear thou? (Ans. "I do.")

And fourthly—That I will carefully guard myself against the bad habit of swearing while I am in the presence of my fellow citizens.

Sign here."

Among those who signed were the Misses Lita Brownscombe (camp secretary), Olive Brock, Flossie Pammett, Gladys Cooley, Grace Kemp, of Lindsay, Annie Kemp, Alice Ebbs, Marjorie Best Hazel Miller, Agnes Horsfield, Blanche Sloan, Cary Hampton of Lakefield, Jane MacDuffee, Helen Kenny, Marie-Louise Loescher, Grace and Kitty Sharpe, Mary Comstock, Roleen D'Arcy, Maragret D'Arcy and Helen Roszel, Mrs. Montz, of Toronto Mrs. Mackenzie, Mrs. Cookson, Mrs. T. SINN FEIN REPLY DELIVERED IN LONDON THIS AFTERNOON; DOES NOT SLAM DOOR TO SETTLEMENT

IS NOT COMPLETE ACCEPTANCE OF THE BRITISH TERMS—"BUT A SMALL STEP FORWARD," SAYS MEMBER OF DAIL—LLOYD GEORGE IS RETURNING TO LONDON AND A SPECIAL CABINET MEETING MAY BE SUMMONED THIS EVENING TO CONSIDER REPLY.

LONDON, August 25 (United Press). — The Sinn Fein's reply to the British peace terms was delivered at Downing Street at one o'clock this afternoon.

SPECIAL CABINET MEETING.

LONDON, August 25 (Canadian Press). — The reply of the Sinn Fein to the offer of the British Government of Dominion status for Ireland is on the way from Dublin to London by messenger, it was announced to-day.

Prime Minister Lloyd-George returned to London this afternoon, and if the reply reaches here in time, a special Cabinet meeting will be summoned for early this evening.

LEAVES DOOR OPEN.

BY CLYDE C. BEALS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN, August 25.—The Sinn Fein's reply to the British proposals has been sent to London.

Before it was made public, members of the Dail Eireann indicated that it would not "slam the door to peace," but that it was not complete acceptance of the British terms.

"Everything is coming out all right," said a member of the Dail, who saw the Irish answer.

The Dail Eireann met once more in secret session, probably the last, and tickets were distributed to correspondents and others for to-morrow's public session.

It was thought probable that "President" DeValera would conform to international usage and give the Dail's reply time to reach Lloyd-George before making it public.

Some reports had it, however, that the reply was to be given out this evening.

The answer which the Sinn Fein is making to the British proposals is "but a small step forward," another member of the Dail said to-day.

DARING BANDITS ROB TAXI DRIVER AND STEAL MOTOR

BIND AND GAG HIM, THEN THROW HIM OVER FENCE

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 25.—The bandits who are operating in this district and terrorizing residents reached the height of their nerve so far, early this morning, when two masked men stopped Francis Conley, a taxi driver, of Port Stanley, about one mile out from the village, and, forcing him to alight from his car at threat of revolvers, securely bound him and tossed him over the fence after rifling his pockets. They then drove away in Conley's car. The police are looking for the taxi which they believed has been abandoned on some side road.

ACT SAFELY, THINK SAFETY

DROWNED IN THE ST. CLAIR.

SARNIA, August 25. — An hour after he had left his work at the Grand Trunk freight sheds at Point Edward yesterday, Troy Johnson, coloured, about 24 years of age, was drowned in the St. Clair River, and owing to the swift current all hope of recovering his body was abandoned last night.

Johnson was well known in this city and in Port Huron, and was known as "Baltimore."

Prior to his death he stated that he was going to take a dip in the river, and the last seen or heard of him was a piercing cry as he disappeared beneath the surface.

DON'T WEAR A FROWN.

"Uneasy rests the face that wears a frown." And a large majority of frowns are caused by strained or painful vision. Glasses, properly fitted, will do more to smooth out those wrinkles than any beauty doctor in the world. See W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George street.

TRESPASSERS RAID APPLE ORCHARDS ALONG OTONABEE

FARMERS PLAN TO TAKE ACTION AGAINST FUTURE INVADERS.

Farmers along the Otonabee complain of campers and transients devastating their orchards and flagrantly refusing to heed "No Trespass" signs.

Joshua Chambers, R. R. No. 11, a farmer living in Otonabee, across from the T. A. S Park, has been much troubled by trespassers, and he has now declared that this shall not be. An apple foraging expedition—composed of two men and their wives—who visited the farm on Sunday atfernoon last, determined Mr. Chambers to report the matter to the police.

The party that visited the farm got a warm reception when Mr. Chambers found them scuttling away with his apples. The men turned white when the farmer indignantly threatened action. He demanded the apples, every last one of them, be returned. They were. He advised them if they did not settle for the ones they had eaten and for trespassing on his grounds, he would hail them before the Magistrate.

Bright and early the next morning the men arrived again at the farm, and paid $10.00 to the farmer to settle out of Court.

This story is told at the request of farm owners to warn others that orchards on the banks of the beautiful river are private property, and picnickers who doubt this will have their disillusionment set right in Police Court.

BARE CONSPIRACY TO KILL OBREGON.

Four Arrested, Charged With Plotting to Slay Mexican President.

MEXICO CITY, August 25 (United Press). — Four ex-officers were arrested here to-day charged with a conspiracy to kill President Obregon.

Five men drew lots, according to the police, and General Perez, of the Mexican Army, was elected to commit the assassination.

Perez, fearful of the results of such a crime, wrote a letter to Obregon, giving full details of the plot, and then fled to the United States.

Crop Inroads By Cornborers to be Fought

DR. TOLMIE INVESTIGATES SITUATION IN WESTERN ONTARIO AND SUGGESTS REMEDIES.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 5.—The suggestion was advanced by Hon. Dr S. F. Tolmie, Federal Minister of Agriculture to-day, after inspecting the fields devastated by the European corn borer in the district, that the farmers may have to start growing other fodder crops, until the pest is entirely eradicated and he spoke highly in favor of the sunflower for ensilage purposes referring to the good results that have been derived in the northwest.

Dr. Tolmie was generally alarmed about the inroads made by the borer and stated that he will leave nothing undone to discover some combative means. Already another force of entomologists has been detailed for work in this district and more will be sent if necessary, he stated As soon as he returns to Ottawa, he will hold a consultation with department heads and take whatever combative steps are recommended, he stated.

MISLED AS TO ENTRY FEE, 50 ARE DEPORTED

ITALIANS CLAIM THEY WERE TOLD BY HOME AUTHORITIES THAT $25 WAS ALL THAT WAS REQUIRED OF IMMIGRANTS HERE.

AUTHORITIES PLAN AN INVESTIGATION

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

QUEBEC, Aug. 25. —Shown but the door of the promised land of plenty, having not even crossed the threshold, but having seen and found it good to look upon, fifty disappointed Italians left last night on the Italian steamer Caserta for their own country once more. They only reached Canada on August 12, and since that time have been prisoners in the detention wards of the immigration building.

Dashed were the hopes for a happy future in a new country of those foreigners who came over from poverty-stricken homes to make new homes for themselves in the mystical land called Canada. They were deported by the authorities on the grounds of having insufficient money in their possession on landing. All these newcomers were farmers and had stated that they intended to farm in this country, but in view of the fact that they were registered for points such as Sudbury, the Soo, Fort William, Timmins and other mining towns, the authorities judged that they were not going to farm at all, therefore, and refused them admission. They all said that they had been distinctly told by the authorities in Italy that the sum of $25 was sufficient to enter here as farmers, but immigration authorities here hold that the regular sum of $500 is the necessary amount.

The Italians claim that they have been very unjustly treated, and they seem to have good grounds for complaint, as they allege that they were misinformed by the authorities in their own country and that they went to great trouble and expense to secure passage, only to be turned back at the last minute. The case is due for immediate investigation, as deportation for these poor people is a very serious matter, and the Royal Italian Commissioner for Immigration in Canada has already requested Abbe Casgrain to send him a complete list of those Italians deported with a view to obtain redress. In virtue of Article 2 90f the Italian immigration law, the men appear to be entitled to a refund on the cost of their tickets and for the amount paid out by them while under detention here.

DIVERS SEARCH DEBRIS OF THE WRECKED ZR-2

ONLY ONE AMERICAN AND FOUR BRITISH SURVIVED DISASTER TO MAN'S GREATEST STEP TOWARD CONQUERING AIR.

EXPERTS AT A LOSS TO EXPLAIN WRECK

HULL, England, August 25. — Canadian Press. — Dives began at dawn this morning to explore the fire-twisted wreck of the ZR-2 which last evening exploded above the city and fell into the Humber, carrying with her more than forty of her crew.

Only one member of the United States crew, Norman O. Walker, a rigger, and four Britishers, Flight Lieut. A. W. Wann, Ernest Davies, Airman H. Bateman, scientific assistant, and Walter Potter, mechanic, survived the disaster, that in a twinkling, changed the trial cruise of the airship into a ghastly tragedy.

During the hours of darkness that followed the collapse and the destruction of the ZR-2, tugs stood by the wreckage and keen eyes scanned the water for any bodies that might have been dislodged by the tide that flowed over all that remained of what was yesterday Great Britain's mightiest dirigible, which officials expected to turn over to the United States to-day.

It was believed that the ruins of the aerial dreadnought had the bodies of 26 British and 15 United States officers and enlisted men who were engaged in the final test of the machine.

Experts here were at a loss to account for the greatest of peace-time air disasters.

KING'S CONDOLENCE

United States.

LONDON, Aug. 25. — King George to-day sent to the Commander-in-Chief of the Royal Air Force a message conveying his deep sympathy with the relatives of the officers and men who perished in the wreck of the R-2.

KING'S MESSAGE.

The text of the King's message follows:

"Balmoral, August 25.

Major-General Trenchard, Air Marshal, Royal Air Force.

'I am shocked and grieved to hear of the terrible disaster which has befallen our airship, R-3, resulting in the loss of many valuable lives of British and American officers, with whose relatives I deeply sympathise.

"(Signed) George R. I.,

"Chief of the Royal Air Force."

(The ZR-2 was known to the British as the R-3.)

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Britain was profoundly stirred by the destruction last evening of the Z-R-2 the greatest disaster that has even befallen human efforts to conquer the air. People were accustomed to sight of airships sailing quietly and safely overhead and despatches telling of the collapse of the dirigible caused a sensation.

The impression made up the public was reflected in the newspapers this morning, all of them expressing profound sympathy for the relatives of the men who met death, regret over the loss of the majestic vessel and thankfulness over the narrow escape of the town of Hull from the terrific calamity.

RUN BLOCKADE OF REVENUE CUTTERS AND LAND LIQUOR

BOOTLEGGING FLEET WITH $250,000 CARGO EVADES ARMED GOVERNMENT CRAFT.

NORFOLG, Va., August 25 (United Press). — Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of scotch whisky has been landed somewhere along the shore of Chesapeake Bay by five bootlegging motor schooners from Nassau, Bahamas, it was believed here to-day.

The bootleg fleet ran a revenue cutter blockade off the Virginia Capes, dodged the pursuing craft in Chesapeake Bay, and is now thought to have safely landed its contraband cargo and escaped to the open sea.

LABOR TO ENTER DOMINION ARENA

FORM FEDERAL POLITICAL PARTY —EXPEL RAILWAY BROTHERHOOD

WINNIPEG, Man., August 25 (Canadian Press). — Labour delegates from Provincial bodies decided here last night to form a Federal Party.

Entry into Dominion politics is expected immediately.

WINNIPEG, August 24. — By a vote of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees yesterday was expelled from the Congress and its charter revoked.

An open vote was taken in the convention by roll call after a debate, which continued during two sessions, and stood 394 for revocation of the Brotherhood's charter and 151 for continuing that organisation in its membership.

OPPOSES USE OF ELECTRIC FURNACES.

Winnipeg Expert Says Far Too Costly.

Agitation in Winnipeg for the installation of electric furnaces in houses has elicited emphatic opposition from J. G. Glassco, manager of the Hydro-Electric system in Mantioba's capital. He states that the rates would have to be cut to one-third in order to make heating by electric furnaces as ceonomical as heating by coal. In other words, he says, coal would have to be around $60 a ton to make it as costly as heating by electricity.

Estimating that there are 40,000 houses in Winnipeg, and that it would take 15 horse power to cater for each house, he said it would take 600,000 horse power to provide the city's dwellings with heat through electric furnaces. On the Winnipeg river ther are, developed and undeveloped, just 600,000 horsepower, so there would be nothing left for domestic lighting, commercial power, tramway utilities or any of the various services rendered through the hydro-electric system.

When all the 600,000 horse power was used, said Mr. Glassco, there would be no other place where the city could secure additional water power.

ZR-2 SAILING PERFECTLY WHEN GIRDERS CRACKED, CRAFT DIVED DOWN AND EXPLOSION OCCURRED

WIRELESS OPERATOR OF ZR-2 STAYED AT HIS POST GALLANTLY

HOWDEN, Eng. Aug. 25.—(By United Press)—"The ship's back is broken, we are afire and falling . . . . we . . . . ." This was the last message sent out by the Z-R-2, whose wireless officer, Lieut. V. H. Wicks, remained gallantly at his post to the last moment, although facing certain death.

Lieut. Wicks stuck to his post from the fact that his message was broken in the middle.

LIEUT. WANN, IN COMMAND AT THE TIME, EMPTIED WATER BALLAST TO RIGHT HER, BUT SHE DROPPED LIKE A ROCK INTO THE RIVER.

HELIUM GAS WOULD HAVE SAVED CREW

HULL, Eng. Aug 25.—(Canadian Press).—Most of the British and United States members of the crew of the ill-fated dirigible Z-R-2 were killed by the explosion which followed the buckling and snapping of the girders amidships, declared Flight Lieut A. H. Wann, in command of the craft as navigating officer at the time of the disaster, an a statement to the Associated Press to-day.

Lieut. Wann said the ship had run beautifully at 60 knots an hour and that he had reduced the speed to 50 knots when there came a violent cracking sound. He thought several of the girders broke. The whole thing happened in five seconds.

"There was no sign of anything wrong when we passed over Hull he added, "but everything happened afterward. I was in sole control at the time.

"Before the moment of the accident the craft had been sailing perfectly. She had been passing through various difficult tests and the speed had been reduced suddenly. While crossing the broad estuary of the Humber, I heard a grinding and cracking of griders and the airship pitched forward, nose down, from an even keel.

"As soon as was humanly possible, I emptied the water ballast to enable the craft to resume its normal position, but at this instant a tremendous explosion occurred. The great ship seemed to halt for a moment and then it dropped like a rock. The concussion threw me down in the navigator's car, where I was pinned by the wreckage.

He was rescued fifteen minutes after the airship plunged into the Humber River.

CANADIAN GOV'T CRAFT SINKING; HELP ARRIVES

ALL SURVIVORS FROM CANADIAN IMPORTER EXCEPT THOSE IN ONE LIFE BOAT PICKED UP BY CORDOVA.

IS SOMEWHERE OFF CALIFORNIA COAST

VICTORIA, B. C., August 25. — Canadian Press. — The Canadian Government merchant marine steamer Canadian Importer, is sinking at sea 600 miles off the California coast, according to a wireless message.

The steamer Cordova is reported standing by the Canadian Importer, and to have picked up the survivors from all but one of the lifeboats.

One lifeboat is reported missing, according to the wireless messge.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 25. United Press.—The steamship Canadian Importer was reported sunk early this morning at latitude 39.49, longitude 136.25. Part of the crew were taken on board of the steamer Cordova, bound from San Francisco to Portland. One lifeboat is missing. The Cordova is reported as continuing to Portland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—No word of the wreck of the steamer Canadian Importer, reported from Seattle, has been received here. The longitude and latitude reported from Seattle would place the wreck approximately 150 miles from Astoria, Oregon.

U. S. NAVY OFFICERS BELIEVE HELIUM GAS WOULD HAVE SAVED CREW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(By United Press).—The future of American naval aviation may be determined in part by the explosion that destroyed the Z-R-2. Navy officials are planning to ask Congress for funds to replace the destroyed aircraft as soon as they have made a thorough investigation into the causes of the accident over Hull, England, yesterday. They also say they will go ahead with the construction of the Z-R-1, similar to the Z-R-2, which is being built near Lakehurst, N.J.

Members of the House and Senate Naval Affairs committees, however, said they believed no further funds for dirigible construction should be granted now and that the work on the ZR-2 should be held up if not dropped altogether. Naval officials to-day declared this country can now make airships as well as the British and that the American product will be infinitely safer because helium instead of hydrogen will be used as the lifting agent.

Although they were without specific reports, naval officials believe the ZR-2 broke and then the highly explosive hydrogen let go. With Helium, the broken airship would have dropped to the ground but the passengers would have had time to use their parachutes officials said.

THE WRECK OF ZR-2 CUTS CHAPTER FROM STORY OF TRANS-ATLANTIC NAVIGATION

RECALLS VARIOUS ATTEMPTS TO CROSS FROM EUROPE TO AMERICL FROM TIME OF COLUMBUS, CULMINATING IN SUCCESSFUA FLIGHT OF FAMOUS R-34

NEW YORK, Aug. 25. — The wreck of the ZR-2 recalls the various attempts made to cross the Atlantic, beginning with the voyage of Columbus in 1492 and culminating in the successful flight of the R-34 in July two years ago. The latter has been called the apex of man's four centuries of struggle to master the elements and mysteries of ocean and air.

Eleven years ago, in September, 1910, the ocean greyhound, Mauretania, steamed from South ampton, England, to New York in four days, ten hours and 41 minutes, a sea record that has never been broken. On June 14, 1919, Captain John Alcock and Whitten Brown, British aviators, started from St. Johns, N. F., in a Vickers-Vimy biplane and flew across the Atlantic, 1,900 miles on that route, landing at Clifden, Ireland, the next day after 16 hours and 12 minutes in the air. Alcock was killed in an air mishap the following December in France. The R-34's time was 108 hours and 12 minutes. Columbus was 70 days in reaching San Salvador from Palos, Spain.

For more than 300 years, dating from the time of Columbus, ocean navigation made little progress. The same method of propulsion that drove the Pinta, Nina and Santa Maria across "the great and unknown deep," sail power, was in universal use until 1819 when the American steamship Savannah, propelled by steam, demonstrated a new mode of travel between Europe and America.

In was 100 years after the sailing of the Savannah, that the three successful air flights over the wide expanse of the Atlantic were achieved, one in a hydro-airplane, another in a biplane and, finally, the third in a dirigible. The hydro-airplane, known as the NC-4, one of four United States' naval machines, in charge of Lieutenant Commander Albert C. Read, left Trepassey, N. F., on May 16, 1919 and reached Horta, in the Azores, in 15 hours and 18 minutes, having traversed the 1,200 miles at an average speed of 78.4 knots. Later it flew to Portugal.

Prior to the three successful flights alluded to, previous attempts had been made to negotiate "the big pond" through the air. The earliest of these was made by Walter Wellman, American journalist and explorer and Melvin Vaniman, on October 15, 1910, in a dirigible balloon called the "America." They started out from Atlantic City, N.J., with a crew of four men, including an Englishman, an Australian, and two Americans. Their objective was any point on the coast of England, Ireland or France to which the wind might carry them. After being three days and nights in the air, sailing 1,010 miles, and tossed about by adverse winds, the party was picked up by the steamship Trent, 375 miles east of Cape Hatteras, half way between New York and Bermuda. The dirigible was abandoned at sea.

Harry G. Hawker, a British aviator, and Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie Grieve of the British navy, in a heavier-than-air machine, started from St. Johns, N. F., on May 18, 1919, on a non-stop flight to Ireland. The attempt was generally regarded as the most daring of them all up to that time. Hawker and Grieve, after many hours of peril in the air and struggling against stormy conditions, were rescued in mid-ocean by the Danish steamer Mary on May 19. Hawker was killed on July 12, 1921, when the gasoline tank on his machine exploded while he was making a landing at Hendon, Eng., flying field.

All these modern efforts to conquer the Atlantic aloft, as well as below, stand out in striking contrast to the slow progress made in ocean navigation during the preceding 427 years. The era of sails had continued without particular improvement from the days of Columbus until 1819, when the Savannah, a vessel of 350 tons, with a length of 100 feet, crosed from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in 25 days. Her engines, however, were purely auxiliary; she was equipped with full sail power and when the wind was fair or the sea too rough for steaming, the paddle wheels were unrigged and hauled to the deck.

The first real trans-atlantic voyages by steam power were undertaken by the sctamship Sirius and Great Western. The Sirius left England on April 4, 1838, and was followed, four days later, by the Great Western. They arrived in New York harbor with 24 hours of each other, the Sirius completing the trip in 18 days and the Great Western ih fourteen.

The century that followed the voyage of the Savannah, however, produced ocean liners as broad as the little pioneer was long. The Leviathan, for instance, one of the largest of modern steamships, is 920 feet long, 100 feet broad and has a registered tonnage of 54,282.

PRESENT HOTEL RATES WILL NOT FOLLOW STATES

PETERBORO HOTEL MANAGERS SAY COSTS ARE STILL HIGH.

Peterborough hotel prices are not likely to be reduced in the near future, according to managers who were interviewed by The Examiner to-day regarding advices from the United States which told of drastic rate cuts. The managers were all emphatic that it was impossible for them to reduce rates.

Mr. C. G. Graham, of the Empress, and Mr. Gus White, proprietor of the White House, declared that when prices of everything else went bounding up, hotel prices advanced very slowly. Hotel charges were not advanced proportionately with other things, they said, and costs have not yet reached a level where they can make any reduction.

The principal upkeep of a hotel, they said, was in the following: Food, wages, laundry, and taxes. All these are still high. Wages and taxes are higher than last year. Wages are nearly 10 per cent. higher than in 1914. Laundry prices have not been reduced, and the reductions in food prices in general have only been slight. Besides these expenses, that of decoration and repair, light and power show no signs of a downward revision.

The people also pay higher rates because of Prohibition, it was stated. The abolition of the sale of spirits in hotels, large and small, left the hotels crippled, and additional revenue has had to be derived from the rooms.

Hotel rates at the Empress and White House have only been increased a dollar since the war. To-day both houses are getting $4.00 and $4.50 a day. Meals are 75 cents for breakfast, $1.00 for luncheon and dinner. In 1914, Mr. Graham said, they charged 75 cents a meal, so guests are paying no more for breakfast than seven years ago.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

SUCCESSFUL CORN ROAST

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY REFERRED TO—KEENE NEWS.

KEENE, Aug. 25.— A very successful corn roast was given on Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bryce on what is known as Bryce's hill, overlooking the Indian river. Six bright fires were burning, illuminating the countryside, around which the guests, numbering 150 people, were seated in a semi-circle. While the corn was roasting Mr. Bryce made a short address, touching on the approaching golden wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Harrison, who were guests of honor. Dr. Harrison responded in his usual capable manner, folllowing which the crowd sang, "For they are jolly good fellows." The corn was then passed around, which everyone enjoyed to the fullest extent. A regular programme was then carried out of many addresses, songs and violin selections, from Mr. Bryce's father, Mr. Archibald Bryce, who is 84 years of age, which was very much appreciated. Little Miss Margaret Bryce beatuifully danced the Highland fling, to music rendered by her grandfather.

Special mention is due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Walter Bryce, Miss Margaret Bryce, Mr. Percy Skinner and Mr. Thomas Wallace in preparing the corn for such a large crowd.

When the corn roast was finished, all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Mr. Bryce then invited all who wished to stay longer, to his summer home, for a dance. Some of those noticed from out-of-town were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wallace and family, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. James Bryce and daughter Jean, Mr. and Mrs. W. THE LONG SWAMP NEAR APSLEY GETS ATTENTION IN PREFERENCE TO ROADS

Apsley, Aug. 25.—Another large sum of money, reported to be $600, is being flung into the voracious maw of the Long Swamp. A gang of men under Neil Whitmore is employed in cleaning out the ditch running at right angles with the road, and digging another one running parallel with the road. The amount of the grant will be used up on this part of the work, it is feared before he road itself receives any attention. The amount of money sunk, and that literally, in the long swamp during the past few years is sufficient it is said to have made a good road round the Lasswade end of the swamp and would have answered the same purpose. Other sections of road in the two townships have been receiving grants of $100 or so for repairing and grading, etc.

These driblets are absolutely worthless for the purpose for which they are intended, the making of good roads. The only benefit accruing is to the men who get a few days work at a good rate of pay. An old settler remarked the other day enough money had been thrown away in small sums on these roads to make a macadamized road from Apsley to Peterborough.

NO DEARTH OF TEACHERS FOR SCHOOLS AT APSLEY

A CONTINUATION SCHOOL IN PROSPECT—BURLEIGH AND ANSTRUTHER COUNCIL MEET

APSLEY, Aug. 25.—There seems to be no dearth of qualified teachers this term, judging by the number of applications received by at least one school board in this part of the country is the opinion of the secretary. This is very gratifying to note, and appointments to the schools in these townships will be awaited with interest by parents and others who appreciate the value of professionally trained teachers. A continuation school might be established to advantage in Apsley, and steps may be taken in the near future to secure this.

BEAUTIFUL SCHEME.

The editor of the Eaton (Colo.) Herald suggests to his subscribers that, in order that they may keep track of the expiration of their subscriptions, they date their subscriptions on their birthdays and make it a point to always come in pay a year's subscription on that day. He adds: "The beauty of this scheme is that you are bound to live for another year. No man ever died who had his subscription paid up. Nine times out of ten when a man dies he owes the editor for subscription."

Give the average man half a chance to talk about himself and he will deliver the goods.

FIVE SURVIVE WRECK OF BIG AIRSHIP ZR-2

ALL THE REST OF HER CREW OF 49 KILLED WHEN SHE EXPLODED AND FELL INTO HUMBER RIVER.

THREE OFFICERS ARE IDENTIFIED

LONDON, August 25. Canadian Press. — Five men out of the forty-nine who ascended on Monday in the giant airship ZR-2 are still alive. All the rest were instantly killed or died of their burns when the great dirigible exploded and fell into the Humber River yesterday afternoon. The British losses include the famous air veteran, Brig.-General E. M. Maitland and all the other officers on board, except Lieut. Wann, commander of the ZR-2.

The disaster occurred while the ZR-2 was on what was intended to be her final trip before being turned over by her British builders to the United States navy for her flight across the Atlantic.

The airship set out from Howden early on Monday, was prevented by the storm from landing, and was cruising about yesterday making further tests.

Thousands of people lined the streets of Hull at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, awaiting the arrival of the big ship. It could be seen miles away on account of the sunshiny day, with hardly a breath of air stirring.

The ship came lower as she approached the city. It was evidently the intention of the commander to circle the city before departing for Pulham, where she was to anchor to the great Pulham mooring mast.

According to the description given by the spectators, it seemed as if the airship nose dived and that the frame work, unable to stand the strain, buckled and broke.

THREE IDENTIFIED.

United Press.

LONDON, August 25. — The Air Ministry to-day announced identification of the bodies of Lieut. Marcus Esterley, Washington, D.C., Lt. Chas. G. Little, Newburyport, Mass., and Lieut. Montague, a British officer, all of whom were killed when the dirigible ZR-2 exploded and fell into the Humber River yesterday.

SINN FEIN TO REPLY TO-NIGHT

DAIL MEETS TO-DAY IN LAST SECRET SESSION — RUMOR REPLY TO BE MADE PUBLIC THIS EVENING.

BY CLYDE C. BEALS.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

DUBLIN, August 25. — The Sinn Fein's reply to the British peace offer was to be forwarded to London to-night. "Everything is coming out all right," said a member of the Dail who saw the Irish answer.

The Dail Eireann met once more in secret session, probably the last, and tickets were distributed to the correspondents and others for to-morrow's public session.

It was thought probable that President DeValera would conform to international usage and give the Dail's reply in time to reach Lloyd George before making it public here. Some reports had it, however, that the reply was to be given out this evening.

The answer which Sinn Fein is making to the British proposals is "but a small step forward," another member of the Dail said to-day.

FIRE IMPERILS REMAINS 5,000 SOLDIER DEAD

$750,000 DAMAGE ON HOBOKEN WATERFRONT—SHIFTING OF WIND SAVED ENTIRE DISTRICT.

SPREAD TO PORTION OF GIANT LEVIATHIN

NEW YORK, August 25. Canadian Press.—The shifting of the wind early last night saved the entire Hoboken water front from what might have been the most serious conflagration in its history.

As it was, damage estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000, was caused by a fire which broke out on Army Pier No. 5 and rapidly spread in all directions, at one time getting the forward portion of the giant United States Steamship Leviathan, the largest ship afloat, in the flames. Adjoining on pier No. 4, were 5,000 flag-draped caskets of American soldier dead, awaiting transfer to relatives or next of kin.

For a time it looked as if this pier too would be consumed, but a slackening of the wind blew the flames northward toward the Leviathan and pier No. 5. At the height of the danger ambulances rushed the coffins to a safety zone, surrounded by American soldiers from the 13th Infantry barracks.

FATHER AND SON BOTH BENEFITTED

TORONTO MAN TELLS OF HIS WONDERFUL RECOVERY AND SAYS SON WAS ALSO HELPED.

"I'm telling everybody about this wonderful medicine Tanlac, for besides doing me a world of good it's helping my son right along," was the statement made by Thomas Anderton, well-known painter residing at 974 Logan avenue, Toronto, Ont.

"About six years ago a scaffold with three hundred and fifty bricks fell down with me, and I got hurt so bad I had to stay in the hospital for two months and then stay at home eight more weeks before I was able to go back to work. When I did get up and about I was in pretty bad shape and couldn't seem to get right. At times my back hurt so bad I couldn't sleep. My appetite would fail me for days at a time, I couldn't sleep, and often went to my work feeling completely tired out, and many days felt so sick all over I just could not stay on the job.

"A friend of mine finally brought me a bottle of Tanlac, and it helped me so much I got another and then another and kept taking it until now I'm eating, sleeping and working as well as I ever could. I just can't say enough for this Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

SIR SAM HUGHES.

The death after a long illness of General Sir Sam Hughes removed one of the best known and most picturesque figures in the public life of Canada. There will never be another Sam Hughes. He was, although a staunch Imperialist, nevertheless, a Canadian of Canadians. He had an unshaken faith in his native country and its people. According to him, there was nothing that anybody else in the world could do that a Canadian could not do better. The great military record of the Canadian Corps in France may have amazed the rest of mankind, but it did not surprise Sir Sam. That they should meet under disadvantageous conditions the pick of the Kaiser's trained soldiery and defeat them was just what he knew they could do. No Canadian ever had more confidence in the ability of his fellow country men than had General Hughes.

Of his public career there is no necessity of going into details. Every citizen of Canada knows the colorful life story of the man who organized Canada's first contingent for service in the great war. That was undoubtedly the greatest achievement of a career that was notable for unusual exploits. No one but Sir Sam Hughes could have accomplished this marvellous feat of organizing an army of 30,000 men, training them, equipping them and transporting them to Europe inside of three months after the opening of hostilities. His name will always be associated in history with that wonderful enterprise. "No great deed is done by falterers who ask for certainty," wrote George Eliot, and Sir Sam was not a falterer. He cared nothing for military etiquette or departmental red tape. There was a war in Europe and the Canadians were needed; that was all he cared about, and thanks to him the Canadians got there in time to save the situation at Ypres.

General Hughes made mistakes, of course. His public utterances were not always discreet, but his service to Canada in the greatest energency the country has ever faced earned him the undying gratitude of the Dominion.

"He was a man, take him for all in all;
I shall not look upon his like again."

LIFE INSURANCE.

Life insuance is one of the greatest agencies in promoting stability in the life of the individual and in developing Canadian nationhood, claiming rank with the other big financial institutions of the Dominion. It is therefore of interest to note the campaign being carried on by the Life Underwriters News to bring before the people of Canada the story of what life insurance it doing as an institution in this country. The publicity campaign has already developed some striking facts. Here are some of them:

The people of Canada are insured for over two and a half billion dollars. This sum would provide for $3500,000 widows and orphans for twenty years; it would purchase 625,000 homes at $4,000 each; or it would furnish an education to over a million children.

Life insurance is simply money for future delivery. Over six hundred million dollars have been paid out by life insurance companies in Canada for these similar purposes, and two and a half billions are pledged today for future delivery.

Over a thousand persons every day in Canada are turning to life insurance for the purpose of caring for the future of their dependents.

Life insurance to the amount of over six hundred million dollars was issued in 1920. This amount of money would provide an income of one hundred dollars a month for fifteen years to fifty thousand families.

Two hundred millions of dollars have been paid to policyholders in the past ten years by the life insurance companies in Canada. This is actually twenty-five million more than was paid in death losses, despite the heavy war and influenza claims.

Last year presented 11,450 illustrations of the uncertainty of life, but provision had been made in each case through life insurance. Of the 11,450 policies which become claims; 850 were in force less than a year, 1,050 less than two years, 2,100 between three and five years, 2,450 between five and ten years, 2,800 between ten and twenty years, 2,200 more than twenty years.

Life insurance is the only sure way of leaving an estate. Fifty per cent. of all estates at death consist of life insurance—many persons are unable to leave anything else to their families.

Seventy-nine per cent. of all business failures in Canada last year were due to personal causes. Life insurance would have saved many of these business from failure and the hardships this imposed.

DOLLAR DAY.

Dollar Day has become a great institution in Peterborough. It brings hundreds of shoppers into the city from all over the Midland district, imparts an impetus to business at a season when the buying is usually at a minimum, puts many thousands of dollars into circulation and in fact acts like a tonic upon the city's mercantile commmunity. The merchants of Peterborough have wisely recognized the fact that such a buying carnival can only be maintained as a success by the offering of genuine bargains and by playing fair with the public. A feeling of confidence has been built up between buyer and seller as a result of the general recognition of that principle, and Peterborough's Dollar Day is, as a result, awaited with keen interest by the whole district. And, incidentally, the value of newspaper advertising is most emphatically emphasized by the success of the big event. It could not hope to succeed without that wonder-working commodity, printers' ink.

THE HYDRO-RADIAL SITUATION.

Premier Drury has announced the policy of his government in regard to Hydro-radials, and there are no surprises in his statement. It was a foregone conclusion that he would accept the recommendations of the Sutherland Commission, seeing that the verdict of that body was exactly what the government wanted. The municipalities are not to be deprived of an opportunity to carry out the Hydro-radial proposals if they desire to do so, but they must submit fresh by-laws to their ratepayers and obtain their consent to going ahead with the scheme on the understanding that the municipalities must do their own financing without the credit of the province standing behind their bonds. Had the government of that day been equally faint-hearted, the Hydro-Electric enterprises as we know them now might never have been carried forward to their present successful condition, for without Provincial endorsation of their bonds, the municipalities would have had difficulty in financing the operations. The situation is different to-day; the general success of the Hydro policy has given the towns and cities of Ontario confidence to tackle the radial scheme unaided by the government, and undoubtedly in some sections of the province at least there will be no hesitation in undertaking the enterprise.

THE AMERICANS FEAR AN "ALLIANCE."

The American press took alarm at once—as might easily have been predicted—at the entirely casual largely courteous and perfectly friendly suggestion in Lloyd George's speech the other day that something like a Pacific alliance might grow out of the Washington conferences. The free and confident Americans are going to have an alliance with nobody; and if any of these mediaeval and Machiavellian Europeans—who seemingly cannot escape from the cut-worn delusion that alliances are the best way to ensure a nation against trouble in this wicked world—think that they can inveigle the aforesaid free and confident Americans into an alliance of any sort they might as well be told right off that "there is nothing doing."

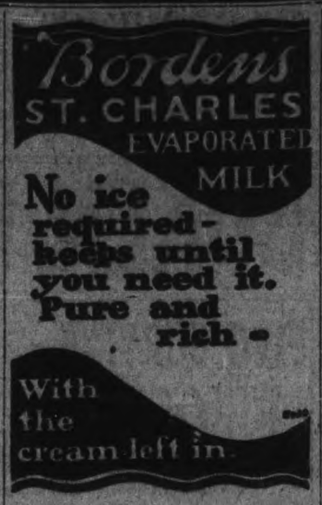
Of course, the poor British Premier was under the impression that he was at least making a friendly gesture toward the American Republic when he tossed off the idea. Such a suggestion would have been regarded as a compliment by an Old World power. It is not at all likely, however, that he expected to get an alliance. What he probably had in mind was an understanding; and the conferences will confer in vain if they do not lead to an understanding. And it must be an understanding with some considerable substance to it. Surely three business Governments of three great powers do not propose to spend many precious weeks fixing up an intricate arrangement to cover nearly half the world, and then go off home without making as much provision as a city police department would to regulate an Elks' parade to see that this arrangement is not upset by any naughty nationette which might take the notion!

But in any case Europe might as well make up its mind that the American people are supersensitive on this "entangling alliances" chatter. The surest way for a British or Continental public man to arouse American suspicion that somebody is trying to put something over on that great people is to slip the word "alliance" into his discourse. It stands first on the "index Washingtonius."

The United States may prove to be right or wrong, but its people are wholly certain that an alliance between them and any other nation or group of nations at this time would be all liability and no asset. They do not believe for a moment that they have the smallest need of an alliance with anybody or against anybody. When we British mouth our Shakespeare—"Come the three corners of the world in arms and we shall shock them"—we are possibly sobered by a sense of desperate daring; a touch of "our backs to the wall" sort of feeling. But our American neighbors largely escape this dimming of their joy. They are entirely and sincerely confident of their ability to go it alone, and think that it would be a positive loss to them to be harnessed to anybody.

Europe must take them or leave them on those terms. If even the Harding administration with its sweeping majority were to try to tie the American nation up to an alliance, it would find itself confronted by a fierce fight in the Senate and would infallibly lose caste in the country. So it is purely idle for French opinion, for example, to object that the Americans cannot have at the same time the advantages of co-operation with the other powers in the Pacific and the freedom of completely untrammelled action.

The only thing to do is to go to Washington next November and see what the Americans will agree to carry through. It will almost certainly be found when they sit down at a round table with the rest of the interested nations that they will enter into practical agreements involving both restrictions and obligations. But no one must whisper the forbidden word "alliance," and no one must suggest that the Americans cannot get along perfectly well without any such agreements.—Montreal Star.



EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir Sam Hughes may have made mistakes, but he also made history.

The Dollar Day spirit was in evidence even at the ball game yesterday. The score was marked down.

The Liberals of Leeds have selected A. W. Mallory, prominent dairyman, as standard-bearer at the next election, probably on the ground that he was the cream of the candidates.

It is reported that wild ducks are being shot, or at least shot at along the Otonabee River. An example should be made of the offenders.

Niagara Falls demands a new census, willing to take a chance on a better showing being made on the second counting of noses.

LITERARY GEMS

ALWAYS SACRIFICE.

Perhaps national friendship will develop in the future the same warmth of feeling as friendships between individuals. The old diplomatic theory that nations have no friends, but only interests, has not been so much in vogue since the World War. The example of the sacrifice made by our country is one that has not been lost on the rest of the world. Friendship is always born of some form of sacrifice. For centuries countries have been hating each other with a bitterness stronger than love of life; and whoever is capable of hate is also capable of love. What is there illusory about national amities as strong and enduring as national hatreds?

CHAPER 46.

I had told Kent my wonderful secret.

'Yes, we'll have to move into a better place than this, Babs, more sunshine and a fine big room for—for the nursery,' he finished, grinning boyishly.

"I'm sorry about those studios, Kent, but you can see they wouldn't do, dear" I said a little sorrowfully. "We wouldn't have room enough for the nurse—and then somehow down here in Greenwich Village, and especially south of Washington Square, doesn't seem just the place to bring up a child," I reasoned.

"No, I've been thinking of that too, Babs," Kent answered, looking very serious. "In fact I've been thinking of seeing what I can locate up-town along Riverside Drive. If the prices are not way beyond me," he added.

"Don't be too rash, boy," I admonished.

"Well we'll see," Kent mused, half to himself.

And then one day soon after, he called me on the telephone early in the afternoon.

I want to take you up town to see an apartment, Babs," he told me over the wire. "It looks good to me.

I planned where to meet him and hung up the receiver.

If the thoughts of moving had held any qualms of old associations broken, and the dread of [illegible] they were speedily put to rout when Kent took me to the new apartment on Riverside Drive. It was all that I could wish for. I only kept wondering over and over to myself as we looked around if Kent was going to be able to afford it. I hoped it would be all right. I knew right away that it was the one place I wanted.

The living room was unusually large, with four big windows looking down on the Drive and the magnificient Hudson River beyond. On the little grassy park between the Drive and the River, children were playing and enjoying the sunshine I stood watching them, my thoughts rushing on into the future and making mental pictures of another child that would some day be playing here too.

Kent came and called me, and I turned to him with a strange, sweet longiig in my heart. On the way down in the elevator he asked:

"When do you think we better move in, Barbara?"

"Can we really have it, Kent?" I questioned unbelievingly.

"Of course, little wife ,it's ours now—I only wanted to be sure you liked it," he smiled down at me, and stuck his arm through mine.

"Soon, dear—very soon,' I said eagerly. I gave his arm a right little hug.

"You like it so much, dear?" he questioned happily. "And did you notice that peach of a clothes closet in the end room with special wardrobe effect at the back. I'd sort want the one on the south where you get lots of sunshine—unless, of course, you thought you ought to have it for—for him," he finished rather doubtfully.

I took a quick little sidelong glance at Kent's face. Could he be just the weest little bit jealous, I wondered. His voice had an unmistakable quaver of misgiving in it. But I loved him for it. It made me realize more forcibly how much he needed every ounce of my love. He was such a boy after all and so jealous of my undivided esteem!

"You will always come first, Kent —always, always," I whispered soft ly so the elevator boy could not hear me.

McClary's Protected Element

McClary's Protected Element is the final touch of perfection in the Electric Range.

Keeping the many wire coils in the Elements free from grease, dirt and damage is assured with McClary's Protected Element. Dirt impairs heat radiation.

Salt in grease or water may fuse the coils—burn them out, cause damage and repair bills.

McClary's Elements are encased in disks of tough, protecting porcelain made by a secret process.

The wire coils are embedded in the porcelain disk, snugly protected from damage of any kind.

McClary's Electric Range

The tough, smooth disk heats quickly, retains the heat, will stand any amount of wear with heavy pots and pans — cannot get out of order like the exposed Elements of ordinary ranges.

—In fact, it eliminates Electric Range worry.

Next to the Protected Element, McClary's seamless, jointless oven is the most valuable feature of McClary's Electric Range — sanitary, clean and efficient.

Peterboro' May Have a Juvenile And a Probation Officer Soon

Quarterly Bulletin Issued by the Children's Aid Society --Officers Enjoyed Visit in the City

"Our Quarterly" is the name of a small leaflet which is described as "the quarterly bulletin and official organ of the Association of Children's Aid Societies of the Province of Ontario.

Number one of volume one of this pleasant little pamphlet was issued in the month of July of this year and has as an introduction the following:

"This is our first attempt to reach the various Children's Aid Societies in the Province, to keep them in touch with the work being done by one and all, to endeavor to unite those workers and friends of the neglected and dependent children into one body, in the common work in which they are engaged; this humble effort put forth in this small way will, we trust, be accepted, and perhaps added to as time passes along by the combined efforts and hearty co-operation of those who appreciate such dissiminating of information."

This initial number contains several interesting excerpts from the report of the annual conference of the society held in Toronto on May 10th and 11th, and, with regard to the Juvenile Court in the city of Toronto, the editor, Rev. Canon Quartermaine of Renfrew, says:

"Your editor had the pleasure of being in Peterborough with Judge Mott, and being entertained at luncheon by the Rotary Club officers when an outline of Juvenile Court work and probation was discussed. Peterborough is likely to be the next city in Ontario for Juvenile Court and probation work, and if they enter into it with the same spirit as they do the entertaining of their guests, the Juvenile Court will be a marked success."

Peterboro' Girls Learn to Swim Through Medium of the "Y" Pool

The importance of learning to swim need not be emphasized. It is a necessity of life almost, and no man or woman can be said to be fully educated who lacks the ability to at least keep himself or herself afloat on the water, if unable to dive or do fancy stunts. The Y.W.C.A. pool has turned out many a good girl swimmer in its time, and continues to do so. Miss M. Payne, last year's instructress, has been replaced this year by Miss Emma Carroll, who follows out her methods of tuition, and who has proved herself to be a teacher of merit besides, being extremely popular with her pupils.

There are certain nights set apart weekly for beginners, others for advanced pupils and still others for life-saving classes, which latter started in afresh within the last week from seven to eight o'clock on Tuesday evenings, when special lessons are given in this class of swimming tuition.

It is intended to keep the pool open longer than usual this year, and a short course of lessons will be started in September at reduced rates.

Extracts from "Y" Campers Diary

August 5th.

A most successful morning. Met some fishers, who gave us four bass and the guide cleaned them, also got some water-lilies. This afternoon planned a trip to Sunset Falls. Our first adventure was locking through the locks. This was really interesting and exciting. We enjoyed the scenery through Lovesick Lake and found our way through the rice to Sunset Bay. Several went in for a swim and had some pictures taken, and all partook of a very hearty supper. We climbed the hill to see the sunset, which was beyond words. This delayed our boat and we thought we were lost, but the others waited around the corner. Very happy day.

August 6th.

Saturday very quiet day around camp. Swimming. Several new arrivals. Stunt night. Everyone had to do some stunt. Hot cocoa and biscuits before going to bed.

August 7th.

Took a swim before breakfast, but late, of course. Mr. Brownscombe took us all to church at Juniper. Some crowd! Had to tow some of us. After dinner we read and went for a paddle. In the evening we had our sing-song on Bonfire Point.

Monday, August 8th.

Juniper regatta day. Our work day, but everybody helped. The weather was not promising, but our spirits were not dampened. Had a launch ride down and back. Excursions were there from Lindsay and Peterborough. Canoe races, swimming, sail boat, motor boat races, etc. We came home about six o'clock, after taking in everything. Paddled over for milk, came home and sat around fireplace to enjoy our last evening. Eleven p.m. and ready for bed at last. Everyone seems to have played a joke on us and such fun as we have had—we are still laughing. So long, camp diary, for this year.

I remember, I remember,
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky.

It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy."

Another Letter From "Y" Camp

Y. W. C. A. Camp,
Burleigh Falls,
Aug. 24, 1921.

Dear Girls,—

We have been almost too busy to write letters this last week. There were 23 of us for part of the week and about 20 the rest of the week, so we kept things lively. Of course, you heard all about our regatta and the good time we had. Then Friday we had our annual coon party and much fun getting ready. It was a great success.

We feel now that our time at camp is getting short, but we are going to make the most of it. There are 12 of us staying up for this week and we hear there are some others coming the middle of the week. Wouldn't you like to come, too? Perhaps you could come for the week-end. This will be the last chance you will have this season, as camp closes the end of the month. We are going to have a corn roast Saturday night, so if you can come you will be in on that.

The weather is just lovely now, and we all hate to think of going back to the city. We have had such a jolly time together and have made many new friends. Camp is just the friendliest sort of place and we all love it. Nearly every day we receive a letter from campers who have had to go back to work telling us they miss the camp and what a good time they had here. One of our group is up for 3 weeks and has been up every year. That is a good recommendation for camp, isn't it?

We went down to Kawartha today for a shore dinner and swim. It was a perfect day for a walk and we did full justice to the nice lunch we took. When we got home we found a nice hot dinner waiting for us. These evenings we enjoy around the fireplace, reading, writing or doing fancy work, and eating.

Must close now as we want to play some tricks on some of the girls who are out. We are going to wind thread into a regular cob-web around their room and put juniper bushes in their beds.

Remember, we shall be glad to see you Saturday, or any time you can come.

Yours, same as ever.
THE 'Y' CAMPERS.

DOES IT PAY TO WORRY ABOUT APPENDICTIS?

Can appendicitis be guarded against? Yes, by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing ALL foul, decaying matter which might start infection. EXCELLENT for gas on stomach or chronic constipation. It removes matter which you never thought was in your system and which nothing else can dislodge. One man reports it is unbelievable the awful impurities Adler-i-ka brought out. Social Welfare

A recent issue of "Social Welfare," the official organ of the Social Service Council of Canada, gives an idea of some child health activities in Canada. In the Province of Nova Scotia, the Red Cross Society organized, equipped, paid for and operated during the summer of 1920 two distinct and separate "Public Health Caravans," which toured the Province for forty-eight days in accordance with an itinerary which allowed for the performance of clinical work at 45 centres and for a number of public meetings in the larger centres between clinics. The direct results as far as known in figures are: 105 meetings, 36 clinics, 860 chest examinations, 1,822 dental cases, 300 addresses, 4,236 patients treated and 300 operations conducted during trip. This health demonstration is the most outstanding activity conducted in Canada to date, and shows well what vision and energy can effect.

A modern "Health Centre" has been opened in Halifax by the Massachusetts-Halifax Health Commission, in a building recently vacated by the Canadian Navy Hospital. It is intended that the work of this centre shall include prenatal, pre-school and school clinics, and school officials will be offered for the use of the hospital facilities for correcting remediable defects of pupils.

The Child Welfare Association of Montreal recently conducted a physical survey of pupils attending the Academy at Ayers Cliff. Some 410 physical defects were found among seventy pupils examined—no child being found free from physical defectiveness. Malnutrition was prevalent to the extent of 18.5 per cent. Eighty per cent. of cases examined were in immediate need of teeth treatment, while faulty health habits were prevalent throughout the entire series. The results of the survey bore out the previous findings of impartial observers that the rural school child was less healthy than the average urban pupil. This survey will shortly be published in booklet form, along with the "Eastern Townships Health Drive" of 1920.

The results of a "Social Study Along Health Lines" of the first 1,000 children examined at the Health Clinic of the Canadian Patriotic Fund (Montreal branch) offers an astounding revelation into child health conditions in Montreal. In the 1,000 children examined, 6,404 defects, an average of 6.4 per child, were discovered. Only 2 children in the 1,000 were free, while no less than 184 had each 7 defects. The maximum of 15 defects occurred in only one child, while 50 had 10 defects, 25 had 11, 7 had 12 and 3 had 13. Dr. Alan Brown of Toronto, speaking before the London Child Welfare Association, reported the U.S.A. records as showing 1 per cent. of twenty million U. S. children mentally deficient, 5 per cent. tuberculous, 1 per cent. heart trouble, 25 per cent. defective eyes, 5 per cent. defective hearing, 25 per cent. undernourished, 15 per cent. adenoids, etc.

The Toronto Board of Education has recently conducted a weighing and measuring test among children attending four Public schools to determine the prevalence of malnutrition. While the prevalence of malnutrition was unduly present, the public were surprised to find that this condition of physical inferiority was more rampant, not among the poorly housed children, as among those in possession of material requirements—thus confirming results of similar studies made elsewhere.

It will be remembered that in a local inspection of the Peterborough schools made last year, some startling figures were presented for the consideration of the public. In an inspection of 2,800 pupils, 90 per cent. were found to be below par in some respect. A very large percentage of the primary grades showed evidence of neglect in regard to their teeth. A large number of children were under par in nutrition and color, and the report says: "This is not more common among the poorer families." Enlarged tonsils and defective visions were common defects noted also.

A few recommendations made by the local physician in charge of this inspection were:

2.—The adoption of a medical inspection card for each pupil.

3.—The conside ration of a plan for giving necessary medical and dental treatment, more especially in regard to teeth, tonsils and fitting glasses.

EARTH BOUND.

(By Georgia Wood Pangborn.)

You mourn that I live but in yesterday,
Gone from the world by a hidden way;
But the hand of the wind in your hair is mine,
I am the bubble within your wine.

All night with the moths I have played and sped,
With their long, curled tongues from the roses fed,
Wondered with them at the moon and stars,
Bruised my wings at your window bars.

But my wings with your tears are confused and weak,
I am chained by the sorrowful words you speak,
Free me from murmur of life and fret—
Love me enough to forget—forget!

Taxes On Feminine Apparel

The two sides to every question are not always considered by the serious-minded. Those earnest gentlemen who deplore the extravagance of the fair sex in the matter of clothes, jewelry, etc., probably forget that these luxurious ladies are doing a great deal to pay off the national debt. For instance, chewers of gum in the past twelve months contributed more than $1,000,000 in taxes to the Federal Treasury of the United States. Summer furs alone netted the Government the sum of $500,000 in tax money, toilet soaps and powders added more than $2,000,000 to the Government's coffers and more than $23,000,000 poured into the Federal pocketbook from taxes on engagement diamonds and other jewelry.

That foreigners realize the power of the ladies in this regard is evidenced by the action of Bulgarian authorities, whose new system of taxation is mainly levelled at the luxurious habits of the fair sex. Carrying a parasol, wearing skirts more than 11 inches above the ground or shoes with tops exceeding 11 inches in height, wearing silk stockings, wearing gloves between April 15 and September 15 without a doctor's certificate, wearing jewelry, keeping pet dogs, use of walking canes by persons under 50 years of age in good health, fur typets and muffs, and a rather curious item, using baby carriages in cities, are all taxable offences.

DR. FOWLER'S
EXTRACT OF

in such cases relieves the pain, checks the diarrhoea, and thus does away with the suffering, the weakness and oftentimes collapse associated with an attack of this kind. It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach and bracing up the weakened system, thsu rendering it without a peer for the treatment of all bowel complaints of both old and young.

Mrs. Ernest S. Beaton, Grayburn, Sask., writes:—"Coming out here from the East, my two little girls took very sick, the change of water, etc., giving them diarrhoea. They were so pale, and used to vomit everything they would take, so I finally got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I must say it certainly helped them. I have also used it when my children were teething and it is all you claim for it."

Literary Art

Sir Edward Reed, in his work on Japan, gives us an account of the literary character of its women:

"In the long and repeated periods of civil war, the women of the land, to their enduring glory, be it said, not only sustained the literary art, but exalted it to a greater eminence than that to which men ever raised it."

He mentions particularly one famous authoress, by name, Murasaki-Shikibu, who lived in 480. She wrote the Genji-Monogatari, the parent of the Japanese novel, and also much of the poetry of the time.

Wire Hair Nets

In this motoring age women could hardly get along without hair nets to keep their tresses in proper and compact shape.

These "invisible" sets are a great comfort and convenience. Most of them are made in China or else of hair that comes from that country.

One would rather prefer that they should come from somewhere else. But really it isn't necessary that such nets made of hair at all. A New Yonker has newly patented hair nets of metal wire so hairlipe appearance and so equally invisibility.

WORKING ON FARMS CURES SHELL-SHOCK

The percentage of shell-shocked soldiers settled on the land, who have completely recovered, was far greater than that among those who staid in cities. The Canadian Government has put 25,500 soldiers on the land and assisted them to equip their farms with stocks, buildings and farm machinery.

Though many of these soldiers were suffering from wounds and other effects of the war, the average soldier-farmer today is in ruddy health as well as sound finance.

INCREASED APPLE CROP.

E. Leonard & Sons, of Cobourg, whose orchard is one of the best in the Province, expect to have a good crop this year. Last year they had about 800 barrels and this year expect to have about 1,760, most of which are Northern Spies, and they are of a good quality this year. The success of their crops is due to the care which Messrs. Leonard give to their orchard.

RECIPES

Salad for Cold Lamb.

Wash and chop finely three large lettuces. Have ready a bunch of water-cress, six young radishes, a little mustard and cress, two or three sprigs of tarragon leaves, twelve young chives and a boiled beet root. Pour into the salad bowl two tablespoonfuls of Lucca or Florence oil, one teaspoonful of sweet anchovy sauce, one teaspoonful of chilli vinegar, the yolks of three hard-boiled eggs beaten up with cream, with salt to taste. Mix all together, adding a gill of vinegar. Cut up the roots and esculents, and stir them in until the salad is easily mixed.

Imitation Crab.

Mince the white meat of a roast or boiled fowl very fine with the liver so as to make about six tablespoonfuls in all. To this put two tablespoonfuls of pounded cheese, two moderate sized onions, four or five green chillies (or if these cannot be procured, some cayenne pepercorns), chopped very small. Mix these thoroughly together, and afterward add spoonful of anchovy and one of Harvey sauce, one large spoonful of mustard, two of mushroom catsup, black pepper and salt, and three spoonfuls of sweet oil. Well mix the whole. This makes a nice relish to eat with bread and butter.

Peppermint Drops.

Take a gill of cold water and a handful of sugar, mix with a wooden spoon, take another handful and mix it over the fire, keep stirring it till it is so hot that you can only just bear your finger in it; take care it does not boil. Stir oil of peppermint in it to taste. Drop it on writing paper. N. B.—Double-refined sugar, sifted through a lawn sieve, must be used for all kinds of drops.

Violet Drops.

Same as above, only mix a little flour of oris with the sugar and water when over the fire, and color with azure blue.

Salsify or Vegetable Oyster.

The roots look like horseradish; they must be well scraped, cut in two and par-boiled. The water is then drained off, the plant cut up fine and boiled in milk, with a little butter, pepper and salt.

Chocolate Cake.

Two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, one scant cup of milk, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, one teaspoonful of soda, five eggs (the whites of two saved out for the frosting), three cups of flour. Frosting—whites of two eggs beaten up, one and a quarter cup of sugar, four heaped tablespoonfuls of chocolate, one teaspoonful of vanilla.

The Poet's Salad.

Pass two well-boiled potatoes through a sieve, add one teaspoonful of mustard, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one of essence of anchovy, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of very finely-chopped onions well bruised into the mixture, three tablespoonfuls of oil, one of vinegar, the pounded yolks of two hard-boiled eggs. Stir it up thoroughly before serving.

Cinnamon Drops.

Bath Buns.

Mix one-half pound of flour six ounces of butter, four eggs, one-half a gill of sweet milk, a little yeast; let it stand a night in a warm place; in the morning add one-quarter of a pound of broken lump sugar, one egg, two ounces of orange peel and two ounces of citron, knead into buns, and lift them on buttered tins with a spoon; let them rise for three hours; glaze them with the white of an egg before going in the oven.

How to Make Tea.

It is a great improvement to most teas, especially Indian, to mix two kinds. To brew tea properly, the water should only be boiled once, and be poured on the moment it boils, or it becomes hard and fails to draw out either the color or the strength, and entirely destroys that fine aroma or bouquet which is the characteristic of choice or rare teas; it is also most important that the water should boil thoroughly, or the tea is spoilt. Tea should be brewed either in China, earthenware or silver pots, never in metal, pewter or German silver ones, as these impart a metallic flavor which detracts from the quality. Carbonate of soda spoils tea—it destroys the brickness and pungency in which, in a great measure, consist the value and quality. Tea should be brewed ten minutes, and all the water poured on at once.

WHY NOT GIVE PETERBOROUGH THE ONCE OVER?

The Parker Motor Car Co., Ltd., headed by Sir Alexander Bertram, of Montreal, is looking over the field for a factory site. Two plants have already been considered, but a decision has not yet been made.

One of the sites is located at Longue Pointe and the other is that of the Canadian Motor and Machine Company, Quebec City.

According to W. H. Parker, first vice-president of the company, it is proposed to build the Parker Six car and the Parker two-ton truck.

"Our idea," said Mr. Parker, "is to put out a car that is built in Canada for Canadians. As soon as possible we want to see to it that every bolt and screw, every casting and die, and every bit of work done on this car or any of its parts is strictly Canadian in character and paid for with Canadian money which will stay in Canada."

CARS COLLIDED AT STREET CORNER

ONE MAN REMOVED TO HOSPITAL WITH BROKEN RIB.

Two automobiles collided at Reid and Smith streets at 3.45 yesterday afternoon ,and one of the passengers received a broken rib. One car owned by C. Rutherford and driven by B. A. Hickey, was going north on Reid street, taking Thomas McQuillan and Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, who are spending the summer at Chemeng, to Chemong.

The other automobile turned to the south from the east into Reid street, at the corner. The car turning in from Smith street had the right of way, and the driver swung into Reid street ,thinking the road was clear, but saw too late that the other car had not stopped at the corner. Both cars struck heavily, and were both considerably damaged. Mr. Richardson received a broken rib and was removed at once to the hospital.

The car which had the right of way, was an Amerian car, owned by D. S. Atchison, R.R. No. 3, Mohawk, N.Y. Other passengers in the auto were Mr and Mrs. Clarence King, of the same address.

A settlement for the damages was being arranged by the several persons concerned this morning.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL CLOSES.

Conditions of Metal Market Reason, Says Company's Statement.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

SURBURY, Ont., Aug. 25.—Four hundred employees of the International Nickel Co. will be thrown out of work on Saturday night when the shut-down announced by company officials goes into effect. At least 200 men will be retained. The company's payroll, following a cut-down of operations, which went into effect some time ago, has been in the neighborhood of 600.

The statement issued by the International Nickel Co. was as follows:

"Owing to the present business depression and the accumulation of heavy metallic stocks, this company has thought it advisable to suspend operations until such time as general business conditions would warrant a resumption of operations. It is hoped that stocks on hand will decrease to the extent that operations may be resumed at a reasonable early date."

Port Colborne refinery is to be closed and the Bayonne, N. J., refinery will close down for a period of four months. Enormous supplies of nickel are on hand at the present time and the metal market is at such a low ebb that not a pound of the company's products has moved for months.

WEST VIRGINIA AGAIN DISTURBED.

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—About five hundred Logan County citizens were under arms here at daybreak prepared to marry to the Bone County border where, according to advices received at the office of Sheriff Don Chafin, a party of men, marching from Marmet to Mingo County as a protest against martial law there, were about to cross the boundary.

ILLINOIS VETERAN IS NEARING 104TH BIRTHDAY

WHITE TOWN, Ill., Aug. 25. — (United Press.) — Stephen White, Mexican war veteran and reputed to be the oldest native born citizen of Montgomery County, Ill., soon will celebrate his 104th birthday. White was born in 1818, the same year Illinois was admitted to the Union.

He is one of the few surviving Mexican war veterans in the state. He participated in the battles of Vera Cruz and Cerro Gordo, sustaining severe wounds in the latter battle. White has been on the matrimonial seas twice. His second wife, six children, forty grandchildren and six great-grandchildren are living.

MRS. DARCY CAUGHT A MONSTER FISH

MASKINONGE SAID TO BE FIFTY YEARS OF AGE.

From the black depths of Deer Bay, a few miles from Burleigh Falls, Mrs. H. W. Darcy, wife of the proprietor of the Park Hotel, Burleigh, dragged out at 11.30 yesterday morning after an exciting hour's battle, what old timers at Burleigh declared to be the biggest maskinonge ever caught in those waters. The monster fish weighed 34 3-4 lbs., and measured from tip to tip 49 inches. Many witnesses saw the measurements taken. The fish is now in the hands of Mr. E. Elcome, the taxidermist, and will be ready in a week or ten days for display.

Mrs. Darcy was fishing with a guide and her six year old son, Robert. She was trolling with a pole, using a double spoon, No. 6 brass and No. 3 copper. The fish got on in the weeds and Mrs. Darcy and the guide battled with the great lunge for over an hour before it was hauled triumphantly into the boat.

Fifty Years Old.

This is the largest fish reported caught in the waters about Peterboro this year. An American at the end of last season, according to Mr. Elcome, landed one slightly larger, but no fish has been brought into him this year approaching it in size. It is a female lunge and according a fisherman at Burleigh, was fifty years old. Mr. Elcome would not, however, give any estimate of the lunge's age. In his opinion there was no definite way of telling.

Mrs. Darcy's capture of the great fish follows after a couple of weeks of unusually good fishing around Burleigh. Followers of Isaak Walton have been landing lunge and bass by the score around this resort. Apparently the great denizens of the lakes are having compassion on unfortunate and patient fishermen. Even the youngsters have been cathing them. Mrs. Darcy's six year old boy, "Bobbie," got two yesterday (one 6 pounds and the other 8) and he shared in the capture of the large one, too.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS HOSTLER AT CHICAGO.

Her Sister is Married to a New York Policeman.

CHICAGO, August 25.—J. Beaver Webb, of New York, a prominent figure in eastern society and finance, has another son-in-law to match the Central Park policeman who already has married into the Webb family.

The second son-in-law is George Miles, a groom in the stables of Benjamin Behr at Lake Forest.

Miles and Miss Edith Beaver Webb were married on 14th June, it was learned to-day. They are living in a cottage on Arcady Farm, the Behr estate.

Miles and Miss Webb were married four days atfer Miss Webb's entry had taken second prize at the South Shore Country Club horse show.

Miss Webb's love for horses is said to have been one of the causes that led to her attachment to Miles.

Employees of the Behr estate say Miles is educated and refined, but works as a groom because of his love for horses.

About a year ago Miss Louise Webb was married to Thomas Leonard, a policeman inNew York. Father Webb protested, and for a time sought seclusion on his yacht, but is reported later to have accepted Leonard.

YOUNG FARMERS PREFERRED A CAR.

At the regular meeting of the U. F. Y. P. O., in the Orange Hall, Havelock, a debate was held on the question, "Which would be the best $600.00 investment for a farmer—to buy a Ford car or a lighting plant?" The Henry Ford proposition won the debate.

REPORT MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says we must keep feet dry; avoid exposure and eat less meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occassionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed itno the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood af this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to elimate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to elimate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

A man may enjoy his sweetheart on his knee during courtship but after marriage he doesn't like the idea of being sat on.

HOPE HAMPTON IN A SCENE FROM MAURICE TOURNEUR'S PRODUCTION "THE BAIT" A Paramount Picture

At the Capitol to-night, Friday and Saturday

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

Can you remember the day when you first went to the circus? The thrill and the genuine happiness of that day will come to you again when you see "Get-Rich-Quick Edgar" a real story of boy-life, acted by real boys, and written by the famous Booth Tarkington. It is the cleanest sort of comedy being screened to-day. It comes to the Allen to-day.

JACKIE COOGAN IN NEW PLAY TO-DAY

"Peck's Bad Boy," starring Jackie Coogan, the six-year-old screen actor, will commence its engagement of three days at the Allen theatre to-day.

It is the first picture that Jackie has done since Charlie Chaplin discovered him and produced "The Kid." His work in that feature appealed to Irving Lesser as especially fitting him for the title role in 'Peck's Bad Boy," and, after making arrangements with Warner Brothers, the continuity was prepared especially for Jackie and the picture produced.

Critics in New York, where "Peck's Bad Boy" was recenty given its initial presentation, have described the production as an epic of boyhood days. The picture is released by Associated First National
